The dedication of the Noah Torrey schoolhouse at Braintree took place this morning, and was largely attended by townspeople who are proud of the new building of red brick with limestone trimmings. It has a steam heating plant, electric clocks, telephones, modern furniture, and is a credit to the architect, builders and the town.

Gov. Curtis Guild, Jr., the lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, was the guest of honor, and prominent townspeople took part in the program, while Cuff's orchestra furnished music. The program:

THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

Gen. Guild said: "Beneath the caves of the beautiful building in which is stored the free library of the city of Boston are the noble words, "The Commonwealth requires the education of the people as a safeguard of honor and liberty." It is a lofty thought put into lofty words. Professor Bryce, with a fine exactness of definition, describes the government of the United States as a government by public opinion. This being true, it is of the first importance that American public opinion should be intelligent public opinion, and with that aim ever in view the American has wisely promoted popular education to the utmost, not as a decoration but as the very cornerstone of our social structure. Popular government backed by intelligent popular opinion means a France, a Switzerland, a British Empire, a United States. Popular government based on an unintelligent public opinion means a Hayti or Santo Domingo.

"The fine old proverb of the days when education was limited to the few, noblesse oblige, might be properly altered to sagesse oblige. We have no aristocracy today but the aristocracy of learning, and as every man and woman in the country can exercise some effect on the creation of public sentiment that moves the wheels of government, it is doubly the business of the educated to see to it that this great force is rightly and intelligently applied.

"Mere accumulation without application of learning is worse than ignorance. Ignorance may accept a teacher—pedantry knows none.

"A Republic is a brotherhood and education alone is valueless without toleration, common sense, and above all the free expression of intelligent conviction in public action. The man who knows may love his country, but the man who acts maintains her. Education is not given us that we may isolate ourselves from our fellows. Education is given to us that, mingling with them, we may better minister to the common good of all.

It is an encouraging and hopeful sign that more and more citizens exert themselves to secure good nominations in the various parties; that, if slowly, the standards of public honor are steadily rising; that the most highly educated men in the country are sacrificing, as never before, positions of private comfort and high emolument for the thorny paths of public usefulness; that the Scholar no longer shrinks at the epithet politician; that the trained man of affairs is readier to do his plain duty in the jury box.

"The party boss fears the crowded caucus. The legal sharper dreads an intelligent jury. The swindler, great or little, winces under the lash of the newspaper that is not run for revenue only.

"The bookworm who reads only that he may censure has become the reproach of the public. The student whose private conviction is expressed in public action is the leader to whom the nation turns in confidence and hope.

"Freedom of thought and speech brings equally honest men to different opinions, but freedom of thought in public affairs does not include freedom from thought in puplic affairs. The Republic does not dictate convictions, but it has the right to demand some conviction from every citizen and that his private conviction be carried into public action.

"There has never been a country so vile that men were not ready to sacrifice themselves and die for her. The enduring nation must consist of men who will sacrifice self interests and live for her. Statesmanship may create a country and heroism defend it, but its endurance is determined by the conscience of its citizens."

Many of us observed the building of the new schoolhouse from it's beginning, through the various stages until its completion, with much interest, and to us who were accustomed to the little schoolhouse with the old stove, this modern building seems to be a veritable paradise for the wants and comforts of the children of the present day.

Situated on Pond street in the south part of the town on a slight elevation with a beautiful view across the waters of Sunset lake to the Blue hills and the surrounding country, it supplies just that bit of color needed to attract the artistic fancy.

It is not built in the conventional square schoolhouse style, but, while the building is perfectly symmetrical the ends break out and the resulting roof line with it's ornamentation is pleasing to the eye. These lines with the red brick, light stone trimmings, dark slate roof and the white of the ornamental cornices, windows and entrances, make a pretty combination that must be seen to be appreciated.

Approaching by the circular drive we were glad to notice the name, Noah Torrey School, so prominently placed in the center of the building. There are two entrances, just alike, with a large leaded glass transom over each of colonial style, and protected by covered porches also of colonial detail.

But on entering we were given our first peep into the modern schoolhouse.

All looked bright and cheerful with the sun shining in the windows when permitted to do so by the patent curtains. Plenty of light everywhere and the dark green wood and tints of the walls gave it all an ideal atmosphere.

We were fortunate in being conducted about and the interesting details were pointed out to us. We were shown the drinking fountains which bubble up and prevent germs, the telephones connecting every room, the electric clocks all keeping the same time, the bookcases in every room, the wardrobes with the modern arrangements for hats and coats on poles, umbrella clips and rubber racks, the hose on every floor for extinguishing fire, and the doors into the class rooms with glass panels for observation by the principal without interruption in the class room.

The heating and ventilating system was explained to us, with its fresh air rooms, pipes around the rooms under the windows and the amount of fresh air each scholar was furnished, and we saw the boiler room with it's large coal room and outside door to conveniently remove ashes and give light and air.

In the toilet rooms we found the children were provided with the most modern fixtures and taught to use such as we find in general use in our hotels and railroads stations. We found playrooms with bicycle runs and doors to the yard, a room for the janitor and a bright room in the basement that is expected to be used as a sloyd room some day.

We were told how easily with the handsome stairways the school would be emptied in case of fire, how if fire blocked the way on one stairway, there were exits through doors connecting the rooms to the other stairway. In the Class Rooms we particularly noticed the novel treatment of the walls, which were a soft green above the blackboards to rest the eyes, and a deep red above the floor to make the room bright and cheerful with the bright new desks.

We were shown teachers' and principal's rooms and assembly hall which will be finished up at some future time and will make a very fine spacious room with its stage and ante rooms. Even as we left we were shown how the outside door if locked could be opened by a twist of the handle bolts in case of fire, and, as we walked leisurely homeward we could not help thinking what an advance modern schoolbuilding had made since our day, and with all these conviences placed at their disposal how much more comfortable and happy the children of this generation should be.

Buildings of this class are a credit to the town.

The building committee F. Eugene Dyer, chairman, Otis B. Oakman, secretary, Herbert W. Borden, Paul Monaghan, William C. Harding, George H. Holbrook and J. Parker Hayward should be congratulated on adding so fine a building to the town's public works and architect H. W. Gore, Jr., also a fellow townsman for his fine design and careful carrying out of his plans.

Base Ball Championship.

The base ball championship of Weymouth was settled on Saturday, when the whole town turned out to see the Dewey club and the Clapp Memorial team struggle for supremacy. The former scored first and won in the ninth inning by the score of 3 to 2. It was a battle royal.

The Hospital Week committee evidently believe in advertising, as one sees everywhere the striking yellow sheets on the bill-boards and the red and black window cards.

The Best of Care.

Editors Quincy Daily Ledger

I was over there at the hospital three weeks and during that time I liked it very much. It is a very clean hospital and every thing in it excellent. I got the best of care and I thought the nurses were very good and gave me great care. I would not wish to be in any other hospital and I would know the President of the United States wouldn't be treated any better than I was.

Yours truly,
Mrs. Mary Leary.

The funeral of Patrick Desmond was held this morning from the church of the Sacred Heart. Mass was celebrated by Rev. J. P. Cuffe. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery at West Quincy.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The prospects are not bright for the Boston Americans winning a majority of their games this season.

Congratulations to the Boston Herald upon its contemplated new building and its new location. The Herald has certainly outgrown its present quarters. Wonderful progress has been made by the Herald of late, and greater achievements may be expected when it moves into up-to-date quarters.

A Boston paper publishes an interview with Mayor Ashley of New Bedford who is now serving his eleventh year, and seems to be as strong as ever. Twice in the interview he places the schools first. When asked of what he was proud of having accomplished, he said:

"I am proud of the schools, proud of the streets, proud of the franchises I have got for the street railways and electric lighting and telephone companies, the public parks and the contract for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad to have the city do the work of eliminating the grade within its boundaries."

Again when retrenchments were necessary, he said:

"This last summer I have had to let the grass grow in the parks and permit the streets to suffer from untidiness because we had to retrench, and I was determind to economize where it would do the least harm. Certainly not in the schools, and not in the police department or the library. But, though the streets have not looked as well as they might, the sewers are all in good condition; if the parks are not velvety and turfed, still we have plenty of breathing places for the children."

Some years ago Quincy was foremost among the public schools of the State and Nation, but the financial policy of late has had its effect, and the schools have suffered. The school issue should be made a prominent one in the coming municipal election. Quincy must have more accommodations for High school pupils; it must discontinue the use of the basement at the Coddington school; it must build two or three full-grade schoolhouses.; it must pursue a more liberal policy toward the public schools.

NATURE SPARES.

The Stricken Rose From Grief.

What a fortunate provision of nature it is, that deprives the rose of mental suffering; for how poignant would be its grief to discover, in the height of its blooming glory, that a canker fed at its heart, and that its beauty and fragrance were doomed forever. Nature always spares the suffering; she is a veritable store-house of pleasing rewards, for those who seek her aid. In the years gone by falling hair and grayness have cast a gloom over the lives of thousands of young women, but thanks to the investigations of scientists the true cause of hair destruction is now known to be a germ or parasite that burrows into the hair follicles. Newbro's Herpicide absolutely destroys this germ, thus permitting the hair to grow as nature intended. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

LABORERS REBEL

Say They Were Wrongfully Lured to Canal Zone

REFUSED TO LEAVE SHIP

Five Hundred Persuaded to Disembark, but a Large Number Held Out Until Battered by Police and Sent Ashore

Colon, Oct. 2.—Six hundred and fifty laborers from Martinique, brought here Friday on steamer Versailles under contract to work on the canal, refused to disembark or submit to vaccination, which is imperative under the American sanitary regulations. They clamored to be taken back to Martinique, claiming that they had been misinformed as to the conditions here before they embarked and that later they learned these conditions were intolerable and deadly.

Five hundred of them, however, were with difficulty persuaded to land, and these were sent to points along the line of the canal. One hundred and fifty remained on board the ship and declined to leave the vessel under any consideration. These were forcibly ejected from the vessel yesterday afternoon by Panaman and canal zone policemen, but not until nearly every one of them had been clubbed and several were bleeding from nasty wounds.

Early Sunday morning the French consul at Colon, M. Bonhenry, explained to the men that they had left Martinique under contract with the canal zone emigration agent. The men, however, were not amenable to this reasoning. Notwithstanding the efforts of the consul and of the Panaman and American officials and despite the information given them by several of their countrymen that health and other conditions on the isthmus were satisfactory and that the terms of their employment would enable them to save money, they persistently refused to leave the ship, baring their breasts and invoking death in preference to going ashore.

The captain of the Versailles told the men he was ready to take back to Martinique all those who were able to pay their passage, but the men argued that the French government would be willing to reimburse the steamship company and that they themselves were penniless.

Before noon, at the instance of M. Raven, the agent of the company, and of the French consul, a squad of 12 Panaman police went on board the vessel and told the men that force would be used if they persisted in their refusal to disembark. Seeing that the police were armed with bayonets and guns, the men again bared their breasts and said they preferred death rather than be taken ashore.

Governor Melendez, Mayor Andron, the chief of police and others argued with the men, but again without effect. Ten additional policemen arrived at the wharf, but the governor, considering that the police force was insufficient, telegraphed to President Amador, asking permission to use the canal zone police, to which the president consented. In the meantime 12 policemen from the zone had arrived at the dock and were being held in readiness.

At 2 o'clock the laborers were informed that they would be given two hours to reconsider their decision and at 4 o'clock three of them consented to disembark, the others still holding out. Then the Panaman police, armed with clubs, approached the laborers and on their refusing to quit the ship began to club them right and left. The zone police a few minutes later assisted in the clubbing, but with better judgment and less indiscriminately. About 50 of the laborers leaped into the sea, but all of the men were able to swim. The captain, however, lowered a boat which picked them up. Nearly every man had received blows and several of them were bleeding from their wounds.

Seeing that resistance was useless, the men yielded, came ashore and began to eat the food which had been placed on the dock in sight of them for several hours. Many of them had not eaten since Saturday. At 5 o'clock all the laborers, who were in a pitiable condition, were placed on board a train which left for Corozal, where they will be put to work.

Riot Over University Proposition

Bruenn, Austria, Oct. 2.—A collision took place here between rival meetings of Germans and Czechs, resulting from the agitation by the former against the proposed establishment of a Czech university here. SUSPECT IS TAKEN

The First Arrest In Connection With Winthrop Mystery

CASE NOT VERY STRONG

Man Who Gave Information to Reporter Tells Rambling Story --Suspect Is Said to Resemble Man Wanted by the Police

Boston, Oct. 2.—The first arrest in connection with the finding in the harbor near Winthrop of a dress suit case containing the torso of a woman on whom, the medical examiner states, an illegal operation had been performed, occurred Sunday, when the local officers took into custody, on suspicion of being an accomplice in the case, William A. Haynes of 52 Chambers street, West End.

The arrest is stated to have been made on statements by Samuel A. Wingfield, who told the police that he had a friend who had cut up a body. Haynes was examined at length by the police and, while he denied the accusation, he was locked up.

The authorities, while declining to make a specific statement regarding the arrest, indicate by their manner that they are far from confident that the right man is being detained. No definite charge has been preferred against Haynes.

Wingfield was interviewed in a West End saloon by a newspaper man on Friday and the attention of the police was called to alleged statements made by him regarding Haynes on Saturday. Without notifying either the state or the high officers of the local department, two policemen connected with station 3 at the West End took Wingfield and Haynes to the station Sunday, where they both were examined by Sergeant Moulton.

The examination lasted about three hours, during which Wingfield is said to have told in a rambling and very nervous manner that Haynes had informed him that he (Haynes) had cut up a body, or a portion of one, at T wharf, near where he is employed. Wingfield could not say whether the body was that of a man or a woman. A woman named Kate Conway, who claims to be engaged to Wingfield, is said to have corroborated some of his statements regarding Haynes. Haynes denied that he had ever made such statements and asserted that his friend had confused the fact that he (Haynes) had been on a coroner's jury and also had helped drag a body from the water near the wharf.

Wingfield came here a year or two ago from Baltimore and opened an oculist's office. Business did not prove profitable and he obtained a position as clerk in a grocery store. Wingfield is 33 years of age. He has been arrested here on several occasions on charges of intoxication.

Haynes is also said to be a southern man. He is 36 years of age and married. His wife is at present in Cape Breton. Haynes is employed as a clerk at Lewis wharf by the Ocean Steamship company. In some respects his description resembles that of the man who purchased a dress suit case at Pawnbroker Berkman's store on Pleasant street.

Berkman and the hackdriver who claims to have carried two men and a heavy suit case to the Chelsea ferry the night before the finding of the dismembered body are Hebrews. Yesterday was an important Jewish holiday and neither witness would agree to see the prisoner.

Chief Inspector Watts declines to discuss the latest developments. In police circles, however, it appears to be the general feeling that the case against Haynes is not of the strongest.

Haynes and Wife Separated

Richmond, Oct. 2.—The family of W. A. Haynes, arrested at Boston on suspicion in connection with the dress suit case mystery, are respected residents of this city. Haynes left Richmond about 15 years ago and went to Newport News, where he married a woman of that city. He then drifted to Boston, and two years ago he and his wife separated. Since then his family here have heard little or nothing of his whereabouts. His wife is still living in Newport News and there are two children, aged 13 and 5 years respectively, who are with their mother.

Diasi Zappeta, who is alleged to have emptied a revolver into the crowd, was arrested.

RUGGED INDEED

Indian Not Worried Over Bullet Going Through His Head

Buffalo, Oct. 2.—Albert Blue Sky, a Cattaraugus Indian, was brought to a hospital here to be treated for a bullet wound in his head. The surgeons found that the bullet had entered Blue Sky's head near the temple, just low enough to escape the brain and far enough toward the ear to escape the eyes and their connecting nerves. It passed directly through the head and went out on the opposite side almost in the same relative spot it had entered.

The shooting occurred early Saturday morning, but Blue Sky treated it lightly and walked around as usual. A Buffalo lawyer who went to the reservation to consult Blue Sky in regard to a law suit induced the Indian to come to Buffalo for treatment yesterday.

Blue Sky is a rugged specimen of his tribe and is expected to get well. He accuses another Indian of firing the shot.

LOOMIS IS PRAISED

Actions Fully Sustained by the President

HAD HAY'S ENDORSEMENT

Correspondence Made Public Shows That Late Secretary of State Had Very Poor Opinion of Minister to Venezuela

Washington, Oct. 2.—In correspondence between President Roosevelt and Assistant Secretary of State Loomis made public here last night, the president says that the late Secretary Hay disagreed with him on "even the mild censure" of Loomis in the Taft report on the investigation of the charges brought by Mr. Bowen, the former minister to Venezuela, and adds that Secretary Hay very strongly condemned Bowen's course.

The statement made public begins with a letter from Loomis to the president, in which he says that for some time past there have appeared in various newspapers statements, more or less direct, to the effect that grave differences of opinion existed between the president and Mr. Hay concerning both Loomis and the action to be taken by the president upon the findings and report of Secretary Taft in the matter of the charges made against Loomis by Bowen, Loomis cites a case in point and says:

"In December last I went to Mr. Hay's house and told him that I expected to resign from the department within the course of the next eight or nine months. He was good enough to say: 'I am extremely sorry to hear this; I have always hoped you would remain in your present position as long as I remained in the cabinet.' On other occasions, both before and since that time, Mr. Hay accorded me seemingly convincing proof of his confidence.

"At Mr. Hay's request, I spent at his home what proved to be practically the last hour of his life in Washington. Upon that occasion he referred to the then recent Bowen episode with much feeling. Among other things he said that he was disgusted with Bowen beyond expression; that vanity appeared to be a disease with him, and that he was both disloyal and untruthful, and had been treacherous not only to him (Mr. Hay) but to the country."

Mr. Loomis concludes by saying that as he is very soon to retire from the public service he wishes the president to express his attitude in the matter. The president's letter follows:

"In answer to your letter of Sept. 25, I desire to state, in the broadest and most emphatic manner, that the statement you quote as appearing in certain newspapers as to the supposed differences of opinion between myself and the late Secretary of State Hay, in respect to the action taken by me regarding Mr. Bowen in connection with the charges against you, is not merely without foundation in fact, but is the direct reverse of the truth.

"You were appointed assistant secretary of state upon Mr. Hay's suggestion and request. He never spoke to me about you save with respect and cordial appreciation of the services you were rendering, and he expressed to me very great regret that you were going to leave the service and stated that he had hoped that you would stay in as long as he did and that he would find it difficult to get anyone in your place whom he would like so much.

"Mr. Hay expressed himself very freely on the occasion of his last visit to Washington as regards the action taken by me on the report of Mr. Taft concerning the charges made by Mr. Bowen against you. Not only did he express himself about Mr. Bowen to me in the language you quote him as having used at about the same time to you in speaking of Mr. Bowen, but he also condemned Mr. Bowen in much stronger terms than those which you quote him as having used, and dwelt particularly upon the fact of what he called the treachery and disloyalty of Mr. Bowen to the government and to him (Mr. Hay), repeating again and again that most of the charges Mr. Bowen made were really not charges against you at all, but against himself (Mr. Hay), and that Mr. Bowen, of course, knew this.

"Moreover, Mr. Hay used about Mr. Bowen stronger language of condemnation than I have ever heard him use about any other man who had served under him. But this was not all. Mr. Hay then did what he very rarely indeed did. He expressed his strong dissent from the action I had taken in endorsing Mr. Taft's report as regards even the mild censure of you which it contained, stating that he disagreed with both Mr. Taft and myself on this point and felt that you were in no way whatever censurable, and that the only action that had been called for was the dismissal of Mr. Bowen and the announcement of your entire vindication."

INCREASE IN WAGES

Six Thousand Carpenters Benefited by Judge's Decision

Boston, Oct. 2.—Six thousand union carpenters in Boston and vicinity today had their wages advanced 28 cents a day, and overtime work will be paid for at a double time rate. The change becomes operative under a decision of Judge Wentworth of the municipal court, who was agreed upon to arbitrate a dispute between the Master Carpenters' association and the unions regarding wages.

The Master Carpenters' association agreed to accept the judge's decision and a number of employers not members of the association have also acquiesced. Other non-association members have not agreed to pay the advance and a small number of workmen struck today. The carpenters' district council has ordered every union member to strike in shops that do not concede the increase.

Boys Caught In Wreckage

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 2.—An accident marred the celebration of the feast of St. Michael by the members of the Italian Roman Catholic church. When the musicians entered a band stand that had been erected in front of the church the structure collapsed, and three lads, who were beneath the stand, were pinned under the wreckage. Edward Mullins' back was broken and he is not likely to recover. Two other boys were injured, but not seriously.

Flagman's Error Caused Wreck

New Haven, Oct. 2.—Engineer Dusken had both ankles fractured and Brakeman Bresnahan was hurt by being thrown from the caboose when a heavy freight train ran into the rear of another freight, waiting to enter the railroad yards. The caboose of the first train and several cars of both trains were completely wrecked. It is stated that a flagman failed to go back to flag the approaching train.

Stabbed by Orchard Robber

Biddeford, Me., Oct. 2.—Frederick Doyle, who lives with his father-in-law on a farm just outside this city, was stabbed in the abdomen and back by one of a band of five Greeks whom he found robbing his orchard. After the stabbing the Greeks fled to the woods and have not yet been apprehended. It is not believed that Doyle's wounds will prove fatal.

Italian Musicians In a Crash

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 2.—Three members of the Banda Roma of Boston were seriously hurt, while nearly every other member of the band was cut and bruised by the collapse of a band stand on Common street last night. The accident was caused by the breaking of one of the supporting posts of the stand. Most of the instruments were ruined by the collapse.

Auto Became Unmanageable

Keene, N. H., Oct. 2.—R. M. Burnet, an extract manufacturer, was seriously injured at Swanzey Mills when the springs of his automobile, a 45-horse power machine, broke. The car went into the ditch, struck a telephone pole and a stone wall. Burnet sustained a fracture of the collar bone, and bad scalp wounds. The car was completely wrecked.

Drowned Babe and Self

Leicester, Mass., Oct. 2.—Mrs. Mary A. O'Hare, 45 years old, walked into a pond in the rear of her home with her 11-months-old baby boy in her arms, and committed suicide and infanticide during a fit of temporary insanity of the mother. The bodies of the mother and babe were discovered by the woman's husband after a long search.

Disappearance Explained

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 2.—Workmen engaged in clearing up the ruins of the Beaver Brook mills, which were destroyed by fire on Sept. 16, found the body of Albert Solaman, employed in the drying room of the factory. At the time of the fire Solaman was missed, but up to the present no trace of him had been found in the ruins.

Crushed to Death by Boulder

Winsted, Conn., Oct. 2.—While climbing a hill here James G. Maddrah, Jr., who was on a hunting trip, stepped on a big boulder which toppled over, and both men and rock were hurled down a 50-foot embankment. At the bottom the rock fell on Maddrah and killed him instantly, his crushed body being found by his son.

Plucky Telephone Lineman

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 2.—Although a heavy current of electricity was burning his hands and fingers, Edward Butler, a telephone lineman, rather than release his hold and risk the results of a fall to the ground, held on until rescued. Both hands and his left arm had been badly burned.

Held Up and Robbed

Swampscott, Mass., Oct. 2.—In an encounter with an armed highwayman near the Salem line last night, John Foley of Malden was shot in the leg, and the robber escaped with $55 of Foley's money. The affair occurred about dusk on the railroad tracks from Salem to this town.

Strike of Quarrymen

Stonington, Me., Oct. 2.—The refusal of six local granite firms to grant the demand of 350 quarrymen for an eight-hour day and recognition of the union has inaugurated a strike in the quarries which may involve more than 500 men. Six firms are involved.

New Arcanum Rate In Force

Boston, Oct. 2.—The new Royal Arcanum rates went into effect yesterday, despite the protests of the legal committee. The legal committee, however, is making an organized fight against the new rate.

FAST TRAINS.

They Run Through Track Obstructions Better Than Slow Ones.

On the straight stretches of the line the fast train because of its higher velocity is less likely to be thrown from the track by some obstruction than the slow train. The writer was once on an engine that was thundering down grade through the Bad Lands of Dakota with a ten car train behind it at a speed of over sixty miles an hour when the engine struck and swept through a band of wild horses that dashed out of a neighboring canyon across the track just as the train was upon them. The engine and train kept the rails unharmed. At another time he was on an engine that was crawling slowly upgrade when a small band of sheep crossing the tracks proved enough to derail the engine.

It takes but a very small force to deflect a billiard ball that is rolling slowly across a billiard table, but if that some ball were moving at the rate of 100 feet a second (a frequent speed for these fast expresses) it could only be deflected by the exercise of considerable force. It is the instinctive recognition of this fact that has led some engineers when they have seen that they must hit a comparatively light obstruction to increase rather than decrease the speed of the train.—Exchange.

CHOP SUEY.

A Recipe For Making This Famous Chinese Dish.

For chop suey scrape the meat from the bones of a small chicken and cut it into strips a half inch in length. Peel an onion and slice it very thin. Soak eight or ten dried mushrooms in cold water for ten minutes, then drain. Cut a stalk of celery into half inch bits. Cut six Chinese potatoes into slices after washing them thoroughly. Cook a cup of rice in an abundance of boiling water without stirring, then drain and have so dry that each grain stands separate.

Put a great spoonful of butter in a frying pan and cook the chicken in this, turning it often. When done through, but not dry or crisp, add the sliced onion and cook for five minutes more. Now add the mushrooms and a small cupful of Chinese sauce. The sauce takes the place of salt. Add a cup of boiling water and stew for fifteen minutes. Stir in the celery and cook for ten minutes, then add the potatoes and cook for two or three minutes. Thicken with a little flour rubbed smooth in a gill of water, boil up once hard and serve with the rice, which must have been kept hot.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

PAUL JONES' IDEALS.

What, Besides a Mariner, a Naval Officer Should Be.

To the people of the country at large Paul Jones unquestionably will forever be a popular figure among the national heroes, but to the officers of the navy he is much more than the first and perhaps most dashing member of their beloved service. He is not only the man who said, "I have not yet begun to fight," but he is the one who most thoroughly understood the requirements of the naval profession and the one who placed its ideals so high that it will be a perpetual incentive to ambition to attain them.

Upon his tomb should be inscribed the paragraph from his letter that epitomizes the requirements of the service which he adorned and that should stimulate every midshipman to adopt his standards. He said:

"It is by no means enough that an officer of the navy should be a capable mariner. He must be that, of course, but also a great deal more. He should be as well a gentleman of liberal education, refined manners, punctilious courtesy and the nicest sense of personal honor."—Navy League Journal.

Long Lived Ancients.

In ancient days people seemed to have lived longer than in modern times. When the census during the reign of Vespasian, the Roman emperor, was taken several persons were living who were more than 100 years old, among them being two in Parma, each 125 years; one in Brixellum, 125; one in Placentia, 130; a woman in Faventia, 135; L. Terentius, in Bologna, 140; MM. Apponius and Tertulla, the former being 140 and the latter 137, and at Velejacium, near Placentia, six persons who were 110, four 120 and one who was 140.

The Color Spreads.

An Eskimo baby is born fair, except for a dark round spot on the small of the back varying in size from a three-penny bit to a shilling. From this center head of color the dark tint gradually spreads till the toddling Eskimo is as beautifully and as completely and as highly colored as a well smoked meerschaum pipe. The same thing happens among the Japanese.

What Truth Is.

Truth is the grand motor power which, like a giant engine, has rolled the car of civilization out from the maze of antiquity, where it now waits to be freighted with the precious fruits of living genius.—Seeker.

Took His Advice.

"He told his wife she ought to take cooking lessons."

"Did she?"

"Well, yes. She sent for her mother to come and give her a three months' course."

Names of Mount Ararat.

The Turks know Great Ararat, the resting place of the Biblical ark, as Aghri-Dagh, or "Mountain of the Ark." The Persians call it Koh-i-nuh, "Noah's mountain." The Amphkirs call it the "Peak of God's Boatman" and whenever in sight of it perform a peculiar religious ceremony called "Lella Rhineri," or the "Brave Rhinoceros," because of a legend current among them that God cursed the beast and commanded Noah not to take him on the great craft with the other animals. To this treatment the rhinoceros objected, and when the ark began to float he hooked his horn over a railing at the water's edge and floated about with the Noahian vessel, an unwelcome parasite, during the forty days.

Recognized Himself.

"Now, children," said the teacher, "let us see what you remember about the animal kingdom and the domestic animals that belong to it. You have named all the domestic animals but one. Who can tell me what that one is? It has bristly hair, likes dirt and is fond of getting into the mud." Miss Fanny looked expectantly around the room. "Can't you think, Tommy?" she asked encouragingly.

"Yes'm," was the shamefaced reply. "It's me."—Christian Register.

An Indignant Bundle.

Lord Middleton, a very nearsighted nobleman, had an embarrassing experience some years ago. "Wait a moment," he said to a companion as they entered a railway carriage. "I'll just pop this bundle on to the rack." So saying he made a grab at an object occupying a corner seat and seized a large and elderly lady, who indignantly protested against being disturbed.

A Startler.

A correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette vouches for this incident: A young woman, with a fretful baby, in a full omnibus (aloud): "Poor little nipper, I suppose I shall end by 'aving to take 'im to the 'orspital." (Raising the child's veil and looking around for sympathy) "Don't get no rest. 'E is sufferin' so with smallpox."

Glazed Ham.

To glaze a cold ham first brush over the ham with beaten yolk of egg. Then cover this very thickly with finely powdered breadcrumbs, pressed on firmly. Lastly brush over the whole with thick cream and set in a quick oven. This glazing should be brown and will be like a delicious crust.

Do not talk about disgrace from a thing being known when the disgrace is that the thing should exist.—Falconer.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars: free.

Y. M. C. A. Boys.

Twenty-six boys of the junior department of the Y. M. C. A. "hiked" to the Blue Hills on Saturday under the leadership of Raymond Noon, the boys' secretary. The party took lunch on Great Blue hill, after which a swim in Houghton's pond was enjoyed. The crowd was enthusiatic and full of life, making the hike most successful. On returning to the Y. M. C. A. the showerbaths were open to all, whether members or not, making a delightful ending to a hike of about thirteen miles.

A hike for chestnuts is planned for October 21, to which every boy in the city is invited. Those who hiked were Carl Marsh, Allison Marsh, Harold Marsh, Stanley Bates, Charles Hearn, Harold Leathers, Stanley Sherman, Winthrop Sherman, Bruce Saville, Fred Gullickson, Theodore Fuller, Harold Jardine, Harry Smith, Lewis Brown, Harry Glover, Lee Brooks, Leslie Mehaffey, Frank Mehaffey, Eric Patch, Roland Grant, Ralph Austin, Carl Cranshaw, Albion Bonney, Harold Smith, and Howard Pratt.

NEW LEADERS.

Drug Clerk Maloney and Miss Peterson Now at Top.

There is a grand shake up in the ladies list for the Daily Ledger free scholarships. Miss Mahoney drops from first place to fourth place, and the new leader is Miss Peterson, closely followed by Miss Manning and Miss Bates. Good gains were also made by Miss Round, Miss Rogers, Miss Tilton, Miss Blake, Miss Souter and others.

The 400 are evidently at work for Drug Clerk Maloney for he added over 400 votes today and jumped into first place. Large gains were also made by Clerk Cash, Engineer Johnson, Conductor Johnson, Clerk Lyons and others. A promising new candidate in the men's list is Arthur Richardson of Gay street who starts in at No. 7.

It is important that the coupons should be filled out, especially in entering new candidates. The Ledger will receive coupons, however, where the name only is written or stamped, to make the work easier for candidates. It would be better, however, to fill out one coupon complete with each lot of votes.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The class work begins in the gymnasium with the Seniors, Tuesday at 8 P. M. The schedule of classes has been enlarged this season, but for the present the schedule in the prospectus will be followed.

Wednesday evening, there will be a reception to young men. This will be an informal affair. Come, get acquainted, and inspect the building.

The attention of the business men of the city is called to the 5 o'clock gymnasium class which starts Thursday, October 5. Function makes structure. That means that any organ to be preserved must be exercised in its logical way, or it deteriorates. The body needs activity for its refreshing. That which is physically recreative must include activity. Every business man should be in this class.

Church Day.

The Sunday-school of the First Parish held an interesting day Sunday known as Church day. The school assembled in large numbers in the morning. Rev. Mr. Butler delivered an excellent sermon to the children during which he paid a touching tribute to the memory of the late Mrs. Schenkelberger, who was a teacher in the school. At 12, noon, an interesting service was held under the direction of the Supt. C. H. Johnson. The school is in a flourishing condition and increasing in numbers under the good work put into it by the popular superintendent, C. H. Johnson.

In Court for Assault.

Thomas Hennessy was summond into court this morning by Officer Bradley for assault on Antonio Palari. Both defendent and complaint are young boys. It is alleged that Sunday afternoon while having a bonfire at Jobs woods the Hennessey boy took a piece of brush, after setting fire to it, thrust the burning brush into the face of the Palari boy. The latter's face was severely burned and it was a wonder that he did not lose his eyesight. The case was continued until Thursday.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

What is thought by Managers W. A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer to be the finest American drama, written by an American clergyman to be presented upon the American stage, is "As Ye Sow," a comedy drama depicting the life of the people in the picturesque Cape Cod country, which drama will have its first presentation at the Majestic Theatre opening Monday evening, Oct. 9.

The author is the Rev. John Snyder, pastor of the Church of the Messiah in St. Louis for twenty-seven years out of his thirty-five years of service. Several of Dr. Snyder's old friends in St. Louis will come to Boston to enter a theatre for the first time upon the production of the play written by their former pastor and friend.

Dr. Snyder's theme is not a religious one. His play tells of the lives and loves and hates of the simple folk of Cape Cod and the point upon which most emphasis is laid is the natural law which decrees that "as ye sow, so shall ye reap." The dominant figure in the drama is a minister.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A unique feature of "The Royal Box," to be played this week at the Castle Square theatre, is a scene wherein both the stage and one of the proscenium boxes are occupied by the actors. The audience is thereby made to feel itself a part of the action of the play, and its presentation is certain to arouse a great deal of curiosity and interest solely on this account. Why the actors are in the box as well as on the stage need not be disclosed. The reason will be apparent at the Castle Square theatre this week. "The Royal Box" has been given frequently enough to arouse a public desire for another presentation in Boston. Its picturesque environment of Court life, its characters costumed in the handsome English array of a century and more ago, and its portrayal of human emotions promise to make it one of the most notable of Castle Square productions.

ANDOVER AGAIN.

Defeat Quincy Team at Association Foot Ball.

Quincy was defeated on Saturday at the Ward Three playground by Andover, the score being two goals to nothing.

The superb playing of Collins, the Quincy goal tender, was something worth going a long way to see. Robertson played a good game at fullback for Quincy, but it is too bad to see a fine player like this, playing out of his proper place which is left halfback.

The visitors played a very fast game and were entitled to their victory. Quincy should thank their goal tender for keeping the score where it was.

The Andovers have not been defeated this season and the chances are they will not be, until they meet the Fore River team, and when that game comes off there will be "something doing."

The Saturday game drew a large crowd of spectators, some of which took a very lively interest in the game.

The lineup was:

Rally Servics.

The rally service of the Sabbath school of the United Presbyterian church at the close of rally week resulted in bringing out a large congregation Sunday night to hear the little folks.

The children all did well. "Papa, shall I look for you?" was sung in a very impressive manner by Jessie McLean and Mary Collins. The duett by John McLean and Edward Barr with chorus by Sabbath school was also appreciated. The recitations were good. Two letters were read, one by Effie Gordon the other by Marion Russell from a little heathen boy 9 and a little girl 7 years of age of India, was an interesting feature of the program.

The pastor followed with an address to parents and those not taking any part in the Sabbath school. The service closed by school and congregation singing "Children Come."

The school was the largest for months. Miss Annie Russell presided at the organ.

QUINCY DOCTORS.

Several Changes Since Our Hospital Was Started.

When the little "History of Quincy Physicians" was written for the benefit of our Hospital at its beginning, fifteen years ago, our good physician, Dr. Sheahan brought the following timely stanza to the author, for a title page: It reads:

"Our motto is taken from a statue in the Latin Quartier, representing a printer, Wlrich Gering, who, with his two partners introduced printing in Paris in 1470. He holds a book in his hand with the following pithy inscription:

"Ne fugite ob pretium
Dives paupe que verute
Hoc opus magnilo qreens
Benitur auro brevi."

Which translated is:

Do not flee on account of the price,
The rich and the poor come here,
This magnificent work
Can be purchased with a little gold.

The book in question was sold for 25 cents and the lady who compiled it with the help of some Quincy physicians and Rev. Mr. Wilson, gave about $80 into the appropriation fund for the new hospital. The printing cost $40 and it was copyrighted. Then there were 13 practising physicians here. Now there are about 30. Of those who were with us at the starting of our hospital, Doctors Gilbert, Donovan and Sheahan are no longer here. A. E. F.

Hearty Sympathy and Good Wishes.

Publication Committee, City Hospital.

Dear Sirs:

It always affords me pleasure to speak or write my experience with Hospital work.

Seventeen years ago in Philadelphia, Pa., I met with a serious accident to my spine and at first thought it to be all over with me, and it indeed would have been had I not been treated quickly and received the best of medical care.

Unable to help myself and suffering excruciating pain, I can never forget those "silent angels of mercy" who attended to my every want and soothed my imaginations with words of encouragement and deeds of kindness.

Just such work as this is the mission of "Our Hospital" today.

Those who follow out this noble work can only appreciate how much good is accomplished in alleviating suffering humanity and the good work "Our Hospital" is doing should meet with a ready response for its maintenance from all grades of society to enable the management to attain still greater results.

You have my hearty sympathy and good wishes.

I am very truly yours,

Joseph Carruthers.

CAPE CATBOATS.

Interest on Increase and New Yachts for Next Season.

A well attended meeting of the Cape Catboat Association was held Monday evening at the office of Commodore F. F. Crane of the Quincy Yacht club.

President Ira M. Whittemore presided. Additions were made to the constitution, with the aim of preserving the type of boat available to race in the Capecat class of the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts.

By an unanimous vote of the members present and the endorsement by verbal proxy of all the other owners, carefully drawn restrictions and specifications for boats to be built for the cat class hereafter, were adopted.

These provided for boats of liberal reeboard, of the strict cruising catf type, with cabins of specified headroom in proportion to waterline length and fitted with cooking and sleeping accommodations.

Boats in the class must be not more than 27 feet over all, overhangs will be taxed and a percentage of them added to the waterline length for rating. Reverse curves in either bow or stern are forbidden, and no boat may have a blunt bow, scow form on deck, double rudders or bilgeboard. A full set of scantling tables for a stout construction throughout. Sail plans must be moderate and shall consist of mainsail and jib only. Ballast must be inside. Only centerboard boats are available.

This legislation is the first ever adopted in Boston bay for the building of Cape cats for racing.

Reports received at the meeting indicate that five new boats will be built for the class, which this season numbered 20 boats.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

All property within half a mile will be benefitted by the widening and building of Cottage avenue, and the improvement should not be delayed. It will open up another artery to and from the business section.

It is hoped that the extension of Maple place to City Square will not go by default, when the cherished end seemed so near. The private way is now largely used and appreciated, but it is in wretched condition and will be worse during the winter and spring.

Only six weeks to the caucuses for the nomination of Mayor and a new City Council. How time flies! It seems but a few weeks ago that the voters were engaged in a political contest. Mayor Thompson has been a safe and conservative executive. Perhaps the most serious criticism of the present city government is its failure to accomplish anything for the relief of the High school. The responsibility does not rest wholly upon the Mayor, for it is the business of the City Council to make appropriations, but Mayor and Council and School Committee must share the criticism. Certainly more interest should be taken this year in the nomination of candidates for the City Council. On the School Board the terms of Messrs. Churchill, Burke and Peirce expire.

There was.

Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.

Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Falling Hair, and consequent Baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.

Purchaser of Dress Suit Cases Is Identified

MANAGER FOR A DOCTOR

Police Certain That They Are on Trail of Man For Whom They Have Been Searching--Hayes and Wingfield Set Free

Boston, Oct. 3.—What the police consider a most important and promising clue to the solution of the Winthrop dress suit case mystery has developed, by which the police believe they have learned the name of the man who bought the two suit cases at the South End pawn shops. The police have also secured a photograph of the man in question and it is possible that an arrest will be made today.

The man, whose name the police do not care to make known at this time, is said to be the manager of the office of a Tremont street doctor, who is of doubtful reputation and whose place of business has for some time been under the surveillance of the authorities. The police claim to have evidence that criminal operations have been performed at the Tremont street office.

The photograph of the man, whose name is so closely connected with the crime, has been shown to the two pawnbrokers and to Timothy Howard, the cabman, and all have identified the photograph as that of the man for whom the police have been searching.

Both Pawnbrokers Berkman and Rubin are positive in their declaration that the man visited their places two or three days before the finding of the torso in Winthrop bay and purchased the dress suit cases, one of which contained the dismembered body, while the second one is still missing.

Cab Driver Howard is equally as positive that the man was the smaller of the two that he took from the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets to the Chelsea ferry about 10 o'clock the night before the finding of the dress suit case. The man hiring the carriage had two dress suit cases.

The police have not yet been able to locate the man, as he has been missing for the past few days, but they expect to apprehend him soon. It was through an acquaintance of the cabman and an agent of a collection agency that the police secured their information. The collection agency had his photograph because of certain business relations and the probabilities of a civil suit.

William A. Haynes and Samuel R. Wingfield, the two men held by the police overnight in connection with the case, were released after having been closely questioned by Captain Dugan of the Boston police, who has charge of all murder cases. Pawnbroker Berkman was called to headquarters and stated that neither man resembled the one who purchased the dress suit case. They have both been eliminated from the case.

Search for the missing members of the body has been resumed, as it is now considered time for them to rise to the surface if they were thrown into the water.

Opposed to Educational Test

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 3.—A prominent coal operator declares that if the new child labor law, which goes into effect Oct. 15, is enforced, it will mean that half the mines will be forced to close down. He characterizes as impracticable the clause which requires that no one under 21 years of age will be permitted to work in or around a mine who cannot pass an educational test in the common English branches.

One Bidder For Mail Contract

Washington, Oct. 3.—Proposals for carrying the mails on the ocean route from New York to Southampton for a term of 10 years were opened at the postoffice department. Only one bid was received, that of the International Mercantile Marine company, at $4 a mile for each outward voyage. This company now has the contract. No action has been taken.

Baseball Men In Stabbing Affray

Des Moines, Oct. 3.—Charles Dexter, catcher for the Des Moines Western league baseball team, last evening stabbed First Baseman Bateman of the Milwaukee American association team. Bateman is thought to be dying. The men quarreled over the payment of a cab bill and Dexter slashed Bateman across the breast, the blade cutting into the lung.

Boy Found Small Fortune

Cincinnati, Oct. 3.—Certificates of deposits, notes and securities apparently belonging to some person in Minnesota and valued at considerably over $50,000, were picked up on the street in this city by Raymond Schlie, aged 15. Officials are trying to find the owner. The papers were in two small boxes.

Railroad Man Says Chandler Made Stump Speech

POWER TO MAKE RATES

No Substantial Reasons Given For Putting It Into the Government's Hands--Railways Have Not Resorted to Tricks

New York, Oct. 3.—Samuel Spencer, president of the Southern Railway company, has replied to the statements made by former Senator Chandler of New Hampshire in letters which Chandler sent to the interstate commerce commission. Mr. Chandler's letters denied that he had advocated the proposed railroad rate legislation because it could be used to abolish discrimination between the whites and negroes in the south which had resulted in the use of Jim Crow cars. President Spencer said, when extracts from former Senator Chandler's letters were called to his attention:

"I have not seen the letters, but I have seen the extracts. Mr. Chandler seems to have made a lengthy stump speech from a very small text. Neither the Jim Crow cars, as used in the south, nor his interview of May 28 have ever been in any sense a factor in connection with the proposed rate legislation of last winter.

"The railways have not resorted to tricks, as indicated by Mr. Chandler, in opposition to such legislation. All that the responsible railway managers of the country have done since the discussion of this all-important question was precipitated by the president's message of December last has been to insist upon the thorough presentation to congress and to the public of all of the material facts and conditions involved in the problem.

"In all the discussion—before congressional committees, in the press and elsewhere—no substantial reasons have been advanced in support of the claim that the rate-making power should be granted to the interstate commerce commission or to any governmental tribunal. On the other hand, most sober-minded business men and students of transportation have pointed out the grave dangers to the industrial interests of the country which would arise from the revolutionary proposal to fix the income of the railways through such legislation as is proposed.

"All fair statements of facts which will aid the public to understand the transportation question are welcome, but Chandler's letters apparently contain no such facts. I am sure that neither the railway managers nor the members of congress nor the public will be diverted from the merits of the question by baseless statements or insinuations as to the motives and methods of those who have frankly put forward what they believe to be valid reasons against such enactment.

"The sessions of both the committees of the house and of the senate were open to Mr. Chandler and the forum of public opinion is still open to him if he has arguments to present; and if he presents them, it will then be time enough to answer him.

"In saying that I defeated by the 'Jim Crow car argument' Mr. E. B. Pike's efforts to have the Manufacturers' association endorse the proposed legislation of last winter, Mr. Chandler makes a direct charge, of the untruthfulness of which he could easily have satisfied himself by reference to the printed records of all that I said at the meeting of that association in Atlanta on May 1. The Jim Crow car argument was not to my knowledge used before that convention at all—certainly not in my hearing and presence, and I have never used it or referred to it as an argument there or elsewhere."

THE CRAFTY CASTRO

May Soon Have to Settle Accounts of Long Standing

Washington, Oct. 3.—Venezuela and her troublous conditions are now the subject of earnest consideration by the Washington and Paris governments. Just from Paris with full instructions, Mr. Jusserand, the French ambassador, called at the state department and was in conference with Secretary Root. Venezuela was the main subject under consideration, special attention being given to President Castro.

This conference was of a preliminary nature and at its conclusion the announcement was made that the Venezuelan situation had not entered on "an imminently critical" stage. No course of action was agreed upon and none was proposed.

It is a well known fact throughout the diplomatic corps that the general staff of the army has been making a thorough special study of Venezuela from a military standpoint, but this government, as well as France, appreciates the difficulties of an inland expedition to the Venezuelan capital, even should a critical turn of events warrant the serious consideration of such a move. At the same time it is realized that a naval demonstration off La Guaira, if such a course should ever be determined on, is not a sure method of forcing Castro to yield, because of the distance of Caracas from the sea.

In diplomatic circles the significance of the conference is attributed not so much to its direct results, but as evincing the firm purpose of the American and French governments to protect the rights of their citizens in Venezuela. Jusserand will continue his policy of discussing frankly with the Washington government the grievances of his country against Venezuela, that there may be no misunderstanding of the motives of the two claimant powers.

Clerk Confesses to Robbery of $359,000 In Securities

MOTIVE NOT CRIMINAL

He Claims That He Wanted to Show That Safeguards Could Be Balked by Simple Device--Every Dollar Is Recovered

New York, Oct. 3.—By the confession of Heni A. Leonard, a clerk in the employ of Halle & Stieglitz, brokers, the mystery of the robbery on Wednesday last of $359,000 worth of securities from the National City bank has been cleared up. Leonard, who lives with his parents, was arrested Sunday and kept in close confinement while the detectives continued their search for the missing securities, every dollar of which has been recovered.

The prisoner, who is 24 years old and who had previously borne the reputation of an industrious and thoroughly reliable clerk, made the statement in his confession that he had planned and carried out his scheme of forgery and robbery, not from any criminal motive, but solely to show by what a simple device the elaborate safeguards of New York banks could be set at naught. That this statement is true is in a measure corroborated by the facts in the case and is the belief of the young man's employers, by whom he was highly esteemed.

Soon after the theft Leonard mailed a package containing $300,000 in securities to the residence of Dyer Pearl, senior member of the firm of Pearl & Co., by whom they were owned. The package was received by Pearl Sunday. Yesterday Leonard's father turned over to the police the remaining $59,000 in stocks and bonds which he said had been found in a wardrobe in his house, where his son had said, after his arrest, he had secreted them.

The first clue that led to Leonard's arrest was obtained when the detectives traced the rubber stamp maker whom Leonard had employed to make the imitation certification stamp used in the check he presented at the National City bank. As a model for the stamp he gave the maker an old certified check bearing a fragment of the signature of Halle & Stieglitz and also a memorandum in his own hand which was identified by fellow clerks.

Leonard was held in the Tombs police court in $50,000 bail for further examination. On leaving the courtroom on his way to prison he said, in response to a question, "I did it on a bet."

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Granite Men Strike.

A dispatch from Stonington, Maine, says nearly 700 granite employes of different firms went out on strike Monday to enforce the demand of the quarrymen for an eight-hour day. None of the 400 quarrymen reported for work, and nearly 300 others quit the yards soon after work began. The men who went out in sympathy with the quarrymen are not involved directly in the controversy. The number is made up mostly of stone-cutters and tool sharpeners. The national secretary of the Quarrymen's Union, P. J. McCarthy, of Barre, Vt., is on the spot directing the strike.

NEW LEADING LADY.

And a New Candidate Who Starts at Number Five.

Miss Manning has moved up today in the Scholarship contest to first place, leading Miss Peterson however by only a dozen votes. A new and promising candidate in the ladies' list is Miss E. Marie Pitts of No. 200 School street, who starts in with over 100 votes. Miss Ethel Merritt has more than doubled her vote and has moved up to No. 7.

There has been a shake up among the leaders in the men's list, but Drug Clerk Maloney has a good clinch on first place. Conductor Johnson, however, made the largest gain and is today number two with 600 votes to his credit. Clerk Cash and Engineer Johnson both made gains and are very much in it.

Several other candidates have also made gains both in the ladies' list and the men's list, and there are some new candidates.

Some have not interpreted instructions correctly. At least the name of the candidate must be written on stamped on every coupon. The editor does not insist on the balance of the coupon being filled, but requests that the first coupon every day be ...ed complete.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

WORDS WITHOUT RHYMES.

A Little Lesson That the Banker Learned From the Poet.

"This minor poetry seems futile to me," the banker said, sneering. "Anybody can turn it out. A lunatic can write minor poetry. It's only a question of rhymes."

"You sneer at rhymes!" interjected the fat and bald poet. "Give me a rhyme for 'lounge.'"

The banker thought for three minutes, but in vain. He was stumped.

"Try me again," he said.

"A rhyme for 'sylph.'"

Again the banker failed.

"A rhyme for 'wasp.'"

"Nothing doing," said the banker after a long pause.

"'Gulf,' 'mouth,' 'hemp,' 'pint' 'puss.'"

"By jingo," said the banker, "I can't think of a rhyme for any of those words!"

The minor poet tried him again with "bilge," "depth," "wolf," "with," "volt," "scarf," "sauce," "fugue," "bulb" and "bow."

"I'm stuck," confessed the banker. "Minor poetry is harder than I thought. It's a wonder to me you fellows are not paid more."

"We don't care anything about the pay. It's the glory we are after," the poet answered, with dignity. "But I have been tricking you. For the words that I gave you there isn't a rhyme in the English tongue."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

THE LADY IN BLACK.

She Came For Queen Theresa, and Her Call Was Honored.

In 1850 an extraordinary thing occurred a few days before the death of Queen Theresa of Bavaria. King Louis and Queen Theresa were passing the summer in the castle of Archaffenberg, where their son-in-law, the Grand Duke Louis III. of Hesse-Darmstadt, came to see them. In the evening, when all of the court were at tea, several persons present saw a woman in deep mourning silently glide through the room. She stopped a moment behind the chair of the queen and fixed her eyes upon her majesty. Then she disappeared through the door of the antechamber. The grand duke arose hastily and rushed after the mysterious visitor. He was angry with the officer on guard for permitting a stranger to come in unannounced. The latter declared, however, that he did not see a single soul in the antechamber or in the royal parlor.

The duke came back and resumed his seat. His pale face excited the curiosity of the assembly, and at last he was obliged to tell what had happened. Queen Theresa when she heard the description of the visitor arose, with the cry, "It is for me that she has come!" Shortly afterward the queen returned to Munich and died there of the cholera.

The Arching Yucca Tree.

In the antelope valley of California grows the strangest yucca tree of all the western desert. The yucca is a tree not given to whims. It has been described by Van Dyke as having "a tall stalk rising like a shaft from a bowl and capped at the top by nodding creamy flowers." But the strange arching yucca has made itself famous by its curious form. Nobody watched it grow. All that is known about it is that it has two roots, its great stalk or trunk describing a graceful arch, rooted firmly into the ground at each end. At the top of the arch a great branch, like an extended arm, shoots forth as if pointing out the way. The arch is so high that a tallyho coach could easily pass under it.

Afghan Justice.

In a native irregular force raised by an Afghan chieftain the following amusing incident took place: A man was brought before the chief for stealing a shirt, and this is how the case proceeded:

Chief (to prisoner)—You are charged with stealing a shirt.

First Witness—Your honor, it was my shirt.

Second Witness—I saw him steal the shirt, your honor.

Result—Prisoner ten days for stealing the shirt, first witness ten days for not looking after the shirt better and second witness ten days for not minding his own business.

Lost Treasure of the Ancients.

What treasures of the ancient world may still lie hidden among the debris of the past? Where are the riches of Babylon and Nineveh? Where are the secret treasure chambers of Egypt? Where is the gold of the Phoenicians? Where is the tomb of Alaric, the Goth, that was crammed with all the richest spoils of Rome? Who has discovered the secret places of Mexico and Peru, where the untold wealth of mighty dynasties was stored?

His Way of Showing His Love.

"You wrong him, papa. He does not love me for my money. He scoffs at the world's sordid eagerness for wealth."

"What proof have you, child?"

"Why, only last night he told me he didn't care if he never was able to make a penny in his life if he only had me!"

An Oversight.

Regular Customer (to waiter)—As an old customer I generally have two slices of beef, and today you have brought me only one. Waiter (with a look of surprise)—By the powers, but you're right. The cook must have forgotten to cut it in two.

Attack is the reaction. I never think I have hit hard unless it rebounds.—Johnson.

A Telegraphic Click

[Original.]

Ray Dexter and I became telegraphers when we were but little more than fifteen years old. We worked for several years in the same office and were among the first to read by ear instead of by sight. After that we drifted apart, to come together again, in telegraphic parlance, on the same railroad, Ray being operator at one station, I at another. We were bosom friends and had many a confidence over the wire.

When the civil war broke out I, who had come north from Georgia to learn telegraphing, went back to my native state and enlisted as a cavalryman in the Confederate army. What became of Ray Dexter I did not know.

One morning in the summer of 1862, while we were confronting the Union army in Tennessee, I was sent for by the colonel, who asked me if I were not a telegrapher. When I admitted that I was, he told me I was wanted at general headquarters. There I met the general, who said that a copy of the enemy's cipher code had fallen into his hands and he desired to avail himself of it to learn something of their movements. Our interview resulted in his sending me out to the enemy's rear for the purpose of tapping his wires. I dressed myself as a camp follower and provided myself with a basketful of suspenders, socks, buttons and such other wares as are usually sold by peddlers. Underneath a false wooden bottom I hid my telegraph machine and connections. When fully equipped I sallied forth.

General Rosecrans was then at Murfreesboro, threatening Bragg at Tullahoma. My object was to strike some point on a main telegraph line where I could tap the wire and, if possible, take off orders indicative of the enemy's intended movements. I followed the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad till I reached the Federal pickets, circled around their right outpost at Triune and came down in their rear between Triune and Murfreesboro. This plan had been laid out for me by my general and had this advantage: When the enemy moved against Tullahoma he must first draw in his right wing at Triune, since the troops there had the greater distance to march. The result showed that this view was correct.

For several days I lurked near the military telegraph between Murfreesboro and Triune without any results. I had no difficulty in tapping the wire, but there was nothing of moment passing over it. I concealed myself in the woods, not attempting to sell my wares to the Yankee soldiers, only relying on them to conceal my telegraph machine and have a reason for my presence in the locality if suspected. I had a lonely time of it in the woods by myself, my fears of detection having ample opportunity to assert themselves. It is one thing to be cut down in a charge and quite another to be dragged to the limb of a tree and be hanged for a spy, as I certainly would be if caught either tapping the wire or even with my apparatus.

One morning I awoke in my bivouac just as the dawn was breaking. I knew that the Federal pickets were kept under arms from about 2 till 4 o'clock in the morning every day to be ready for an attack. Perhaps it was this that induced me to try the wire. I did so, and took off an order for the general commanding at Triune to march by roads leading southeastward at once. Glad to have my watch over, I was winding up my wire prior to hiding it under my wares when a troop of Federal cavalry came riding through the bushes. It did not take them long to determine what I was up to, and they hurried me off to the general commanding the right wing.

He was preparing to march, but took time to attend to my case. He scribbled something on a piece of paper and handed it to an operator of the military telegraph, who went to an instrument in the same tent and began to click the key. I heard him send a report of my case to general headquarters and the reply: "Try by drum head court martial and hang immediately. Since you are preparing to march, never mind the court martial."

The moment the message began to come over the wire I recognized the touch of my old friend Ray Dexter. The announcement of my immediate execution and a hope for its recall or at least postponement came at the same moment.

"Take it to Captain L.," said the general to the operator when he had read the message and tell him to send for the officer of the day to execute the order."

The operator went out, leaving his telegraph instrument where I could almost reach it. I bent over and clicked:

"Ray, I'm the man you have just sent the order to hang. For God's sake, help me!"

The general was so busy with preparations that he did not notice my use of the instrument. Ray simply sent an O. K. to indicate that he understood, and I heard no more till he sent a call to the operator, who heard it as he came back. I was delighted to hear an order to send me to Murfreesboro.

I reached Murfreesboro at noon and found the center of the army preparing to move the next morning. When I was taken into the house occupied by the commanding general, Ray came to me and, taking both my hands in his, said that he would do everything in his power to save me. After much persuasion he succeeded, and I was entered on the rolls as a prisoner of war.

DEAD BEATS.

Granite Manufacturers After Them.

Established an Information Bureau.

Losses Last Year Aggregated Over $20,000.

The meeting of the Granite Manufacturers' Association on Tuesday evening was one of the most important that the association has held in years. Besides voting to help the Quincy Hospital, they put in operation a system of information known as a "Bureau of Information of the Granite Industries of the United States."

They propose to keep a correct record of every customer, whether he pays his bills promptly or pays by note, and whether he lets his notes go to protest or not. Also whether he makes it a practice to claim unjust discounts.

The bureau will also do all possible through its Committee to adjust and settle all disputed claims or overdue accounts by its national prestige.

The amount of losses the past few years in Barre and Quincy have been heavy. Quincy lost last year over $20,000 and Barre much more, by this class of dead beats, and the granite men propose to call a halt.

The information of the bureau will be invaluable to every manufactuer in a short time in determining to whom he shall extend credit.

THE MOTORMAN

Held Responsible for the Death of Patrick F. Larkin.

Judge Pratt of the Hingham district court, in his finding on the inquest on the death of Patrick F. Larkin of Quincy, who was killed at Hingham, July 22, by being thrown from a work car of the Old Colony street railway by a collison between the car and a tower wagon which was standing on the track, says:

"I therefore find that the accident was not due to any imperfection in the construction of the car but that it was due to the fact that Mortorman Brockaway was not exercising proper care, and that he ran the car so negligently and at such a rate of speed that it was impossible to stop it before the collision occurred.

"As the said Brockaway has been held by the justice of the District court of East Norfolk for the death of Joseph A. Vaughn, who was killed in the same accident I make no order in the case but merely report my finding of facts."

TO A NEW FIELD.

Dissolution of the Pastorate of Rev. L. H. Austin.

Letters of recommendation were granted to Rev. Leon H. Austin at a conference of Congregational churches in this vicinity on Tuesday called to consider the dissolution of his pastorate at the Quincy Point church.

The churches represented were the Bethany and Swedish Congregational of this city, the First and East Congregational of Milton, the First, South and Union Congregational of Braintree and the Union, East and Old South Congregational of Weymouth. Rev. Henry C. Alvord of South Weymouth was moderator and Rev. Edwin N. Hardy of Quincy, scribe.

Republican Reception.

As usual, the Republican State Committee will give a reception to the State officers and the Massachusetts delegation in Congress on the night before the State convention. It will be held tomorrow evening at the American house, Boston. Mr. Thorndike Spalding of Cambridge will be chairman of the reception committee and Quincy will have a representative. A general invitation is extended to the public and Quincy should be well represented.

Verdicts for Defendants.

James W. Sanders lost his suits in the Suffolk Superior court on Tuesday against the Quincy Electric Light Company and the New England Telephone Company. He sued each for $10,000 for damages received by a shock July 21, 1902.

THE CHAIRMEN.

A Hospital Week Meeting Held Last Evening.

The Hospital Week chairmen of the various wards had a meeting last night at the office of R. D. Chase, Savings Bank building, to push on the plans for an energetic and thorough canvass Hospital Week.

Last year, $3,132.37 was raised. This year every effort is being made to get at least $5,000, so that the running expenses may be paid and a material reduction made in the Hospital debt, as there are reasons, very special reasons, why such a reduction should be made now.

One ward is planning to have over 30 collectors and there is considerable rivalry to see which ward will make the largest proportionate gain over last year.

The chairmen:
Ward 1,—George E. Adams
William A. Bradford
D. King
Ward 2,—Joseph Dasha
Miss Freeman
T. B. Pollard
Ward 3,—Robert D. Smith
Ward 4,—James F. Burke

VISITATION

To Wollaston Lodge of Masons.

Deputy Accompanied by Large Suite.

Fine Exemplification of the Second Degree.

Wollaston lodge of Masons received an official visit Tuesday evening from Rt. Wor. E. Francis Pope of Brockton district deputy, grand master of the 24th Masonic district, and it was the occasion of the largest gathering of Masons ever assembled at Wollaston.

The deputy was accompanied by a large suite representing most of the nine lodges in his district, and including George A. Thatcher of Brockton as grand marshal, Joseph P. Prout of Quincy as grand senior warden, William H. Cook of Whitman as grand junior warden, E. J. T. Dexter of Randolph as grand treasurer, W. H. Emerson of Brockton as grand secretary, and also F. W. Brett of Braintree, Arthur T. Faunce of Abington, Arthur L. Beals of Brockton and John O. Hall of Quincy.

There was an exemplification of the Fellow Craft degree upon two candidates by the officers of Wollaston lodge, including Henry G. Fay as worshipful master, Sidney F. Copeland as senior warden, Walter S. Pinkham as junior warden, Rev. Edward A Chase as chaplain and Charles E. Munroe as senior deacon.

Deputy Pope complimented the officers upon the work of the evening, and the lodge on its rapidly increasing membership.

The following cities and towns were represented among the visitors: Boston, Washington, Chicago, Exeter and Wentworth, N. H: New Haven, Conn; Bangor, Maine; Nova Scotia, Somerville, Milford, Brockton, Whitman, Hingham, Randolph, Abington and Bridgewater.

Salads and ices were served bountifully at the close of the meeting.

Other visitations in the district will be made as follows: Puritan at Whitman, Oct. 20; Fellowship at Bridgewater, Oct. 23; Rural at Quincy, Oct. 26; John Cutter at Abington, Nov. 3; St. George at Brockton, Nov. 17; and at Paul Revere at Brockton, Nov. 21.

BROCKTON FAIR.

The Airship Did Not Fly But It Was a Great Day Nevertheless.

The Brockton fair is on. Its luck in having fine weather holds good. The opening day was Tuesday and there was an attendance of 20,000. The gates swung open at 6.30 and there was a constant stream of visitors all day.

The opening day is known as "Childrens day," and a good part of the visitors were youngsters. There were tugs of war between the six grammar schools and three classes of the High school which furnished most of the excitement. There were, however, numerous other sports and games for the children.

The midway feature was more attractive than ever. Here were found freaks of nature in the animal kingdom, fortune tellers, trick performers, wild men and wild women.

Mr. Knabenshue was on the grounds with his airship but did not fly, owing as he said, to the atmospheric conditions. He expects to soar today.

Everything possible for the safety and pleasure of the thousands of visitors is provided.

Many Quincy people attended yesterday, but hundreds have gone today. Tomorrow will be another big day.

A Rare October Trip.

Over the Boston & Albany R. R. to Albany, the Hudson River Steamer to New York, and the Fall River Line to Boston, Thursday, Oct. 12, to Sunday, Oct. 15. $5.00 buys whole trip. Stopover in New York to Oct. 24 for $2 extra. Send for descriptive leaflet. A. S. Hanson, Gen. Pass. Agent, Boston.

A new timetable goes into effect on the Houghs Neck car line on Thursday. There will be hourly trips at midday, leaving Quincy at five minutes past the hour and Houghs Neck at forty minutes past the hour, with cars more frequently morning and evening.

COTTAGE AVENUE.

The Proposed Widening Will Be a Great Improvement.

Practically all of the land taken by the proposed widening of Cottage avenue is from the estate of Abner B. Packard on the northerly side of the street. A strip about 10 feet wide is taken for the whole length of the street.

At the Hancock street approach to the street quite a corner is taken from the Packard estate so as to make a wide approach. Corners are also taken at the Chestnut street end from the Packard and Hall estates.

At the junction of Cottage street small pieces of land are taken from the Bent and Connelly estates, so as to do away with the present square corners and make them rounding.

It will be necessary to move the ink manufactory building, the foundry building and the stable occupied by Frank C. Packard a distance of about six feet. The proposed width of the new street is 35 feet.

MANY PROTESTS.

But Contractors for Boulevard Find a Stable Necessary.

The hearing before the Board of Health next Monday evening on the application of the Newell & Snowling Construction Co., to build and occupy a stable for 45 horses along the proposed boulevard at Wollaston beach. will doubtless bring out a large attendance. Ever since it became known that it was proposed to erect a stable in this vicinity, the Board of Health has received many letters protesting.

The firm has the contract to do the sub-grade work on the boulevard, and it is manifestly evident that they must make some provision to house their horses. Several locations for the stable have been selected but there has been a protest on each. This hearing, while necessary under the law, is for the purpose of seeing if the residents of that vicinity cannot agree upon some location for the stable. The people want the boulevard built and an inconvenience must be put up with while it is being built.

SENATOR NEVIN.

Renominated by Acclamation---Entertains at Banquet.

The First Norfolk Senatorial Convention was held Tuesday evening at Wesleyan hall, Boston. Representative French of Randolph presided and 36 delegates were present.

Edward B. Nevin of Weymouth was renominated for Senator by acclamation.

H. C. Gallagher of Milton was elected a member of the State committee.

The convention was a brief one, and at its close the delegates were entertained as a banquet by candidate Nevin at Hotel Essex.

A LONG, WILD RIDE.

Over Eight Hundred Miles on Horseback In Less Than Eleven Days.

When General Kearny was ordered from Santa Fe across to California with the dragoons, he was anxious to get his report back to Washington as soon as it could be done. The messenger who was detailed to carry this report to Fort Leavenworth relates in Outing the adventures of that rapid ride:

"I carried only a blanket, a lariat, knife, rifle, with about a hundred rounds of ammunition; a dragoon pistol and about two spoonfuls of salt. I depended on my rifle for meat and on finding Indian herds for fresh horses. I weighed about 140 pounds and was as tough as leather.

"I got my first remount about eighty miles from Santa Fe and rode it two days until I found a camp of Utes hunting buffalo and got a fresh horse from their herd in the night.

I had to be very careful about falling in with Indians, for they would have killed a lone man for his outfit. A half dozen times or more I hid in some draw in the prairie till night or rode miles off the trail to keep away from their hunting parties or camps. It was very risky, too, riding into their herds and roping a fresh horse.

"I didn't dare make a fire in the daytime, but at night could cook a little meat on coals, and the little I slept was while lying on my lariat, so that my horse couldn't get away with it out of my reach.

"When I reached Fort Leavenworth I had ridden 832 miles in a little less than eleven days and had used nine horses. The last two horses I got from government trains that I overtook."

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The large attendance at the city evening schools shows the desire of all to get an education. These will soon be supplemented by the evening schools of the Y. M. C. A., which offer new courses this year.

There seems to be a greater need of more call firemen than an increase of pay, as petitioned. Chief Williams has been indignant at several fires this year because only a few firemen were present when needed. Better double the force than double the salary; it will increase efficiency of the department.

The Cape Catboat Association, which is distinctly a Quincy organization, is doing much to make yacht racing more popular among the owners of pleasure boats. Under the M. Y. R. A. rules in recent years it has been limited to a few, with too much professionalism.

Will Quincy ever have a through line of cars between City Square and Dudley street? If work changing the grade of Hancock street is not completed before snow flies, the chances are that street car passengers will have to walk across the bridge all winter as they did a year ago.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It is the style now to raise a hue and cry whenever a man or a boy leaves home for a few days. Foul play, robbery, elopements and all sorts of things are suggested and the papers are full of "missing" people. Often the missing one goes to another city to visit for a few days or look for a job. There seems to be a great deal too much hysteria about some of these matters. If a man leaves of his own free will and accord, without any particular reason to suspect foul play, what's the use? Why not let him go in peace? When he is tried of other fields he will probably come back all right.—Brockton Enterprise.

RAILROAD RATES

Chandler Sticks to Guns In a Reply to Spencer

WORTHLESS UTTERANCE

Former Senator Reiterates That Jim Crow Argument Was Used to Consolidate the South In Fight Against Rate Legislation

Concord, N. H., Oct. 4.—Former Senator Chandler has given out the following signed statement upon the railroad rate question in reply to President Samuel Spencer of the Southern railroad:

Mr. Spencer's general statement is that nothing but broad and legitimate facts, conditions and arguments concerning railroad rate legislation have been presented to congress and the public by the railroad managers, while none of that character have been advanced by the other side, so there is nothing as yet which needs answer.

The egotism and conceit of Mr. Spencer in thus dealing with a great question shows the worthlessness of his general utterance. Particularly, however, he does deny that the Jim Crow cars have ever been in any sense a factor in the argument on his side.

But he does this in the face of the statement made by the Macon Telegraph that the bill must be resisted on the Jim Crow car ground, saying: "If there were no other reason for opposing the scheme to concentrate this power in Washington, The Telegraph would oppose it on this single ground," and the statements of the Charleston Post "that appeals are being made cleverly enough by the railroads" and that the southern people "are quickly moved by play upon their prejudices and this is being taken advantage of in the treatment of the Jim Crow car question."

In view of these statements Mr. Spencer's denial is incorrect and he had better deal with these newspapers and leave Mr. Chandler alone for a time.

Mr. Spencer also says that in his address before the manufacturers' convention at Atlanta in May he did not use the Jim Crow car argument and that it was not used before the convention. Indeed, Mr. Chandler never thought of saying that it was publicly used, but that it was the argument privately used he believes and continues to assert. It was no more in public evidence than the free passes which were used to control the convention.

That Mr. Spencer made any open appeal to the convention, Mr. Chandler never knew till now. Such an appeal was not necessary; the Jim Crow car argument or free passes and other similar agencies have done the deadly work and the natural voice of the convention was smothered.

This Atlanta convention was held on the first of May. On May 28 Mr. Chandler said, in the Washington Post, that Mr. Spencer, the strongest railroad manager intellectually in the country, had been designated to make the issue with the president, and that Mr. Spencer would attempt to consolidate the south against legislation by the Jim Crow car argument.

Four months elapsed before Mr. Spencer made any denial whatever. Now he says he did not use the argument, that it was not used before the convention, and that he has never used or referred to it elsewhere.

That it was not used publicly before the convention Mr. Chandler admits. As to the rest of the denial, Mr. Spencer's memory is conveniently eclipsed. Although he has not yet referred and replied to the Jim Crow arguments of The Telegraph and Post and other southern newspapers, there is yet time before congress meets.

President's Ideas Unchanged

Washington, Oct. 4.—John A. T. Hull of Iowa, chairman of the house committee on military affairs, came away from the president convinced that Mr. Roosevelt will bend all his energies at the coming session to railroad rate legislation, practically abandoning the tariff issue. Hull does not imply that the president told him this in plain English, but rather that this conclusion was the legitimate inference of the conversation and it accords with Hull's own expectations.

Will Not Attend Hearing

Lacrosse, Wis., Oct. 4.—Congressman Esch will not attend the conference at Washington relative to the revision of the Esch-Townsend rate bill. Esch has written to President Roosevelt, asking to be excused, saying that Congressman Townsend is advised as to his stand on the question and that they have concurred in all the proposed changes.

Would Aid American Shipping

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—Owing to the scarcity of Canadian boats and the high rates, the Dominion government has been asked to amend the coasting laws to permit United States vessels to carry freight from one Canadian port to another. The request will be submitted to parliament.

Didn't Worry About Identification

Colon, Oct. 4.—The body of a negro was found near the steamer Versailles, it being that of one of those who leaped or fell into the sea during the forcible ejection from the vessel of the Martinique laborers. The body was buried without any attempt at identification.

MINISTER TURNED DOWN

Rhode Island Baptists Refuse to Recognize Johnson of Newport

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 4.—The Rhode Island State Baptist convention, at its annual session here, refused Rev. Edward A. Johnson, pastor of the First Baptist church at Newport, recognition as a minister of that faith.

The board of management presented a report in which it was stated that because of a petition from 28 memebrs of the Newport church, preferring charges against the pastor, an investigation had been made, and it was recommended that Johnson be refused recognition as a Baptist minister. The report was accepted by the convention.

Mr. Johnson was expelled by the State Baptist society last spring. This action was taken after an investigation by a committee into charges of conduct not becoming a clergyman. The members of his church, however, supported him by a large majority and also voted to withdraw from the Rhode Island Baptist association.

Representative Vote a Tie

Boston, Oct. 4.—At the recount for the Democratic nomination for representative in ward 17 of this city it developed that the vote resulted in a tie, T. F. Curley and M. J. McEttrick each receiving 966 votes. Curley was unseated last spring by the house of representatives after his conviction and imprisonment for impersonating another at a civil service examination. The vacancy now made will be filled by the executive committee of the Democratic city committee.

May Be Case of Injustice

Boston, Oct. 4.—Upon information furnished by the German government, Commissioner of Immigration Billings has caused the detention of Wilhelm Strauss and a Miss Marks, who accompanied Strauss, who arrived here on board steamer Marquette from Antwerp. Strauss is alleged to be identical with one Julius Elkans, who is charged with absconding with $100,000 of trust funds. The authorities are inclined to the belief that it is a case of mistaken identity.

Arcanumites' Latest Move

Boston, Oce. 4.—Application has been made to Insurance Commissioner Cutting by attorneys acting for members of the Royal Arcanum, for investigation by him of the action of the supreme council taken at Atlantic City. They allege that this corporation has exceeded its powers and has failed to comply with the provisions of law. That some action will be taken as soon as Commissioner Cutting returns is assured.

Judge Found Dead In Bed

Boston, Oct. 4.—James M. Barker, associate justice of the supreme court since 1891, was found dead in bed at his rooms in the Union club. Death was due, probably, to an unsuspected heart affliction. News of the sudden death of one of the best known and beloved justices of the supreme bench caused great surprise and regret in legal circles. Judge Barker was 66 years of age.

Finding on Charlton Accident

Boston, Oct. 4.—The railroad commissioners, in their report upon the investigation of the accident which occurred on the Worcester and Southbridge street railway at Charlton Sept. 5, in which two passengers were killed and many injured, in substance find that "life and limb were sacrificed to reckless speed." They say there was "almost wanton disregard of common precaution."

Providence Election Fraud

Providence, Oct. 4.—The board of canvassers, after a protracted hearing, declared that the Democratic caucus held in the first ward of this city a week ago was illegal and that no person was lawfully elected or nominated at that time. Nearly 100 men testified that, though their names were checked off, they were not present at the caucus.

Reciprocity Men Will Fight

Boston, Oct. 4.—At a meeting of the sub-committee of 14 of the committee of 100, composed of business men in the interests of the reciprocity policy, it was decided to carry the reciprocity fight into the state Republican convention next Friday, if the committee on resolutions do not incorporate a reciprocity plank in the platform.

Another "Clue" to St Clair

Bridgewater, Mass., Oct. 4.—Minot Francis, one of the two prisoners who escaped from the state farm some time ago, and for whom constant search has been made, was reported to have been seen in Lakeville yesterday afternoon. Several officers have been sent to Lakeville.

Student Perhaps Fatally Hurt

Exeter, N. H., Oct. 4.—The condition of Walter G. Crocker, the Wareham, Mass., student who was seriously injured while practising with the Phillips-Exeter football candidates, is unchanged. If he lives through today there is slight possibility of his surviving.

Stamford Suicide Identified

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 4.—Henry Emrich of Long Island City has identified the girl who threw herself in front of a train at the railroad station here as his sister, Lizzie Emrich. She was the daughter of Henry Emrich of New York, who died about six months ago.

Probing Trunk Robbery

Boston, Oct. 4.—Officials of the Boston and Maine railroad claim that the breaking open of the trunk of the wife of Governor McLane of New Hampshire and the theft therefrom of $1500 worth of jewels was done before being transferred to their custody.

Trust Companies' Cash Reserves Inadequate

BANK STATEMENTS "OFF"

Those of New York Institutions Declared to Be a Farce--Criticism Now General by Market Being Caught Off Its Guard

New York, Oct. 4.—Charges that the statement of the condition of New York banks issued weekly has become a farce, and that the action of trust companies in extending large credits without maintaining adequate cash reserves constitutes a great danger, were made before the Clearing House association by President Nash of the Corn Exchange bank. The Corn Exchange bank is one of the most important financial institutions of the city, having average deposits of about $40,000,000.

Mr. Nash denounced the existing state of affairs by which trust companies, operating outside of the clearing house and not subject to its rules, are not obliged to maintain the cash reserve of one-fourth of the sum of deposits, which reserve is required of national banks by federal law and of other clearing house banks by the rules of that institution. He urged that measures be taken to bring the trust companies under the regulations of the clearing house.

Mr. Nash alluded to the estrangement which now exists between the banks and trust companies. This condition, he said, will have to be earnestly dealt with, or the situation throughout the country would be fraught with danger. It was his opinion that the trust companies ought to be made full fledged members of the Clearing House association or, failing that, they could be made to clear through banks of the clearing house, as is now done by nonmember banks.

Regarding the weekly bank statement, which, in his opinion, was now sadly inadequate, Nash suggested that it be changed so as to make clear, in separate tables, the condition of the national banks, the state banks and the trust companies.

After much discussion a resolution was unanimously adopted directing the clearing house committee to take the matter under consideration with a view to effecting the results advocated by Nash.

Criticism of the bank statement issued at the close of every business week, which had been in progress for some time, became general in the financial district last Saturday, when the market was caught entirely off its guard by the figures contained in the statement issued that day. All of Friday's compilations from the bank movements of the week agreed that at least $7,000,000 had gone out of the cash reserves, and traders had carried on their operations on the basis of a bank statement showing this condition. When the report was issued, however, instead of a decrease of more than $7,000,000, it reported an increase of $1,522,300.

The statement also reported a reduction of $4,810,000 in loans, while unofficial compilations had shown the loan account to have been increased during the week. The methods employed in reaching the totals given in the statement have not been explained, but it has been suggested that gold engaged in London and also that in transit from Europe to America may have been credited to the banks by which it had been engaged. The reduction of loans, it was suggested, had been brought about by transferring large borrowings from clearing house banks to trust companies.

No Trace of Monk Gibson

Edna, Tex., Oct. 4.—There is little new in the situation regarding the chase for Monk Gibson, charged with the murder of four members of the Conditt family. There are still 200 men searching for the negro. Four companies of military are encamped here. There are many who believe that the negro must have got away or is dead.

Partial Suffrage For Hungary

Remote Chances of Arrest In Dress Suit Case Mystery

VALUE OF A PHOTOGRAPH

Police Trying to Locate Manager of Medical Office Known to Be Its Original--Winthrop Physicians Accounted For

Boston, Oct. 4.—The expectation of the police that an arrest in connection with the Winthrop dress suit case mystery would be made yesterday was not fulfilled, and there does not appear any immediate prospect of an arrest. As clue after clue is eliminated, the possibility of the detection of the person or persons who dismembered the body of the unknown young woman and cast it into the waters of the harbor in a dress suit case becomes more remote and the mystery of the case is magnified.

While the Boston police do not put much faith in the value of the photograph identified as being that of one of the men carried by Cabman Howard to the Chelsea ferry on the night preceding the gruesome find, the state police are working on this clue, because they want to locate the manager of a Tremont street medical office, who is known to be the man of the photograph.

This phase of the case has been somewhat strengthened by the identification of the picture by a newsboy, Charles Sach, who says he recognizes in it the man whom he saw on Sept. 19 going into the subway at the Pleasant street entrance with two dress suit cases. That was the day upon which the suit cases were purchased in pawnshops near the subway Pleasant street entrance.

The state police have developed nothing material in regard to the story of a nurse who was overheard to state that another nurse of her acquaintance had attended a young woman upon whom a criminal operation had been performed. This nurse is said to have been employed by the missing manager of the Tremont street office.

Deputy Chief Neal of the state police states that the clothes found in Lewis pond at Winthrop have no connection with the case; that he has reached the conclusion that the dress suit case was dropped off a steamer or boat and not thrown in from the Winthrop shore, and that all Winthrop physicians, with one exception, have been accounted for. The one exception is a doctor who summered at Winthrop.

To Change Chinese Regulations

Washington, Oct. 4.—The most interesting subjects discussed at the cabinet meeting yesterday were the Chinese boycott against American goods and the consideration of complaints made by the Chinese against the method of execution of the existing Chinese exclusion laws. The trend of opinion was that the numerous complaints were directed rather against the construction placed upon the law than against the act itself, so it was practically decided that some important changes in the present regulations must be made.

WORK OF JAP SURGEONS

Dr. Suzuki Tells How Deaths From Disease Were Lessened.

DUE TO THE ASEPTIC METHOD

Japanese Surgeon General Says There Was Very Little Field Surgery—Bullet and Shell Wounds Were Treated With Sterilized Water and Cotton and Left to Heal.

At the annual banquet of the American Association of Obstetricians and Gynecologists at the Hotel Astor in New York the other night Surgeon General Suzuki of the imperial Japanese navy told about 100 of the most prominent surgeons in the United States how the mortality had been kept down in the recent war, says the New York Times. The reason, he explained, was simply the aseptic methods well understood by the surgeons in the United States, but which has never been applied in any war before. This was the very thing about which the surgeons most wished to hear him speak of, for, as they confessed, the low death rate which the Japanese add to their credit had astonished the world.

"I have just come from the front," Surgeon General Suzuki explained when he rose to speak, "and I am on my way to the congress at Detroit. It is some time since I have been here, and my tongue has grown a bit rusty.

"I will talk to you about that in which I know you must be most interested as surgeons—namely, our treatment of the wounded. The method, I know, is familiar to you; you use it here in your practice. It was, however, never tried in the field before, and I think you will be interested in it.

"You know that quite awhile before our war began it was being talked of, and I was careful to make some preparation for the war when it should come. In writing to localities from which the surgeons were to be chosen I asked for two kinds of men. Those who were familiar with the aseptic method and those who were conservative. By conservative I meant those surgeons who would not too quickly relieve the wounded of arms and legs by amputation.

"We used no carbolic acid or other antiseptic. We used simply sterilized water and sterilized cotton. In most instances we did not attempt to probe the wound for the bullet or the fragment of a shell. We simply washed the edges of the wound with the sterilized water and then bound it up with this sterilized cotton. We lost no time on the battlefield in performing hazardous or complicated surgery. We simply washed the skin and the edge of the wound with this cleansed cotton, and we found that in most instances it healed with remarkable celerity.

"Our most recent war, you remember, was with China, and that was ten years ago. I was absolutely responsible for this new method, and you may be assured that I was very anxious to learn how it should turn out. I have the most gratifying result to tell you of, for treated in this way we lost in one hospital only 32 out of 680 men who were admitted. You must know that this is very low.

"I have told you that our method was not to probe for bullets and shells immediately, for we have learned that bullets and shells are aseptic. A captain, for example, on one of the warships where I was stationed was shot in the calf of the leg. The fragment of the shell had entered so deep into the wound that it was not easy to get at. We washed it with aseptic cotton and bandaged it with aseptic cloth and it healed readily. Later, when he had more time, he went to a hospital to have the fragment of a shell cut out, which was done, and the wound healed quickly.

"It was only when a fragment of cloth was forced into the wound that it suppurated. So when we found that the wound was not healing as it should we opened it again and got the fragment of cloth out. Then it generally healed.

"I would like you to bear in mind that it was not I who achieved these splendid results, but the men under me. I merely did the directing, they in a great measure did the work."

The Japanese surgeon general was heartily cheered by the surgeons, both when he entered the hall and at the conclusion of his speech.

An Asylum Without Locks.

The asylum for incurably insane at South Bartonville, Ill., is now without locks and bars, the last one having been removed by Superintendent Zeller, says a Peoria (Ill.) dispatch to the Kansas City Star. This is in accordance with a step long in contemplation by Dr. Zeller, he having become convinced that more can be accomplished by kindness than by forcible restraint. The inmates now enjoy a large personal liberty, and the effect has been apparent in a notable improvement in their conduct.

Autumn Leaves.

Flower and leaf of vine and tree,
Grass of meadow, weed of mire—
Summer gathered them to be
Fagots for the autumn's fire.

Smoke like haze on vale and hill,
Flames of gold and crimson bright
Into life now leap and fill
Field and forest with their light.

All the glory of the year
Kindled into beauty so.
Soon the winter will be here;
Soon the curfew—then the snow.

So these lovely leaves I lay
In my book, all gold and red;
Embers for a winter's day,
When the autumn's fire is dead.

Quincy High Wins by Big Score.

Defeated Weymouth 28 to 0.

Was the First Match Game of the Season.

In the three weeks since the schools opened, the Quincy High has got together a strong football team which showed up well in its first match game on Tuesday with Weymouth High. It was the second game for Weymouth, they having been taken into camp by Bridgewater High 27—0.

Early in the match it was apparent that Quincy had a heavier and stronger team. Weymouth was able to make very little progress when they had the ball and they were powerless to check the advances when Quincy had the ball.

The honors for Quincy High were well distributed. Touchdowns were made in the first period by Arthur, Saunders, Moody and Sprague. Fallon only missed one goal out of four. Score—Quincy, 23; Weymouth, 0.

Only one touchdown was scored in the second period, by Moody. Again Fallon failed to kick a goal. Score—Quincy, 28; Weymouth, 0.

Good work was done by the quarterbacks of both teams, Nichols and Nash. The attendance was over 500 including many young ladies.

The line-up was as follows:

The two at the head of the ladies list on Tuesday in the Daily Ledger free scholarship contest have both dropped, and Miss Peterson is again at the top. Miss Pitts who entered the race on Tuesday has made another phenomenal gain and is number two. There are other gains down the list.

In the men's list all the leaders made gains, and the lead of Drug Clerk Maloney is reduced to 106. Clerk Cash has jumped ahead of Conductor Johnson. Good gains were made by Engineer Johnson, Mr. Hermanson and others.

The editor requests that large packages of votes be sent flat, as it is difficult to count cupons which have been rolled. Please place also on the first coupon the number of votes sent.

Some have not interpreted instructions correctly. At least the name of the candidate must be written on stamped on every coupon. The editor does not insist on the balance of the coupon being filled, but requests that the first coupon every day be filled complete.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

Trains for Brockton leaves Quincy at 8.30 and 10 A. M., and 12 o'clock noon, running direct to Brockton. On trains leaving Quincy at 10.49 12.49 and 1.49 it will be necessary to change cars at South Braintree.

Swallows' Nests.

Swallows and house martins build by sticking together pellets of prepared road mud. Most of the material is obtained from the drying puddles on the highroads. If not mixed with anything else the tendency of these pellets would be to crumble when dry. But the swallow tribe is supplied with a mucous secretion which enables it to gum the particles together.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

REVENUE CUTTER WORK

Value of Service Organized by Alexander Hamilton.

FINE RECORD IN YELLOW JACK WAR

How Vessels Have Done Good Work In Enforcing Quarantine Against Dread Disease In Waters About New Orleans — Service May Be Used to Augment the Navy In Time of War.

Six small sailing vessels patrolling our Atlantic coast in search of smugglers made the beginning of the revenue cutter service that has recently proved its value in enforcing quarantine against yellow fever, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Post. When Alexander Hamilton taxed the resources of the youthful states to equip boats for detective duty under the treasury department of 1790 no fertile imagination pictured the variety of service that would be demanded or the good that could be done by their successors in the next hundred years and more. That service was the basis of the United States navy, but a comparatively few years brought a parting of courses, and, while one arm has been developed to overawe and destroy, the other has steadily extended to protect and help the ways of peace. Revenue cutters have saved thousands of lives. They annually visit the farthest points in the American possessions, and they carry news and assistance to the lonely and shipwrecked.

The service maintained on the quarantine lines about New Orleans and the district infected with yellow fever furnishes a single illustration. Five vessels have patrolled the coast line night and day to capture and inspect the fishing craft and larger vessels that try to break through. Over 600 vessels have already been held up and inspected, many being sent to quarantine station at Gulfport and Ship island for disinfection and further examination of suspected cases of fever. It has been a tedious, thankless duty, with constant exposure to the dangers of fever, and one of the crew of the Winona was taken with the disease and sent to the marine hospital.

Captain W. G. Ross, chief of the service, who was in charge of the quarantine for six weeks, excited much comment by the fearless way he went about. He relied entirely on his rugged physique and attention to his general surroundings for protection, and, as he has remarked since returning to Washington, had no fear of contagion. He slept in quarters from which mosquitoes were excluded as far as possible. He has less fear of the disease now than ever and believes good health and sanitary conditions prove ample protection.

The revenue cutter service has been under the supervision of the treasury department since those first small boats were sent out by Hamilton, except on occasions when our wars have led the president to take advantage of the statute to place the vessels under the navy department. The duties include the enforcement of all laws affecting the maritime interests of the United States, the prevention of illicit traffic by sea, compelling all craft to comply with legal requirements as to ships' papers, lights, inspection and passenger laws, and the rescue and assistance of distressed vessels and crews—in fact, the cutter service is the great humanitarian branch of our government, its activities extending over land and sea. Its varied duties have furnished subjects for many stories of fiction. One officer now in the service remarked recently that he was first interested in its possibilities through reading J. Fenimore Cooper's "Wing and Wing."

Those in the service point with pride to the record of lives saved. During the Spanish-American war the cutter Hudson, under command of Captain F. H. Newcomb, rescued the torpedo boat Winslow from the damaging fire of the Spaniards at Cardenas, while one of the minor achievements noted was the voyage of the McCulloch to Hongkong with the first news of Admiral Dewey's victory at Manila.

The cruise of the revenue cutter Bear and the rescue of more than 250 sailors from shipwrecked whaling vessels at Point Barrow was an achievement worthy of special mention. The Bear reached San Francisco in December, 1897, when orders were issued dispatching the vessel on a return trip in the midst of an arctic winter to save the whalers. The voyage was successful and would have attracted much attention had not the victories of our navy in the war with Spain overshadowed all else. This cutter continues its annual visits to Point Barrow, which is the northernmost point of the continent. The cutter R. C. Perry has this year visited Attu island, the westernmost of the Aleutian chain, and found three white fishermen who had seen no white men nor had any news from the outside world for a year. Their first question was, "Who is president of the United States?"

While the cutter service is under existing law a part of the civil establishment, it may become available as a part of the military force of the country. The officers and crews must be proficient in naval drills and have practical knowledge of the use of firearms. Although the burden of the service is in the protection of the revenue and the enforcement of statutes affecting maritime interests, it has been abundantly shown in our wars that the boats of the revenue service prove of assistance in the navy. The life of the officers is not always peaceful, and young men who seek this service may expect nearly as much fighting experience as those who go into the larger arms of the service.

An Oily Chinaman

[Original.]

"Talk about the Chinamen," said the engineer after doing a little oiling and sitting down to enjoy his pipe while the steamer was rolling off twelve knots an hour, "Bret Harte bit 'em off just as they are in his 'Ah Sin.' They've got more smooth cunning about 'em than a detective. I'll not soon forget how one of 'em tried to 'do' us in the China sea away back before Uncle Sam thought of owning the Philippines. I was running the engine of a chunky little boat used for towing called the Polly, and we were making for Canton. Our stoker got sick, and we left him at Pontianak, Borneo, and took in his place Cheng Fen, the most whipped cur appearing Celestial I ever saw. He looked as if he wouldn't dare take a drink of water without asking permission.

"Pontianak, you know, is dead on the equator, and the southern end of the China sea is as measly a region for weather as you want to strike. The night we left port the sky looked so queer that we were kept on the watch for a big blow. The clouds were jagged, and the full moon rose red as an open furnace door. Going on deck for a breath of fresh air—it wasn't fresh anywhere, but was better up there than in the engine room—I watched the wriggling serpents the moon threw on the oily water, and as soon as I thought I could stand more of it below went down just in time to catch Cheng Fen monkeying with the machinery. I yelled at him to stop, and he turned his heathen face, full of injured innocence, and said in his pigeon English that a screw on the connecting rod seemed to be loose, and he was trying to fix it. I called the captain to the head of the companionway and told him the story, adding that something was wrong with the stoker and we'd better look out.

"'There's a junk been following in our wake,' he said, 'ever since we left Pontianak. I wonder if there's a plan among the copper colored devils to do us some damage?'

"When I went below again the stoker was looking dreamily at the steam gauge, and the machinery was all agog. I picked up a monkey wrench and hurled it at him, but he dodged, and I knew I'd better leave him to a more convenient time and attend to the engine. He had loosened so many screws and the whole machinery was so limber I had to stop her while I screwed up, and stop her again and again as I found more damage. The captain came down, and when he saw what was the trouble told me to go ahead screwing up while he threw the stoker overboard. He got a nasty wound from a knife, but succeeded in dumping the Chinaman.

"The captain was as nervy a man as ever lived. When he got on deck he sang out to me to come up as soon as I got the engine together. I did so, and there, about 600 yards behind us, was a sight to make my blood run cold. It was a junk loaded with a chattering, howling lot of Chinamen, pointing dead for us. Of course she was a pirate and was bent on taking our craft, and that meant murder for us. They had shipped one of their dirty lot, Cheng Fen, on us to loosen our engine so that they could overhaul us.

"'Got the engine all right?' asked the captain.

"'Yes,' I answered.

"'Are we gaining on 'em?'

"I kept my eye on 'em for a time, and told him that it was an even thing between us, but I thought they were gaining on us slowly.

"'Very well,' he said in the same cool tone, 'go below and be prepared for quick work. Our only chance is to ram her, and when I call you come up prepared to fight. Some of 'em may jump aboard.'

"I confess I needed all the nerve I owned, for the prospect was bad. I hadn't got below before I felt the captain turning her in a semicircle, and pretty soon he gave me a signal to open up for all she was worth; then called for me to come up.

"The sight I saw I shall never forget. The captain had got position between the pirate and the moon, and the light showed the ugly villains almost as plain as day. Right out on the junk's bow stood Cheng Fen, who had, of course, been picked up, with the wickedest look on his face I ever saw. The pirates hadn't got on to our intention, but they did in about five seconds later, and their jubilant howls suddenly ceased. We were making all the headway we were capable of, and as we were a solid little craft the prospect for the pirates wasn't pleasant. They had their starboard bow toward us, and instead of taking the blow bow on their helmsman sheered off to port, enabling us to hit her amidships.

"I could see Cheng Fen, who seemed to be one of their principal men, running toward the probable striking point, and he got there just in time. We cut the junk in two like a piece of cheese and rode over her keel. Cheng Fen was the only one of 'em that got aboard of us. The captain cut him down with a cutlass, splitting his skull in the middle. In another minute the floating pirates began to climb out of the water. If we had had a crew we might have let 'em come up. As it was we had all we could do to keep 'em off. I felt all the while as if I was fighting a swarm of rattlesnakes. But at last there was none of 'em left and we steamed away, listening to the dismal howls of the yellow wretches, feeling comfortable that they hadn't put us in their places.

"That Cheng Fen was an oily dog," added the engineer sotto voce.

YOUNG MEN

Entertained at Y. M. C. A. Reception.

Open House for All Guests.

Who Were Delighted with the Attractions.

Over 200 young men found a hearty welcome Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. building. Many were not members, but after the very enjoyable evening, and an inspection of the many attractions which the association offers, it is probable that there will be a large increase in membership in the near future.

In the gymnasium early in the evening there was a basket ball game, and later exercises on different apparatus. The bowling alleys were popular and in constant use, also the pool table. The Association orchestra gave a concert in the parlor, and there was a large assortment of literature in the reading room.

In the hall there was an impromptu entertainment, including selections in the broad Scotch by Mr. Munn, who came from Scotland last week with a letter to the Secretary of the Quincy Y. M. C. A., and music by the orchestra. Punch was served with fancy cakes and Baker's sweet chocolate.

Among the guests of the evening were Mayor Thompson, Representative Nicol, Rev. W. E. Gardner, Rev. E. N. Hardy and several prominent citizens. A hearty welcome was extended by President Chase, Secretary Gay, Secretary Noon, Physical Director Bugbee, and members of the board of directors, and members generally.

On the Road to Recovery.

William Turner, Jr., who is an inmate of the Rutland Sanitarium for the cure of consumption, has been visiting his mother, Mrs. Agnes Turner, 94 Intervale street, since last Saturday. He returns to the Sanitarium on Thursday, Oct. 5, as the authorities there are of the opinion that he has a good chance for complete recovery from his malady.

On Monday night quite a number of Mrs. Turner's friends met at her residence to bid her son Godspeed. Everybody present realized the gallant fight which the young fellow is making to regain good health, and wishing to give him something to show the esteem in which he is held by all who know him, it was thought best that a snug little sum of money could be used to better advantage by Master Turner than anything else which might be given. William A. Kelly made the presentation in a very feeling manner, and Master Turner gratefully responded.

The remainder of the evening was spent very pleasantly, and when the time to say good-by arrived, everyone present realized that "a good action is its own reward."

Sharpe—King.

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. King of Central avenue, Wollaston, when their daughter, Willietta May, was married to William Sharpe of Laconia, N. H. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward A Robinson of Hingham, formerly of Wollaston. The bride who was attended by her little cousin, Anna Whitman Whitham, wore a gray traveling suit and carried pink roses. Refreshments were served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe departed for Berkshire hills, Connecticut and New York.

On their return they will reside in Laconia, N. H.

Generous Recognition.

All those who are interested in our Hospital—and who is not? rejoice at the generous donation of $300 voted by the Granite Manufacturers' Association at their meeting Tuesday night, a gracious and a fitting recognition of the service the Hospital is rendering to so many of those engaged in the Granite industry.

And what more opportune time could there be for such a donation! We have all been gladdened by the very recent gift from Mr. Emmons and his brother of $5,000 to the Endowment Fund, and now just as our canvass is about to begin, we have this stimulating news.

Evidently the true value of this House of Service is coming to be recognized more and more.

EARNINGS SMALL.

The Claim of the Street Railway.

In Justification of Fares.

The Transfer System Has Been Abused.

A hearing was given by the Railroad Commissioners on Wednesday on the petition of Mayor Thompson for a reduction of fares on the Old Colony street railway. The city was represented by Mayor Thompson and City Solicitor Thomas.

They spoke at length upon the seeming injustice of the recent increase of fares between Quincy and Brockton and Quincy and Nantasket, claiming also that the service under the management of the present company was but little better than under the original company.

They argued that the system of fares now in force was working an injury to the city, and was a hardship on local passengers. This was especially true since the new scheme of transfers was put in operation.

Under the present system, if a passenger boarded a car at Neponset and wanted to go to South or West Quincy he was obliged to pay two fares unless he waited at Neponset for a car that ran through to these points.

The city met the claim that the road was earning but 2 per cent. with the statement that the old company earned 6 per cent., and that its stock at consolidation sold for $150.

The railroad officials claimed that the present fare system was a benefit to through passengers, and that under it passengers could go six miles beyond the Brockton limit. The railroad also claimed that its earnings were but 2 per cent. On the matter of transfers, they claimed that the change was necessary for its own protection, as the system had been abused.

The Commissioners took the matter under advisement.

RECEIVER

Appointed for Granite Quarries Co.

Second Time in Two Years.

Unable to Pay Interest on Current Indebtedness.

The quarries of the Quincy Granite Quarries Company have been shut down and the company is insolvent.

Upon the petition of the National Granite Bank and other creditors, a receiver has been appointed for the Company, which less than two years ago succeeded the Quincy Granite Quarries Company at that time financially embarrassed.

Judge Colt of the United States Circuit court named on Wednesday Thomas J. Dunphy, the secretary of the Granite Manufacturers' Association, as receiver.

The liabilities are placed at $82,500 and include $50,000 floating indebtedness, $25,000 due upon sinking fund, and $12,500 due on account of interest.

The receiver will endeavor to determine the priority and equities of the bondholders.

The company is said to have lost large sums on recent contracts, and to have made large outlays at its plant on Quarry railroad at West Quincy.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Success to the granite manufacturers in their crusade against dead beats. The granite men, however, are not the only ones who run up against these fellows.

It is reported that living expenses in Panama have been reduced to such an extent that everyone above the grade of an assistant engineer can afford to buy at least three meals a week.

When Mr. Rockefeller told his visitors the other day not to bother about accumulating worldly riches, he must have felt that he presented an awful example of an ill-spent career.

It was quite plain from the start that the New York bank robber must have come out of Wall street. That is the only place they raise men with nerve enough to try to beat a New York bank.

The Packard estate which is inclined to oppose the Cottage avenue widening will receive the greatest benefit. Their land will become much more valuable, and could be developed.

The chief of the bureau of engraving and printing says the new $20 bill is the finest piece of work the bureau has ever turned out. He need not expect anybody to take his word for it unless he sends a few samples.

Asa P. French, the candidate for Attorney General, is fortunate in securing ex-Governor John D. Long to place him in nomination at the Republican State convention on Friday. Mr. French's chances of securing the nomination are good.

The voters of Ward One are wondering if it will be necessary for them to attend the city caucuses, now that the Republican committee has endorsed candidates for Ward Councilmen. How does the committee stand for Mayor? Has the committee any opinion on the High school enlargement.

☞ Main Spring while you wait. Watch cleaned $1.—Williams.

DRESS HINTS.

A bit of old crape is the very best thing for dusting one's gowns.

Always save the bones and hooks and eyes from discarded or wornout garments. They will be found useful upon another frock.

Don't get your raincoat too long. It only gets wet and muddy, besides flapping around your ankles in a way conducive to your catching a heavy cold.

One garment should never be hung over another on the same hook. To do this would take all the freshness out of the undermost garment, and it would not improve the one which lay uppermost.

One of the most successful ways to darn wools and silks is to take ravelings from the material. Split the thread into the needle with the help of wax. In this way the thread or silk matches the goods exactly.

Women's "Idle Industries."

Though time may mean money for a man, it never does to a woman.

We are adepts of the idle industries because our time is of no earthly consequence. Think of the miles of lace we crochet, the impossible embroideries we make, the countless odds and ends we construct, of no earthly use except to catch dust. Think of the hours we waste at the piano, which no one wants to hear and which we never learn to play. Think of the awful pictures we make, which no one wants to see; the innumerable things we do that are so much better done by some one else. There may be male loafers, superabundant male loafers, but it seems to me as if their united numbers are as nothing compared to those worthy lady loafers who are perfectly respectable and perfectly idle.—Mrs. John Lane in Fortnightly Review.

Measles.

Many fatalities to children occur from measles because mothers do not attach sufficient importance to the disease to give it the proper attention. Warmth is an absolute necessity for children thus afflicted, and they must be kept in bed. When these simple precautions are neglected bronchitis and inflammation of the lungs are many times contracted and with fatal results.

Rest Rooms For Working Girls.

There is a model laundry in New York where the women employed have nice rest rooms and a social secretary to look after their wants. There is a piano, and clubs have been formed. At 9 o'clock in the morning the management serves a cup of coffee, and while waiting for work the girls are at liberty to lie down in the rest room.

A nice way to use up a little left over chicken is to rice it. Butter some cups and line with soft boiled rice, fill in with the chicken broth, cover with the rice and bake in a moderate oven. Invert the cups carefully so as to keep their shape on a hot platter and serve with a cream sauce or a little drawn butter.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Insurance Men Made Accommodation Loans

BIG CHECKS ARE MISSING

Those Made Out to Hamilton Disappeared From Drawer to Which "Almost Anybody Had Access"--How McCall's Relatives Got Cheap Rents

New York, Oct. 5.—That John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, borrowed $50,000 from the New York Life Insurance company at 1½ percent interest, a rate below the market rate, was brought out in the insurance investigation last week; but yesterday President McCall of the New York Life Insurance company testified that he in turn borrowed $75,000 from the Metropolitan at the same rate. This was in January, 1903; the loan was renewed in January, 1904, and ran until March, 1905, when the rate of interest was advanced to 2 percent, at which rate it is still running.

Mr. McCall testified that he was a director of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, but not a stockholder. The fact of his being a director, McCall continued, did not deter him from procuring a loan at as low a rate of interest as possible when it was to his interest to do so.

Somewhat of a sensation was caused in the late hours of yesterday's session of the legislative committee which is investigating the methods of life insurance companies when Nell F. Towner of Albany was called to the stand and disclaimed any knowledge of the whereabouts of cancelled checks of Judge Hamilton of Albany. Towner testified that he was associated with Hamilton in the practice of law in Albany.

The Hamilton account was again under investigation and McCall had been excused for a few minutes while Towner took the stand. Towner testified that he had made deposits for Hamilton, but not while the latter was in Europe. He had taken some cancelled checks from the Albany Trust company early in September and had thrown them into a drawer in Hamilton's desk. He had had no occasion to look at them again until last week, when he received the subpoenae to appear before the committee. He was asked to bring these checks with him, but when he looked for them they were gone. He had no knowledge, he declared, of where they could have gone or who could have taken them. Pressed by Mr. Hughes, he said almost anybody had access to the drawer in which the checks were placed.

Mr. McCall, resuming, was asked about a deposit to the credit of Judge Hamilton of $162,041.67 on Sept. 1, 1903. McCall said the New York Life had paid Hamilton no money, but suggested that part of it might come from the state comptroller's office by reason of an assignment to Hamilton of tax moneys to be repaid the company as the result of the repeal of the tax law which relieved the New York Life from payment of taxes.

Another interesting point was brought out by Hughes just before the committee adjourned for the day. Edward F. Devlin, the real estate manager for the New York Life, was again called. It developed that the New York Life had acquired by foreclosure apartment houses in one of the most desirable residential sections of this city, and the cost, with the improvements deemed necessary, was $203,056. The net income from this property was found to be .023 percent on the investment. Among the improvements was the throwing of two apartments into one of nine rooms with two baths. These were rented for $1500 and $1800 a year. It then developed that four of the tenants were the immediate family of President McCall, three sons and a son-in-law. Devlin was asked who fixed the rental of these properties, and he said he discussed the matter with McCall.

Mr. McCall enlivened the day's proceedings further when he said that there was no records on the books of the New York Life of the $150,000 paid the Republican national committee for contributions to presidential campaigns. While he had no personal knowledge that the money was paid, he assumed it was, because he had told the treasurer to make these payments.

Earlier in the day McCall denied any knowledge of the legislative pool which was disclosed in the examination of Auditor Maine of the Equitable Life Assurance society. McCall on this question made the startling assertion that three quarters of the bills affecting life insurance companies were in the nature of blackmail. The officers of the companies were worried at the beginning of each year, he said, by the proposal of laws that would hamper their companies and these officers "really trembled at what they would have to endure the first six months of each year."

Threat to Kill Kidnapped Boy

New York, Oct. 5.—A third threatening letter has been received by Francisco Mareaneina of Brooklyn, whose boy, Antonio, is alleged to have been kidnapped. In this letter demand is again made for the $5000 ransom asked for in a previous letter, and the threat is made that the boy will be killed if the money is not paid at once.

ROOSEVELT AS WITNESS

Preparing For Final Action on Treaty of Portsmouth

Washington, Oct. 5.—Ratifications of the treaty of Portsmouth will be exchanged at Washington between Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador, and Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, as soon as these important documents are received from St. Petersburg and Tokio. The ratifications will contain the French and English texts of the treaty.

This was decided on at a conference between Rosen and Takahira, which began in the Russian ambassador's apartments and was concluded at the state department. Takahira called on Rosen to find out from him the usual form of the Russian ratification. In order that the minister might inspect a copy, they went to the state department, where Mr. Adee showed them the ratification of the Russian-American extradition treaty. Takahira will inform his government fully on the subject so that the ratifications may conform.

President Roosevelt will be invited by the two envoys to witness the exchange of ratifications. It is probable that the president will place the White House at the disposal of the envoys on this occasion.

Big Guns to Speak In Ohio

Washington, Oct. 5.—Senator Dick had a conference with President Roosevelt relative to the political situation in Ohio. The president is particularly interested in the approaching Ohio election and told Dick he would do everything in his power to insure the success of the Republican cause there this fall. It has been agreed tentatively that Messrs. Taft, Shaw, Wilson, Bonaparte and Moody will participate in the campaign.

Ambassador Meyer on Vacation

Washington, Oct. 5.—Ambassador Meyer, who has just arrived from St. Petersburg, called on the president, visited Secretaries Root and Taft and other officials, and afterward lunched with the president at the White House. This is the first visit Meyer has paid to the United States in a year, and he intends to go to his Massachusetts home and secure a much needed rest before returning to St. Petersburg.

Dave Fultz Knocked Out

New York, Oct. 5.—Dave Fultz, contrefielder of the New York American league baseball team, who has been in a hospital for the past few days as a result of injuries received in a recent game with the Clevelands, will be able to leave that institution within a few days. Fultz's jaw was fractured and he will be obliged to keep his head in splints for six weeks after he leaves the hospital.

Bloody Duel With Knives

The Magazines.

The complete novelette in the October Lippincott's is "A Manila Madness." Its author is Frederic Reddale, whose earlier works, "The Other Man" and "A Transaction in Rubies," have also been brought out in Lippincott's. His latest production is primarily a mystery story possessing a love-interest. The plot opens at Manila, but quickly shifts to New York city for the scene of its unravelling.

The contents of the October Suburban Life are as varied and timely as usual and the subjects treated cover the many interests of the true suburbanite. For those interested in floriculture there is an important article entitled "The Care of House Plants in Winter" by Ida D. Bennett, author of "The Flower Garden." Robert Cameron of the Harvard Botanical Gardens, and Luke J. Doogue of the Boston Public Gardens, contribute practical articles on fall bulb planting, and there are still other lesser articles on flower-growing scattered throughout the magazine.

The American Monthly Review of Reviews for October has a vigorous and exhaustive analysis of the question, "Is American Life Insurance on Trial?" from the standpoint of the policyholder by Walter Wellman, and an interesting story of the Portsmouth conference.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. RATES THE ISSUE

No Change In Views of President Roosevelt

IS HOLDING CONFERENCES

Taft Will Take Up the Matter In Ohio Campaign--Republicans Will Have to Favor the Plank Adopted by Democrats

Washington, Oct. 5.—The resumption of business in Washington with the return of the president and his cabinet is making it clearly evident that railroad regulation is still the great issue and that conservative influences which have been operative during the summer to allay the anti-railroad legislation have not completed their work.

President Roosevelt told Mr. Townsend of Michigan, one of the authors of the Esch-Townsend bill, who called at the White House, that he did not see the need of reiterating with such frequency his desire for comprehensive railroad legislation and his determination to put his issue to the front when his position was absolutely settled. The details of the measure which have the stamp of the administration approval are now subjects of frequent White House conferences.

Secretary Taft, who will participate in the Ohio campaign this month, also purposes to talk the railroad issue. It will be recalled that in an address to the railroad congress here, last spring, he created something of a sensation by the emphasis which he placed on this issue and was thereby brought into square antagonism with Senator Foraker of his own city. Taft, as presiding officer of the Ohio Republican state convention, spoke openly for the president's plan amid the applause of the convention, which, however, refused to adopt rate regulation in its platform.

The Ohio Democrats promptly took up the case, bringing about a situation which may complicate Taft's position in the campaign. The advocates of the Roosevelt rate regulation policy will have to favor a plank which the Democrats of that state adopted after the Republicans had refused it a welcome.

Representative Dalzell of Pittsburg has come out in an interview on conservative lines essentially those of the dominant leaders of the senate. It is thus apparent that although the administration's railroad bill will doubtless go through the house, it will meet much stronger opposition there than last year, when only 17 votes were recorded against the Esch--Townsend bill.

It will not do for the conservative forces to delay their fight till the senate is reached. A bill which goes through the house by too heavy a majority carries with it an amount of prestige as a measure demanded by the people to make its defeat in the senate no easy task. A determined fight will be made in the house, even though the conservative forces cannot look for success there.

Homicide Over a Coat

New York, Oct. 5.—Bryan O'Donnell, a Brooklyn saloonkeeper, will be arraigned to plead to a charge of homicide for the death of William Durand, whom O'Donnell pursued in the belief that Durand had stolen his coat from his saloon. During the pursuit O'Donnell tripped Durand with his foot, causing the suspect to fall and strike his head against a car track. As Durand lay unconscious on the ground, it is alleged that O'Donnell kicked him several times.

Disorderly Austrian Statesmen

Vienna, Oct. 5.—While Baron Von Sternberg was speaking in the lower house of parliament he was continually and badgeringly interrupted by Dr. Wolff, the Pan-German leader. Finally Von Sternberg threw a water glass at Wolff, striking him on the chest. A great uproar followed and the president of the house, being unable to restore order, declared the sitting suspended.

Hearst For Mayor of New York

New York, Oct. 5.—William R. Hearst was named as a candidate for mayor at a municipal ownership mass meeting last night and a committee will select the rest of the ticket. Resolutions denouncing both of the old parties as being dominated by trust interests and declaring that the people of New York should elect officials to oppose corporations were adopted.

Looked For Gas Leak and Found It

"David Harum" Netted Tidy Sum

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 5.—"David Harum," the novel written by the late Edward N. Westcott of this city, netted the author's estate about $125,000. Westcott, who was a banker, died seven years ago and the estate has been held open ever since to derive the benefits from the sale of the novel.

Police No Nearer Solution of the Winthrop Mystery

PUBLICITY IN THE CASE

The Only Reason Why Active Work Has Not Been Stopped --Identification of Torso Necessary to Secure Conviction Even If an Arrest Were Made

Boston, Oct. 5.—There is not the remotest possibility of the Winthrop suit case mystery being solved for the present. As matters now stand, the police authorities of this city, Winthrop and the state, who have in a measure been co-operating with each other, are completely baffled. The chiefs of the various departments admit that they are no better off than they were when the torso was found in the suit case 14 days ago. It is a fact of common knowledge that if it were not for the publicity given the case the officials would have stopped active work on the case several days ago.

As one well known official says: It will be absolutely impossible to secure a conviction in the case, even if an arrest is made, unless the identity of the woman is established. Because of the notoriety given the case the police are still making investigations, but they admit that they are absolutely unproductive of results. The authorities even go so far as to state that all they can do now is to wait for the unexpected to happen.

The state officials are a little more sanguine than the city authorities and the former are exerting every effort possible to fathom the crime. They are even investigating clues that the city police long ago abandoned as worthless. The most any of the officials has been able to learn is that the suit case in which the torso was found was sold by Pawnbroker Berkman of Pleasant street and that a second suit case was sold by Pawnbroker Rubin. It is also known who was the former owner of the case in which the torso was found, but all efforts to learn the identity of the purchaser of the cases or the identity of the woman whose torso was found have proved fruitless.

Expectations that the mystery might be partly solved by the conference at the office of Chief Shaw of the state police yesterday met with the same disappointing result that all of the officials on the case have experienced during the last few days. In response to the request of the chief, Pawnbrokers Berkman and Rubin, and two other men whose names are not known, visited Chief Shaw together for the purpose of seeing the picture of a suspect which certain persons had already claimed that the brokers had identified.

The men, it is understood, failed to identify the photograph as a likeness of the man to whom they sold the suit cases. After the conference Chief Shaw refused to say anything regarding it, and he has also refused to be interviewed about the case.

Valuable Collection Stolen

Paris, Oct. 5.—Rev. Jeremiah Zimmerman of Syracuse, N. Y., the numismatist and Egyptologist, who stopped over in Paris on his way to the United States from Egypt, has been robbed of the entire collection of ancient coins, medals and cameos obtained by him during his Egyptian tour and which were destined for the Metropolitan Museum of Art at New York. The value of the collection is estimated at $200,000. An Englishman staying at the same hotel has been arrested on suspicion.

Missing Girl With Blind Tramp

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 5.—Mary Massoni, the Brockton, Mass., girl who disappeared several weeks ago with a beggar known as "Blind George," has been found. A blind tramp beggar who gave the name of George Hanson, who was accompanied by a girl of 14, was arrested in a barn at Honeoye Falls. The girl proved to be the missing Mary Massoni of Brockton.

Possible Victim of "Black Hand"

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 5.—Gaetano Pisce, an Italian, was fatally shot while lying in bed. The attack was made by a masked man under the guise of robbery, but the police express the belief that it was the result of a "black hand" plot. The man demanded money and as Mrs. Pisce handed him a purse, he shot the woman's husband. Pisce is dying.

Realignments of Powers

Paris, Oct. 5.—Chancelleries here and throughout Europe are taking the keenest interest in the possible and even probable formation of a new European alliance consequent upon the termination of the war and the conclusion of a closer Anglo-Japanese alliance. This has already reached the stage of discreet diplomatic soundings.

Champion Middleweight Wrestler

Des Moines, Oct. 5.—Farmer Burns of Big Rock, Ia., defeated George Baptiste of St. Louis in a wrestling match for the middleweight championship of America last night. Baptiste took the first fall in 26m 34s. Burns won the next two in 8m 30s and 11m respectively.

Privy Council Approves Treaty

Tokio, Oct. 5.—The peace treaty has passed the privy council. The meeting of the council was a prolonged one. The treaty will be immediately ratified.

FARMER IS OUT $17,000

Has Prominent Men Locked Up on Charge of Swindling

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 5.—Charged with swindling Henry G. Wheeler, a wealthy farmer of Stratford, out of $17,000, Attorney F. L. Rodgers of this city and D. K. Tripp, a New York business man, are locked up on default of bail of $10,000 in each case. A warrant was issued last night for the arrest of William B. Sutphen of New York, said to be Tripp's business partner. Sutphen is alleged to have had a hand in the operations which Wheeler says cost him over $17,000.

Wheeler says that Rodgers and Tripp gave him a bundle of worthless mining securities in return for his endorsement of checks and that, together with several large sums of borrowed money for which he received bogus notes, he has parted with the sum named.

Bail at first was fixed at $5000, but State Attorney Fessenden, on hearing the details of the case, ordered the amount of bail to be raised to $10,000. The case created considerable excitement here on account of the prominence of the prisoners.

Hair Torn From Her Head

Boston, Oct. 5.—Dragged by her hair beneath a machine with a revolving shaft working at the rate of 350 revolutions a minute, Kate Gaffney, 27, an employe of the Standard Raincoat company, was scalped. Her hair became entangled in the machine on which she was working as she stopped down, evidently to readjust the belt. The girl, who showed remarkable courage after the accident, though other female employes fainted away, staggered to the front office of the works and fell unconscious. She was quickly conveyed to a hospital, where it is said she will soon recover.

Unusual Action of Grand Jury

Providence, Oct. 5.—Departing widely from its usual custom, the grand jury brought in indictments alleging obtaining money under false pretences against Aubrey L. Rice of Boston and William O. Gilman of this city, recently arrested in San Francisco, on complaints that were the outgrowth of the loss alleged sustained by the United National bank of Providence through a $6500 loan for which an alleged worthless railroad certificate was pledged as security. Requisition papers are in preparation.

Postoffice Custodian Arrested

Boston, Oct. 5.—Timothy W. Swift, assistant custodian of the Boston postoffice building, was arrested, charged with acceptance of a bribe in connection with furniture supplies for the building. Immediately after his arrest he was arraigned before Commissioner Fiske for a hearing, but in the absence of counsel waived the reading of the complaint and was held in $2000 bonds for his appearance on Oct. 11. Bail was produced.

Business Man Drowns Himself

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 5.—The body of J. S. Barnet, aged 55, senior member of the firm of J. S. Barnet & Sons, tanners, was found in Black pond late yesterday. The indications point to suicide, although no reason for such an act could be given at Barnet's office. Barnet, with his two sons, began business here two months ago, having disposed of his interests in the Barnet Leather company of Boston.

Proved Their Innocence

Boston, Oct. 5.—Julius Serauss and Miss Esther Marks, a young German couple who were detained by the immigration officials on their arrival here from Antwerp on suspicion of being connected with an embezzlement of $100,000 in Hamburg, were released after a hearing before a special board of inquiry. They proved their innocence beyond the slightest doubt.

Bondsmen Caused Arrest

Boston, Oct. 5.—Howard B. Lent, employed as a cashier by Henry W. Savage, a real estate dealer, was arrested on a charge of embezzling $1900. The actual shortage is said to be larger. Lent was under bonds in the Fidelity and Trust Company of Maryland, and his arrest was brought about through the attorney of that company.

Jury Disagrees In Butler Case

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 5.—The jury which heard the case of LeRoy Butler, aged 19, charged with murdering his stepmother, Mrs. George H. Butler, in Stamford, reported a disagreement last night. The state attorney says the case will be tried again. Butler, it was alleged, killed his stepmother by a blow on the head with an axe.

New Record Made by Sweet Marie

Readville, Mass., Oct. 5.—In a trial against time, Sweet Marie trotted a mile in 2:04 1-4 at the Readville trotting park, making the fastest mile trotted publicly in the world this year and lowering her own record by ½ second. The performance was without a running horse.

Killed by Falling Down Stairs

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 5.—Sophia Habeeb, a Syrian woman employed at one of the local cotton mills, was instantly killed by falling down a flight of stairs in a tenement house last night. Her neck was broken by the fall.

A Good Book Keeper.

W. P. James writes: "Book borrowers are incorrigible, and book collectors must understand that for themselves churlishness is an essential virtue. I recall a good story told by Ashly Sterry of a book collector who solemnly warned him against ever lending a book and who to enforce his moral led him to a well stocked bookshelf in his own house, saying: 'Look at those shelves. Every book on them was lent to me.'"

THE HEIGHT OF WAVES.

It Is Never More Than Fifty Feet From Trough to Crest.

Owing to many causes the ocean is never still. The wind is one of the chief disturbers, for it gives rise to waves. The effect of an ordinary storm is not felt below a depth of fifty feet, and beneath 700 feet the water can only be disturbed by tides and undercurrents. When you read of "waves running mountains high" you may be sure the writer has never seen a mountain, but has a fine flow of words. The usual height of a wave in common storms seldom is more than twelve feet and in violent gales on the open sea never exceeds fifty feet from trough to crest and a length of about 600 feet. In the south Pacific waves forty-three feet in height have been measured, in the south Atlantic thirty-nine feet, in the bay of Biscay thirty-six feet, in the North sea and the Mediterranean thirteen feet. Of course nearer land when driven furiously against an obstacle, such as a lighthouse, waves often dash against the top of the lighthouse, such as the Bell Rock, 100 feet, and Unst, in the Shetlands, 200 feet. But in the deep sea, even in a howling tempest, they never run higher than fifty feet, which would be a very poor mountain. —New York Herald.

Candlelight.

In domestic lighting for nearly the first half of the last century candles held undisputed sway. The bell is rung, and Mary brings in candles, a pair of molds in tall brass candlesticks brightly polished, with snuffers on a tray—a sharp beaked snuffers of steel, with jaws that opened and shut with a snap and something sinister in their appearance.

There were plated candlesticks and snuffers, too, for occasions of state, with silver branches that suggested the spoils of Jerusalem, but there was also a lamp, a stately edifice of bronze that towered over the family circle at times and shed a generous and genial light when so inclined. But what a demon it was to smoke and to smell! And it would burn, when it condescended to burn at all, nothing but the very finest sperm oil at a fabulous price per gallon.—London Chronicle.

The Capital.

It is not generally known, says the Philadelphia Record, but it is a fact of history nevertheless that Bristol township, lying on the east side of Germantown, had a very narrow escape from being selected as the site of the capital of the United States. It was a very small matter that turned the choice toward Maryland and Virginia. So positive were some members of congress that the capital was going to be located near Germantown that they purchased real estate there, not, of course, as a matter of speculation, but simply to be near at hand when the removal from Philadelphia to Bristol took place. When the vote of the commissioners was taken there was a tie, four being for Bristol and four for the District of Columbia. Washington cast the deciding vote, and Bristol township was left out in the cold.

Swiss English.

The Swiss have not a perfect grasp of English grammar. Recently the following advertisement appeared in an "English" guidebook published at Berne: "The —— hotel is a very favorite resort of people fond of solitude and rest. Those who are in search of loneliness are in veritable fact constantly flocking to the —— hotel from the fore quarters of this globe." "Strange gentlemen will to please not to dress for dinner, etc., as this costume flutters the souls of the maid folk and no work is resulted. Humbly asked." Such is the announcement posted in the bedrooms of an inn in the Jura mountains.

"Nosey" Cromwell.

Oliver Cromwell had a head large in proportion to his body. His features were rugged and unprepossessing. He had three or four warts on his face, one being on the side of his nose. He wore a small mustache and imperial, after the fashion of the times. His complexion was bronzed by exposure to the sun, and he had a fiery red nose of generous proportions that gave rise to many nicknames, "The Almighty Nose," "Nosey," "The Copper Nosed Saint," "His Noseship" and "Rosy Nose" being among the least complimentary.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Mrs. J. B. Cornish of Grand View avenue is convalescing.

Mrs. Charles F. Bates of South Central avenue is ill with typhoid fever.

Adams Academy vs Quincy High school at football at Merrymount park tomorrow afternoon.

Miss Corinna Wilde of Billings street returned Monday from a week end visit at Manchester, N. H.

It will be good news to the lovers of fishing to learn that they are now catching a good lot of smelts daily at Johnson's and Brackett's wharves.

The clerks at Timberlake's store in Atlantic had a day off Tuesday to attend the Brockton fair. The weather could not have been more delightful for their outing.

Among those on the Harvard football squad who are settling down to hard and systematic practice under the supervision of Coach Reed is H. Fletcher Miller of Wollaston, who made a record for himself both in the Quincy High school and Merrymount teams a few years ago.

The new house of Charles Hall on Atlantic street is a credit to the town. Just such a house on the vacant lot on Billings street and on Walker street would touch appearances up with an element a bit more like a city and give no opportunity for the kine to browse near public thoroughfares.

It will be interesting to see in the Hospital Week Canvass whether those wards having a committee of three in charge or those with a single chairman make the greatest gain over last year. We note that Wards I, II, and V have a Committee, Wards III, IV, and VI a Chairman.

The pupils of Miss Lena Crane's dancing classes in Atlantic are glad to learn that Miss Crane is to open a new season the twelveth of October in both afternoon and evening lessons. Judging from the success of last winter, a large number of pupils bid fair to enroll under Miss Crane's instruction the first day.

Stetson Kindred of America.

At a preliminary meeting of a number of Stetsons held in the office of H. C. Stetson, Esq., Boston, last Friday, it was decided to organize the "Stetson Kindred of America," and to hold a reunion of the descendants of Cornet Robert Stetson on the site of the original homestead on Saturday, Oct. 14, 1905, and George W. Stetson, editor of the Medford Leader, was appointed as committee to arrange for the reunion. He has issued circular invitations and mailed to the descendants as far as he has been able to learn their addresses.

Should this reach the eyes of any who did not receive the notice they are invited to join the party, which will leave the South Terminal on the 8.43 train, Saturday, Oct. 14, 1905.

Going Into Business.

Walter O. Parker of Wollaston, who for twenty-five years has been connected with the firm of Brown & Durrell, Boston, has bought out a dry goods establishment at Bath, Me., and will start in business right away. Mr. Parker has already gone to Bath, and he will move his family there sometime this month. Mr. and Mrs. Parker will be greatly missed in the community, also in the Wollaston Unitarian church where both have been active members.

TEAM STRUCK.

Fatal Accident on Grade Crossing

Teamster and Horses Killed.

Stone Team Also Demolished at East Milton.

A two-horse team belonging to W. F. Loud of West Quincy was struck by a train at 6.30 Wednesday night at Faulkner's crossing at East Milton. The driver and both horses were killed.

The team was on its way home from Boston. Evidently the driver did not see or hear the approaching train for he was on the track when the train rounded the curve and struck the team squarely.

The driver was thrown up into the air and landed on the side of the tracks dead. Both horses were dead and the team demolished.

Mr. Loud was communicated with, but could not tell the man's name, other than he was called Fred. He had been at work for them but a few days. He was supposed to belong in Boston.

The body was removed to the Milton police station.

The crossing where the accident happened is a bad one, as the outward trains approach on a curve around a hill and cannot be seen until almost on the crossing.

There is a flagman at the crossing but it is not known how the team got by him.

This noon the man's name was learned to be Natali Bealini.

GOVERNOR'S DAY.

A Crowd of Over 40,000 at the Brockton Fair.

Wednesday was Governor's day at the Brockton fair, and a crowd numbering 42,000 greeted the state's executive.

Accompaning Gov. Douglass were the members of his staff and council, Lieut. Gov. Guild, and Lieut. Gen. Miles.

The state party was given an ovation, and greeted with loud and prolonged cheers as they were escorted to a private box.

The airship again proved a disappointment. The professor made an attempt to fly early in the day. The big ship rose only a short distance. Then the wind took it against a flagpole, and the netting which holds the gas bag was torn.

Lines were thrown out and the ship pulled back to earth. Repairs were made and if the wind is not too strong today another attempt will be made to fly.

Today is Boston day and the biggest day of the week. Hundreds of tally-hos, drags, carriages and automobiles passed through Quincy this morning on their way to the fair.

Wollaston Alliance.

The ladies of the Wollaston Alliance spent a very pleasant afternoon Wednesday at their first meeting for the season. After a few welcoming remarks by the president, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, Mrs. Moore of Quincy rendered a charming vocal solo. The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Goldstein of South Boston who spoke very enthusiastically on the manners and customs of the Jewish people. After another solo by Mrs. Moore, light refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

Football.

The statement has been made and repeated that the Adams Academy football team was to play with the Quincy High School on Friday the 5th. No such game, we learn, has been arranged. It is proposed that Adams Academy and Thayer Academy shall play on that day at Braintree.

CARD OF THANKS.

We take this opportunity to thank the neighbors and friends, and to all who by kind words and deeds showed their respect and love for our dear father, George S. T. Whiting.

ONE NEW LEADER.

And Miss Nina Bates is Now in Second Place.

The usual changes have taken place today among the leaders in the ladies list for the Daily Ledger free scholarships. Miss Petterson drops from first place and Miss Pitt from second place. The new leader is Miss Manning, and second place has been taken by Miss Bates. Gains were also made by Miss Merritt, Miss Nyhan, Miss Swanson and others.

There are no changes in position among leaders in men's list but Engineer Johnson closed up the gap some and several others made gains.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

The editor requests that large packages of votes be sent flat, as it is difficult to count cupons which have been rolled. Please place also on the first coupon the number of votes sent.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

How Philadelphia Girl Snapped a Highwayman.

DECEIVED BANDIT; HAD HIM POSE

Miss Anna A. Wilkinson Tells How She Photographed Real Stage Robber—Concealed Money Belonging to Women In Yosemite Party So It Could Not Be Found.

After having foiled the highwaymen of the Yosemite valley, coming away with a snapshot of a robber in action in her hand bag, Miss Anna Agnes Wilkinson of West Philadelphia recently returned to her home ready to take up the duties of a teacher in the Landreth Grammar school, says a Philadelphia special dispatch to the New York Herald. With Miss Wilkinson at the time were her sister and their mother.

Miss Wilkinson is the only young woman in the world with a photograph of a real stage robber to her credit.

"They said he was a novice," said Miss Wilkinson in speaking of the robber, "but I don't think he was any tyro. He knew his business all right. But really he was rather a nice young man. Through the holes in his mask I could see his eyes. They were fine, great blue eyes, and he had such a lovely soft voice.

"It all happened in the daytime and on a road that is much traveled, the road from Raymond to the valley, by way of Wawona. The robber had posted himself behind a rock at a bend of the road, so that he had to climb up a steep grade to get to the point. When our four horses had strained and toiled up this grade the driver pulled them up to rest them a bit. It was then that the robber stepped out from behind a big bowlder and quick as a flash threw up a gun and leveled it at our heads. He called out sternly, 'Get down out of that stage, every man of you but the driver.'

"In our part of the stage were two men, a German tourist and A. G. Veith, Austrian consul at Milwaukee. When the men did not move the robber shouted: 'Get down! Get down, I tell you! Get down or I'll open up!'

"'Better get down in the road,' the driver counseled. It was then the men began to get out into the road. We women got up in the seats. 'Sit down, you women,' the highwayman said very distinctly. We sat down, you may be sure of that.

"When the men were standing in the dust beside the stage the bandit had them turn with their backs to the stage and each man with his hands behind him. Then, while we sat in the stage waiting, the fellow went through the pockets of the men. While he was searching, the robber drew out a big revolver and carried it in one hand. He had his gun slung across his chest.

"I didn't learn just what he took out of the pockets of the men, but it was probably all the money and jewelry they had. 'That watch isn't worth much,' said Mr. Veith to the robber, speaking of his own timepiece, 'and, besides, it's an heirloom in my family.' 'Take it, then,' the robber said, and he handed it back.

"Meantime we women had been sitting watching with all our eyes. While the robber was going through the pockets of the men I hid our purses, my mother's, my sister's and my own, dropping them all in my blouse. I left our small purse with only a few dollars in our hand bags for the robber to find.

"Finally the highwayman stood the men up in a row again, with their hands behind their backs, their backs toward the stage. He walked over to us and demanded our valuables. He talked and bantered with us while doing it. When the robber came to me he said, 'Well, give me what you've got.' I said, 'I'd give you the contents of a gun if I had one.' He only laughed at this.

"I remember the highwayman seemed disappointed in the small amount of money he got from us. One of the purses was hard to open, and he just dropped it in his bag. The others he examined. Then he said: 'Say, I believe you women have more money. I don't think you would come into the park with so little.' We answered, 'We heard there were fellows like you, and that's why we left it.' But I thought he might make another search and slipped the three purses out of my blouse and gave them to the driver on the sly. The driver dropped them in his pocket. Sure enough, he did make another search, but he didn't find the purses. All of us lost something. The haul altogether might have been $300.

"When the robber had finished his search he told the men to get back in the stage and told the driver to go on. Mr. Veith asked the fellow to return a gold cross he had taken, a keepsake. They got into an argument about it, the robber being close beside the stage. Hot words passed. I was scared more then than at any other time. I was fearful the highwayman would get angry and shoot, as he threatened to do. It was just when the robber was walking off that the picture idea came to me. Mr. Veith did most to get it. 'You can let us have your picture. You can certainly do that much,' said Mr. Veith.

"'I guess my makeup is all right,' the robber said. And he glanced through the holes in the mask down at the clothes and old linen duster he wore. Then he nodded his head toward us and said, 'All right; go ahead.' This part of it was a small matter—just pressing a button.

"'Stand still,' was the call.

"The robber stood still, posing like a good fellow, and, snap, it was all over."

PLANNING A WARDROBE.

Decide on a Few Becoming Colors and Stick to Them.

The wardrobe must be planned each season. The average woman does well to decide on a few colors, the most becoming, and stick to them. The first advantage of having a few colors is economy. One silk petticoat, one hat, one wrap, etc., may be made to go twice or three times as far as they would if many colors had to be matched. Another advantage is that one gains a certain individuality in her appearance. A certain artist's wife confines her colors to black, white and yellow. She never departs from these hues, and the result is that she is called handsome without actually being more than fine looking. She is always perfectly dressed, and the harmony of her gowns, hats, jewels, flowers and accessories is most attractive.

One need not carry the limitation quite as far as this. A dark woman might choose navy blue, brown, yellow and white, with perhaps a little red and bright green carried into the trimmings of her hats. A blond woman would substitute black for brown and mauve or violet for yellow. Sticking to these colors year after year, the wardrobe would soon become harmonious and distinctive.

Having selected one's colors, it is comparatively easy to decide on the number of gowns one needs in a season. It is also much easier to avoid buying useless things. If one buys ahead of the season, there is much less probability of selecting the wrong thing. Of course white will be included in every scheme. It is perhaps not well enough realized that black is not becoming to every type—in fact, black is not an easy color to wear. It should be avoided by the middle aged woman, the thin woman and the sallow woman. A blooming young girl can wear it, and it seems to be the right thing for the average aged woman. Others should wear it discreetly, but white is nearly always becoming. From infancy to old age it is appropriate, and, generally speaking, it is economical.—New York Post.

THE UPRIGHT PIANO.

How It May Be Placed to Advantage In a Small Room.

Even the upright piano does not always solve the problem of how a small room can be made to contain a musical instrument. Here is an arrangement that often works to great advantage in cramped quarters: If the door opens into the room, thus taking up useful space, place the instrument with one end at the side of the door, so that the door will open against the piano back. An iron brace can be placed so that the door cannot fly back to hit the piano. Then hang a crane rod for a portiere to conceal the back of the piano. The same plan can be used when the door opens against the wall.

For Girls Who Embroider.

I wonder how many girls know that embroidery should never be ironed? Well, it should not. The proper way to finish off a piece of work done in a frame is: Before taking it out make some strong boiled starch, which, when cold, should be a thick jelly. Take some of it in the fingers and rub well into the back of the needlework, removing any surplus starch with soft paper. Of course the starch is only put on the worked parts of the material, says Home Notes.

If the work has not been placed in a frame it should be placed face downward on a clean cloth and nailed lightly and evenly to the floor and treated in the same way. Large pieces of work should be always treated thus, and if starch is used afterward you need not finish off the ends of silk or wool, as the starch keeps them in place. Work carried out in this way stands out and wears uncommonly well, but care must be taken to let it be thoroughly dry before unnailing it.

Macaroon Custards.

Macaroon custards call for a quart of milk, two eggs, one scant tablespoonful of cornstarch, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and fourteen macaroons. Scald the milk, beat the yolks of the eggs well and add them to the milk. Then add the cornstarch rubbed smooth in a little milk, then the sugar. Stir until it thickens, when remove from the fire and flavor with vanilla. Crush eight of the macaroons with a rolling pin and divide the quantity equally into six cups. Fill the cups with the custard to within an inch of the top, stirring the crushed macaroons through the custard. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, add a little sugar and spread on the top of each custard, then place on top a whole macaroon. Brown slightly in the oven and set away to get cold.—New York Post.

JAPANESE NAVAL SURGERY.

Extraordinary Precautions Taken to Protect Men In Battle.

Surgeon General S. Suzuki of the imperial Japanese navy in his recent address at Detroit before the fourteenth convention of military surgeons of the United States made what was declared by Medical Director Joseph S. Wise of the United States navy to be the most valuable contribution of modern times to naval surgery. He described in detail the surgical methods used in the Japanese fleet. He told how surgeons, before every engagement, carefully inspected the eyes of all gunners on the warships, how the ears of every man in the fleet were plugged with cotton before the firing began and how Admiral Togo fought his fleet from the compass bridge of the Mikasa instead of the conning tower. Dr. Suzuki said:

"Much of our success in the treatment of wounds I ascribe to the fact that before every engagement I ordered each member of the crew to bathe and put on perfectly clean underclothing. In a great many shot wounds fragments of clothing are carried into the body, and our insistence upon clean underclothing prevented many cases of blood poisoning among our wounded.

"Our experience during the war proved that the conning tower of a warship is a most dangerous situation. Fragments of shell penetrate through the slits in the tower made to furnish the commanding officer a range of vision and do great damage. Realizing this fact, Admiral Togo in all the naval engagements directed his fleet from the compass bridge of the Mikasa without receiving at any time the slightest wound.

"The vision of the men who fire the guns on a warship must necessarily be of the very best if their shots are to count. Before every engagement the surgeons in the Japanese fleets examined carefully the eyes of all the gunners. Any of them found with slight impairment of vision were treated, and if the impairment was too grave to yield to immediate treatment they were transferred to another station and their places filled by men whose eyes were perfect.

"During engagements every battery crew was supplied with water in which a 1 per cent solution of boracic acid had been mixed to wash out their eyes when they became affected by powder smoke or dust. We also issued to every man in the fleets before going into action cotton wool with which to plug his ears and thereby prevent rupture of the eardrums by the concussion of the gun fire.

VALLEY TO BECOME A SEA.

Engineer Says Flood Will Follow Irrigation In California.

Disastrous results from irrigation in the Imperial valley in southern California were predicted the other night by George Y. Wisner of Detroit, an engineer and member of the international waterways commission. Mr. Wisner was speaking before the Detroit Engineering society, says a Detroit dispatch.

"Within twenty years thousands of people who have taken up government lands in the Imperial valley will be driven out by water, their homes and fields forming the bottom of an immense inland sea," he said.

"The cause of the coming catastrophe is poor engineering in diverting the course of the Colorado river for irrigation purposes. The river has cut into the banks of its new course to such an extent that nearly all of the Colorado river flows down into the valley. The engineers realize the danger, but after many frantic efforts have failed to change the river's course back to its old bed.

"Not for twenty years will the evaporation down there be equal to the inflow into the valley. By that time a million acres of the valley, which is from 60 to 265 feet below the sea level, will be covered by an inland sea."

Smallest Dog In the World.

Chiquita, the smallest dog in the world, is coming to New York. Her trip does not require any special preparation. Her private car will be her master's coat pocket, and at night she will sleep as she does at home, in her master's hat, says the New York American. Chiquita weighs only twenty-three ounces, though she is two and a half years old. She is one of the last of her race, being a Chihuahua, a breed which fast is becoming extinct. Aside from being extremely ornamental, Chiquita has a grave and serious mission. She is her master's watch-dog and many times has proved a very effectual burglar alarm. She is owned by Hamilton Rayner of El Paso, but is registered with the American Kennel club of New York.

Sang Dying Under Doctor's Knife.

While Miss Louisa Butler lay dying on an operating table in the Blue Island hospital at Chicago before daylight the other day, with surgeons working in vain to save her life, she retained consciousness, says a Chicago dispatch, and sang in low, clear tones:

Abide with me. Fast falls the eventide,
The darkness deepens; Lord, with me abide.
When other helpers fail and comforts flee,
Help of the helpers, oh, abide with me!

She died with the hymn on her lips. Miss Butler's skirt caught in a step as she alighted from a Rock Island train, and she was thrown under the wheels and terribly crushed.

World's Biggest Hydraulic Fill.

The largest hydraulic fill in the world is being built in the Alamosa river, about twenty miles west of Monte Vista, Colo. When completed it will form a reservoir in the Alamosa, the water from which will irrigate nearly 50,000 acres of land.

OLD HOUSES

Pictures and Traditions Being Collected.

Commendable Work of J. L. Edwards.

The Co-operation of All is Invited Publicly.

To the citizens of Quincy:

The undersigned has photographed over a hundred of the ancient dwellings of Quincy, and since beginning in 1900 many of them have been torn down, and no likeness of them would have been preserved. All these old homesteads were once occupied by the old Quincy families, and descended from father to son for generations. It will be a pleasure to the descendants of these original owners or occupiers, and to posterity, to be able to see pictures of them. Similar work is being done in other places.

I should like to obtain views of as many as possible of the old places which have been torn down in the past, such as the Central House, the Cherry Tavern, the Willow House, the Copeland homestead, the Panton property, the buildings which stood on the site of St. John's church, and many others. I do not mean the gift of them, simply an opportunity to photograph them.

In many cases no photograph is in existence, and as many people have the gift of drawing, a pen and ink sketch will be very acceptable, even if it may seem crude and incomplete to the maker.

Also, I want the names of the families who built or occupied these houses, and any incidents or traditions connected with them, and respectfully request that the same be sent to me, and they will be appreciated. As the object is purely a public one, I feel warranted in asking the co-operation of all who are interested. The views will be carefully preserved in the Historical Society, and in several kindred organizations which have expressed a wish for them.

Yours, very truly,
JAMES L. EDWARDS,
Quincy, Oct. 5, 1905.

Old Football Players to Meet the Quincy Team.

There will be no league games played in this State on Saturday, Oct. 7, all games scheduled for that date being postponed on account of trial game at Locust street grounds, Boston, between two teams composed of players belonging to the eight clubs which form the Merrimac Valley league, to decide which team shall play against the All-England combination on Monday Oct. 16, at South End grounds, Boston.

There will be a game, however, at Ward Three playground between the Quincy team that played against Andover last Saturday and a team composed of players that have not been in the game for some time. There is considerable excitment over the affair, as each team has backed itself to the amount of fifty dollars, winner to take all.

The game will be called at 3.45 o'clock and John Pritchard will officiate as referee.

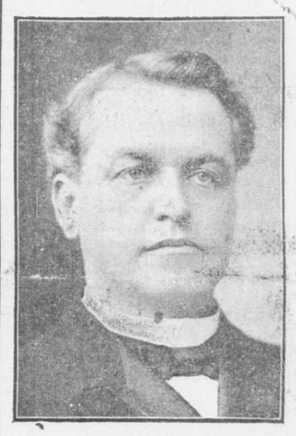
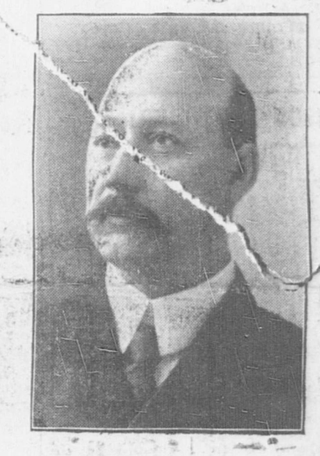
GEN. CURTIS GUILD, JR.,

Nominated Today by the Republicans for Governor of Massachusetts.



EX-GOV. BATES.

Who Placed Gen. Guild in Nomination for Governor.



CONGRESSMAN WEEKS,

Who is presiding today at the Republican State Convention.

PLEAD GUILTY.

And Paid Large Fines for Assault on Officer.

Jeremiah Donovan and Patrick Creamer learned this morning that it is a serious matter to commit an assault on an officer. That the court looks upon such matters in a serious light was evident by the heavy fines imposed.

The cases came up in court this morning by continnance. Creamer was arraigned for drunkenness and assault on Officer Boutin and Donovan for assault. Both retracted their pleas of not guilty and pleaded guilty.

Officer Boutin's story of the affair is as follows: On the morning of Sept. 23 he arrested Creamer on the Neponset bridge for drunkenness. He rang for the wagon and started up Hancock street with his prisoner to meet the wagon.

When near Walnut street Donovan butted in and attempted to rescue the prisoner. Officer Boutin put up a stiff fight but two men against one was more than he could combat against, and both Creamer and Donovan got away.

The officer used his club freely upon them, and Creamer required a physician's services. Officer Boutin was badly used up, and was confined to his home three days, besides having his uniform torn.

When the patrol wagon arrived, the officers went in search of the two men.

Donovan was arrested, but Creamer's condition was such that the physician advised against his being taken.

The court fined Creamer $5 for drunkenness and $20 for assault and Donovan $35 for assault.

While the fines were heavy they were not more so than they should have been. The two men were lucky to escape without a jail sentence.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Turner of Silver street, have been called suddenly home to Bath, Maine, by the death of Mr. Turner's father.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

An official paper states that Russia's external debt is equally divided between France and the rest of the world. France is glad it is no worse.

If those New York insurance companies really get reformed, what a lot of senators and other people will have to go work for a living.

Having passed a nice quiet summer vacation, hunting bears and making peace, the President is back in Washington and is getting ready to tackle the yellow fever district.

A witness before a British Admiralty investigation recently described a pierhead as "made of wood and usually empty." The House of Lords got real angry and talked of trying the poor man for contempt.

Everybody remembers the attractions at the G. A. R. fair at the Coliseum last year, and a large attendance is expected the coming week. The post membership is rapidly decreasing and their needs grow more urgent as members advance in life. The receipts of the fair are devoted entirely to the benefit of the relief fund of the Post.

The continued financial difficulties of the Quincy Quarries Company is a local example that all of the so-called trusts are not a success. Out-of-town men thought they knew much better how the granite business should be conducted than those Quincy men who made a success of it by years of experience, but experience counts where business is legitimately conducted.

That any grade crossings are allowed to exist in the Metropolitan district without gates is almost criminal negligence. Some will say there should be no grade crossings. Certainly, in a rich town like Milton, they should be abolished and in the meantime gates should be established. There are several dangerous crossings on the Granite branch, both in Quincy and Milton, and the one on Adams street is the only one with gates.

A FIGHT ON TARIFF

Massachusetts Republicans Are Divided In Opinion

EXCITING CONVENTION

A Three-Cornered Contest For Lieutenant Governorship and Five Aspirants For Position of Attorney General

Boston, Oct. 6.—A demand for substantial tariff revision, a three-cornered contest for the nomination for lieutenant governor, and a remarkable contest for the nomination for attorney general, with five well-known lawyers as aspirants, are the features of the Massachusetts Republican convention which is being held today in this city, making it one of the most interesting as well as enthusiastic conventions in the history of the party in this commonwealth.

The contest for attorney general rests almost entirely upon the personality of the candidates, but that for lieutenant governor is intimately connected with the tariff revision demand which will be placed before the convention.

Eben S. Draper of Hopedale is the candidate for lieutenant governor on the protection platform, while Frederick S. Hall of Taunton will ask for support as the representative of the reciprocity wing of the party. The third candidate is A. H. Goetting of Springfield.

For several hours the committee on resolutions of the convention listened to suggestions as to what the platform should contain. The sub-committee of the committee of 100 on reciprocal trade appeared and urged the recommendation that hides, coal, iron ore, lumber and wood pulp be placed by congress upon the free list.

Andrew G. Webster, chairman of the sub-committee, said that over 30,000 cards had been received from Republican voters in favor of substantial tariff reform. Eugene N. Foss, who made an unsuccessful attempt to have last year's convention commit itself to reciprocity, addressed the committee at length in behalf of a revision plank.

The platform declares that the policy of protection to American labor and American industries should be maintained. It recognizes that tariff rates should be changed when conditions are so changed that the public interest demands it, and that the time of such revision must be determined by the representatives of the party for all parts of the country.

It approves the position taken by Massachusetts senators and representatives at the last session of congress in favor of present action and urges that they should continue to press upon their party associates the wisdom of a consideration of the tariff for the purpose of revision and readjustment.

It further recommends for the consideration of congress the enactment of a tariff provision which shall protect our exports against discrimination and secure to the United States the treatment accorded to the most favored nations in all foreign markets.

This platform will in no way satisfy the reciprocity delegates, who freely declare that they will carry their fight into the convention. Eugene N. Foss said: "We must have free hides, coal, and lumber, and with Judge Hall as our standard bearer we shall demand these things of the convention. We shall demand also fair play by the use of the Australian ballot."

The five attorney general aspirants have their headquarters at the American house, with huge banners, campaign buttons, badges and literature in evidence everywhere. The western Massachusetts delegates visit largely the quarters of Dana Malone of Greenfield, the candidate of that section of the state, while Middlesex county is divided between District Attorney Sanderson of Ayer and Edgar R. Champlin of Cambridge. District Attorney French of the Norfolk-Plymouth district has an eager following from the southeastern section of the state, and Clinton Gowdy of Springfield, the fifth candidate, receives the delegates surrounded by an active group of supporters. Lieutenant Governor Guild, who is slated for the nomination of governor, Senators Lodge and Crane, Congressman Weeks, the permanent chairman of the convention, and others were accorded a pronounced ovation.

The probability of a long drawn out contest for attorney general, together with the divisions on the tariff question and the nominations for lieutenant governor, have impressed the committee on arrangements with the fact that the convention may not be concluded in today's sittings. In this event the convention will meet tomorrow, instead of this evening. Many ballots are looked for before the attorney general nomination is decided, a majority going to one candidate only by withdrawals or combinations among the various candidates.

'BUNGER" FOR TEDDY, JR

President's Son Sets Style In Harvard's Football Squad

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 6.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., candidate for the Harvard freshman football eleven, cut himself over the eye while tackling a fellow player on Soldiers field and had to withdraw to the locker building.

Up to the time of his injury not one single man of all the hundred other freshmen trying for their class eleven had received as much as a scratch, but after he had left the field several were banged and bruised, almost as if Teddy had set the style.

Now that he has a discolored eye, patched up with a fuzzy "cocoon," Roosevelt, Jr., will be more of a football player than ever. So far, although light, he has made a very favorable impression. He is not half so green as many other men on the squad and plays with lots of enthusiasm and dash. Yesterday the squad was divided into several elevens, and Roosevelt played end on one of these.

Tucker's Counsel Given Large Award

Boston, Oct. 6.—The law firm of Vahey, Innes & Mansfield, which acted as counsel for Charles L. Tucker, convicted of the murder of Miss Mabel Page, has been awarded a fee of $5000 by Judges Sherman and Sheldon of the superior court. This is in payment only for its services to the defendant, and is exclusive of the expenses in preparation for the trial, which amounted to about $1000. The fee is the largest ever paid counsel for a prisoner by the commonwealth.

Engine Plunged Overboard

Boston, Oct. 6.—A shifting engine plunged through an open drawbridge over the Charles river, near the North station, last night, and now lies under 20 feet of water. Engineer Foster and Fireman Ryan escaped by jumping. They were not injured. A barge was about to enter the draw when the accident occurred, but the vessel escaped damage through the quick action of the pilot of the tug alongside the barge ordering the engines reversed.

Collins Estate Valued at $90,000

Boston, Oct. 6.—The will of the late Mayor Patrick A. Collins has been admitted to probate by Judge Grant of the probate court. The property is left to the family. The estate is worth approximately $90,000. The will was executed Aug. 7, 1903. The instrument is in the handwriting of the mayor. Carrie E. Collins, widow, is named as executrix and she was appointed to serve in that capacity by the court.

Girls' Skull Fractured

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 6.—During a quarrel between two male employes in a cotton mill here one of them threw a shuttle and struck Alice Sullivan, aged 16, another operative, causing a fracture of the base of the skull. The girl may die. Miss Sullivan had no part in the trouble. As the mill officials and police were unable to learn the names of the men who were quarreling no arrest was made.

Wage Agreement Reached

Boston, Oct. 6.—About 100 shop and mill hands who went on strike on Monday for a working agreement which calls for $3.28 a day of eight hours returned to work today. Officials of the Carpenters' District council held a conference with six mill owners who are not members of the Master Carpenters' association which resulted in the matter being adjusted to the satisfaction of both sides.

To Save "Old Ironsides"

Boston, Oct. 6.—The Daughters of 1812 and the Daughters of the Revolution purpose raising funds to restore the frigate Constitution, now moored at the navy yard here. The suggestion that schoolchildren of Brooklyn raise funds to take the vessel to that port and the report that the historic frigate was slowly rotting, has aroused local interest and means will be taken to save the ship.

Tax Commissioner Under Fire

Bath, Me., Oct. 6.—The city council last night ordered an investigation by its committee on taxes of an alleged irregular proceeding upon the part of Virgil T. Emery, chairman of the board of tax commissioners, by which it is claimed his personal tax was abated by his own order in payment for extra service rendered the city for which he was not recompensed.

Concord Has $30,000 Fire

Concord, N. H., Oct. 6.—The coal pockets of the New Hampshire state hospital, a carriage factory and upholstery works were burned this morning. The coal pockets contained 500 tons of coal, which also was burned. The loss to the hospital is $20,000 and that to the other property owners amounts to $10,000.

Record Crowd at Brockton Fair

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 6.—The Brockton fair had a record-breaking attendance yesterday of 80,250 people, the previous mark being 63,000 on the third day last year. The great throng streamed in from all directions, but principally from Boston, more than 25 special trains bringing nearly 30,000.

NIP IT IN THE BUD.

First Appearance of Dandruff a Forerunner of Future Baldness.

That such is the case has been conclusively proven by scientific research. Prof. Unna, the noted European skin specialist, declares that dandruff is the burrowed-up cuticle of the scalp, caused by parasites destroying the vitality in the hair bulb. The hair becomes lifeless, and, in time, falls out. This can be prevented.

Newbro's Herpicide kills this dandruff germ, and restores the hair to its natural softness and abundancy.

Herpicide is now used by thousands of people—all satisfied that it is the most wonderful hair preparation on the market to-day.

ALLEGED FORGER

Illinois Banker Also Charged With Embezzlement

A LEADER IN EDUCATION

Peoria Astounded at Revelations Concerning Professor Dougherty, Who Was School Superintendent For Years

Peoria, Ills., Oct. 6.—Professor Newton C. Dougherty, superintendent of city schools of Peoria for more than 20 years, president of the Peoria National bank and a capitalist, has been arrested on two true bills returned by the grand jury, charged with forgery and with embezzlement.

The arrest followed an investigation by the grand jury of charges brought against Dougherty that the accounts of the school funds, which were deposited in the bank of which he was president, were being manipulated. The investigation resulted in the discovery that there was a shortage of at least $60,000, but it may reach hundreds of thousands of dollars. The investigation covered only the period from January, 1903. The grand jury will now, it is stated, investigate the entire record of Dougherty as superintendent of schools.

Professor Dougherty was first arrested on a charge of forgery, the specific charge being that he had forged a voucher for $164.50 for coal. He promptly furnished $3000 bail. The indictment and arrest on the charge of embezzlement followed yesterday afternoon and on this charge Dougherty furnished $9700 bail.

Following his arrest on the charge of forgery, Dougherty sent in his resignation as president and director of the Peoria National bank. He also sent in his resignation as superintendent of schools.

Professor Dougherty's arrest created a sensation. He has been considered a wealthy man, owning much real estate, including considerable western land, and is interested in a number of commercial and financial institutions besides the Peoria National bank. He is also a trustee of the fund of $175,000 held by the National Educational association and is a past president of the association. He is a close friend of Nicholas M. Butler, president of Columbia university of New York, and has been for years regarded as one of the foremost educators in the country.

Kidnapped Boy Returned

New York, Oct. 6.—Tony Marendino, the small Italian boy who was kidnapped from his Brooklyn home two weeks ago and has been held captive while demands for a $5000 ransom were made upon his parents, was brought to a police station by a street car inspector last night. He had been left on a surface car by a man he did not know. The boy seemed dazed and could give no information about himself. He was turned over to his parents late last night.

Irish Leader Goes to Jail

Dublin, Oct. 6.—John O'Donnell, Nationalist member of parliament for South Mayo, was ordered by the high court to find $1000 surety for his good behavior or go to jail for three months. O'Donnell elected to go to jail. The action arose from an inflammatory speech delivered by O'Donnell which was followed by an evicted tenant forcibly retaking possession of a farm. It was urged that such speeches lead to disorder and crime.

Tammany Sticks to McClellan

New York, Oct. 6.—Mayor George B. McClellan last night was renominated for mayor of New York city for the four years' term beginning Jan. 1 next by the Democratic city convention, or Tammany Hall organization. McClellan is now rounding out his first term of two years. The state legislature recently amended the city charter so as to provide for a four years' tenure of office for officials of greater New York.

Jewelry Robbery Frustrated

New York, Oct. 6.—In broad daylight, with hundreds of people on the street, Louis Brown, a negro, made an attempt to rob a Maiden Lane jewelry store of $2000 worth of gems. His attempt was frustrated by Oscar Windorf, a clerk, who was cut slightly by a knife in the negro's hand during the fight. Brown was arrested after a chase of nearly a mile.

Firemen Had to Sacrifice Barns

Great Barrington, Mass., Oct. 6.—While two large barns were being burned last evening the flames extended to the Elm hotel, the Methodist church and several dwelling houses, and the fire department was forced to leave the barns in order to save the other property, which they accomplished with difficulty. The loss on the barns was $5000.

Steamer Wrecked Off California

Eureka, Cal., Oct. 6.—Steamer St. Paul, bound from San Francisco to Portland, Or., went ashore at Punta Gorda during a dense fog. She had 75 passengers on board, all of whom were safely landed on the beach. The vessel will probably be a total loss.

Gibson Got Away From Mob

Houston, Oct. 6.—Reports from Edna indicate that Monk Gibson has made his escape and no trace of the negro has been reported since Sunday. The town is quiet.

Murderer Loses Appeal

Hartford, Oct. 6.—The supreme court of the state has handed down a decision on arguments for an appeal in the case of Frank Sherrie, the condemned Somersville murderer, and found no error. Sherrie was sentenced to be hanged on Oct. 31, but his counsel claimed error because the superior court admitted in evidence clothing belonging to Sherrie and the hammer which did the killing, alleging that the state should first prove that they were used by Sherrie in his commission of the murder of Mrs. Ludwika Kulas.

SON RECEIVED $1,705,681

Son-In-Law Also Made Richer by $920,113--Both Amounts In Addition to Salaries--Scandals Going Before Grand Jury

New York, Oct. 6.—That the astounding total of $2,600,000 has been paid as commissions by the Mutual Life Insurance company to two members of the family of Richard A. McCurdy, president of the company, and the promise of District Attorney Jerome that the insurance scandals certainly will be submitted later to an extraordinary grand jury, are the sensational developments in the insurance situation.

It was brought out by testimony before the legislative insurance committee that Robert H. McCurdy, son of Richard A. McCurdy, has received as commissions on foreign business $1,163,829 and on domestic business $541,852, and that Louis A. Thebaud, son-in-law of Richard A. McCurdy, has received an aggregate of $920,113 in commissions from the company. It was also brought out that Robert H. McCurdy expected his income this year would be about $110,000.

Previous to this testimony W. F. Thummel, an attorney of the Mutual Life Insurance company, testified that he had paid to the chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee the sum of $2500 in cash as a campaign contribution.

Mr. Jerome, in announcing in court that the scandals will be submitted to an extraordinary grand jury, said the inquiry by the legislative committee had shown "greater moral obliquity and moral obtuseness on the part of persons important in the business world than did the shocking revelations in regard to the Equitable Life."

Another incident of the day's developments was the publication of a letter from Charles E. Hughes, counsel to the legislative committee, to Samuel Untermyer, counsel for James H. Hyde, the former controlling stockholder of the Equitable Life Assurance society, in which Hughes said the committee would make no discrimination in favor of Hyde in his examination before the committee.

The Chamber of Commerce yesterday adopted a resolution declaring that additional legislation is necessary for the proper regulation of life insurance companies.

W. F. Thummel, the attorney who was associated with Judge Hamilton in looking after legislation for the New York Life, the Equitable Life and the Mutual Life Insurance companies in the so-called legislative pool that was exposed last week, testified before the committee that he is now employed as an attorney for the Mutual Life Insurance company, at a salary of $7200 a year. Thummel said that he personally placed in the hands of the chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee $2500 in cash which had been given the witness for that purpose by Vice President Granniss of the Mutual.

Robert P. McCurdy had a number of documents in his hand as he mounted the platform to testify and when he had been sworn testified that he was the general manager of the Mutual Life Insuranec company. His powers, he said, were delegated to him by the president and vice presidents of the company. His duties, he said, were principally confined to the supervision of the agency system of the company in this country and abroad. Like Perkins of the New York Life Insurance company, he appeared to be the one factor that built up the foreign business of his company. His salary, he said, was $30,000.

The most startling part of McCurdy's testimony was made when he submitted a statement of his profits, or the revenue from his contracts, on the foreign business of the company. From 1886 to 1903, while he was a member of the firm of C. H. Raymond & Co., the metropolitan agents of the Mutual Life Insurance company, his profits were $209,123. Under his contract with the firm he paid one-half, or $104,561 to Raymond, and from 1893, when he left the firm, down to Aug. 31, 1905, his commissions were $1,059,267, making a total personal revenue from the foreign business from 1884 to 1905 of $1,163,829.

During the period of his connection with the firm of C. H. Raymond & Co. McCurdy, according to his own testimony, was receiving his share of the profits on the business of the Mutual company written by his firm as the metropolitan agents. This sum McCurdy was unable to give any estimate upon and later in the day, when Raymond was called, it was brought out that these profits to McCurdy amounted to $541,852 net, or after his share of the expenses of the firm's profits had been deducted. This made a total of $1,705,681 that McCurdy received in commissions.

In 1893, when McCurdy retired from the firm of C. H. Raymond & Co., he was succeeded by Louis A. Thebaud, a son-in-law of President McCurdy of the Mutual Life Insurance company. He was practically under the same contract as Robert McCurdy, and from 1893 down to 1904 he received in commissions on first premiums and renewals the sum of $920,113. All these amounts were in addition to salaries paid McCurdy and Thebaud.

In lieu of an appearance in person, James H. Hyde, through his counsel, offered to the legislative insurance committee his testimony before Superintendent Hendricks.

In a letter sent to Samuel Untermyer, C. E. Hughes of the legislative committee's examining counsel, declared that he was "instructed to say" by the committee that "no discrimination will be made in favor of Mr. Hyde with reference either to the scope or method of his examination."

Judging from Hughes' letter, it seems improbable that Hyde's new offer will be accepted. Whether the committee will resort to the extreme measure of attempting to have Hyde indicted and extradited remains to be seen. It is a fact that the committee has considered this possibility, The Tribune says today.

Bread
Legal and Illegal

The Royal Baking Powder is a pure, grape cream of tartar powder. Its greater healthfulness and absolute superiority over other powders are shown by the United States Government official tests, and are so universally recognized that its use is approved and encouraged by health officers at home and abroad.

Guard your food against the alum baking powders.

Alum baking powders are considered so injurious to health, and their promiscuous sale a source of such danger, that their use is universally condemned by physicians and health officers. In many States the law requires that they shall be branded to warn consumers that they contain alum.

In the District of Columbia, under the laws of Congress, the use of alum in bread, biscuit, cake and other food is a misdemeanor.

Alum baking powders may be known by their price. Powders sold from ten to twenty-five cents a pound, or twenty-five ounces for twenty-five cents, are not made of cream of tartar.

HER KITCHEN FLOOR.

A Story and a Bit of Sarcasm About New England.

Unless you happen to have been born in New England I suppose it is impossible for you to appreciate what a floor really means to a conscientious housekeeper. I met a middle aged woman up in New Hampshire one summer who had the floor worship fetich to a really abnormal degree. The last thing she did every night after turning the cat out and locking the windows was to scrub the kitchen floor, the idea being, I suppose, that if the house burned down in the night the neighbors should not be able to find any spots to convict her of untidiness.

One night it happened that her husband was busy in the barn, and, forgetting that he had not come in, she manicured the floor. She had scarcely finished when he was heard at the kitchen steps. He couldn't come in by the front door because that was sealed to keep out dust, and his wife simply wasn't going to have him tracking over her clean floor, so she made him sleep in the barn. He had plenty of clean hay to sleep on, and he was perfectly comfortable.

Men are scarce in New England, I understand. I don't doubt a bit that they've been killed off to save the floors.—Washington Post.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Only two days to Hospital Week.

The next regular meeting of Quincy W. R. C. will be held Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 10.

C. E. Giles, Jr., and Robert Fraser were members of the party of Ancients who went to Albany.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Albee of Wollaston is dangerously ill with pneumonia.

Baron Von Scholley and family of Squantum have returned to their winter home in Jamaica Plains.

Patrick Barry of Squantum street who has been very ill is now improved and able to resume his duties.

The Quincy members who accompanied the Ancients to Albany, returned home Thursday. All report having had a fine trip.

Mrs. Joshua L. Nash, of Arlington street, who had a shock of paralysis about two weeks ago, is improving very slowly.

Quite a number of Quincy people are taking in the Boston and Maine trip to Albany, and down the Hudson river to New York City.

Several hand engines passed through Quincy on Thursday afternoon on their way to take part in the firemen's muster at Brockton today.

Rev. Carlton P. Mills was elected a vice president at the convention of the Massachusetts Sunday School Association on Thursday.

The Quincy members of South Shore commandery, K. T., will take the 5.50 car from Quincy to East Weymouth this evening to attend the public installation.

The School Committee will hold another special meeting Saturday night to consider the plans for the proposed additions to the High school building.

Louis Estabrooks after a two weeks' visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Estabrooks of Wollaston, has returned to Des Moines, Iowa, where he is engaged in business.

His Honor Mayor Thompson and Department Commander Wolfe and Staff of the Massachusetts, G. A. R., are expected to be present on the opening night of the G. A. R. fair.

A few of the summer residents of Squantum are still lingering at that delightful place, and will continue to do so until the cold weather settles in on them and makes them depart to their winter homes.

Mrs. C. W. Guy of this city was re-elected a director of the Pond Home at Pondville at the annual meeting of the corporation at East Weymouth on Thursday, where the semi-annual convention of the King's Daughters was held.

The Hospital Week Committee are certainly ambitious in starting out to raise at least $5,000, but they are working very hard, and with the inspiration of the gifts of Mr. Emmons and his brother and the Granite Manufacturers' Association they should succeed. The fact that Hospital Week is a full month earlier this year will be a big help.

Cards have been received this week announcing the marriage on Wednesday, at South Framingham, of Miss Jennie Hardy Holt to Mr. Harry Lester Chase, of Braintree. Miss Holt has been for several years recently a teacher at the Coddington school in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Chase will reside at 654 Washington street, South Braintree, and will be at home, Wednesdays in December.

LIGHT VOTE TODAY.

But Candidates Like to Make Good Show in Saturday Ledger.

Miss Manning has increased her lead today in the Scholarship contest and Miss Tilton has moved up in the list. Others have made gains and there are new candidates.

Engineer Johnson has strengthened his position and it now takes three figures to print the vote of A. A. Richardson. Most of the gains today are by candidates well down the list.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

The editor requests that large packages of votes be sent flat, as it is difficult to count cupons which have been rolled. Please place also on the first coupon the number of votes sent.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Nothing Is Left Undone.

Publication Committee,

Gentlemen:—Nothing offers me greater pleasure than to praise the grand work of the Quincy Hospital.

While a patient at the institution a few months ago the attention, care and kindness I received was far more than I can express. Nothing is left undone by the attendants that in any way will add to the comfort of the sufferer.

Such an institution is a great necessity, and deserves the generous support of every resident of the city.

Hoping that this may be banner year in the amount of subscriptions received, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
HARRY LARK.

Town Hill, Quincy.

The Brockton Fair.

Every day at the Brockton fair this year has been a record breaker. On Wednesday there were 40,500 in attendance, over 11,000 ahead of the best second day, and on Thursday there were over 80,000 which went nearly 20,000 ahead of any previous day. There were crowds everywhere; in the grand stand, in the track enclosure, along the midway, in the exhibit hall and in the grove.

The horse show was one of the great attractions, and there was good trotting and grand music. The bicyclist successfully looped the loop two or three times and the stage performances took well.

Today is firemen's day and a large number of hand engines are entered.

Torrey—Spear.

The marriage of Mr. Archibald Torrey and Miss Ethel Spear of Scituate, took place at the home of the bride on Thursday evening. Only the near relatives of the couple were present at the ceremony. A reception followed. The groom is a nephew of Mr. Arthur C. Merritt of this city. Among the Quincy people who attended the wedding were: Mrs. E. A. Penniman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Merritt, Miss Ethel Merritt and Master Ralph Merritt.

Church vs. City.

The suit of the First church against the city, which grew out of the taking of land for street purposes near the church, is in order for trial at the Norfolk Superior court. The claim of ownership of the land by the society is disputed.

TODAY'S COURT.

Reginal Norman and Pemberton H. Powell were fined $10 each for exceeding the speed limit with an automobile at Randolph.

Charles Stickney was fined $10 for drunkenness and $10 for assault at Randolph.

The continued cases of Jeremiah Donovan and Patrick Creamer, for assault on Officer Boutin, was called. Their plea of not guilty was retracted, and a plea of guilty entered. Creamer was fined $5 for drunkenness and $20 for assault, and Donovan $35 for assault.

McGOWAN---TRIGGS.

The Norfolk Downs Letter Carrier Becomes a Benedict.

West Quincy and Norfolk Downs people were interested in the wedding on Wednesday at Dorchester of Mr. John A. McGowan of West Quincy and Miss Elizabeth Triggs of Southern avenue, Dorchester, which took place at St. Matthews church at 9 A. M., the Rev. Fr. Powers officiating.

The couple were accompanied by Thomas McGovern of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., as best man and Miss Sarah E. Dunphy of Quincy as bridesmaid. The bride was becomingly attired in a white silk gown and picture hat.

The ushers were George Triggs and Robert H. Triggs, brothers of the bride; Robert H. Teasdale and Thomas J. Dunphy of Quincy.

During the ceremony Miss Mary McKay organist at St. Mary's church at West Quincy, where Mr. McGowan is musical director, presided at the organ, and was assisted in the musical program by George Moore of New York, violinist, and Miss Alice Celeste Foley, soloist.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of George Triggs of Southern avenue, brother of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. McGowan will take a wedding trip of two weeks. Their future residence will be at Norfolk Downs, where Mr. McGowan is appreciated as a letter carrier, and was kindly remember with wedding gifts.

Merrill vs. Wright.

The indications are that Quincy will continue to have a member of the board of Norfolk County Commissioners. Marshall P. Wright will undoubtedly be renominated by the Democrats, and the only candidate prominently mentioned by the Republicans is Hon. John F. Merrill. Some years ago Mr. Merrill represented the Quincy and Weymouth district in the Massachusetts House and was promoted to the Senate. His wide acquaintance at that time has made it easy at this time in the larger district. He is well known throughout the county.

About 150 men were employed by the Quincy Quarries Company when they shut down.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

THE BAROMETER.

Incident That Led to Its Invention by Torricelli.

The barometer was invented by Torricelli, a pupil of Galilei, in 1643. In attempting to pump water from a very deep well near Florence he found that in spite of all his efforts the liquid would not rise higher in the pump stock than thirty-two feet. This set the young scientist to thinking, and as he could not account for the phenomenon in any other way he was not slow in attributing it to atmospheric pressure. He argued that water would rise in a vacuum only to such a height as would render the downward pressure or weight of the column of water just equal to the atmospheric pressure, and, further, that should a heavier fluid be used the height of the column could be much reduced. To prove this he selected a glass tube four feet long and after sealing one end filled it with mercury and then inverted it in a basin containing a quantity of the same peculiar liquid. The column in the tube quickly fell to a height of nearly thirty inches above the mercury in the basin, leaving in the top of the tube a vacuum which is the most perfect that has ever been obtained and which is to this day called the Torricelli vacuum in honor of its discoverer. The name of the instrument means "air measure," and its fundamental principles cannot be better illustrated than by the above described experiment.

GAMBLING.

Why It Was Forbidden In Ancient Rome and England.

Games "depending partly on skill and partly on hazard, with a view to the pecuniary gain," were forbidden by the Romans both under republic and empire. This was not done because these games tended to demoralize the populace, but because it tended to render them effeminate and unmanly. During the saturnalia, which was a period of license, these games were permitted. Rome was "wide open" then. And a like indulgence at other seasons was extended to the old men both among the Greeks and the Romans. It was one of the privileges of age. Tacitus mentions the existence of the vice of gambling among the ancient Germans.

In England, as in Rome, gambling was prohibited, not because it demoralized, but because it rendered its devotees effeminate. An act passed in 1541 had in view the double object of "maintaining the artillery and debarring unlawful games." An act passed during the reign of Queen Anne declared that all bonds or other securities given for money won at play or money lent at the time to play with should be utterly void, and all mortgages or incumbrances on lands made on the same consideration should be made over to the use of the mortgageor. This continued to be the law until 1845.

The Yak.

Yaks, which are the beasts of burden in Tibet, are very sure footed, and a good one will carry a load of over 200 pounds safely along the steepest hillside. They can exist on the scantiest grass, but grain food suits them for a few days only. Eight miles a day is good average work. A recent traveler tried leather boots for his yaks without success. Tame yaks are white, black, gray and brown and all intermediate graduations of these colors. The wild yak is invariably black, and in early spring his winter coat almost sweeps the ground. At such seasons wild and tame are almost indistinguishable, and a story is told of a big game hunter in Tibet who shot his own baggage animals by mistake.

The Horse Chestnut.

Why "horse" chestnut? Ninety-nine out of a hundred will answer, "Don't know; never thought about it." All over the small branches you may find the minute horseshoes that give it the name. Where a bygone leaf has been the shoe, curve downward, with nail marks complete, is printed on the bark. And it is said that among the twigs may be found some with an odd and lifelike resemblance to a horse's foot and fetlock.

The Opening In the Tomb.

The perforation of the tomb was almost certainly intended as a door of exit for spirits. Even in later times, when the dead were burned, holes were often bored or knocked in the urns that contained the ashes for the same purpose. Some cinerary urns have been found with little windows, as it were, made in them and a piece of glass placed over the hole.

Gratitude.

Gratitude is the fairest blossom that springs from the soul, and the heart of man knoweth none so fragrant, while its opponent, ingratitude, is a deadly weed, not only poisonous in itself, but impregnating the very atmosphere in which it grows with fetid vapors.

The Man of It.

He—There are some girls I'd give the world to kiss and some I don't want to kiss at all.

She—What kind do you kiss?

He—Any kind I get a chance to.—Detroit Free Press.

A Man of His Word.

"Here! This horse is blind. Why did you tell me its sight was good?"

"I didn't. I said its sight was never better, and it's gospel truth. The beast was born blind."

Well Carved.

Bobbles—What does this author mean by saying that the hero had "well carved" features? Dobbles—Perhaps he shaved himself.

'Neath harvest moon the stricken summer lies
Still smiling bravely in her brightest bloom,
Her heart yet holds no hint of gloom,
No trace of sadness in her sunlit eyes.
We love thee, Summer, child of Paradise—
A myriad host announce thy coming doom
Chanting the requiem of thy wintry tomb,
While lovingly look down the tender skies:
A holy hush is in the hazy air
As in thy radiant beauty thou dost sleep!
Nature, arrayed in rainbow colors fair,
Is strong of heart her vigil long to keep:
We know the secret thou dost seek to tell,
Thou art immortal, Summer, fare the well.

THE RECOUNT

Hultman and Sandberg Both Lose Votes.

But Nevertheless are Nominated.

The Changes for Each Candidate by Wards.

The recount of the votes cast for Republican candidates for Representatives at the caucuses Sept. 26, has been held. The ultimate result as announced by the election officers was not changed. The desire, however, of Mr. Freeman to see the ballots has been gratified. He knows how many bullets were thrown and how many each candidate received.

The result of the recount shows that the work of the election officers was well done. While seven contested ballots were thrown out the recount has proved that the enrollment of City Clerk Keith as complied by the returns of the election officers of the caucuses last year was correct.

Another thing that has been demonstrated is that there should be some way of preventing a defeated candidate compelling a recount to satisfy his curiosity to see how the voters marked their ballots.

The recount began at 6.30 last evening and it was nearly 10.30 before it was completed. Watching the recount inside the rail were Mr. Freeman who petitioned for the recount, Mr. Hultman one of the nominees, Theo. Hermanson who represented Mr. Sandberg and A. G. Dolliver.

Some slight changes were found but the result was not changed. By the recount Hultman lost 2, Baxter lost 2, and Sandberg lost 1. The other candidates remained the same.

In Ward One Hultman lost 3, Sandberg 4, Freeman 1, Nicol 1 and Baxter 1. These were occasioned by the five contested ballots being thrown out.

In Ward Two Hultman lost 1. This was also occasioned by a contested ballot.

In Ward Three Hultman lost 1. This was the only change.

In Ward Four, Hultman gained 1, Sandberg gained 2, Freeman gained 1, Nicol gained 2 and Baxter lost 1.

In Ward Five, Hultman gained 1, Sandberg gained 1, and Nicol lost 1.

In Ward Six there were no changes.

The total vote of each candidate by the recount and the caucus returns follows:

	Recount.	Caucus
Hultman,	635	637
Sandberg,	615	616
Freeman,	604	604
Micol,	600	600
Hall,	391	391
Baxter,	210	212

Metropolitan Parkway Will Go Under the Railroad.

John Cashman has the contract for the bridge under the Granite Branch railroad between Miller street and Willard street, at the point, where the Furnace Brook Metropolitan parkway passes underneath.

It is already a scene of activity as a temporary track has been built for the railroad, and work has commenced on excavating at the old location.

Little by little the parkway is materializing and it should be opened for travel next year.

VETERAN FIREMAN.

Death of William B. Barry Formerly of the Granite Engine.

William B. Barry, a well known resident of West Quincy, died this morning at his home on Crescent street, after an illness of long duration.

During his early life he was prominently identified with the volenteer fire department of the town. He served as foreman of the old Granite, holding that office when she won the silver pip at the playout in the Square years ago. He also served on the Board of Engineers with John W. Hall.

His business was that of a granite cutter at which he worked for many years. He was at one time a member of the Cooperative Granite Co.

He leaves a widow who was Miss Annie T. Kelley, a valued teacher at the Coddington school.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence, 58 Crescent street on Monday morning at 8.30, to be followed by a requiem mass at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church.

Bethany Brotherhood will meet in Bethany chapel next Tuesday, being the first meeting of the season. A large attendance is urged by President Sidelinger. Refreshments will be served.

TARIFF REVISION

Its Advocates In Massachusetts Win a Victory

FORCED INTO PLATFORM

Feeling That Other States Will Take Similar Action--Guild and Draper Nominated to Head State Ticket, While Malone is Named For Attorney Generalship--Lodge Defends State's Representatives at Washington

Boston, Oct. 7.—With only one voice raised in opposition, the Republicans of Massachusetts, assembled in a state convention, declared for a revision of the tariff.

This is believed to be the first declaration by a Republican convention in favor of a revision of the tariff and is viewed by the reformers as a pronounced victory. While the local leaders state the fight was made in Iowa a few years ago under Governor Cummins and the fight was carried into the convention of that state, no definite declaration was incorporated into the platform. The revisionists here are hailing the tariff plank as the indication of a breaking away from the attitude of the high protectionists and express the belief that other states will follow the lead of Massachusetts. The reform element here would have had a more radical declaration, but they profess to be satisfied with the progress made.

CURTIS GUILD, JR.

Contrary to expectations, the radical wing of the party, under the leadership of Eugene N. Foss of Boston, did not offer a substitute for the plank relating to the tariff, although in a speech to the convention Foss declared that the revision of the tariff demanded in the state platform was not sufficiently wide in its scope. Foss said, however, that he and his followers were encouraged at the concessions made to them and that next year they would expect to have the convention accept their proposition in its entirety.

One of the surprises of the day came when William F. Draper of Hopedale, former ambassador to Italy and one of the leading members of the Home Market club, opposed in a vigorous speech the adoption of the tariff revision plank. Mr. Draper said he would not offer any substitute plank for the reason that he knew there was no chance of his or any other substitute being accepted. He contended that tariff revision would be followed by financial and commercial depression and, speaking as a manufacturer, he could see no reason why there should be a revision.

The platform presented by the committee on resolutions was adopted without amendment and contained, in brief, an endorsement of the administration of President Roosevelt, especial mention being made of his part in bringing about peace between Russia and Japan, and of his enforcement of the laws preventing great corporations from oppressing the people by unjust discrimination or by the destruction of lawful competition; a recommendation for the enactment by congress of a tariff provision which shall protect American markets against discrimination and secure to the United States the treatment accorded to the most favored nation in all foreign markets; a recommendation for the increase of the navy and the upbuilding of the American merchant marine, and an endorsement of the administration of former Governor Bates.

Aside from the adoption of a platform containing a tariff revision plank, the feature of the convention was the contest for the nomination for the attorney generalship. Three ballots were necessary for a choice, Dana Malone of Greenfield winning on the final vote, polling 772 votes, his nearest competitor, Edgar R. Champlin of Cambridge, receiving 366 votes. Asa P. French of Randolph was third with 210 votes, and George R. Sanderson of Ayer fourth with 129.

The only other contest, that for the nomination for lieutenant governor, was decided on the first ballot. Eben S. Draper of Hopedale defeating Augustus H. Goetting of Springfield and Frederick S. Hall of Taunton by a substantial plurality.

Lieutenant Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., of Boston was nominated for governor by acclamation, and there were no contests for the nominations for secretary of state, state treasurer and auditor, William M. Olin, Arthur B. Chapin and Henry E. Turner, the respective incumbents, being renominated by acclamation.

One of the surprises of the convention was the action of the delegates representing the committee of 100 on reciprocal trade. This committee represented the radical wing of the party and it was expected that its representatives at the convention would wage a vigorous contest over the plank relating to the tariff. All chances for a contest were dispelled, however, when Henry B. Blackwell of Boston, speaking in behalf of the committee of 100, announced that the committee was perfectly satisfied with the tariff plank.

EBEN S. DRAPER.

The convention received still another surprise when Congressman Lawrence of North Adams, chairman of the resolution committee, arose to present Dana Malone's name for the attorney generalship nomination. Up to the time Lawrence arose no one in the hall, with the exception of the manager of Malone's campaign, knew who would present his name to the convention.

A feature of the day's proceedings was the address of Senator Lodge, who took the platform to reply to Eugene N. Foss, who had advocated the free admission of coal, hides and the raw materials. In the course of his remarks Foss severely scored the Massachusetts senators and representatives in congress, charging that they were not loyal to the interests of Massachusetts. Mr. Lodge, in a parliamentary manner, censured Foss for his strictures on the Massachusetts representation at the capital. Lodge also said that the time for tariff revision was the time when the Republican party was in power. He argued that "free raw materials" was but another term for "free trade," and that the admission of free raw materials would sound the death knell of reciprocity as well as of protection.

Says Lodge Will Cause Loss of Votes

Boston, Oct. 7.—Eugene N. Foss last night issued a statement to the press in which he severely criticized the speech of Senator Lodge at the Republican state convention, characterizing the speech as a direct insult to a majority of Republican voters in the state, and in which he declared that the speech of Lodge would cost Guild thousands of votes. "After the insulting treatment the reciprocity Republicans received at the hands of the senior senator, " said Foss, "I don't propose to be held responsible for the result in Massachusetts in November."

Hughes Gets Mayoralty Nomination

New York, Oct. 7.—Charles E. Hughes, principal counsel for the committee of the legislature to investigate life insurance affairs, was last night unanimously nominated as the candidate for mayor of New York city by the Republican city convention. The other nominations were: Richard Young for comptroller and James L. Wells for president of the board of aldermen.

Urgency Motions Rejected

Vienna, Oct. 7.—The lower house of the reichsrath rejected several urgency motions in favor of universal suffrage after a speech by the premier, who argued that the empire was not prepared for it. An imperial rescript was read proroguing the house and the sitting closed in an uproar. The Socialists are angry at the rejection of the urgency motions.

Greene and Gaynor Coming

Montreal, Oct. 7.—The last legal step in the Greene-Gaynor case, so far as the courts of Canada are concerned, has been taken, and two United States marshals started this morning with the two prisoners for Savannah, Ga., where they will be placed on trial for alleged embezzlement and conspiracy to defraud the United States government.

For Newberry to Decide

Washington, Oct. 7.—Action on the requests coming from different states for the assignments of naval vessels to the use of naval militia has been deferred until Mr. Newberry, who is to succeed Mr. Darling as assistant secretary of the navy, comes to the department. The matter will be referred to him for consideration.

An Unhappy Mother's Deed

Pittsburg, Oct. 7.—Fearing she would be sent back by her husband to Austria and not wanting to die and leave her 6-months-old baby behind, Mrs. Catholene Leysick last night killed the baby by cutting its throat and then committed suicide by cutitng her own throat.

A GREAT TIMBER BELT.

The World's Greatest Forest Is to Be Found In Siberia.

Siberia from the plain of the Obi river on the west to the valley of the Ladighirka on the east is one great timber belt, averaging more than 1,000 miles in breadth from north to south, being fully 1,700 miles wide in the Yenisei district, and having a length from east to west of about 3,000 miles. Unlike equatorial forests, the trees of the Siberian tiagas are mainly conifers, comprising pines of several varieties, firs and larches. In the Yenisei, Lena and Olenek regions there are thousands of square miles where no human being has ever been. The long stemmed conifers rise to a height of 150 feet and stand so closely together that walking among them is difficult.

The dense, lofty tops exclude the pale arctic sunshine, and the straight, pale trunks, all looking exactly alike, so bewilder the eye in the obscurity that all sense of direction is lost. Even the most experienced trappers of sable dare not venture into the dense tiagas without taking the precaution of "blazing" the trees constantly with hatchets as they walk forward. If lost there the hunter rarely finds his way out, but perishes miserably from starvation and cold.

The natives avoid the tiagas and have a name for them which signifies "places where the mind is lost."

CHEERFULNESS.

It Is a Tonic That Does More Good Than Most Medicines.

There is a great restorative force in cheerfulness. It is a sovereign remedy. The physician who can inspire expectancy of something better to come, who can give you confidence in your power to overcome disease and can make you feel that it is a shame for a man made to do a great work in the world to be ailing, has very little use for drugs.

Sick people do not realize how much their faith and confidence in the physician have to do with their cure. If he is cheerful, happy, hopeful, they feel buoyed up, sustained by his very presence. They feel the thrill of his splendid vitality and gather strength from his courage. They catch the contagion of his cheerfulness and reflect his moods and condition.

Invalids who have dragged along in misery for years have been suddenly, as if by magic, lifted out of their bondage by the cheer and encouragement which have come from some unexpected good fortune. This shows us how dependent the body is upon the mind, how it sympathizes with it and takes on its colorings, which are represented in the different functions.—O. S. Marden in Success Magazine.

COLUMNS OF ST. MARK.

They Were Taken From the Holy Land to Venice In 1120.

Two memorable granite columns, known as the columns of St. Mark, brought from the Holy Land in 1120 and standing in front of the quay and landing steps of the Piazzeta, have been associated with the fortunes of Venice for many years.

At first they lay prostrate for a long time, while no one would undertake to raise them. But a reward offered by the doge at length induced one Nicolo Barratiero (Nick the Blackleg) to offer his services. He succeeded and claimed as his reward the privilege of carrying on between the columns games of chance, elsewhere prohibited by law. To neutralize this as much as possible it was enacted that all public executions should take place on the same spot.

One column is surmounted by the Lion of St. Mark. The other carries a fine figure of St. Theodore, the patron saint of the city, who stands upon a crocodile and with sword and buckler gives token that the motto of Venice is "Defense, Not Defiance."—London Telegraph.

A Stitch of Pain.

A stitch is a sharp, spasmodic pain in the muscles of the side like the piercing of a needle and is very apt to be produced if exercise is taken immediately after a hearty meal. This arises because the nervous energy necessary for the proper working of the muscles in exercise is engaged in another direction—namely, in assisting the digestion of the food. Anything that interferes with the proper supply of nervous energy required for exercise, whether it be debility or the process of digestion or exhaustion arising from overexertion, is apt to cause this spasmodic pain.

A Careful Wife and Mother.

The following matter of fact advertisement recently appeared in an English publication:

Wanted.—A really plain but experienced and efficient governess for three girls, eldest sixteen. Music, French and German required. Brilliancy of conversation, fascination of manners and symmetry of form objected to, as the father is much at home and there are grownup sons. Address MATER, etc.

Its Advantage.

"What is the advantage of knowing a foreign language, anyway?" demanded the unsophisticated woman.

"Why, it enables you to say unkind things about a great many people in their presence," answered the wise one.

The Man With the Hoe.

"What is the man with the hoe doing in the graveyard?"

"Nothing much. You see, his last friend died a few days ago, so he's trying to scrape up an acquaintance."—Cornell Widow.

JOHN MITCHELL LEADS BY LOVE

Personality of the Man Who May Soon Head a Great Coal Strike.

President of United Mine Workers Regarded as a Hero by His People --- Love the Only Spell He Casts Over Them.

Has No Recreations Except Work---Sleeps Little, Thinks Much. Honest, Brave, Calm and Sound as a Dollar. At Home Alike With Rich and Poor.

"HOW deep and still he is!" said President Roosevelt after a conference with John Mitchell during the momentous coal strike of 1902. Not a bad characterization, in a few words, of the man who is liable in a few months to lead a still greater and more momentous strike in the same region. Looking to this possible struggle, Mitchell has been campaigning through the anthracite fields to build up the United Mine Workers, of which he is president. He has been met with ovations at every point of his journey, the miners taking a holiday to greet him. So well has he succeeded that he now predicts there will be over 100,000 members in the order in the anthracite fields alone, and this will be practically the entire mining force of the region, as it takes two boys to count one full member. In addition to this there are over 300,000 soft coal miners under President Mitchell, making well on toward a half million men in all, the largest labor army under one head in the world.

Will Present New Demands.

The agreement laid down by the strike commission appointed by President Roosevelt in 1902, under which the operators and men have been working since that time, expires on April 1, 1906. At that time the miners will present new demands. The convention to formulate these demands meets in December. It is already practically settled that the two chief things to be asked for by the men will be recognition of their union and the eight hour day. The operators are preparing to resist. It is even predicted that the soft coal mine owners will join those of the anthracite fields and thus will precipitate a strike extending over the entire territory covered by the United Mine Workers. If so it will be the most gigantic labor struggle in history. On one side the mine owners will mass with the coal carrying railroads, all under the leadership of "Divine Right" Baer. On the other will be a half million miners under the capable generalship of John Mitchell. That the operators are preparing for such a battle is shown by at least two things—first, they are quietly getting together and coming to an understanding throughout the country; second, they are storing up coal at every possible point. Nor are the men idle. In the soft or bituminous fields, extending over a large number of states in the central and far west, they are already perfectly organized, with a fund of millions in their treasury. In the anthracite region the organization is being brought up to a point of perfection such as it has never known before.

President Mitchell himself says he does not want a strike, and he refuses to predict that one will occur. His speeches have been conciliatory, especially the later ones. The coal operators refuse to talk. But the preparations for the contest go on.

One of the points of attack by the mine owners is on what is known as "the certificate law." This provides that before a man can secure a certificate to mine in the anthracite fields he must have had at least two years' experience as a helper in those fields. This shuts out soft coal miners from the whole hard coal region and makes it impossible for the operators to fill their mines except it be with men controlled by the union. A test case to determine the constitutionality of the act was recently brought, and hearings were had in New York.

Gigantic Contest Likely.

A lockout by the combined coal operators of the country has been more than hinted at of late. The world is always full of rumors and more so than ever since metropolitan newspapers have to fill space and play up sensations. But while the lockout scareheads may be discredited the fact still remains that there is certain to be a contest, and a gigantic one at that. And it goes without saying that John Mitchell will be in the middle of this contest.

The hold this man has on his people approaches the hero worship of the simple, primitive folk in the olden days. At the time of McKinley's assassination, when the news had been flashed over the country that the president had been shot, very many of the miners believed it was Mitchell that had been striken down, and threatened trouble until finally convinced of their mistake.

One Pole, or it may have been a Slav or Italian, in the mining region once tried to qualify for citizenship. "Who is the president of the United States?" he was asked. "John Mitchell," was the reply. Thousands of the men and boys in the anthracite fields who know little other English, yet know enough to say, "Me Johnny Mitchell man."

JOHN MITCHELL, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED MINE WORKERS.

Worked Night and Day For Others.

Through all the mining districts hang large lithographs of the president of the mine workers. With many he comes well nigh being their saint. His priest-like garb and face may add to this impression. Men have marveled at the manner in which he unifies and controls the immense bodies of foreigners who make up the mining populations. They need marvel no more. There is only one spell John Mitchell casts over his people, and it is a very old and simple one. It is love. Other would be leaders can learn a great lesson from this quiet and unpretentious labor president. He has inspired confidence in those who follow him. He has inspired that confidence because he has been unselfish. He has lived in the simple style that he did when a miner himself. He has refused increase of salary. He has worked night and day for others. He has never indulged in harsh or uncharitable criticism of even his foes, however unjust they have been in their treatment of him. He has never put on airs. He has not been self conscious. He never goes to his ends by roundabout ways. He is cautious in his statements, never gives any handle to his enemies by what he says. Above all he has confidence in the miners and enjoys their confidence in return. He believes in them; hence they believe in him. He has not sought to inflame them by demagogic appeals, he has kept clear from politics, he has expressed faith in human nature, has held to his original belief that labor and capital are not enemies, but friends, and has expressed again and again his convictions that a fair understanding could be reached if employers and employees could only be brought together to look into each other's eyes. It has been these things which have given John Mitchell the love of his friends and the respect of his foes. His honesty, simplicity and faith in human nature have been his strongest weapons. Men have wondered at his generalship, for of the so called strategy represented by crooked tactics he knows nothing. The shortsighted have not realized that this thing which seemed a weakness was Mitchell's chief strength.

Speaker of Acknowledged Ability.

John Mitchell is only thirty-six years of age. He first became president of the United Mine Workers of America at twenty-eight. This achievement was reached without any of the helps usually believed to be necessary to young men to get on in the world. His father was a poor miner before him. John Mitchell's mother died when he was two years old, and his father went four years later. A stepmother raised the boy, who ran away from home at eight. What little schooling he had was received prior to that time. Today he is considered a well educated man, a writer of books, magazine and newspaper articles and a speaker of acknowledged ability. But what he has learned has been by night study and by reading the book of human life. Early he went into the mines. Perhaps it was in his blood. He began as door tender. He decided to see the world. He went from state to state, picking up jobs in the mines to pay his way. At one time he drove mules in a mine in Colorado; then he went to Mexico. Eventually he drifted back to his home at Spring Valley, Ill., where he still lives.

At an early age he went into a labor organization, the old veteran body known as the Knights of Labor. After a time he became secretary of a local, then of a district organization. Later he was on a legislative committee to secure the passage of a law demanded by the workingmen. He succeeded, and his success started him in his career. About this time he married, his wife having the good Hibernian name of Catharine O'Rourke. Mitchell is Irish himself, though his speech scarcely betrays the fact. More than ever he buckled down to study. When a man works ten or twelve hours in a mine he has not much heart in him to improve his mind, but John Mitchell had too much will power to be deterred by a little obstacle such as this.

National Organizer.

As a result of his legislative venture he was made a member of the state executive board of the Knights of Labor and shortly afterward a national organizer. The succeeding year, in 1898, he was elected vice president of the United Mine Workers. In a short time the president, M. D. Ratchford, resigned to accept another place, and Mitchell succeeded to the presidency, where he has since remained. When he became president the mine workers only had about 43,000 members all told. By his organizing ability and by the national growth of the order it now has over ten times that number. The organization of the anthracite field has practically taken place entirely under his supervision.

In appearance Mr. Mitchell is of medium size, being about five feet eight inches in height and weighing perhaps 150 pounds. He always dresses in black, wearing uniformly a Prince Albert coat, straight narrow band of a standing collar and black tie. A soft black hat invariably covers his head. He smokes cheap cigars and has one in his mouth incessantly. He is clean shaven, with sharp features and a high but receding forehead. His hair is black and not worn as that of other men, but is cut off square across the back. The most remarkable feature of the man is his eye. This is large and luminous and, though gray in color, is so intense that it gives the impression at times of being black.

Has No Recreations Except Work.

John Mitchell has remarkable self control and the power of concentration in an unusual degree. He never seems possessed of nerves. He is usually reserved, but can unbend on occasion. He is a good story teller. He has no recreations except work. He is democratic and is called John by all who know him at all well. He is at home alike with presidents, millionaires or miners—perhaps most with the miners. He sleeps little and thinks much. Late at night, after others have left him, he plans his campaign for the next day. Last summer a bank failure at Spring Valley took his deposit of $2,000, said to be all he had in the world.

He has won two strikes for the anthracite miners, one in 1900, the other in 1902. It was in the latter that President Roosevelt intervened. At this time John Mitchell was hailed as the man of the hour and was greeted as the foremost labor leader of the world. He wrote a book on that strike and afterward took a trip through Europe and sent back labor letters for the American press. As a result of that strike Mitchell day was established in October of each year and was made a holiday throughout the mining region.

Here is an estimate of John Mitchell, not from one of his own men, but from a representative of the coal barons themselves:

"He is honest, fearless, brave, calm, conservative and sound as a dollar."

When a man's friends appoint a holiday in his honor and his natural enemies speak of him in that manner there must be something to him.

Robert Hanners, a baker, walked into the county hospital at Chicago the other evening and told the physician in charge that he had swallowed a lead pencil. His case was diagnosed as appendicitis. The pencil, five inches in length and sharpened at one end, was found imbedded in the appendix. Hanners will recover.

The public schools of the city reopened Sept. 11, but everybody cannot attend. Some must work to support themselves and perhaps others,—either mother, brothers and sisters; or wife and children. Many since leaving school realize that a better education would have made it easier for them to earn a larger salary, and at the same time obtain more enjoyment from life.

The Daily Ledger proposes to help these ambitious people. It is not too late to get a new start. Let your friends know that you want to fit yourself for special work and

GET INTO THE CONTEST EARLY.

The value of an education, says Maxwell's Talisman, is appreciated not only by the man who in his youth was given its high privileges, but by the man who by force of circumstances was denied early educational advantages. Men of experience in any line of business will advise their young friends to grasp every opportunity for educational training offered in early life. The educated man well knows what his early training has done for him, and the uneducated knows that men who were denied the privilege of an early education are frequently in the course of life's experiences forced to face serious embarrassments and obstacles.

Wilmott said that

"EDUCATION IS THE APPRENTICESHIP OF LIFE."

Franklin said: "If a man empties his purse into his head no man can take it away from him. An investment in knowledge always pays the best interest."

Ruskin said that "education, briefly, is leading the human mind and soul to what is right and best and to make what is best out of them, and these two objects are always obtainable together and by the same means. The training which makes men happiest in themselves also makes them most serviceable to others."

Channing said: "He is to be educated, not because he is to make shoes, nails or pins, but because he is a man."

EDUCATION IS NEVER FINISHED, and no one knows this better than the really educated and cultured man. One may be the graduate of the highest educational institution in the land, but still he finds that "there is more to learn." The storehouse of knowledge is never depleted, and there is none so rich or so poor that he may not draw something therefrom. Those who were denied the advantages of an early education may in the course of later life, by devoting only a few hours every week to study at home, acquire an education along special or general lines. Books are now within the reach of all, and every home, however humble, may have a library. The "home study" will make home life more attractive to both young and old. If we make "live to learn" our life motto, we shall always find life worth living."

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Some one has sent us a communication about the sidewalks on Beale street, —wasting time and paper,—but forget he had a name. We do not publish anonymous communications, let the writer bear this in mind.

When the new Hancock street bridge at Atlantic is completed it will become the most marked improvement of the city this year. The wider bridge and wider street with easier approaches have long been needed. The old bridge gave Quincy a black eye.

Certainly the Old Colony street railway is doing business enough not only to pay good dividends but to give good service, but there is a limit to the amount of stock which should be issued, and it may be that the company is over capitalized.

The Quincy young men of today are to be congratulated that they have an inviting place where the latch-string is always out, where they may pass an evening pleasantly and with profit. As now equipped, the Y. M. C. A. has numerous attractions of which the young men should avail themselves.

The Daily Ledger is pleased to give of its space freely for reports of the many charitable organizations of the city, but such reports lose their news value when delayed. They should be forwarded for publication the day following the meetings, otherwise we shall be tempted to abridge them or cast them aside.

There is considerable complaint because the ticket office at the Quincy depot remains closed, up to within a few minutes of train time, causing some to pay on the train. We do not know if this is true of all trains, but has been noticed more particularly in the afternoon especially Saturdays when there is a rush.

It is said that the owners of the Dr. French estate are intending to close the place to the public if the city decides not to continue Maple place through to Hancock street. This will be a great inconvenience to hundreds of people who appreciate the short cut. If the city takes it we understand handsome blocks are to be erected which will be a great improvement over existing conditions.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The depositors of savings banks or similar institutions which are strictly regulated by statutes profit annually many thousand of dollars by the dividends which are declared as a rule semi-annually. In a very strict sense of the word a savings bank is a people's institution. Run as it is by a corporation composed of its depositors, the corporation chooses from its own membership a board of trustees. The investment of funds is delegated to a committee selected from the trustees, and other matters of management also devolve upon the board of trustees. There are no stockholders, as the bank issues no stock. It is incorporated only with the distinct object, as stated in the law, of receiving the surplus funds or savings of individuals and investing these to the pecuniary advantage of depositors. No depositors can have more than $1,000 in deposits in his own name at any one time. This provision makes a savings bank a people's institution, preventing it from becoming the depository for the accumulated possessions of the wealthy. The presence of such an institution in a community naturally stimulates a person, possessing even the slightest element of thrift in his or her make-up, to systematically build up an account.—Waltham Free Press.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

Public Installation of South Shore Commandery.

Eminent Sir Arthur W. Stetson, installed last evening as commander of South Shore commandery of Knights Templar, has the honor of being the only Quincy man now living who ever occupied this office. The installation was held at the Masonic building at East Weymouth and was public, being Pierce formerly of Quincy, Rt. Em. Grand Treasurer Herbert F. Morse, Em. Sir Fletcher K. Tirrell, Em. Sir Henry A. Yenetchi, and Em. Sir Joel C. Bolan.

Music added much to the ceremony, and included popular selections by White's orchestra, and appropriate numbers by the Albion Quartette.

Em. Com. Stetson was presented a hand commander's sword, for which he returned thanks.

The installing officer made kindly reference to the continued interest of F. A. Bicknell, a past Eminent Grand Commander; also to the thirty years of service of Treasurer Bates and to the combination of Abel and Cain in the Recorder Cain. The installing officer was thanked for the interest he added to the ceremony and responded.

After the ceremony an adjournment was made to the banquet hall, where dancing was enjoyed until midnight to White's inspiring music.

Punch was served during the evening.

Contributions Acknowledged.

All Hospital Week contributions of $1.00 or more will be acknowledged through the press with the name and amount of each contributor, unless it is specifically requested that this be not done.

The Hospital Week Committee recognize that a contribution of 10 cents may be really a more generous gift than a contribution of $10, and no matter how small the contribution is it is most welcome, but the committee feel that it is not practical to thus acknowledge gifts of less than $1.00, and, as will be seen by referring to the article in "Our Hospital" entitled "At Least One Dollar," there is a special reason for acknowledging gifts of $1.00 or more.

A very special effort is being put forth this year in every way to pay the running expenses and cut in two the debt.

Let everyone give as generously as possible.

PEACE PARLEY ECHOES

President's Experiences In Dealing With the Envoys.

HOW OBSTACLES WERE OVERCOME

Far Easier Time With the Japanese. Russians Said to Have Been Suspicious and Overbearing—Admiration of Nipponites For Mr. Roosevelt When They Understood Him.

"In dealing with the peace commissioners President Roosevelt had far the easier time with the Japanese plenipotentiaries," said one of the men who had heard from the chief executive the anecdotes hereinafter related concerning the real "inside of some of the conferences which were held at Sagamore Hill," says the New York Tribune. "They were willing to take his word for any statement of facts and seemed anxious from the beginning to do everything to please him. The same could hardly be said of the Russians; they were suspicious, overbearing and, whenever they were at a loss for an argument or a reason for their refusal to come to terms, would invariably fall back on the grandeur of their history. 'Russia can never pay indemnity; she is too great. Russia can never cede territory; her history is too sublime.'

"After the president had listened to these set speeches for some time, he one day asked the Russian envoys if Russia had not ceded territory after the Crimean war.

"'Ah, yes, but that was a different case,' they exclaimed.

"'Quite true,' agreed the president; 'this is another war; but, if you refuse to cede Sakhalin, how are you going to defend it? The Japanese now hold the island, do they not?'

"'Yes,' admitted the plenipotentiaries.

"'And you have no navy in Asiatic waters or in any other waters that is likely to retake it within a generation?'

"'Alas, quite true!' again admitted the Russian envoys.

"'Then how are you going to avoid ceding the island?' asked the president.

"To this clincher they had no reply except again to fall back on Russia's past.

"The president intimated rather dryly that her position was not half as glorious just then as it had been at various other times in her history and made a few other remarks which, I think, opened the eyes of the envoys.

"In his dealings with the Japanese plenipotentiaries he soon found that he was considerably handicapped by their ignorance of our commonest idioms and figures of speech. When he illustrated a point with a figure he usually had to spend a quarter of an hour diagraming the thing. Then, when they finally understood, they held up their hands in admiration and awe.

"'The president is the wisest of men. He speaks in parables. He is a seer,' they exclaimed.

"For instance one day, he said, 'Keep the kernel and throw away the shell,' when he was trying to make the Japanese understand how much better it would be to accept a settlement that was to their immediate advantage than to try to force a larger indemnity that they perhaps could not collect after it had been extorted—on paper.

"'What does that mean?' they asked. 'Where is the nut? We do not see any.'

"When they finally saw the application of the president's remark they were immensely pleased and were all the more impressed with his prophet-like speech.

"During another conversation that he had with Baron Komura and Minister Takahira over the same subject the president said: 'When I lived out west and had occasion to travel across the plains we sometimes found a bull on the track. Although the right of way was ours and, if we wanted, we could knock that bull off the rails, we did not do so unless we had to. We would blow the whistle, let off steam, exhaust the air brakes, even get out of the train and throw stones at that bull, before we'd butt into him. And our solicitude was not because we loved that bull either. Now, in this case Japan reminds me of the train, which has the right of way, and Russia is the bull on the track.'

"Baron Komura and Minister Takahira were completely mystified.

"'How do we resemble a locomotive and a train of cars?' they exclaimed in duet. 'And how does Russia impersonate a bull? Ah, it is because the Russians bellow so very loud that they are like the bull upon the track!'

"The president spent some ten minutes elucidating.

"'We are like the locomotive and the train because we represent progress, is it not so?' they then asked.

"'No, no, no!' cried the president.

"'But we do represent progress,' cried Baron Komura in an injured tone of voice. 'And the Russians do bellow like the bull upon the track.'

"'Of course you are progressive,' asserted the president. 'I did not wish to hint that you are not. What I wanted to make plain was the probability that if you press your demands for a great cash indemnity it will cost you more than you would like to pay. Just so with the train and the bull. The train can undoubtedly knock the bull off the track, but in doing so stands a very good chance of sustaining some very serious damage. That's why we always tried to get the bull to move without butting him. See? I did not mean that Russia's character was at all like a bull or that yours resembled in the least a locomotive and a train of cars. It was just a figure I used to illustrate the point.'

"'Ah, another parable!' exclaimed the Japanese envoys."

CHILDREN'S DISEASES.

Try to Avoid Them by Proper Sanitary Precautions.

It was formerly supposed that every baby had to have measles, mumps, scarlet fever, chicken pox, whooping cough, frequent colds and a periodical attack of cholera morbus or summer diarrhea. It is now believed that many children can be kept wholly from these disorders, and with the advance of sanitation so that one can control the infection from neighboring children it will be possible to eradicate all infectious diseases of child life.

It is a distinct danger to all children to pass through these disorders, and, while many of them escape practically harmless, many others suffer through their entire lives from the ill after effects of measles, scarlet fever and other contagious disorders.

Drs. Preisich and Schultz have investigated the subject of the infectious nature of the nails and fingers of infants at crawling age, says Healthy Homes. The outcome of this investigation was that out of thirty-six children examined fourteen contained the tubercle bacillus under their nails.

Infection of such origin might be avoided by putting a clean sheet upon the floor for the child to play upon. Surely the war against tuberculosis should begin in the homes, where the disease is bred in the child. Adenoids and hypertrophied tonsils have little power of resistance and are the open doors of commerce for the tubercle bacilli.

THE NEW WOMAN.

She Is Both Disciple and Apostle of the Gospel of Good Health.

The new woman is simply the one who by experience, education and common sense is qualified to make the largest and best use of her capabilities. She is more delightfully feminine than ever—the attractions of her womanhood more charming. But she is both disciple and apostle of the gospel of health. She is gradually breaking down the terrible conventionality that has bound woman to styles of dress, methods of life and inane activity of mind and body which heretofore fettered her fullest development. Her marvelous individuality seeks more freedom of growth and expression. Nature makes no two individuals alike, either animate or inanimate, and the new woman would follow this universal law to a reasonable extent rather than submit to repression of her individuality down to the dead level of uniformity. Yet this individuality is attained with a tact, a femininity, an intuitive appreciation of public sentiment which is as delicious as it is effective.—Good Housekeeping.

LAUNDRY LINES.

Remove stains before sending garments to the laundry.

A faded cotton dress can be made white by boiling in cream of tartar water.

Woolen clothes should be washed in very hot suds and not rinsed. Lukewarm water shrinks them.

Unpainted wire netting not only makes a good rest for flatirons when several thicknesses are used, but is most effectual to clean them on.

Never rinse white lace in blue water under the impression that this will improve the color. Real lace should be finally rinsed in skim milk, which will give it the soft, creamy tint so much admired.

Bad Tempered Voices.

Kind hearts are more plentiful than persistently kind and gentle voices, and yet love loses much of its power when the voice is sharp and hard. Try, therefore, most earnestly to acquire the right tone in speaking and guard yourself carefully from falling into careless and bad habits of voice. Often a sharp voice shows far more ill will than the heart feels, but people do not know that the speaker's "bark is worse than her bite," and they believe her to be ill tempered and disagreeable. So watch the tone in which you speak, and take care that it is gentle and sweet. A kind voice is like music in the home.

Mending Table Linen.

Table linen is best mended with embroidery cotton of a number to correspond with the quality of the cloth. Under the ragged edges of the tear baste a piece of stiff paper and make a network of fine stitches back and forth over its edges, carrying the stitches about an inch beyond the tear. Thin places and breaks in linen may be run with flax or embroidery floss and the towels should be mended in the same way.

Morning Baths.

Every child in health ought to be made every morning of his life upon rising and while the body still retains all the warmth of the bed to sponge the whole body, and if he is too young to do this for himself it must be done for him. Sea salt is a most strengthening and healthy addition to the bath and may be used with great advantage. If the child is robust cold water may be used throughout the year; if not, the water must be tepid.

Airing Baby's Clothes.

It is a most important thing that all baby's clothes should be well aired the day before he wears them, but they should not be put on warm from the fire. It is well, where it can be done, to let him have clean clothes every day, but if this cannot be afforded his clothes should be well aired every night, so as to be free from perspiration and ready to put on again in the morning, and be washed as frequently as possible.

TAKE A RECESS.

No Nominations by Democrats This Morning.

The Democrats met in convention this morning to nominate state officers. The whole morning was devoted to the discussion and adoption of a platform.

At 1.30 the convention adjourned for dinner. Nominations will be made at the afternoon session.

CITY BREVITIES.

Only one day to Hospital Week.

Unusually good catches of smelt are being made every day.

John J. O'Hara has opened a law office in the Hancock building.

Alexander Falconer is building two houses on Independence avenue.

The family of John T. Cavanagh have removed to Boston for the winter.

Timothy Lyons of Miller street, was taken to the Quincy Hospital yesterday.

The weather this week has been exceptionally fine and the Brockton fair people have as usual been fortunate.

The Unity club of Quincy Point hold an "opening night" at the club rooms on Washington street tonight. Supper will be served at nine o'clock.

W. A. Coolidge of Quincy avenue, while at work on a staging painting, at Dorchester yesterday, lost his balance and fell 35 feet to the ground. He was removed to the hospital in a serious condition.

One of the handsomest drags to go over the road to Brockton on Thursday was from Johnson & Brown's stables, which stopped at Litchfield's sporting house at South Quincy and took on the Happy Eight of the S. Q. S. C., who were dressed alike for the occasion with bright red caps. With red fire enough to burn all the way home they kept the drag the centre of attraction.

Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Tracey observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage at the Brunswick hotel, South Braintree, last Tuesday by entertaining relatives and old friends from Rockland, Whitman, Brockton, Abington, Weymouth, Quincy, Dorchester, Boston, Kingston, Cohasset and Gloucester. The hotel was illuminated by a large number of electric lights and the guests were royally entertained.

William S. Tracey was born in Rockland, attended the public schools there. At the age of 15 he moved with his parents to North Abington, and soon took up the trade of shoe-making. Oct. 3, 1880 he was united in marriage to Miss Anna J. Brennan of North Abington by Rev. William P. McQuaid, now pastor of St. James church, Boston. To them were born three children, two boys and a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Tracey in their management of the hotel have continually made improvement in the building, and served their patrons liberally.

Died In California.

Died at Oakland, Cal., Sept. 30th, Mrs. Mary E. Hardy, wife of Lowell J. Hardy, Esq., and sister of Miss J. M. Little, Spear street, this city. Mrs. Hardy visited here a year ago, being accompanied by her only daughter, and sister Emma. She endeared herself to all who met her, with her charming personality. An active working member of the Methodist Episcopal church of Oakland, she was secretary of the church conference for the past eleven years. She leaves a husband, daughter and two sons. Miss Little has the deep sympathy of her many friends, having, inside the past three years, lost by death, a mother, brother and sister.

☞The Mutual Life Insurance company comes up for its share of the tar, as well as the others. It doesn't seem to make any difference whether it is Hyde or McCall or McCurdy, the system seems to be about the same—to milk the policyholders for all that is possible for the benefit of friends and family.—Haverhill Gazette.

—Every new disclosure in the life insurance investigation in New York emphasizes the need of strict national supervision of the insurance business. Considering how closely the savings banks are guarded, it is remarkable that the great life insurance companies have been allowed such freedom for so long.—Somerville Journal.

AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The Brackett homestead on Presidents hill will be formally opened to members of the Quincy Women's club on Tuesday afternoon from three until five, and will be in the nature of a house warming and informal reception. There will be brief addresses, music, refreshments and opportunity to inspect the house. Admission will be by membership cards. A large attendance of members is anticipated as it opens the club season and inaugurates the entering into the larger, broader club life for many Quincy women.

Committees arranged for by the Brockton Woman's club are: reception, hospitality, educational, art and travel, the home, dramatic, and social service. Each committee has charge of one meeting and already a fine list of talent is booked for the season.

The Thursday Morning Fortnightly club of Dorchester met in the club house on Thursday afternoon. A biography of Elizabeth Barrett Browning, readings from her works and music made up an entertaining program which was followed by a reception to the new officers.

It would seem as though the Quincy Women's club had only to express a wish, and it was immediately granted. Through Mr. Chandler W. Smith a most liberal offer of a piano for the club house was made, the price being put very low for cash, but the officers did not deem it wise to take money from the treasury for this purpose, and left the matter to be further considered In the meantime Mrs. George W. Morton, a member of the club and prominent in club work in the city, has announced her intention of presenting the piano to the club. She is much interested in the new club and its success, and wished the piano to come from a woman. Mrs. Morton has been much sought after by the chairmen of the various committees, and would have been more than busy if she had accepted to serve on all. Her name has been prominently mentioned for the chairmanship of the philanthropy committee in place of Mrs. H. M. Willard, who is too busy to give the attention required,

The Watertown Woman's club has established a woman's exchange. It is hardly more than an information bureau at present but expects to become an important factor before many months.

The New England Women's club, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, president, has secured the rooms in Grundmann studio, Back Bay, formerly occupied by the College club.

Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution had a delightful experience meeting at the birthplace of President John Adams on Monday afternoon. Members told by verse, prose and letter how they earned a dollar during the summer, which they contributed toward the fund to buy an oil painting of John Adams for the house. Social tea followed. At the November meeting the officers of the State Society will be entertained.

The ladies of the Monday club of Weymouth were out in full numbers on Monday to start the season with a large opening meeting. Mrs. Heckman, president, offered some suggestions for the year's work, after the club hymn had been sung. The business having been disposed of the program was enjoyed. Miss Nellie Donovan sang two soprano solos with spirit and artistic effect, "The Coming of Spring-time" and "The Creole Love Song." Mrs. May Alden Ward, vice president of the National Federation, gave a fine address on "The Club Idea." A social hour followed.

Something new in a club house is that of the College club, on Commonwealth avenue, Boston. It is the only club house in America owned by women college graduates. A house warming was held Monday afternoon, and another reception is to be held this afternoon. Since the club was established in 1890 it has grown steadily and now has over 500 members, all college women. Mrs. Louis Agassiz, founder of Radcliffe and Mrs. Pauline Durant, founder of Wellesley college are honorary members. The club house has everything that a man's club house has excepting smoking rooms, bar, etc. On the third and fourth floors are the sleeping rooms, furnished by special colleges, and each has its own individuality. Smith College room is all in white, with brass furniture, green rugs and green hanging at the window. Wellesley has a blue-tiled fireplace and blue silk hangings; Boston University room is in cherry and white; Radcliffe chose a bright wall paper, with a frieze of crimson rambler roses and rose color prevails in their room; Vassar used rose and gray paper and hangings.

The Dickens class of the Outlook club of Lynn will continue this season with a course of twelve readings from "Bleak House," beginning on Oct. 26th.

The Norumbega Woman's club of Charlestown open its season this afternoon. A business meeting will be followed by a reading of "Tennyson's Enock Arden" arranged for the strauss music, by Miss Ruth P. Capen of Tufts college, with Miss Katherine Dwight at the piano. There will also be violin solos, the afternoon closing with a social tea.

Monday opened the season of the Dorchester Social club, when a meeting was held at Hendrie's, with the president, Mrs. John Ritchie, Jr., in charge of the program.

The State Federation has a new committee, that of civics, with Miss Emily Fisher of Norwood, as chairman with some half dozen coworkers from various towns about Boston.

On Saturday afternoon the 14th, the Heptorean club of Somerville, opens the season with a reception to the presidents and secretaries of the clubs of the State Federation. Mrs. Louise Bruce Brooks will sing and Leland Powers recite.

The Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane, with the Woman's Civic Improvement League behind her, is proving a terror to the untidy in Kalamazoo. Miss Crane, who distinguished herself last year by leading the movement for the purifying of the meat markets of state and city, has persuaded the city council of Kalamazoo to adopt the Waring system of street cleaning.

A regular meeting of the Social Science and Literary club was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. A. L. Thompson, 11 Squantum street, Atlantic. An interesting paper on Civil Service Reform was read by Mrs. Emily T. Turner.

There was a large attendance at the opening meeting of the Philergians, held in Cochato hall, the afternoon of Oct. 3d. The president, Mrs. O. W. Allen presided. After the business of the day, Mrs. Alice H. Dow read an account of an automobile trip through the White Mountains, giving a strong pen picture of the wonderful scenery and telling of interesting and amusing happenings along the way. A description of vacation experiences, partly in Braintree and in other places, was pleasantly told by Mrs. Carolyn A. Bill, making the entertainment by club members, a pleasant remembrance for the beginning of the season.

A reception was held, which gave all members an opportunity of meeting the officers of the club, followed by a social hour and refreshments, Mrs. W. A. Torrey and Mrs. George E. Williams presiding.

The membership of the Philergians has been limited to 150. The interest shown in the club, and large increase in numbers since last year, gives evidence that its popularity is pronounced and its success established.

Mr. J. H. Gutterson delivered an address on "Famous songs and what made them so," before the Federation of Women's clubs in New Hampshire last month.

The Wheaton Seminary club opens its social season at hotel Vendome, Boston, next saturday.

On Monday afternoon, the parlors of the First parish church at Milton, were thronged with members of the Milton Woman's club. It was the formal opening of the club season. Miss Elizabeth F. Frye was chairman of the afternoon, and the speaker was Mrs. Andrew J. George of Brookline, who spoke on "Some opportunities of the educated woman." The afternoon closed with a social hour, and tea during which Miss Bolles sang most delightfully several songs.

On Thursday evening at 7.30, Miss Alice Hollywood, only child of Mr. and Mrs. James Hollywood of Liberty street was united in marriage to Mr. Edgar H. Bolles of East Braintree at Union church. At the appointed hour, the guests having assembled, Mr. J. H. Gutterson presiding at the organ rendered the Lohengrin wedding march as the bridal party entered the church. Soft music was played throughout the ceremony. Miss Hollywood, the bride, on her father's arm, gowned in white satin with bridal veil and bridal roses, was a pretty bride. The groom in conventional black. Miss DeVine of Randolph was maid of honor.

Mr. Poole was the best man. Little Mildred Ashworth was a bridesmaid, and Edith Ashworth and Marion Bullock were flower girls, all charming in white with baskets of flowers.

Rev. R. H. Cochrane officiated and the wedding vows were solemnized in due form in the presence of above one hundred friends.

The church was decorated with yellow and green golden cups, golden-rod and ferns by the Flower-Circle of King's Daughters. A large B was on one side and an H on the opposite side of the altar. The bride is a member of this circle. After the ceremony a reception at the home of the bride followed. Mr. and Mrs. James Hollywood assisted in receiving, Mrs. Hollywood in grey silk, Miss Nellie Bowles in white. Congratulations were received and ices, cakes and wedding cake were enjoyed by the guests. Many gifts testified to the popularity of the young lovers.

Beautiful silver, a fine clock, a music-cabinet, lovely china, cut glass and bric-a-brac were among the treasured remembrances.

Mr. and Mrs. James Hollywood were also celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedded life together.

The happy pair left for a bridal tour. They will be away until the twenty-third of October.

EXTRA

ON FIRST BALLOT.

John F. Merrill Nominated for County Commissioner.

[Special to the Quincy Daily Ledger.

At the Norfolk County Republican convention today John F. Merrill of Quincy was unanimously nominated for County Commissioner.

Mr. Merrill was the only candidate placed in nomination, and he received 84 votes on the first ballot to 12 for his nearest rival.

The nomination was made unanimous.

FOUND NUISANCE.

And the Same Will Be Abated Immediately.

The Board of Health should be given the credit of acting promptly on complaints brought to them. It is therefore not surprising that when a complaint reached them of the disagreeable oder that came from the shaft house at Squantum that they should act promptly.

An investigation brought out the fact that fertilizer was being manufactured at the place and that the odor was something indescribable.

Friday the Board with members of the Boston sewer department visited the premises and the residents of that section can rest assured that the nuisance will be abated immediately.

Should Feel Proud.

Publication Committee,
City Hospital,
Dear Sirs:

From personal experience would say that the citizens of Quincy should feel proud of our City Hospital.

During my stay there at the time of the firemen's accident when the wards were filled to their capacity the great care and attention each patient received was very noticeable.

I cannot say too much for our Hospital.

Very Respectfully,
Edward V. Trask, Jr.
West Quincy.

Among the Very Best.

To the Editor of the Ledger:

In my pastoral work for the past ten year, I have had occasion to visit patients in most of the larger general and private hospitals of Boston and vicinity and it is my conviction that the Quincy Hospital ranks among the very best for skilful medical treatment, attractive and wholesome appointments, and patient, conscientious and intelligent nursing. One's esteem increases with the better knowlege of the inner working and the spirit of this noble institution. Every citizen ought to be proud of the Quincy City Hospital.

—A French chemist is reported to have discovered a process by which celluloid may be made incombustible. If the process proves to be what is claimed for it, the use of celluoid in various manufactures will be greatly increased, and the chemist should reap a handsome financial reward for his discovery.

KILLED BY POISON

Possible Fate of a Ten-Year-Old Chicago Girl

DONE TO CONCEAL CRIME

Coroner Says Girl Was Treated In Revolting Manner Before Death--Physician Suspected of Murder Attempts Suicide

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Dr. Oliver B. Hart, a young physician residing in the suburbs of Rogers park, is in the custody of the police, pending further investigation of the death of Irene Klokow, 10 years old, which occurred Thursday in the residence of the physician.

The girl died in a bedroom of the Hart residence in which she and the physician had been locked for several hours. It is the opinion of the authorities, based on the facts disclosed at the inquest, that the girl was maltreated and then poisoned in an attempt to conceal the crime. After finding that it was impossible for the child to recover the physician swallowed morphine and lay in an unconscious condition all of Thursday night and during the greater part of yesterday. Late in the afternoon he partially recovered and was brought to the city and locked up.

The girl was taken about a year ago from the Illinois Industrial Home for Girls by Hart and his wife, who desired a girl who could serve in a measure as a companion for Mrs. Hart, who is but 17 years of age, and at the same time do light work about the house.

Police Inspector Wheeler subjected Hart to an exhaustive examination last night in the effort to secure from him a statement of the occurrences in the house during Thursday afternoon, but the physician insisted throughout that the girl was not murdered; that he did not misuse her, and that he did not attempt to commit suicide. He declared repeatedly that the girl had taken the poison by mistake and said that his excitement was caused by the fear that he might be accused of her death. After finding that the girl was dead, he declared that he took an injection of morphine to quiet his nerves and took an overdose.

Dr. Lewke, the coroner's physician, who examined the body of the girl, declared last night that there was not the slightest doubt that she had been treated in a revolting manner.

BARTLETT AND WHITNEY

Men Who May Head Massachusetts Democratic Ticket

Boston, Oct. 7.—The Democratic state convention is being held in Faneuil hall today to place in nomination candidates for state officers.

Interest centres in the selection of candidates for governor and lieutenant governor, as there appears to be no contest for the other offices and comparatively little contest for the head of the ticket and the second place. During the past few weeks a number of possibilities have been mentioned for the governorship, but these have gradually been eliminated until the choice of the party leaders for the head of the ticket is Charles W. Bartlett of Boston and for his running mate Henry M. Whitney, president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and brother of the late William C. Whitney, secretary of the navy under President Cleveland.

It is the opinion that Bartlett will receive the nomination by a large majority, although former Mayor McNamee of Cambridge has declared his candidacy.

The entrance of Whitney is said to be a move on the part of the Democratic leaders to offset the nomination of Eben S. Draper by the Republicans. Mr. Whitney is one of the most active advocates of tariff revision and reciprocal trade treaties of this community, being the prime mover in the campaign for reciprocity which has been waged in this state for the past few years. The Democrats hope that his candidacy will attract largely from the ranks of Republican reciprocity disciples.

The salient features of the platform will be the declarations for reciprocal trade relations, an immediate revision of the tariff, with special emphasis on the demand for free wool, coal, iron, hides and pulp.

Mr. Bartlett has been a lawyer since 1870. He was born in Boston 60 years ago. He is now judge advocate on Governor Douglas' staff.

The remainder of the ticket will probably be: For secretary of state, H. B. Little of Newburyport; auditor, P. J. Ashe of North Adams; treasurer, J. J. Phelan of Boston; attorney general, J. P Leahy of Boston.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Non-union men to be used in breaking the strike of switchmen in Chicago yards of the Grand Trunk line last evening relieved officers of the road who have been performing the duties of switchmen since the strike was called a week ago. M'CURDY'S SALARY

Mutual Life's President Received $150,000 In 1904

FRIENDS PROVIDED FOR

Many Related to Officials of the Company Had Comfortable Positions--Mystery In Entries of "Expenditure Committee"

New York, Oct. 7.—The special legislative committee investigating the methods of insurance companies has adjourned until Tuesday of next week. While other weeks of the hearing have had sensations, no previous week has had a sensation every day as the one that was concluded with yesterday's session.

In Friday's testimony the sensational development was when Hughes demanded the payroll of the executive officers of the company. This was produced and showed salaries of these officers since 1877. For the year 1904 President McCurdy received $150,000, two vice presidents were paid $50,000 each, a second vice president $17,500, third vice president $10,000, and general manager $25,000, who this year will receive $30,000, and the treasurer $50,000.

Robert McCurdy said he never knew the salary of his father until he heard it read in the committee room. He thought, however, that there should be no limit to the salary of such positions, because they should be in accordance with the accumulations of the company.

When asked if it was any benefit to the policyholders to increase the president's salary, McCurdy said he thought the trustees had considered that when they increased the president's salary. No increase, however, had ever been considered when he was present at the trustees' meetings.

Earlier in the day, when McCurdy was on the stand, Hughes tried to bring out why C. H. Raymond & Co. and the partners in that firm received larger emoluments from the business than any other agency of the company.

Mr. McCurdy said he did not know what Louis Thebaud, son-in-law of President McCurdy, received from the business and had never talked with him about his personal affairs. He said it was "large reward for large achievements," and that all business of large magnitude were built up on that principle.

During McCurdy's testimony it was brought out that George Raymond, a brother of Charles H. Raymond, was the general agent for New Jersey; that Howard Lewis, general agent for northern New York, with an office in Albany, was a cousin of either Vice President Granniss, or Mrs. Granniss; that Dr. E. J. Moss, the medical director of the Mutual Life, married a sister of the president of the company, and that P. S. Pillot, an inspector of risks, is a cousin of Louis Thebaud and partner of the Raymond firm. G. W. White, a secretary of the company, whom McCurdy was asked about, said he was no relative of any officer of the company, but "that Mrs. White was a niece of Mrs. Granniss, wife of Vice President Granniss." He knew none of the salaries of these officers.

At one point in the day's testimony much interest was manifested when the expenditures of the company were taken up.

An auditor of the Mutual Life, Mr. Preller, was on the stand and he was asked as to the method of recording the expenditures. It was gathered that these were passed upon by an expenditure committee, of which Robert Olyphant was chairman.

Three entries on the books of payments to Olyphant of $25,000 each were looked into, but no information could be gleaned. Preller was asked about the campaign contribution to the Republican congressional committee which was disclosed Thursday, but he said it had not come under his observation.

The $2500 contribution to the congressional committee was looked for when the ledgers were produced, but up to adjournment this had not been found.

Since that time he has visited Salt Lake City, Spokane, San Francisco and other cities, but does not remember how he got to Salt Lake city or how he returned to Chicago.

An Enemy of the People

A Fourth of July Story
By HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1904, by Charles W. Hooke

As I understood the story from the brief remarks of my city editor, it was this:

The Fourth of July oration in the little city of Southborough had been delivered every year in the last twenty by a man named Joshua B. Stoughton. He was a political leader and might fairly be called the boss of both parties in Southborough and the county, for no man or measure ever prospered except with his consent.

The city always held elaborate celebrations of patriotic festivals, and the chief address was always delivered by Stoughton. All other speeches were merely echoes of his voice. Therefore the news that he would not deliver the Fourth of July oration this year was important, and the explanation sent in by our local correspondent made it positively sensational.

It appeared that a street railway franchise ordinance of a peculiarly comprehensive and generous character had been before the Southborough aldermen since June 15. On June 17 the city celebrated the anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill with a modest demonstration, and Stoughton made the speech of the day. In the course of his remarks he pointed with satisfaction to the franchise measure, which, he said, was destined to mark an era in that wonderful industrial development that had already filled the heart of every good citizen of Southborough with pride and joy, or words to that effect.

The franchise scheme, and especially the reference to it in Stoughton's speech, had aroused unprecedented opposition in the city. Lesser provocation of a similar sort had made trouble in the past, but prominent people had been afraid to speak out because of Stoughton's power and the unrelenting nature of his vengeance. Now, however, the city was really astir. Various organizations which usually kept aloof from public matters had denounced the ordinance, and one of the two small local papers had come out with accusations of bribery. This paper also dared to say that Stoughton's attitude in this matter and his shameless utterances on June 17 proved him to be a public enemy and utterly unfit to address his fellow citizens on such an occasion as that which commemorated the birth of American independence.

Nobody supposed that this protest would have any effect. The man who wrote it would have been the last to believe that the course of destiny could be stayed by any word of his, and he was almost petrified by surprise when it began to be whispered about the city that Stoughton would not be the Fourth of July orator. Meanwhile, however, the ordinance had been passed and had gone to the mayor for his signature. As the mayor owed his political existence to Stoughton, nobody doubted that the signature would be affixed, yet the days passed, and the ordinance remained unsigned. Hearings were held, and the mayor listened publicly to many honest men and privately to Joshua B. Stoughton.

"YOU OUGHT TO BE UNDER SOME FORM OF RESTRAINT."

It was expected that the mayor would sign on July 2, but he did not do so, and on the morning of the next day came the announcement that Stoughton had been attacked by tonsilitis and could not deliver the oration on the Fourth.

Our correspondent sent word immediately to the city editor.

"I wrote the article which first protested against Stoughton's speaking on the Fourth," he said, "but I'm no worker of miracles. I'm only a prophet. I wrote the article after consultation with Mr. Dunbar, owner of the paper, but neither of us thought that it would amount to anything. The fact is that neither the article nor the public feeling has produced this result. I've got it straight that Stoughton was bluffed out by one man. Who this man was I haven't yet learned, but I'll know tomorrow, and it will be a great story, for the one man must have the inside facts about this franchise steal."

So I was sent to Southborough early on the morning of July 4 to find the one man and get the great story.

I was to meet our local correspondent in the station master's office, but instead I received a note saying:

Struck a snag. Gone off on a rumor. Will see you at the office at 10:30.
DILLON.

The station master himself gave me the note, and his countenance was illumined by a wise smile. Station masters are great collectors of news, I reflected.

"Well," said I, "what do you think?"

He laughed softly, and I gave him a fine, large cigar. He lighted it and tasted the smoke with evident appreciation.

"Dillon ought to know who it was that called old man Stoughton down," said he. "It's clear enough. I haven't talked much about it"—

"Don't," said I, "to anybody except me."

He glanced out of the window which opened directly upon the platform, and, seeing nobody within hearing, he proceeded.

"Dunning is the man—Bill Dunning, owner of the News. His paper wouldn't have dared to come out with the bribery story unless Dunning had the inside facts. The trolley people probably tried to bribe him, but he doesn't tell his man Dillon all that he knows. Dunning is a man who understands how to keep his mouth shut. He has forced Stoughton to some kind of a compromise, and he is satisfied. It is a great triumph for the News to have forced Stoughton off the stump today. Tonsilitis! Ha, ha!"

His fat body shook with slow, luxurious laughter.

"You go to see Bill Dunning," he continued. "Of course he won't give it to you straight, but you can get a line on it. You'll find him at his house."

I inquired the way and set out with all haste, but as I was rushing along the street I was brought to a sudden halt by such an obstacle as would stop any man with eyes in his head. At the same moment a voice of incomparable sweetness pronounced my name. Not even the dust for which Southborough is justly infamous could affect the magic music of that voice.

"Miss Lovering!" I exclaimed. "I had no notion you were here."

"I'm visiting Nellie Olmstead," replied the vision of beauty, which had not gladdened my eyes before in several months. "The Olmsteads have a beautiful place on the lake."

"I was there long ago with her brother," said I—"before Nellie grew up."

"They're going to have a lawn party and dance and no end of a good time today," said she. "Nellie and I are downtown buying a few little things. The stores are open till 10. Wait. She'll be here in a minute, and she'll ask you to the house."

"I have not on a wedding garment," said I, "and, besides, I'm on a job."

At this moment Nellie appeared, changed almost beyond recognition in five years.

Nellie invited me most cordially to the festivities at her father's house and laughed at questions of attire on the freest day of all the year.

"If I can corner this story," said I, "you may be sure that I'll attend. My time will be my own after the story is done."

"What's it about?" asked Miss Lovering.

"This Stoughton matter."

"My father probably knows all about it," said Miss Olmstead. "Why don't you come out to the house with us now? Our carriage is just around the corner."

The voice of experience spoke just in time to prevent me from accepting this invitation. Bill Dunning was the nearer source of information and probably the better. It was wise to pump him first. I could catch Mr. Olmstead afterward if necessary. The essential facts of the situation I stated to the two young ladies, and it was agreed that I should obtain my news from Mr. Dunning and take a trolley for the Olmstead place when I had written my story and sent it to the city.

Life was much brighter after this chance encounter, and I swept on to the conquest of Bill Dunning's honorable secret with an assured heart.

I found the gentleman sitting on the steps of his residence, and I attacked him boldly. He listened to my statement with rising impatience.

"This dream," said he at last, "is worthy of a fat witted old imbecile like Porter, the station master. What he doesn't know would reach around the world three times and tie in a double bowknot. If I had been able to bluff Stoughton out of speaking today I'd have stopped that ordinance before the board of aldermen. Why didn't that occur to Porter's alleged mind?"

And he proceeded to show me in about five minutes that I was on the wrong trail absolutely.

"If you want to get at the bottom of this," said he, "I'll tell you how to do it. I can't, because I'm tied up with the man in a business way."

"With what man?"

"With Lawyer Sam Danforth. He's the man who called Stoughton off. Danforth was counsel for the trolley company at one time, and they had a row. He knows enough about the inside of this infamous business to play this trick, for that's all it is; just a trick to annoy the railroad crew. Danforth doesn't dare use his influence against the franchise, because he's been in the same business himself. You go to see him, but don't tell him I sent you."

I went to see Danforth and found him in his office pacing the floor. A wheezy old rascal he was and one that was too near the grave to be so busy with iniquity. When I told him what I knew he nearly choked.

"You ought to be under some form of restraint, young man," he gasped. "You're too weakminded to be at large. What? I? I pulled the string that choked off old Josh Stoughton today? Ha, ha! Not if the court knows itself. I'd blamed sight rather he had talked about the 'best interests of Southborough' and the glorious benefits of giving all our streets to a railway company for nothing. Yes, sir, that would have suited me first rate."

The man was obviously sincere, and I ceased to antagonize him. Instead I used all my powers of flattery and all the resources of humble deference.

"You're not altogether a fool," said he at last, "and I'll give you a straight tip. There's only one man who exerts influence enough with Josh Stoughton to accomplish this thing, and that man is the Rev. John Blodgett, pastor of Stoughton's church. Stoughton has taken his advice in this matter, you may depend upon it. Blodgett is a man of peace. He knows that if Stoughton delivered the address today it would raise a rumpus, and Blodgett didn't want to see it happen."

This was convincing, and I had half a mind to sit right down in Danforth's office and write my story and make sure of the lawn party, but conscience urged me to call upon the Rev. Mr. Blodgett.

He was a handsome, kindly, cheerful man with a merry twinkle in his eye.

"I give you my solemn word of honor," said he, "that I had nothing whatever to do with this affair beyond a mild protest against the passage of the franchise ordinance without due and proper investigation."

"IT WAS HE WHO DID THIS THING," SAID SHE.

Of course he was telling the truth, and yet it might be possible that influences arising in the church had moved Stoughton without the pastor's direct intervention. I questioned him as sharply as I dared upon this point, and he finally said:

"If anybody connected with this church has influenced Mr. Stoughton it is Hiram Higgins. You may take my word for it that if it was not Higgins it was none of us."

"Where can I find him?" I asked.

"I think he's in the church now," said the pastor, glancing out of the window and across the street.

The door of the church was opened as I approached, and upon the steps stood the gray haired, deaf, decrepit sexton, childish with age.

"Is Mr. Hiram Higgins inside?" I asked.

"Hiram Higgins?" he piped. "I'm Hiram Higgins."

It was the pastor's little joke and his way of telling me that I must search outside his congregation.

Well, I searched, and I got six more "tips" inside the next hour, and every one of them proved baseless upon the briefest examination. I met Dillon in the course of the trouble, and he confessed that his own errand had been a wild goose chase.

"This town is full of liars," said he gloomily—"liars and people who think they know what they don't know, blast 'em!"

"It's no specialty of Southborough's," said I from the depth of an experience that covered two states.

We held a conference and decided upon a new line of investigation in which neither of us had any confidence. It began to look very much as if the Olmsteads would be obliged to hold their festivities without my assistance, and I was blue to the backbone.

Again came the sweet voice calling, and I looked over my shoulder to behold Nina Lovering running after me.

"I've been looking for you everywhere," said she. "Oh, I've had such an experience!"

"Come with me," said I and led her into a convenient ice cream "parlor," where we found a table in a quiet corner.

"I have the story!" she whispered as soon as we were seated. "Listen. Mr. Olmstead told me. I begged him hard, but he didn't know why I wanted it. The facts are these: There is a very public spirited man named Curtis G. Goodwin"—

"What!" I gasped.

"Mr. Olmstead told me about him. I'd never heard of him. It seems that this man knows all about the bribery in the franchise business."

"Yes," said I, "there's no doubt of it."

"It was he who did this thing," said she, "in the interest of the public. Mr. Olmstead says so."

"This is a joke!"

"Not at all, my friend. I have seen Mr. Goodwin. I called upon him. I told him that I had learned that it was he who persuaded Mr. Stoughton not to speak."

I half rose from my chair and stared at her.

"What did he do?" I gasped.

"He was terribly excited. He looked as if he was going to faint or have a fit. He offered me $50 if I'd tell him where I got the information, and then he offered me a hundred if I wouldn't print it. You see, he thought I was a reporter."

"My blessed grandmother," I exclaimed, "this beats anything that ever happened! We have landed the story."

"Of course we have."

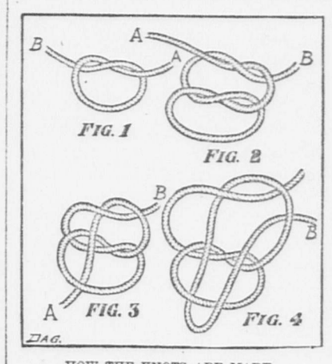
"But it's all an accident. Mr. Olmstead was joking with you. Curtis Goodwin is the chief of the railroad syndicate and the crookedest old rascal that ever breathed the breath of life. Mr. Olmstead had no idea that it was he who called Stoughton off. But it was. We've caught him. He was so amazed that he gave himself away. He called Stoughton off because he was afraid he might say something injudicious. In fact, Stoughton was in a place where he couldn't either speak of the franchise or not speak of it. Why didn't I see this before? Nina, you're the only reporter in the state."

Well, that's the way I got my story, and I had a clean beat on it. But I didn't get to the lawn party. I worked all day and all night, and with the aid of the knowledge that it was Goodwin who had coerced Stoughton I dug up crookedness right and left. The upshot of it was that we wrecked Stoughton's power and forced the mayor to veto the franchise.

A STUDY IN KNOTS.

This Trick Is a Little Difficult, but You Can Master It.

The untying of knots in a string by tying other knots in the same string is a pretty feat with which those who care to learn it may amuse and mystify those who have never seen it done. It is quite easy, and there is no trick about it. A careful study of the accompanying diagrams will make it easy to learn the feat, which can be performed with a stout cord or small rope. A simple knot is made, as in the first diagram, and then the second knot is made, forming what is known as a square knot, as shown in the second diagram. The next move is to carry the end of the cord marked A downward through the first loop. The third diagram shows the tangle thus formed, and it is such a thorough tangle that to pull the two ends of the string would make a hard and complicated knot. But the end A of the cord is now brought up over the outside of the first loop and is carried down through the second loop, coming out in the same direction with the end B, as in the fourth diagram. Now, by taking hold of the two ends of the cord and pulling them the cord may be drawn out perfectly straight, the knots disappearing. The performance may be made more mystifying by asking a spectator to hold both ends of the cord, while the operator, concealing the knotted portion in his hands, rubs the knots out, leaving the spectator in possession of a smooth and unbroken string. Possibly the spectator may follow the whole operation so closely as to be able to perform it himself on the first trial, but he will be apt to make a mistake in forming the second loop and reverse the twist shown in the second diagram. In that case he will succeed only in tying a knot that will be difficult to untie after the attempt is made to pull the cord straight.



HOW THE KNOTS ARE MADE.

DOROTHY'S STORY.

An Alphabetical Word Game and How It Is Played.

"I can think pretty quick," said Jim Simpson to the "crowd" one day.

"I bet I can think as quick as you," said Billy Brush, who was never to be outdone in anything. The rest joined in the argument till it was more "hollering" than anything else.

"I'll tell you how to settle it," said Sue Atkins. "Let's see who can get up a connected story quickest, with the words all beginning with the letters of the alphabet in their order—that is, the first word to begin with A, the next with B, and so on."

All agreed. Alas! Jim Simpson, the great quick thinker, didn't have more than five words of his story finished and Billy Brush only had seven when Dorothy Clarke waved her piece of paper in the air and read off this story:

"A beautiful camel, devouring everything fiercely, galloped hard into Joppa, knocking little Mohammedans nearly over, pursuing quaking riders savagely, till utterly venerable women 'xclaimed, 'Y-z.'"

The rest produced compositions of varying quality, but they were all so pleased with the new game that they kept it up for a good while and used it ever after when rainy weather or other troublesome things made time hang heavy on their hands.

The Traveler's Tree.

In the island of Jamaica there is a tree that is greatly admired by all visitors; hence its name—traveler's tree. It is similar to the palm tree, but in shape is like a fan.

A curious feature of this tree is that its plumelike leaves sway and bend with the sun and the rain. In rainy weather the leaves bend almost to the ground, but in sunshine they raise themselves to their upright and more graceful position. The effect is very curious, for the leaves of this tree are immense.

Any place of consequence in Jamaica has one or more of these specimens, but it is necessary to travel there for a sight of them, for they will not grow in any other climate.

What Was It?

Guess what he had in his pocket.
Marbles and tops and sundry toys
Such as always belong to boys,
A bitter apple, a leather ball?
Not at all.

What did he have in his pocket?
A bubble pipe and a rusty screw,
A brassy watch key broken in two,
A fish hook in a tangle of string?
No such thing.

What did he have in his pocket?
Gingerbread crumbs, a whistle he made,
Buttons, a knife with a broken blade?
A nail or two, with a rubber gun?
Neither one.

What did he have in his pocket?
Before he knew it, it slyly crept
Under the treasures carefully kept,
And away they all of them quickly stole—
'Twas a hole.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Frosty this morning.

Thirty-five degree temperature at sunrise this morning.

The winter schedule of the N. Y., N. & H. R. R., goes into effect Sunday.

A meeting of the Registrars of Voters will be held this evening at the Hose House at Quincy Foint.

Miss Anna M. Chamberlin of the Water department office leaves today for a two weeks' vacation.

The hearing before the Board of Health Monday night will be held in the Council Chamber, City Hall.

Rev. W. S. Perkin will preach his prize sermon tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, in the Universalist church.

The Patriot coupons in the Scholarship contest are always good for five votes. Some of the candidates are getting a large number of them.

Another special meeting of the School Committee to consider plans for the High school enlargement will be held this evening. It will be the fourth meeting of the board within two weeks.

The Thomas Crane Public library needs a few good bookstacks in place of the tables and small revolving rack now in use. Braintree has just installed them and most libraries have them, finding them a great convenience.

The Quincy Branch Woman's Alliance will meet in First church parlor, Monday, October ninth, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. Alice Reynold Keyes of Concord will speak on Alliance work. All interested are cordially invited to attend.

The Quincy Day Nursery association is planning to hold a rummage sale about the middle of the month in the store on Chestnut street recently occupied by F. F. Crane. Housekeepers are asked to have the sale in mind and to save their old clothes, furniture, books, china etc.

TODAY'S COURT.

Vincenzo Carderelli and Luizi Andrew were arraigned for violation of the gaming law. Carderelli was fined $10 and Andrew was discharged.

The case of James H. White for felonious assault was again continued until Oct. 21.

John Nelson was arraigned for non-support at Quincy. Case continued until Saturday.

The case of Louise Di Bona for assault at Quincy was called. The defendant entered a plea of nolo contendere, and was discharged on payment of costs amounting to $5.70.

Bondsmen Superseded

The personal bondsman is fast becoming obsolete; the risk to private fortune is too great.

The corporate bond is just as rapidly supplanting the old form; and, in time, men will marvel that they were ever called upon to incur the danger of personal suretyship.

In point of safety, convenience and propriety, there can be no comparison between the two; the one is just as weak and perilous as the other is strong and safe.

The time is near when it will be thought as reasonable to borrow the key of a friend's safe as to borrow his name for surety purposes.

Persons who are required to give bonds should apply to American Surety Company of New York

BRAINTREE.

Quite a number from this part of the town proved themselves good fishermen, one party bringing home 275 smelts the first of this week.

Miss Florence O. Robinson successfully passed the entrance examination of the Massachusetts Normal Art school and began her studies at that institution Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Morrison have closed their residence on Adams street and will reside with Mrs. Aubrey Hilliard.

Mr. and Mrs G. W. Jennings of Washington street, returned this week from South Weymouth, bringing with them Mrs. B. C. White for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Forest Rowell of Boston and Miss Isabelle Michael of Quincy, were guests Sunday at the home of Mrs. Nellie Fenderson of West street.

Benjamin H. Woodsum, Jr., has severed his connections with the Old Colony street railway company and resumed his study of law.

The employees at the various shoe factories in town were given special holidays this week which many improved by attending the Brockton fair.

Mrs. Perley Proctor has been confined to her home on Franklin street this past week by illness but is now slowly improving.

The many friends of Mrs. S. S. Bridgham will be glad to learn that she is able to be out again after her long confinement due to a severely sprained ankle.

Since Braintree has enjoyed the free delivery of mail the postage on sealed letters has been two cents. Circulars in unsealed envelopes can go for one cent. Many citizens are causing the receivers of letters to pay "postage due." Don't buy one cent stamps.

Dr. T. H. Dearing, to whom Rev. Mr. Crathern alluded in his eulogy on Dr. Torrey, closes his eighty years of life in a few days. He appears as young and active as when he declined to serve longer on the school board twenty years ago. The doctor served nearly thirty years on school committees in Boston, Norwell and Braintree, and for quite a number of years was chairman of the Braintree school committee.

Mr. C. B. Huston of Quincy has the contract to enlarge and otherwise improve the boiler room of the Williams—Kneeland Co's., factory and install two new boilers. F. Edgar Norris of Braintree is the architect.

Next Thursday the King's Daughters will hold their regular monthly meeting with Miss Estella Pierce of Washington street. The ladies are making special plans for their fair which is to be held in the Town hall.

The dedicatory exercises at the new Noah Torrey schoolhouse on Monday were very well arranged and executed with remarkable smoothness. Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern arranged the souvenir program and he is deserving of much credit.

Miss A. A. Cook of Quincy formerly of Braintree was in town Wednesday calling on old friends.

Warren B. Keith of Washington street has accepted a position with the Fore River Shipbuilding Company.

A large crowd gathered at the supper hour at the First church parlors Wednesday evening to partake of a bountiful spread, given by the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

Mrs. Fred Spear arrived last week from the New England hospital. Her operation was successful and although still very weak she is a well as can be expected.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman, formerly of Greenfield, Nova Scotia, has come to reside with her daughter, Mrs. R. E Spinney of 582 Washington street.

A surprise party was given to Dan McCue of Prospect street on Monday evening by his school companions. A fine time was enjoyed. Sandwiches, ices, cakes, peanuts and fruits were served. A gift of a foot-ball and nose protector with a box of chocolates from the boys offset the cakes and goodies contributed by the girls.

The Jonas Perkins School association met with Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Miller of Liberty street on Wednesday evening.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

"As Ye Sow" will be seen for the first time in Boston at the Majestic Theatre for a limited engagement beginning, Monday evening, Oct. 9. The drama is the work of the Rev. John Snyder, and it is the first play ever written by an American preacher. The Rev. Snyder calls his play "As Ye Sow," and he places the action in Cape Cod and its environs. The story concerns the affairs of the Rev. John St. John and his brother Frank. Both men love the same woman. Frank has married her under an assumed name and she does not know him as the brother of John St. John, whom she learns to love, thinking herself a widow and free to marry again. Just as the ceremony which is to unite her to the clergyman is about to be performed the brother re-appears to the great horror of the wife and the clergyman. The untangling of the knotty problem fills out the play.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The second month of the Castle Square season opens on Monday with a comedy revival of Madeleine Lucette Ryley's "Mice and Men," the play in which Annie Russell was heartily welcomed some seasons ago. Its title, taken from Burn's familiar lines, is suggestive of a quaint love story and a romantic plot, and in these and other respects, "Mice and Men" fulfills the most pleasurable anticipations. The play is a humorous and piquant compound of delightful humor and dramatic power, its dialogue being especially bright and mirth-provoking.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Another capital progran that will certainly prove as strong as any offered this season, is announced from Keith's theatre for the week of Oct. 9. The leading entertainers on the bill will be Staley and Birbeck, "the musical blacksmiths," who will present the quickest of all the lightning transformation acts seen in the varieties. The change is made from a drawingroom to the smithy, complete in every detail, in approximately two seconds, including changes of costume, Among the notable entertainers included in the surrounding show are Will H. Murphy, Blanche Nichols and company, in their screamingly funny burlesque specialty, "From 'Zaza' to 'Uncle Tom;" Lew Bloom, the clever tramp comedian, and Jane Cooper, in the funny sketch, "Pictures from Life;" George Day, the popular blackface comedian; the Village Choir, a mixed quartet of vocalists and the usual new list of motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinetograph

BOSTON THEATRE.

Following immediately in the wake of Thomas Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle," whose engagement will end Saturday, Oct. 7, comes to the Boston theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 9, Denman Thompson in "The Old Homestead." The annual appearance of Mr. Thompson at the big New England playhouse, in his familiar and ever popular role of dear old Uncle Josh', is a notable event in theatrical annals. Now, however, it takes on a special and extraordinary significance because of the announcement that Denman Thompson will not appear anywhere else this season than at the Boston theatre. His engagement there is limited to a few weeks, including the customary Wednesday and Saturday matinees. The extraordinarily long life of "The Old Homestead" is a striking tribute to its power to entertain playgoers, who find in its homely sentiment, its lovable characters and rural atmosphere a refreshing change from the conventional. Its story is so familiar as to make any iteration of it now altogether unnecessary and unwarranted. Denman Thompson as Joshua Whitcomb will be found to be the same prosperous, peace-loving, God-fearing New Hampshire farmer as of old.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

At the Empire Theatre next week Manager Morison announces the first production at popular prices of the dramatic version of Ian Mac Laren's charming Scotch Idyl "Beside The Bonnie Brier Bush." James MacArthur and Tom Hall are the joint playwrights and the dramatization has the direct sanction of the reverend author. The play was originally produced over a half a dozen years ago and the veteran J. H. Stoddard has made it the principal attraction of his tours in recent years. "The Bonnie Brier Bush" is announced for only a single week and at the Monday matinee there will be the usual free distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons.

PARK THEATRE.

On Monday, the 9th of October, Mr. Charles Dillingham, at the Park Theatre, Boston, will present Thomas W. Ross in the new American comedy "A Fair Exchange." Seats are now on sale at the box office. Mr. Ross is the clever young comedian who made "Checkers" famous. By birth he is a Bostonian and now visits his native city for the first time as a star. "A Fair Exchange" is a charming love story of modern, every day people, suffering the usual misunderstandings and cross purposes inevitable and natural in life, there is a happy and rich current of dry humor running through the play. The character created by Thomas W. Ross is that of a young ranchman from Arizona, who, coming East to visit his sister finds her affairs pretty much complicated in the hands of an unscrupulous New York broker. He at once sets himself the task of opening his sister's eyes and setting her free from the latter's influence.

GREAT RIVALRY.

Among Young Ladies in the Contest.

For the Ledger Free Scholarships.

Miss Mahoney Again Near Top of the List.

Many of the young ladies in the Daily Ledger free scholarship contest made gains. Miss Manning almost lost first place as Miss Mahoney gained 200 votes and is now a good second. Miss Bates gained but dropped one in the list. Miss Merritt and Miss Rogers promise to make it interesting for the leaders.

All the leaders in the mens' list are laying low today the gains being among those well down in the list. But they are missing an opportunity as Drug Clerk Maloney is away. His fences are being looked after, however, for he writes:

Editor Scholarship Contest:

"Would you kindly put a notice in your column to the effect that I have gone on a vacation for one week, and that any votes that my friends may have for me, may be left with Mr. Hill of the Weeks-Hill pharmacy, who will look after them in my absence."

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

The editor requests that large packages of votes be sent flat, as it is difficult to count cupons which have been rolled. Please place also on the first coupon the number of votes sent.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars: free.

THEATRE TRAIN.

And a Quick Express at That.

Added in the New Timetable.

Leaves Boston at 11.13 P. M.— Other Changes.

The new timetable of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. which went into effect Sunday contains but few changes in the local train service. No train has been discontinued.

One new train has been added to the outward service. This is a train that has long been demanded and will be greatly appreciated, especially by theatre patrons.

Up to the present time there has been no train leaving Boston between 10.50 and 11.27 P. M. The 10.50 was a little too early for theatre patrons and often it meant a half hour wait, which is vexatious near midnight. The new theatre train is scheduled to leave Boston at 11.13, and runs express to Quincy, making the run in 17 minutes and arriving at 11.30.

The other changes in the outward service briefly stated are as follows: The train that has been leaving at 4.45 P. M. now leaves at 4.50 arriving at 5.11, and the train that has been leaving at 8.13 P. M. now leaves at 8.24 arriving in Quincy at 8.53

There are no changes in the outward Sunday trains.

In the inward service there are also but few changes. The 6.15 P. M. train now leaves at 6.13 and arrives in Boston at 6.33. The train that has been leaving at 10.01 P. M., now leaves at 10.08, arriving at 10.30.

The only change in the Sunday trains is the 6.03 P. M. train which now leaves at 6.16 arriving at 6.44

The only changes on the Granite branch are at the Montclair station. Under the new timetable the 11.16 A. M. outward week day train makes a stop at this station, and the 11.16 A. M. outward Sunday train is taken off.

The revised timetable will appear in full in tomorrow's Daily Ledger.

JOHN F. MERRILL.

Nominated By Republicans For County Commissioner.

The Norfolk County Republican convention was held Saturday in Wesleyan hall, Boston. There were 85 out of the 99 delegates present. Dexter E. Wadsworth of Quincy was elected chairman and Robert W. Carpenter of Foxboro was secretary.

The name of Hon. John F. Merrill of Quincy was the only one formally presented to the convention as candidate for County Commissioner, being presented by Eugene C. Hultman of Quincy. Mr. Merrill was the choice on the first ballot, the vote being as follows:

Whole number of votes	84
Necessary for choice	43
John F. Merrill of Quincy had	64
John Everett of Canton had	12
William Carter of Needham had	4
J. L. Southwick of Holbrook had	3
Lewis R. Whitaker had	1

The nomination was made unanimous.

The following were elected as County Committee: Charles H. Pearson of Brookline, Albion F. Bemis of Foxboro, Eugene R. Stone of Quincy, H. D. Humphrey of Dedham, W. B. Thurber of Milton, T. Raymond Pierce of Wellesley, Louis Flye of Holbrook, Fred Katzman of Hyde Park and E. B. Nevin of Weymouth.

It seems like old times to have Mr. Merrill again a candidate for public office. Some years ago when the districts were close, Mr. Merrill was twice elected to the House of Representatives —in 1888 and 1889. His contest for the senatorial nomination in the fall of 1892 is well remembered and he served two years. For many years he was in the grocery business in Quincy.

A Timely and Important Work.

In all the twelve years that Professor Hugo R. Meyer has been gathering material for his "Government Regulation of Railway Rates," just published by the Macmillan Company, there has been no moment when its appearance would have been so timely or when it would have attracted so much attention as at present. On the eve of the assembling of a Congress that is likely to give a large part of its attention to the question of railway rate legislation and at a time when the whole country is discussing the subject, a straightforward statement of the effects of government regulation in foreign countries and an intelligent application of the conclusions deduced from these results to the transportation situation in the United States is greatly needed. This is what Professor Meyer's volume affords, and for this reason it will be welcomed by legislators and men of affairs as eagerly as by the students of economic questions to whom such a work ordinarily would appeal.

A Fine Sermon.

A large and intelligent audience assembled in the Universalist church Sunday afternoon to listen to Dr. Perkins' sermon, "Burden Bearing." It was a beautiful discourse, well delivered and much appreciated, if one can judge from the many complimentary remarks heard from the assembly at the close of the service. It was a soul-lifting discourse, and had the tendency to make each person better. A soprano and contralto solo charmingly rendered added much to the service.

Whist at Wollaston.

The Wollaston whist club played the second same in their winter series under the Howell system on Saturday evening, which resulted as follows:

J. G. Brown and C. B. Hoxie	14 plus
V. S. Brokaw and M. Chase	6 plus
E. E. Hoxie and J. H. Broughton	5 plus
R. F. Foster and A. B. Hillman	2 plus
H. A. Stevens and C. E. Hathaway	1 minus
G. A. Smith and E. E. Phinney	5 minus
R. M. Watt and E. W. Taylor	6 minus
C. E. Barker and A. P. Thompson	15 minus

Dorothy Q. Visitors.

There were over seventy visitors at the Dorothy Q. house on Saturday. Among the number were Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell and Miss Frances Wendell of New York. Mrs. Wendell is President of the Massachsuetts Colonial Dames and has recently returned from a trip to Europe. Other callers were Mrs. H. Mourle of Augusta, Me., Mrs. C. S. Woodward of New York, and a party from Richmond, Va.

Farewell Reception.

The senior class of the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school was invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Page on Winthrop avenue, Saturday evening, to meet Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Parker, who are soon to leave Wollaston. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all. Mr. Parker has been for two years associated with Mr. Page as teacher of the senior class and he will be very much missed by the young men.

FALLING DERRICK.

Strikes and Kills Patrick McAlloon at Work on Cellar Wall.

Patrick McAlloon, aged 52 years, of 11 California avenue, was killed Saturday afternoon by being struck by a falling derrick at Norfolk Downs, where he was at work building a cellar.

He was employed by Gilcoin Bros., and was at work in the cellar laying the wall when one of the guy ropes of the derrick snapped and the derrick in falling struck him upon the head, causing almost instant death.

The police ambulance was summoned, as was also Dr. F. J. Peirce, who resides near by, but before either arrived the unfortunate man was dead.

Medical examiner Jones was notified, and found that besides having had his skull fractured he had sustained a broken jaw and collarbone. The body was given in charge of Undertaker Bean.

The unfortunate man was unmarried and boarded with Mrs. Patrick McDonough. He is survived by a mother, a brother and three sisters.

Sorrow at Wollaston.

Miss Emma Fowler, of Wollaston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fowler, passed away Saturday night at ten o'clock, from heart failure, as a result of cerebro spinal meningitis. Miss Fowler was taken ill last April, and was placed under the care of Dr. Drew, who had her removed to the Massachusetts General Hospital. She improved wonderfully, and was brought home during the summer, where she had been doing very well up to Friday night. Miss Fowler was a popular young lady of sixteen, and her illness and death has caused much sorrow among the young people of the community in which she lived.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ "Unless the people of culture, intelligence, and opportunity awaken," said Miss Helon Gould, "America 25 years from now will not be so good a place to live in as it has been in years gone by, for a million uncultured, ignorant foreigners are coming to this country every year. We must set about to keep America clean and sweet." Miss Gould is certainly doing her utmost and setting a famous example.—Boston Record.

☞ If every freshman in Harvard College would take the advise of President Eliot he would graduate a better man by reason of it. The advice of Eliot is, "Live as if you were going to marry a pure woman in a month." He thinks a student ought to be a clean, wholesome, vigorous young animal. He urges them to maintain a spotless reputation, to live like a man of honor, today and every day. He has a large and enthusiastic body of young men under his charge, and they appear to have a great regard for him, and no doubt his words will have a good effect on the larger portion of them.—Lynn Item.

—Somebody with a keen scent for the opulent held up a Pullman porter in Chicago, the other day, and took from him all his wealth. There are people who will regard the action of the Chicago footpad as poetic justice in operation.

—Calomel and red spectacles as a cure for seasickness are discounted by a surgeon in the British Admiralty, who says the only guarantee against the affliction is a determination not to succumb. "The will of not being sick," he says, "is far more efficient that all the remedies invented to the present day."

BY ACCLAMATION

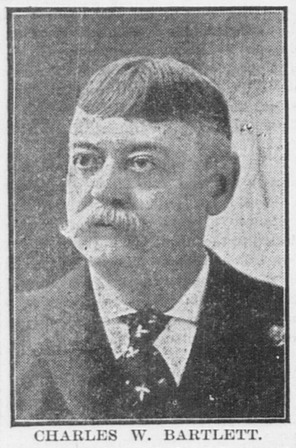
Bay State Democrats Name Bartlett For Governor

WHITNEY FOR HIS MATE

Unexpected Withdrawal of McNamee, Who Was Expected to Make Contest For Head of the Ticket--Springfield Man Makes a Stir Over State Committee

Boston, Oct. 9.—Charles W. Bartlett of Boston, judge advocate general on Governor Douglas' staff, and Henry M. Whitney of Brookline were nominated by acclamation by the Democrats for governor and lieutenant governor amid an enthusiastic demonstration.

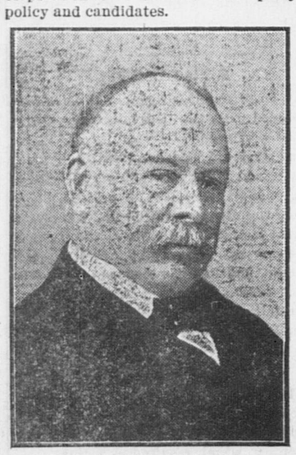
The nominations were agreed to unanimously and a platform of principles adopted without any serious opposition, and the gathering adjourned with the party leaders well pleased with the outcome and prepared to make the short four weeks' campaign that is now to ensue just as interesting and to keep the Republicans as busy as possible.



CHARLES W. BARTLETT.

The remainder of the ticket nominated follows: Secretary of state, Henry B. Little Newburyport; treasurer and receiver general, Daniel J. Doherty, Westfield; auditor, P. J. Ashe, North Adams; attorney general, John D. Leahy, Boston.

The only ripple of discord in an otherwise harmonious convention came upon the nomination by the convention of 18 members-at-large of the state committee. Daniel H. Toomey of Springfield made an unsuccessful attempt to have the convention decree that hereafter the members of the state committee be elected directly by the people at the conventions in the various congressional and senatorial districts. Toomey charged that the Democratic state committee as at present constituted did not represent the Democratic voters, but was, instead, a close corporation that dictated the party policy and candidates.



HENRY M. WHITNEY.

Several delegates spoke in support of Toomey's proposition, which was offered as a substitute for the report of the committee appointed to name the state committeemen-at-large. On a voice vote the substitute was defeated, whereupon Toomey called for a rising vote, claiming that hundreds of persons in the hall, not accredited delegates to the convention, were having a voice in the proceedings. Toomey's request was denied, and the report of the committee was passed.

Up to the time that J. E. Cotter of Hyde Park arose to place before the convention the name of General Bartlett as the gubernatorial candidate it was believed that there would be a contest. Former Mayor McNamee of Cambridge had announced that he would make a struggle for the honor of leading the party in the coming campaign and it was expected that he would make an attack on Mr. Whitney, the candidate for the nomination, for lieutenant governor.

To the surprise of the convention, however, McNamee did not make any contest, but seconded General Bartlett's nomination. In his seconding speech McNamee said that if Bartlett should be victorious at the polls he would not forget the Democrats who elected him.

The platform adopted declares for a revision of the tariff and the free admission of coal, iron, lumber, hides, wood pulp and other raw materials; it commends the diplomatic courage and sagacity of President Roosevelt in aiding to end the war in the Far East; calls for state supervision of insurance companies, and recommends municipal ownership of public institutions.

Delegate Watson of Boston offered a substitute platform, which was overwhelmingly voted down. During the reading of the substitute the convention was in an uproar, many of the delegates endeavoring to drown the sound of Watson's voice. Watson was interrupted with hisses and jeers, but as he several times announced that he would read the substitute if it took all night, he was finally allowed to proceed.

Great disorder prevailed also when Toomey and his supporters urged the passage of the substitute order for the election of state committeeman.

Just before adjournment Bartlett and Whitney entered the hall and were given a tremendous ovation. Both made brief addresses. Bartlett closed by saying in reference to the November election: "When the votes have been counted somebody will learn that there has been a fight." Mr. Whitney prophesied Democratic success at the polls.

Rhody's Prohibition Ticket

Providence, Oct. 9.—The Rhode Island Prohibition party met in convention here and elected the following nominees by acclamation: For governor, B. E. Helme; lieutenant governor, H. E. Ralph; secretary of state, W. H. Hobson; general treasurer, B. M. Briggs; attorney general, T. H. Peabody. The platform declares in favor of prohibition; suppression of pool selling; election of United States senators, president and vice president by direct vote; giving of the veto power to the governor; repeal of the law requiring 2 percent of the popular vote to constitute a political party and the submission to the voters of constitutional amendments providing for a constitutional convention and the initiative and referendum.

Queer Caucuses In Providence

Providence, Oct. 9.—The city board of canvassers and registration has declared the Democratic caucus in the ninth ward of this city a week ago last Wednesday to be illegal and void, owing to an unexplained presence in the returns of 60 more ballots than the number checked off on the tally sheets. Concord, N. H., Oct. 9.—A number of the Episcopal clergy of the diocese of New Hampshire have taken the initiative in making preliminary arrangements for the union of the Angelican church and the Orthodox Catholic church of Russia and other ancient churches of the east. Anarchists' Demostration Failed

Paris, Oct. 9.—The threatened antimilitary demonstrations on the occasion of the departure of conscripts failed utterly, owing to the strict precautions taken by the police. Over 10,000 recruits took trains for the garrisons along the German frontier. The crowds present replied to the seditious cries of the anarchists with patriotic songs. Fifteen arrests were made.

Delivered the Goods.

Commenting on the success of the new Cape catboat class of yachts the past season, the Globe says:

"Quincy yacht club members and their friends are to be thanked for reviving the cat as a racing boat in Boston bay. They formed their association last spring, gained admission to the Yacht racing association of Massachusetts, and by a season's hard racing, with existing boats, "delivered the goods" to such a degree that every judge of sport was ready to take his hat off to them when the season ended.

"Now the originators of the cat association have taken proper steps for preserving the class in something the same shape it was at the start, by specifying what kind of boat shall be built to it, and by barring out boats that by freakish features of design would vitiate the aim of the association—which is, to race with sound, everyday, inexpensive cruising boats—and kill the class."

"The restrictions adopted are to hold good without amendment for three years, unless some serious defect is discovered in them, which may be remedied. They form the body of a new constitution of the association."

Bullets For All.

One of the gentlemen who kept tabs at the recount of the votes for Representatives on Friday night, says that E. J. Sandberg received 140 bullets, Harry S. Nicoll 90 and Eugene C. Hultman and Richard R. Freeman about 75 each. John O. Hall and Arthur E. Baxter had very few.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Oil King Rockefeller Tells Children How to Make It

CULTIVATION OF CROPS

Those of Patience, Charity and Good Will Sure to Result In Harvests More Beneficial Than Those That Grow In Ground

Cleveland, Oct. 9.—In his closing talk to the Sunday school class of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church, of which he is superintendent, John D. Rockefeller made a comparison of the crops that grow in the field and the crops that may be cultivated by each person that will be of more benefit than those which grow in the ground. Mr. Rockefeller referred to personal virtues and in part he said:

"I don't know how many of you children have been in the country this year, but many of you have come to see me at my home and have made me happy.

"I want to ask you what crops you have harvested this year. I won't find fault if you have not done very well, nor if you have forgotten, for we older ones do the same thing, but struggle along again and resolve to do better. I want to suggest to you children that you foster the spirit that prompts us to speak a kindly word and that extends the hand heartily. Some of us have not had much education, some of us never graduated from college, but we can raise crops just the same.

"Let us cultivate the spirit of patience; let us cultivate that crop right here in our own city, in New York or wherever we may be. Another crop that we can cultivate is charity. Still another crop that we can raise is that of good will. Patience, charity and good will toward others are ever so much better for ourselves and for others than are the material crops that grow out of the ground.

"I feel like a sponge because I have absorbed so many blessings during my stay in the city, but I remind you that we should be like a pump which not only sucks up, but also gives out. If you will cultivate the virtues that I have mentioned you can make a heaven on earth for yourselves and for all those with whom you associate."

Yesterday was Mr. Rockefeller's last as superintendent of the Sunday school class of which he has had charge during the summer. He will return to New York city this week.

JURY DISAGREES

Result of Third Trial of Sandford, "Holy Ghost" Leader

Auburn, Me., Oct. 9.—The jury of the Androscoggin county supreme court which has been hearing the evidence of the trial of Rev. Frank W. Sandford, the leader of the Holy Ghost and Us society of Shiloh, on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Leander Bartlett, reported a disagreement. The jury was discharged by Judge Emery.

The trial was the third in which Sandford has been the defendant on the same indictment. The first trial, which was held here, resulted in a disagreement, and the second, which was held at Farmington, in Franklin county, on a charge of venue, terminated in a verdict of guilty. The case was then taken to the supreme court of the state and a new trial was ordered. The third trial occupied nearly an entire week. The jury was out eight hours.

Sandford was accused of ill-treating and neglecting Bartlett, who was the 14-year-old son of Mrs. Elvira Bartlett of Winchester, Mass., and thereby causing his death. The Bartletts were for a time inmates of the Shiloh colony. Next week it is expected that Sandford will be sentenced for neglecting his own child, the leader of the sect having been found guilty by the county court a short time ago.

The switch was open, there were leaves on the track, and the brakes refused to work. The moving car crashed into the car on the siding. Both cars were thrown from the rails and badly damaged, the moving car being practically wrecked.

Blank cartridges were shot off and buckets of water and bundles of paper on fire were thrown from rooms in Pierson hall on the heads of pedestrians. For nearly two hours they blocked York street.

SOFTNESS OF SEALSKIN.

Is Rivaled by Human Hair Where Dandruff is Eradicated.

Sealskin is admired the world over for its softness and glossiness; and yet the human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy; and the radical cause of all hair trouble is dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite that saps the vitality of the hair at its root. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to the dandruff germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a luxuriant growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scouring the scalp won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women owe their beautiful suits of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. SHARED THE ADVERSITY

Condition of Cloth Market at Fall River Said to Be Better Than For Years and Textile Workers Want to Share Profit

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 9.—The Fall River Textile council, at a meeting Sunday, voted to request the Manufacturers' association to restore the reduction of 12½ percent in wages which was made on July 25, 1904. Secretary Taylor of the council was instructed to ask the association to make the advance on Monday, Oct. 23.

The meeting was a long one and the textile situation in all its phases was discussed. Delegates were present from the Weavers, Carders, mule Spinners and Loomfixers' unions. The Slasher Tenders' union is not represented at this time in the council.

After the meeting Secretary Taylor said that the sentiment expressed at the meeting was that the operatives, of whom there are nearly 30,000 in the cotton mills of Fall River, had shared the adversity experienced by the manufacturers, and that as the cotton cloth trade had reached a stage of prosperity, the employes should have some share in the improved conditions.

The margin between the cost of manufacture and the selling price of cloth, it was stated, had now reached 81.5, whereas the margin fixed by Governor Douglas, when he acted as arbitrator just before the close of the great strike last winter, was 74.38, a basis which must be reached, the governor decided, before an advance of 5 percent in wages could be made. The decision of Governor Douglas, however, was not binding after April last, and the margin did not reach the figures named by him until well along in the summer.

The Textile council voted not to present a demand for an advance to M. C. D. Borden, owner of the Fall River Iron Works company, which operates six large cotton mills not represented in the Manufacturers' association. Borden reduced wages to conform with the lower scale paid in the other mills last winter, just as the strike was drawing to a close. No reduction was made in the Iron Works mills in 1904.

The union officials decided not to lay the question before Borden at this time, fearing that such action might be interpreted by the other manufacturers as an attempt to force them into some action by inducing Borden to take the initiative. Should the association make concessions, the union officers say they have no fear but that the Iron Works mills will do something for their 4000 or more employes.

Secretary Taylor addressed a letter today to the Manufacturers' association containing the request, and it is expected a meeting of the association will be called at an early date.

The condition of the cloth market here is said to be better than it has been for years. The mills have orders to keep them busy well up to the new year.

The manufacturers do not care to comment on the action of the Textile council until the association receives official notification.

Millersburg, Pa., Oct. 9.—Three men were killed, one man was injured and a carload of race horses were either killed or so badly hurt that they had to be shot, as the result of a collision between a fast mail train and a caboose and box car containing race horses. The mail train was preceded out of Harrisburg by a fast freight train which lost some time. The caboose and box car accidentally uncoupled at a junction and the mail train overtook them.

Cossack Brutality at Moscow

London, Oct. 9.—Special dispatches describe the desperate state of affairs at Moscow Saturday and Sunday. Many persons were killed or wounded in the rioting in a great square fronting the monastery, where the troops used sabres and rifles, firing point blank into the rioters. The authorities have issued a proclamation giving the police absolute power to prevent assemblages. Many of those arrested were made to run the gauntlet of a double line of Cossacks in a long, narrow courtyard, the soldiers brutally striking them with knouts and the butts of rifles until they dropped fainting or dead at the end of the line.

Sought Roosevelt's Aid

Washington, Oct. 9.—A young woman claiming to be Nadage Doree, a Russian, who says she has spent the greater part of her life in New York city, was arrested here while distributing circulars at the entrance of St. John's church. She has been in Washington since Thursday and on several occasions had visited the White House in an effort to see the president and, the police say, had been a cause of annoyance. Miss Doree says she was simply earnest in her efforts to get the president's aid in helping the oppressed Jews of her native land.

Killed Man In Self Defense

Binghamton, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Angelo May and Guiseppe De Angelo had trouble in a saloon, when De Angelo and a companion followed May, threatening to kill him. He kept warning them away with his revolver, until De Angelo headed him off. The two men then had him between them and De Angelo attempted to strike him, when May shot him through the head, killing him. Witnesses of the affray say that the shooting was entirely in self-defense. May was arrested, but his companion escaped.

NEW LEADERS

Conductor Johnson Comes to the Top.

Also Miss Peterson, the Bookkeeper.

Large Gains Made by Several of the Candidates.

There are unexpected shifts today in the Scholarship contest. The two Johnsons have been hustling and one of them, the conductor, is now in first place, and the engineer has moved up to third. Gains were made by Clerk Cash and others and there are new names in the men's list.

It is again necessary to remind one of the candidates that his name must appear on every coupon.

There is also a general shake-up among the young ladies, for Miss Peterson has moved up from fifth place to the top, and Miss Bates has secured second place. Good gains were made by Miss Ethel Merritt, Miss Margaret Manning, Miss Mildred Rogers and others.

The question has been asked,—Can transfers of votes be made? No transfers will be allowed.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

The editor requests that large packages of votes be sent flat, as it is difficult to count cupons which have been rolled. Please place also on the first coupon the number of votes sent.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

CONTRIBUTIONS ACKNOWLEDGED.

Those of $1 or More.

All Hospital Week contributions of $1.00 or more will be acknowledged through the press with the name and amount of each contributor, unless it is specifically requested that this be not done.

The Hospital Week Committee recognize that a contribution of 10 cents may be really a more generous gift than a contribution of $10, and no matter how small the contribution is it is most welcome, but the committee feel that it is not practical to thus acknowledge gifts of less than $1.00, and, as will be seen by referring to the article in "Our Hospital" entitled "At Least One Dollar," there is a special reason for acknowledging gifts of $1.00 or more.

A great effort is being made to pay the balance of the running expenses and cut in two the debt for there are very special reasons why this should be done now.

Last year the largest individual gift was $50—already eleven pledges have been received of $100each. Will you also "double or more" your usual contribution?

Religious Union.

The first meeting of the Wollaston Young People's Religious Union was held last evening in the vestry of the Unitarian church, Ernest Arnold, the president, conducted the opening exercises, and introduced Rev. Mr. Hunt as the speaker. Mrs. Herbert Gurney was to have addressed the young people but was prevented by sudden illness. Rev. Mr. Hunt gave a very excellent impromptu talk including much helpful advice to the Union.

Old Timers Defeated.

There was a hot game of football on the Ward Three playground Saturday afternoon between the Quincys and Resolutes, the latter eleven being composed of old-time players. The game was for a purse of a $100 and was won by the Quincys by a score of 4 to 0.

Without a formal opening, Mrs. S. I. Wood, Adams building, has placed this week for inspection a complete line of the latest novelties in fall and winter millinery. 2t

—"John," said Mrs. Flickerjy, as they walked home from the morning service, "It'll be a long time before I go to church with you again." "Why?" asked Mr. Flickerjy. "What's the matter now?" "When the man with the contribution plate nudged you, as he came to our pew, you half woke up and told him he'd have to wait till next week."

Objection to Location of Big Stable

Detriment to Health To Property and To the Morals

That the residents of Wollaston beach and Atlantic are thoroughly aroused over the proposition to locate the large stable of the Newell, Snowling Construction Co. in that locality was evident by the large number who appeared in opposition to the location asked at the hearing Monday night given by the Board of Health.

The hearing was held in the Council chamber and several were forcible in their declaration that the permit should not be granted.

The petition asked for a permit to build a stable for 45 horses off Jefferson street, Ward Six, is what is known as the hole of Coleman Bros. The petition stated that the location was 150 feet from the nearest house, 25 feet lower than the houses and nearly half a mile from the nearest church. Also that the petitioners owned lots on both sides.

Chairman Teasdale of the Board of Health presided. At the suggestion of P. R. Blackmur, counsel for E. C. Davis, a map showing the location desired was exhibited.

Tax Collector Cunningham was strenuous in his objection. The petition should not be granted. The location was in a thickly settled residential section and would be a detriment to property.

Councilman Gassett objected. The location desired was near houses and it would be an injury to the whole ward.

Councilman Sawyer objected. The fact of its being 25 feet below houses was bad. Physicians say that a hollow is no place for a stable on account of drainage.

Frederick A. Fogg—In the interest of the health of the whole ward the petition should not be granted. It would be in direct contact with houses on Charles street.

Councilman Gearwar—Aside from the sanitary conditions that would exist, there was the moral condition of such a place especially on Sundays.

Ralph W. Hobbs felt the granting of the petition would be like giving a black eye to the city.

Charles E. Gill said every resident who had children knew what objectionable places large stables were Counsel Blackmur said Mr. Davis objected to any locality near the houses as there was a liability that it would be a detriment to health.

Chairman Teasdale said the Board would like to hear from the residents of Ward Six whether there was any location that would not be objectionable.

Mr. Newell, representing the petitioner, said he wished it understood that his company would not pay for the privilege. Several letters had been received objecting, one stating if he could call at the writer's office matters might be fixed up.

Tax Collector Cunningham thought he should produce the letters. He has given the gentlemen here a black eye, and it was up to him to make good.

James S. Whiting said that he was the one probably referred to. He wrote the firm stating that he was about to build a house in that locality, and that he objected to the stable, but if the gentlemen would call at his office some satisfactory arrangement might be made.

Mr. Whiting read the letter in question.

Mr. Newall said that his company had another location containing 40 acres, known as the Hull farm.

The same objections were also made to that location by the gentlemen present.

Councilman Gearwar suggested what is known as the Hummock as a possible location.

This was also favored by Councilman Sawyer, Mr. Blackmur and others.

Mr. Newell said that the Park Commissioners would probably object to that. Continuing he said the company had secured practically the only place it could get. It was almost impossible to get a place that would be satisfactory to everyone.

Mr. Cunningham would rather forego the pleasure of a boulevard than have this stable.

In reply to a question, Mr. Newell said his contract expired in December 1906, and that he was under $20,000 bonds.

Chairman Teasdale, in reply to a question, said if any of the regulations for a stable were violated it would revoke the permit. The petition calls for a stable only, there can be no dwelling in the stable.

Mr. Newell—The men will be located on the Hull property whether the stable is there or not.

In reply to the further question, as to the extremes of his contract, Mr. Newall said it was from the Sailors Home to the Atlantic bridge.

At this point, no other gentlemen desiring to be heard, the hearing closed.

AN INSPIRING START.

May Everyone "Double or More."

The Hospital Week Committee in acknowledging with hearty thanks the eleven contributions of $100 each received prior to Hospital Week, most earnestly trust that these generous gifts will serve as an inspiration and that there may be other gifts of $100 and many gifts of $75, $50 and $25. Surely throughout all the gifts this spirit of "double or more" should prevail; for there are reasons, very real reasons, why we should pay the balance of our running expenses and cut in two the debt right now, and it will take $5000 to $6000 to do it—practically double last year's contribution.

The Bible Study Debating club of the Y. M. C. A. will be organized tomorrow evening, and will meet weekly on Wednesday evenings. It is open only to students of Quincy High school, Adams academy and Thayer academy, and the leader will be Raymond W. Noon, the boys work director. The first debate will take place Oct. 18 when the subject will be: Resolved: That is required greater faith to believe the promises made to Abraham than those made to Noah. Gen. v:28 through xxv: 8.

—While many Quincy people declare that the high price of land at Quincy Point prevents many home seekers from building homes there, it is shown by an advertisement in today's issue that their idea of the situation is wrong. In no part of the city can a desirable piece of land be bought at such a low price.

The Grand Army Fair

Opening Evening

Department Officials And Mayor Assist

Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., opened its annual grand fair Monday evening at the Coliseum and it will continue all the week. This year they have the united and hearty support of all the kindred organizations: the Woman's Relief Corps, the American Legion of Spanish War Veterans, and the Ladies' Aid Society, and a grand effort is being made to replenish the benefit fund of the Post.

The Post met at Grand Army hall early in the evening, and with the City Band and Spanish War Veterans as escort marched to the Coliseum. Red fire was burned at intervals along the route.

The guests of the evening were Chief Mustering Officer William H. Dupree of Boston, Mrs. Warne, representing the W. R. C., and Mayor James Thompson of this city. Senior Vice Commander Ring presided at the opening exercises. Commander Warner was on the platform, but was excused from taking an active part; also Albert Keating of this city who is on the staff of the Department Commander.

Chairman Ring spoke briefly and welcomed all to the fair.

Mayor Thompson brought the greetings of the city, commended the objects of fair, and urged all to make it a financial success.

Mrs. Warne was pleased to see the Woman's Relief Corps cooperating with the Grand Army. Their work should always be hand in hand.

Chief Mustering Officer Dupree represented the Department Commander and spoke of the necessity of a large benefit fund and hoped Quincy people would ever continue loyal to Paul Revere Post. He then declared the fair formally opened.

The City Band furnished popular and patriotic music during the evening.

There was a large attendance at the fair and the audiences will probably increase each evening.

The attractions and those in charge follow:

G. A. R. Table,—S. V. C. Thomas Ring, Mrs. Ring, Miss Ring and Miss Lizzie McIntosh.

Well known G. A. R. men took turns in the ticket office and as doorkeepers and in other ways helped to make the fair a success.

Without a formal opening, Mrs. S. I. Wood, Adams building, has placed this week for inspection a complete line of the latest novelties in fall and winter millinery. 2t

GOOD AFTERNOON.

Europeans profess to be shocked at the revelations of graft in this country. But no one has heard them raise any tainted money cry when they got their hands on an American tourist.

That Wisconsin mayor who ordered the police to shoot all college students who did not behave themselves, was evidently getting tired of an almost intolerable class of rowdies.

If no place can be found in the sparsely settled territory of Norfolk Downs for a temporary stable, as appeared from the hearing of Monday, certainly those living in the vicinity of some of the larger stables in Ward One have a just grievance. The new rules of the Board of Health should cause an abatement of some of these nuisances.

Quincy's railroad service is now most satisfactory. The expresses to and from Boston which were added in the spring have proved very popular, and now another has been added which will obviate a tedious wait which has robbed attendance at theatre of much of its pleasure. Many, doubtless, have been less frequently to the theatre because it was usually necessary to wait from 11.00 or earlier to 11.27 P. M. for a train to take them home. The new express, leaving Boston daily at 11.13 cuts out the wait, and will land passengers in Quincy about twenty minutes earlier. With 36 inward trains and 38 outward trains, many of them expresses, the Quincy service is excellent and a great improvement over a few years ago.

What makes Brookline such a desiable residential town is its careful attention to sanitation and attractive surroundings. Board of Health rules are very strict regarding stables, outbuildings, etc. No stable can be within ten feet of an adjoining lot and not then unless built according to strict rules. This applies to private stables for a few horses while for boarding and livery stables the lines are drawn much tighter and they are not allowed in the residential section. This is quite a contrast to the easy-going methods which prevail in Quincy, where unsightly outbuildings are seen on every hand as well as stables, without regard to surroundings. Much is expected however from the new Board of Health which is visiting other cities and towns to get all the latest and best ideas. It is said they intend to strictly enforce their rules and regulations.

Donnelly Given His Freedom

Boston, Oct. 10.—Councilman D. J. Donnelly, who was arrested on a charge of manslaughter, has been released from custody. Captain Dugan, who had listened to the facts of the case as given by witnesses of the affair, appeared before Judge Ely, and after hearing the evidence the court refused to grant a warrant. The police accordingly gave Donnelly his freedom. His arrest was due to the death of Patrick J. Grinley.

Alleged Murder of Child

Guildhall, Vt., Oct. 10.—An indictment charging murder in the first degree for the death by poisoning of his 3-year-old daughter, Lilla, has been found against Robert Waterman of Victory. At a preliminary hearing Waterman was held on a charge of manslaughter, bail being fixed at $4000. The investigation by the grand jury resulted in changing the charge to one of murder in the first degree.

Death Quickly Followed Marriage

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 10.—Albert W. Titus, a real estate dealer and broker of this city, died yesterday, aged 68. He was married last Sunday night to Miss Margaret L. Tobin. Titus had been in ill-health for a long time and when it was announced that he could not recover he decided to have a marriage ceremony performed in order that his estate might not be tied up by legal process.

Foundry and Stables Burned

Boston, Oct. 10.—The foundry of the R. Estabrook's Sons, South Boston, was burned this morning and a number of wooden stables in the vicinity and several business places were damaged. Thirty horses in the stables perished, and about 50 were rescued before the dense smoke overcame them. The flames originated in the foundry. The total loss is $50,000.

Merchants Want Tariff Revised

Boston, Oct. 10.—At the annual meeting of the Boston Associated Board of Trade, composed of 23 constituent trade bodies, a decided stand was taken in favor of tariff revision. Without dissention a resolution was adopted asking that certain raw materials, such as coal, iron, lumber and hides be placed on the free list.

Fatal Gunning Accident

Ellsworth, Me., Oct. 10.—Basil Reed, 14 years old, and Roy Eaton, a schoolmate, were gunning for ducks in a naphtha launch. Eaton had just fired at a bird when he dropped his gun and the second barrel was discharged. The charge struck Reed full in the breast, knocking him overboard. He was dead when taken from the water.

Freshies to Be Punished

New Haven, Oct. 10.—As a result of Sunday night's disturbances, it is said that some, perhaps all, of the freshmen athletics for the coming year will be cancelled by faculty vote. There was a conference last night of the city attorney and police officials in regard to the disorders, but the result of it was not made known.

Canada's Timber Ultimatum

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 10.—The provincial government has seized six large booms of logs that had been sold to United States mills and were being exported. The legislature announces that not a stick of provincial timber shall go into the United States and that Americans must manufacture here if they use British Columbia lumber.

To Be Submitted to Referendum

Christiana, Oct. 10.—After two days spent in excited discussion, the storthing, at 1:30 o'clock this morning, agreed to submit the Karlstad agreement concerning the dissolution of the union between Norway and Sweden to a referendum by a vote of 101 to 16. This is a great victory for the government.

The new timetable of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. appears in this issue.

THE LEADING ISSUE

President Considers It to Be Rate Legislation

A GEOGRAPHICAL FIGHT

Some Eastern Friends Unable to Agree With Him--Cabinet Changes Discussed In Recent Conferences at Washington

Washington, Oct. 10.—Enough conferences have been held by President Roosevelt with his cabinet and other influential advisers to make reasonably clear the legislative program of the administration for the coming session of congress.

No emphasis will be put upon the tariff. The president believes it impossible to make the public think of two questions of such magnitude as tariff revision and railroad rate regulation at the same time, and to attempt anything of the kind, he declares, along both lines would be to scatter the administration's energies and so invite defeat. The only influence that could make the tariff question acute would be a large deficiency in government revenues, calling for readjustment, and of that there is now little prospect.

Since last year the president's views of the railroad questions have assumed much more definite shape, so that his friends will go into the contest with a distinct knowledge of what he desires. Nevertheless the president will leave boundary lines somewhat vague in his message and other official announcements, because he realizes the compromise character of all important legislation, and wishes to be in a position to accept the result, provided anything substantial is obtained, without seeming to have sacrificed too much from what he had originally desired.

The rate-making power is the pivot of the controversy. It appears from the senators who have already conferred with the president that the fight will assume somewhat geographical lines. Some of his best senatorial friends in New England and on the eastern coast will probably be unable to go with him on the rate legislation. His attitude towards the sections has been this: He has carried New England, half afraid and half in protest, for certain of his legislative policies, while through the west he has had to preach conservatism, urging his friends in that section to be a little less strenuous. This general experience doubtless will be repeated the coming winter on the railroad legislation.

Considerable attention has been given in these recent White House conferences to the changes in the cabinet which will soon be necessary. The president's original plan to transfer Bonaparte to the department of justice, should Moody insist upon retiring in the spring, is somewhat discouraged by the aptitude which Bonaparte has developed for the place he now holds, and the considerable opportunity there for really effective work. It develops that Bonaparte is a much more aggressive naval advocate than the president himself, and would recommend a much more extensive building program, having less confidence than Roosevelt in disarmament. It has been assumed that George Von L. Meyer would succeed to this place when Moody left the cabinet, and this is still an administration plan. It was recently said of Meyer at a White House conference, that he had been assigned to the most critically important diplomatic post under the government, and had "made good."

The Gould-Ramsey Contest

Toledo, Oct. 10.—George J. Gould has arrived in Toledo ready for the annual meeting of the Wabash railroad. Joseph Ramsey, Jr., ex-president of the road, the former friend and present antagonist of Gould, is also on the ground, prepared to fight for the control of the Wabash system. Other directors of the road are here and all of them seem disposed to uphold Gould's interests. Ramsey, save for his legal advisers, seems to stand practically alone.

Calhoun Reaches Washington

Washington, Oct. 10.—Judge W. J. Calhoun, the special representative of the United States who has been making an investigation of conditions in Venezuela, arrived here last night. He will see President Roosevelt today and later in the week will go to his home in Chicago and there prepare his report. That work will occupy some weeks.

Brigands' Captive Minus an Ear

Salonica, Oct. 10.—The British consulate at Monastir has received a package containing a human ear which, a letter accompanying the package declares, was cut from an Englishman named Wills. Wills was captured by brigands and the letter threatens that he will be murdered unless a ransom of $5000 be paid by Oct. 14.

Child Safe While Elders Perished

Fourteen Perished in the Danube

Budapest, Oct. 10.—At midnight a tugboat ran down a fruit seller's punt in the Danube near Budapest. Fourteen women were drowned and many were seriously injured.

A CLEAN VICTORY

New York Nationals Take First Game In Great Contest

Philadelphia, Oct. 10.—Masterly pitching by Christy Mathewson, backed up by gilt-edged playing by the men behind him, gave the New York National league champions a victory over the Philadelphia American league pennant winners in the first of the series of seven games for the world's championship. Although defeated, Philadelphia played a brilliant game. It was a clean victory for the visitors, the element of luck cutting no figure in the contest.

Boston, Oct. 10.—If the baseball fans of Boston were sure of seeing as good a game of baseball every day during the Boston American-Boston National post-season series as they saw yesterday, 10,000 a day would be a moderate estimate of the attendance. The Tenney team played rings around the ex-champions.

Succumbed to Yellow Fever

New Orleans, Oct. 10.—A martyr in the fight against yellow fever, Dr. C. M. Shanley died at his plantation home on Bayou Barataria as the result of a relapse from yellow fever. When yellow fever appeared on Bayou Barataria he volunteered his services to stamp out the disease and for days and nights visited and ministered to the sick. Several weeks ago he was himself stricken. Exposure and the fact that he had ventured out too soon resulted in a fresh attack of the illness, and death came.

Platt's Counsel Asks For Facts

Omaha, Oct. 10.—Counsel for United States Senator Platt of New York and for the United States Express company, defendants in a civil suit recently brought by Mae C. Wood for $25,000, which she alleged to be due her for services rendered, has filed answer to the petition, praying that Miss Wood be required to explain in detail how she secured information from the postoffice department, and how she secured a modification of Postmaster General Payne's annual report, as she alleged.

The Young Court Martial

Mare Island, Cal., Oct. 10.—The court martial trial of Commander Young, accused of neglect of duty in connection with the boiler explosion of the Bennington, has been resumed. An objection by the judge advocate to the retention of Commander Winder on the court martial on account of his friendship for Young was overruled, as also was an objection to the presence of Naval Constructor Evans.

Scrimmage Lasted Six Hours

Hamilton, O., Oct. 10.—Bruce Lloyd was seriously injured and many girls and boys were scratched and bruised in a fierce scrimmage between the sophomores and freshmen of Miami university during a flag rush. The battle continued six hours. Sophomores captured 12 freshmen and freshmen 10 sophomores. Six girls from each class were run down and bound hand and foot and imprisoned. The sophomores failed to capture the flag.

Suspected of Drowning Wife

New York, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Katchen Duerr, 18 years old, and a bride, was drowned in the Harlem river last evening under circumstances that caused the arrest of her husband and of Charles Hahn, a boarder in the Duerr family, the latter being suspected as an accessory. The mother of the young woman says that the couple often quarreled and that Duerr had threatened to kill his wife.

Dougherty Indictments Pile Up

Peoria, Ills., Oct. 10.—The grand jury has reported 84 indictments against Newton C. Dougherty, in addition to the 13 already found. Forty-five of these are for forgery, and 39 are for embezzlement. Bonds are fixed in the sum of $1000 on each indictment for forgery and for $500 on each for embezzlement, making a total of $64,500.

No Clue to Triple Assassin

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 10.—To all appearances the authorities are still completely baffled in their efforts to solve the mystery of the triple tragedy at the Olney farm last Friday. It is now proposed to take bloodhounds to the scene, but it is felt that the chances of success are remote.

Followed Advice of Police

Washington, Oct. 10.—Nadage Doree, the young Jewess who was arrested while distributing circulars in front of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, has been discharged. Acting on the advice of the police officials to leave the city, the woman took a train for New York.

Smoothing Over Difficulties

Budapest, Oct. 10.—According to the newspapers, Baron Fejervary has already been reappointed premier. It is reported that the coalition parties have decided to abandon the proposal to move the impeachment of the Fejervary cabinet.

LONDON COSTER GIRLS.

They Must Sport Ostrich Plumes on Their Holiday Outings.

Ostrich plumes are as much a necessity to the London coster girl on her outings as are the pearl buttons to her masculine companion, and the big trimmed hats with their drooping feathers are familiar in all gatherings of this class.

Many of the girls cannot afford to keep their money tied up in useless plumes, and there thrives a brisk industry in the hiring of these feathers. The loan of a single plume for a day costs but 1 shilling, or for 4 shillings a gorgeous trio may be had for an outing, to be returned promptly the next morning.

Weather conditions determine the terms somewhat, since a wet or foggy day will take the curl out of the feathers and make recurling necessary, for which "'Arriet" has to pay an extra shilling. On a bank holiday some shops rent out several hundred plumes, while on other occasions there is a steady trade with young women who wish to adorn themselves for an outing.—London Standard.

SURPRISE AT ELECTION

Authors Whittier and Lowell and General Sherman Will Receive Tablets--No Educator or Juror Chosen by Electors

New York, Oct. 10.—The votes in the second election for the Hall of Fame were canvassed by Chancellor MacCracken and Professors Stevenson and Stoddard of New York university. Only three names were chosen to receive tablets in the five classes in which the canvassing was completed, those of John Greenleaf Whittier and James Russell Lowell in the class of authors and that of General William T. Sherman in the class of soldiers.

The results of the election furnished many surprises. Oliver Wendell Holmes missed election by only three votes, receiving 48 of the 51 necessary, the full board of electors numbering 100. The greatest surprise of the day was the defeat of Edgar Allen Poe, who received only 43 votes, the same number received by James Fenimore Cooper. Among the other literary men who failed of election were William Cullen Bryant, Francis Parkman, and John L. Motley, each of whom received 46 votes, and Horace Greeley and George Bancroft, who were tied with 39 votes.

In the class of teachers no nominee received 51 votes and this corner of the Hall of Fame will receive no addition this year. Phillips Brooks, who received 49 votes, was the leader in this class, Mark Hopkins, with 38, being second.

No jurist or scientist was chosen, Rufus Choate who led in the former class, receiving only 31 votes, while Joseph Henry, who led the scientists, received 32. Chief among the soldiers who failed of election were Nathaniel Greene, with 38 votes, "Stonewall" Jackson with 21 and George Rogers Clark with 20.

Chancellor MacCracken, commenting upon the failure to elect Poe, who had been regarded as certain of election, said that the result should not be ascribed to the defects of the poet's moral nature, but to the lack of sincerity in his poetry. He expressed considerable surprise at the failure to choose an educator or jurist, though the failure in the latter class was due to the fact that the supreme court judges, who compose a fourth of the jury, showed considerable reluctance to voting for any jurist. The election will continue today.

The Hall of Fame was opened at University Heights five years ago, at which time 29 tablets were unveiled dictated to the following great Americans: Emerson, Longfellow, Irving, Hawthorne, Edwards, Horace Mann, Beecher, Channing, Fulton, Norse, Whitney, Audubon, Gray, Grant, Farragut, Lee, Washington, Lincoln, Webster, Franklin, Jefferson, Clay, John Adams, Marshall, Kent, Storey, Peabody, Stuart and Peter Cooper.

A new building is to be erected in the near future to form an addition to the present Hall of Fame, which will be devoted to women and foreign born Americans.

Half Owner of Washington Post

Washington, Oct. 10.—John R. McLean, owner of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has purchased from the Wilkins estate an even half interest in the Washington Post company. The amount of the purchase money is understood to be in the neighborhood of $600,000. McLean will be made president of The Post company and will take an active part in connection with John F. Wilkins in the management of the paper.

Would Retire Old Officers

Washington, Oct. 10.—In his annual report to the secretary of war, Brigadier General Williams, commanding the department of the Columbia, advocates a plan for the compulsory retirement of officers to ensure the accession to high commands of men young enough for active field work. He would have no captain over 40 years old. General Williams urges the restoration of the army canteen.

Council Disagrees With Dunne

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Mayor Dunne placed his "contract plan" for the municipal ownership before the city council last night and it was defeated by a vote of 45 to 18. The plan provided for the organization of a corporation and the issuance of certificates. Out of the sale of these certificates the first 90 miles of street railway was to be constructed, paralleling existing lines.

Four Men Badly Burned

Rochester, Oct. 10.—Four men were seriously, if not fatally, burned at Watkins by an explosion of natural gas. The men were working in the house containing the high-pressure regulator of the Consumers' Natural Gas company. The gas main had been tapped to make a connection and gas was escaping from the opening when it ignited.

Quiet Restored at Moscow

Moscow, Oct. 10.—Complete order has been restored in the streets by the police and military patrols, re-enforced by a regiment of dragoons from Tver. No one was killed during the disturbances of Saturday, but 75 persons were wounded.

CANNOT BREAK HIS NECK

Alleged Murderer Immune From a Gallows Execution

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Because of a peculiar freak of nature Robert Gardiner, a prisoner in the county jail here, charged with the murder of Agnes Morrison, may escape the death penalty. When he was arraigned in court his attorney, William Buckner, startled the court by turning to Assistant State Attorney Barbour and saying:

"This is a case where it won't do you any good to ask for the death penalty. They can't break this man's neck if they do try to hang him and you may lose him altogether by hanging him and failing to execute the sentence in full."

It appears that the prisoner is suffering from ossification of the vertebrae and tissues of the neck. According to Professor Stevenson of the Rush Medical college, only five cases similar have ever come to the notice of the medical profession.

Gardiner, who was formerly a cashier, carries his head tilted forward and slightly twisted to one side. He is unable to move his head or incline it except with great effort and is hardly able to eat or speak, owing to the effect of the ossification on the sympathetic membranes of the throat and bronchial tubes.

Attorney Buckner declares that the hardening of bone and the tissue has proceeded so far that it would be impossible to bring any strain upon the patient's neck that would be sufficiently severe to cause any discomfort other than a slight straining of the muscles.

Laborers Prove Themselves Heroes

New York, Oct. 10.—Twenty persons, young and old, were rescued from death in a blazing tenement in Sixth street last night by two unknown laborers at work on a gas main in the street and three policemen, every one of the panic-stricken tenants being saved before the arrival of the firemen. The laborers rushed into the blazing building and, making their way to the upper floor, helped many women and children to the fire escapes. They were soon joined by three policemen who stationed themselves on the escape galleries and passed the occupants down from hand to hand. The upper floors of the building were gutted.

Roosevelt Considers Football

Washington, Oct. 10.—President Roosevelt entertained at luncheon yesterday Messrs. Nichols and Reid of Harvard, Hillebrand and Fine of Princeton, and Camp and Osley of Yale, the six guests constituting the athletic advisors of the respective colleges named. The president desired to consider with them particularly the morale of the game of football with a view to eliminating much of its brutality, if possible. No definite conclusions were reached, the idea of the president being simply to start the ball rolling in the direction of a modification of the rules of the game.

Disagree as to Bearings

Conneaut, O., Oct. 10.—The United States revenue cutter Morrill captured the American fish tug Valient of Erie while, according to Captain Walker of the Morrill, the tug was several miles across the Canadian line. The captain of the fish tug maintains that he was not over the line and in proof says that the Canadian cruiser Vigilant passed him several times in that vicinity without molestation. Captain Walker has wired Washington for instructions.

Pay Director Criticised

Washington, Oct. 10.—Secretary Bonaparte will shortly be called on to consider the case of Pay Director Ring, whose administration as general storekeeper of the navy yard at Boston has been investigated by a court of inquiry. It is understod that the court criticised the business methods of Ring as lax and careless, but entirely free from criminality, and criticised him for having engaged in unofficial correspondence regarding official matters.

Couple Found Dead In Road

Haskell, I. T., Oct. 10.—The bodies of Miss Margaret Linsay, a schoolteacher, and Joseph B. Young, a barber, were found in the road three miles north of Haskell. There were marks of violence on the bodies. The couple were last seen alive when they drove out of Haskell in a buggy.

NEWS IN BRIEF

While waiting for a jury to report in the first session of the superior court at Boston, Hugh McClellan, a court officer, aged 50, dropped dead of heart disease.

A favorable shift of wind prevented the serious spreading of a fire which broke out in the barrel factory of Goepper Bros., at Cambridge, Mass. The loss is $35,000. Several firemen were overcome by smoke.

Fire at the plant of the Augusta Lumber company, one of the largest lumber concerns on the Kennebec river, destroyed a large amount of property. Schooner Winnegance, which lay at the company's dock, narrowly escaped destruction. The loss is $10,000.

Public bequests amounting to $245,000 are contained in the will of Charles T. Baker, a Boston insurance broker. The bequests become operative at the death of the testator's sister, who enjoys the income of the residuary estate during her life.

The gunboat Paducah has left New York for a cruise to shake down her machinery and to drill her crew. This is her initial trip to sea.

Dr. John A. Ouchterlong, 67 years old, surgeon, author and professor, died at Louisville of a complication of diseases. He had occupied chairs in medical colleges in many cities. He was knighted several years ago by King Oscar of Sweden.

TO KILL THE DANDRUFF GERM.

Is the Only Possible Way of Having An Effective Cure.

If you see a woman or a man with luxuriant glossy hair, you may be sure neither has dandruff to amount to anything. In nearly every case where women and men have thin brittle hair, they owe it to dandruff. There are hundreds of preparations that "claim" to cure dandruff, but not one but Newbro's Herpicide tells you that dandruff is the result of a germ burrowing into the scalp, and that permanent cure of dandruff and its consequent falling and baldness, can only be had by killing the germ; and there is no other preparation that will destroy that germ but Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

BEATING REVENUE

Systematic Smuggling on Part of Dominicans

GOODS LANDED IN HAYTI

Carried Across Border at Profit of Over $350,000 a Year--Now Being Checked by Our Government--Cannibalism In Hayti

Washington, Oct. 10.—H. F. Worley, an agent of the insular bureau, who was sent to Santo Domingo to investigate the revenue conditions on the border between the Dominican and Haytian republics, has made a partial report to the war department.

He estimates that the smuggling that has been going on across this border has cost the Dominican government from $350,000 to $400,000 a year. The method was to land goods at points in Hayti and send them by coasting vessels near the Dominican line. They were then carried over the border by mule trains.

Some of the largest mercantile houses in Monte Cristi had their warehouses far inland where these goods were smuggled across the border. Worley was sent down there to establish custom houses in the interior between the two countries, and he was warned that if he attempted to carry out his instructions he was liable to be assassinated, so determined are the smugglers to continue their traffic.

But custom houses have been established and others will be established until it will be impossible to continue the smuggling. The department doubtless will send enough men to Santo Domingo to protect the revenues of the government. The tariff in Santo Domingo, according to estimates made by Worley, is about 73 percent ad valorem, which is a great inducement to smugglers.

Mr. Worley also made a trip into the interior of Hayti while he was on the island, and says that reports were often brought to him of savage customs in the wildest regions, including cannibalistic feasts where the victims are babies. These reports were sufficiently authentic to be believed by him.

Plea For Universal Two-Cent Postage

London, Oct. 10.—John H. Heaton, Conservative member of parliament, known as the "father of the imperial penny postage," publishes a strong plea for a universal 2-cent postage. "If two ounces of printed matter can be sent anywhere for a half-penny," he says, "why should not a half ounce of written matter be sent for one penny? The world's postoffices are worked at a profit." He says it costs 5 cents to send a letter 21 miles to France and only 2 cents to send one 1100 miles to the Fiji islands.

Plough Nobler Than Sword

Paris, Oct. 10.—In a notable interview in The Echo De Paris, Leou She Shun, the new Chinese minister here, refers to the reawakening of China and endeavors to dispel the fears of a "yellow peril," pointing out that the Chinese consider the plough to be nobler than the sword. He admits that a reorganization of the forces is under consideration, but says it is a purely defensive measure, and refutes the report that Japan is to have a preponderating influence in China.

Dead Body Found In Trunk

Havana, Oct. 10.—The body of Ramon Carmona, manager of a trunk store, was found inside a locked trunk which had been concealed in a remote corner of the store underneath a stairway. Suspicion points to a youth who had been employed in the store and slept there. Carmona had opened his safe, presumably under compulsion, and $2000 had been taken from it.

Pushing the Peace Treaty

Washington, Oct. 10.—The treaty of peace between Russia and Japan will become effective upon its approval, without waiting the formal exchange of ratifications at Washington. This information was imparted at the Japanese legation. This course has been decided upon that the speediest possible termination of the war may be had.

Won't Speak at Philadelphia

Cincinnati, Oct. 10.—Because of municipal troubles at Philadelphia and the impropriety of his participating therein, Senator Foraker has cancelled his engagement to speak in Philadelphia Oct. 18. Foraker denies rumors that the administration was offended by his acceptance of the Philadelphia invitation.

Crowe Lands In Omaha Jail

Omaha, Oct. 10.—Pat Crowe, alleged kidnapper of Eddie Cudahy, arrived last evening from Butte, Mont., in custody of detectives. An immense throng greeted Crowe with cheers at the Union station. The prisoner was rushed to jail in a patrol wagon.

NO FULL RESTORATION

But Fall River Mill Men May Advance Wages Somewhat

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 10.—The current expression of opinion among manufacturers on the wage request is that they will be forced to grant some kind of an advance. They feel much disturbed at the action of the union leaders in requesting the restoration of the full reduction in this city, when nothing has been done in Rhode Island, where the print cloths were sold at 3 5-8 cents, which led to the sharp change in the wage margin. There is no disposition to hurry the matter of considering the request.

The most common talk heard is that mills are not running under contracts made on the present margin, but from 12 to 14 percent below it. They concede that as it is their wish to have wages controlled by margins, they must consider any request based on them. They say the advance should not be granted until it is clear that the margin is reasonably fixed at or above certain figures, and for that reason some of them do not want any hasty action taken.

No manufacturer is willing to say that a full restoration will be forthcoming on the date fixed by the Textile council, while nearly all of them say positively that they will not favor a large advance under the present conditions.

Disagreement of Cole Jury

Portland, Me., Oct. 10.—The trial of Edward F. Cole on a charge of murdering John F. Steeves at Falmouth terminated this morning by the jury reporting a disagreement. The case occupied the attention of the county court for one week. The prosecution submitted evidence to show that Cole induced Steeves to go to the Falmouth woods and killed him. The motive alleged was robbery. The evidence was nearly all of a circumstantial nature.

A FUSSY MOTHER.

She Is Liable to Ruin the Nerves of Her Children.

Across the aisle from me sat one of the fussy kind of mothers with her little girl, evidently about five years old. The mother didn't leave the child in peace for one minute. She took off her hat, she smoothed her hair, she repinned her collar, she wiped her face with her pocket handkerchief, she took her from her seat and stood her on the floor to straighten her frock, then she sat her back again. She took off her hair ribbon and retied it, she looked in her eye to see if there was a cinder in it, then she began at the beginning and did all these things over again.

The child grimly endured. Evidently she had been accustomed to it all her short life. The world to her was a queer, tiresome place in which mothers exhausted their energies and got their nerves on edge by paying useless attentions to little girls.

A physician sat behind me and watched the scene.

"Has the woman no sense?" he said to me in an undertone. "Every touch pushes that child nearer the sanitarium that will one day open its doors to take her in as sure as fate."

"Poor little one!" I said. "Is there no hope for her?"

"Not with that mother," grimly replied the doctor.—Boston Herald.

HER FAVORITE VEHICLE.

Next to the Goeart This Woman Likes the Wheel Hoe.

I'm sorry for the woman whose standards, social or physical, do not permit her to handle a hoe. It seems to me as graceful an instrument as a golf club. An hour's exercise along a tidy garden row will produce the finest kind of a glow, and, withal, you get so much more done with a hoe! It is but a poor spirited person who will "putter with flowers," but dare not work in the vegetable garden for fear that some one may think she has to do it. If the neighbors are scandalized because I turn the baby loose in the shade on the grass and push the wheel hoe instead of the perambulator it is their lookout. Perhaps now they are dying to dig and have not quite dared for fear of my scathing criticism! Let them know the worst. I purpose to dig, to rake, to sow, to weed, to hoe and to harvest for the sake of what I get out of it in mental growth, flowers, exercise, aesthetic uplift and vegetables. I shall take my turn, too, with the bicycle, the tennis racket and the golf clubs, but next to the gocart the wheel hoe is my favorite vehicle!—Mary Rogers Miller in Success Magazine.

NERVOUSNESS.

Its Causes, Its Cure and Its Evil Effects if Unchecked.

There are five causes of nervousness: (a) Low vitality of the nervous system; (b) the faculties of self mastery being weak; (c) loss of sleep; (d) the use of improper foods and drinks; (e) association with erratic, excitable, nervous, idiotic, insane, cynical and pessimistic people.

When the life force is constantly leaving the body at the finger tips, at the feet, through the eyes, at the knees, at the hands and at the elbows a person becomes nervous. In order to overcome these losses a person should learn to control every movement. A restless foot, an uneasy eye, a swinging leg, involuntary motions, a trembling voice, an uneasy step, jerky actions, anger, irritability, pessimism, sudden starts, etc., are signs of nervousness. Unless a person develops his faculties of self mastery, unless he increases vitality of the nervous system, unless he gets the sleep which is necessary each and every day, unless he eats the right kind of foods and drinks the right kind of drinks and unless he associates with the right kind of people he will become more nervous. Lastly he will become a physical and mental wreck. He will become old looking and haggard. He will die before his time.—Human Culture.

Fooling Thackeray.

It is related that when he first visited Ireland Thackeray took a drive on a Dublin car some distance into the country. Milestones had recently been erected along the roads, and on each was printed the number of miles with the letters "G. P. O.," distances being measured from the general postoffice. Thackeray was unaware of this and in his thirst for information asked the carman what the letters meant. The prompt reply was, "God preserve O'Connell." Thackeray believed what he was told, but the incident only appeared in the first edition of his book.

Hard Woods.

The hardest known wood is cocus wood. It is much used in the manufacture of flutes, clarinets and other instruments. The tone which it produces is rich and powerful. Another very hard wood is that of the desert ironwood tree. It has a black heart so hard when well seasoned that it will turn the edge of an ax and can scarcely be cut by a well tempered saw.

Cynical, but Probably True.

A cynical philosopher is quoted as saying that the average inhabitant of England—or any other country, for that matter—would feel the loss of his own little finger more acutely than he would the intelligence that the whole of China had been destroyed by some convulsion of nature.

With and Without.

"Oh, doctor," exclaimed a rheumatic patient, "I suffer dreadfully with my hands and feet."

"But, my dear sir," rejoined the physician, "just try to think how much inconvenience you would suffer without them."

Common sufferings are far stronger links than common joys.—Lamartine.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

This is Hospital Week.

The Wakefield High school has cancelled its foot ball game with Quincy High scheduled for today.

The case of Wilbur T. Larkin vs Harry P. Nawn for damages to land is on trial in the Superior court at Dedham.

Howard W. Wilkinson of Newburyport will be the speaker this evening at the opening meeting of Bethany Brotherhood and an interesting talk is promised. Ice cream and cake will be served.

It is good news to her many friends that Miss Jeannette Sanders of Wayland, a former teacher in Quincy, has been appointed teacher in Boston, in the school in which Edward Southworth of Quincy is head master.

Even though the Squantum Inn is closed, autoists make a hasty retreat from the city these glorious Sundays and try the salt breeze from different parts of Squantum. They do not have to try it long to be assured of its invigorating qualities.

The rapid strides made on the masonry of the Hancock street bridge were greeted with no end of appreciation at the Atlantic station Monday morning. The street where the track of the Squantum cars have been taken up has at last assumed lines of definite curbing and it ought not to be long before the cars will run from Squantum to Neponset without necessitating a walk through sand and stones to make connections.

TODAY'S COURT.

Fred H. Loveland was arraigned upon two complaints. One for exceeding the speed limit with an automobile at Randolph, and one operating an automobile without a license. Both cases were placed on file upon payment of costs amounting to $3.26

Fred Cheesman was fined $10 for exceeding the speed limit with an automobile at Randolph

Frank Procedo was arraigned for carrying a gun and revolver on the Metropolitan Park boulevard at Quincy, and was fined $3.

Thousand Mark Passed

Clerk Cash Moves Up

Also Miss Merritt In Ladies' List

It is gentlemen's day in the Free Scholarship cnatest, and most of the leaders have made gains. Conductor Johnson not only passes the thousand mark but has over 1100 to his credit. Clerk Cash has passed Engineer Johnson.

Miss Merritt made the largest gain in the ladies' list, and is now number five, but has a close rival in Miss Pitts. Other gains will be noted.

The question has been asked,—Can transfers of votes be made? No transfers will be allowed.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

The editor requests that large packages of votes be sent flat, as it is difficult to count cupons which have been rolled. Please place also on the first coupon the number of votes sent.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Blasting With Acetylene.

A new process for using calcium carbide in blasting is described in a French magazine. A sheet iron cylinder is used as a cartridge. It has three separate compartments — one containing calcium carbide, another water and the third only air and an electric fuse. The cartridge is placed in the drill hole, the latter closed by a wooden plug, and the water in the cartridge then allowed, by a special device, to flow into the carbide compartment. After about five minutes, during which time the cartridge has become filled with a mixture of acetylene and air under high pressure, the electric fuse is ignited by a current, and a violent explosion results.

New Liquid a Marvel.

Dr. Artz, inventor of zorene, a fluid which is said to preserve metals from the effects of oxygen, to double the density of nearly every kind of stone and to be a germicide of enormous power, recently demonstrated the fluid's powers before a gathering of scientists and contractors in London. Zorene is an attractive looking liquid of a rich raisin red, like sirup. It smells strongly of sulphur and india rubber. It is harmless. The composition of it is a secret. It is said that Dr. Artz stumbled upon the solution while searching in the Acropolis at Athens.—London Chronicle.

A Comfortable Bicycle.

A novel bicycle has been built in London which has been pronounced "as comfortable as a rocking chair" and which shows remarkable mechanical ingenuity. This new machine is fitted with an antivibrating easy chair-like saddle which affords wonderful relief to a tired back and which proves a luxury when coasting down long hills. The ladies' machines are meeting with particular favor.

The Largest Flower.

Sumatra grows the largest flower in the world. It measures a yard and three inches across, and its cup will hold six quarts of water. Rafflesia arnoldii is its name.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

DR. TRUE'S ELIXIR

If worms are present they will be expelled. If no worms exist this wonderful medicine acts gently, yet positively, in toning up the whole system to rugged health.

CENTRE ABINGTON, MASS.

DR. TRUE,

DEAR SIR:—I wish to inform you of the success I have had in using your Elixir. I gave it to my children and after the third dose, one of them, a boy six years old, passed a long round worm which I believe is more than six inches long, what you call a stomach worm. I also wish to say it is one of the safest and best medicines to have in the house for children. I would not be without it now. Sincerely yours, Mrs. Henry C. Joy.

Midnight Visit

Quincy Clue In Suit Case

State Police [illegible]

Quincy [illegible]

Believing that information received that a solution of the Winthrop dress suit case mystery might be found in Quincy, two officers of the State police made a visit to this city last night. They arrived about midnight and securing a carriage drove off.

Half an hour latter they returned and visited the telephone office in the Savings Bank building.

They kept the telephone wires between Quincy and Boston busy for nearly an hour.

They then got into their carriage and drove down Hancock street toward Boston and were seen no more.

The local police know nothing of the affair, not having been informed of the names of any persons concerned.

The information of the state police is said to have come from a government officer who visited the state police Monday night and imparted to them a story he had been told by a young lady whose friend, a Scotch girl, was missing under suspicious circumstances.

Defeat the Makaria Fraternity at Bowling.

The Makaria Fraternity met defeat at the hands of the Y. M. C. A. bowling team Monday evening at the Association alleys. It was the second match between the two organizations and the crowd of onlookers were kept in a state of excitement throughout.

Owing to various incidents some of the regulars on both teams were unable to be present so substitutes were used, yet the totals were higher than the first game, J. Ruggles taking the honors for highest total.

Quincy To Wed

Bride to be Miss Honey Daughter of Col. Honey

The announcement was made in Newport, R. I., on Tuesday of the engagement of Miss Mary Honey and ex-Mayor Josiah Quincy of Boston, a native of Quincy. The wedding will take place in New York at an early date.

Miss Honey is the daughter of Colonel Samuel R. Honey, an officer of the regular army during the Civil war, and afterwards. He has been in the Rhode Island Legislature two or three terms, was Lieutenant-Governor of this State, Mayor of Newport, and represented Rhode Island on the national Democratic committee from 1888 to 1896. His last public service was as a delegate to the Democratic national convention of 1904, in the Parker interest. He is one of the leading lawyers of the State and has offices in Newport and New York.

Miss Honey is well known in the musical circles of New York, is a talented pianist and patroness of art. The engagement is said to be the result of a summer abroad, from which they have both recently returned. Miss Honey is a handsome woman of about 26, and has been living in New York in recent years. Her mother died in 1900.

Mr. Quincy prepared for college at Adams Academy in this city, and was graduated at Harvard in 1880 in the class with President Roosevelt. He represented Quincy and Weymouth in the Legislature, and took a prominent part in drafting the city charter of Quincy. He had an appointment at Washington in the Cleveland administration and afterwards was Mayor of Boston.

Mr. Quincy was married while in London, at St. George's Church, Hanover square, Feb. 17, 1900, to Mrs. William Tyler, widow of Professor William R. Tyler, who was head master of the Adams Academy at Quincy, Mass., and who died in November, 1897.

Mr. Quincy, by his marriage to Mrs. Tyler, also had the son of Mrs. Tyler, a lad 16 years of age, take the name of Quincy. There is also a son, who was born at Florence, Italy, in May, 1903. Mrs. Quincy died in January, 1904, and because of the recent death the coming marriage will be private.

A Mock Session Of City Council

Bethany Brotherhood opened its season of monthly meetings on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. Councilman Sidelinger, the president, presided.

At the business session committees were appointed, and it was voted to have a public entertainment later when a mock session of the Quincy City Council will be the attraction.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Howard S. Wilkinson, pastor of the M. E. church, Newburyport, who spoke very interestingly on the subject: "Variety in religious experiences." He related many incidents illustrating his points, which were helpful.

Ice cream and cake were served at the close of the meeting, and there was a social hour.

The Creditors To Hold Meeting

Theophilus King, president of the insolvent Quincy Quarries Company of which Thomas J. Dunphy has been appointed receiver, has issued a call for the meeting of the creditors and bondholders to be held at Quincy Music hall tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. An attempt will be made to reorganize the company.

DR. SHEAHAN.

Tribute by Former Master of Quincy High School.

Frederic Allison Tupper, head master of the Quincy High school a few years ago, pays a high tribute of respect to his friend Dr. Sheahan in the Boston Transcript of Monday. He says:

In the death of Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan not only Quincy and its vicinity but the entire country has met with a most serious loss. His unfaltering devotion to his profession, his unfailing kindness to his patients, all of whom were his friends, his unstinted generosity to the benevolent orders with which he was connected, cannot be too highly praised.

His services in the cause of public education afford a splendid example of personal sacrifice in the interests of the people. As chairman on the committee on high schools of the city of Quincy, he exhibited the most enlightened, able and progressive leadership in securing for the boys and girls of Quincy forever the unspeakably valuable opportunities of the best secondary education. Not satisfied with performing the ordinary duties of a member of the school committee in a most acceptable manner, by his sterling character and extraordinary ability he gave new dignity to his public offices.

In pursuance of the plan of developing a great public High school in Quincy, he not only favored and carried to a successful accomplishment every measure tending to the improvement of the school, but he made frequent visits to the institution, established prizes for excellence in English composition and in translation from Greek, Latin, French and German, was the honored friend of the headmaster, the teachers, and the pupils, and took the keenest personal interest in the welfare of everyone connected with the school. He even took time to conduct classes in his favorite subject of French literature in which he was more proficient than any other American whom I have ever met.

In his own career and in his unceasing interest in public education in all of its departments he manifested that "passion for education" so characteristic of the highest American type. His familiarity with the humanities was extraordinarily broad and deep. By his remarkable natural ability, his singularly retentive memory, his preparatory, collegiate, and professional study, supplemented by that literary and artistic culture which is like the breath of life to men of his type of mind, Dr. Sheahan developed in the face of many difficulties and discouragements a personality that exercised a perpetual charm over countless friends.

Himself an athlete of the highest and most honorable type, he lent his sanction to outdoor games and many sports. But he was the unequivocal foe of all professionalism and trickery in athletics.

His devotion to the humanities in the midst of unusually exacting professional duties, in this age of materialism, was most delightful to contemplate. His intuitively felicitous translations from Greek, Latin and French were exquisite in the grasp of the spirit and the beauty of the form.

A genial humor pervaded his entire life. Like Sophocles: "He saw life steadily and saw it whole."

An astonishing familiarity with the best in art, whether in literature, painting, sculpture, architecture, music, or the drama, gave great significance to his criticism, which had permanent value because founded on what a widely known writer has declared to be the elements of criticism, namely, "Knowledge, taste, character."

How many delightful hours have I spent with him in that sacred past discussing Homer, Virgil, Horace, Corneille, Racine, Beranger, De Musset, Victor Hugo, Thackeray, and many another gifted with the "feu sacre!" How many hints have I gained from him about education, art, and human nature! "To know him was a liberal education."

Wollaston Club

Legal Status of Christian Science

The Wollaston Unitarian club opened the season Tuesday evening by a large gathering of members. At 6.30 a banquet was served in the vestry of the church including a fine clam chowder, roast beef with gravy, mashed potatoes, spaghetti, rolls, raspberry sherbet, frozen pudding and coffee.

Walter E. Simmons, the new president, presided. A special committee reported new by-laws, which under the rules were laid on the table.

The speaker of the evening was Prof. George E. Gardner, dean of the law school of Boston University, on the legal status of Christian Science.

Prof. Gardner said at the outset that he did not intend to discuss Christian Science, and it was not his purpose to antagonize the Scientists. He admitted that it has practically done in many cases much good.

Physicians who practice medicine, he said, were obliged to take out licenses. In Nebraska an examination is required. The civil liabilities of regular physicians were outlined. The courts hold that they must exercise skill and care.

No test, he said, could be applied to Christian Scientists. The only court case was in New Hampshire.

Relative to the criminal liability, where a Scientist doctored to the disadvantage of a patient, he said the question of individual liberty enters. With a parent or guardian of a minor child, it was different. There was an old English law that parents shall supply medical treatment. It was also a law in New York and Ohio.

In Massachusetts there were but two decisions. An uneducated Beverly doctor was indicted, but the judge ruled there had been no unlawful act. A West Boylston uneducated doctor, however, was convicted, it being maintained that he was foolhardy and liable.

The speaker considered these cases in connection with Christian Science doctoring. He said, sooner or later, a case would arise against the Scientist, when the court may rule against them.

A discussion of subject of Christian Science followed, in which R. F. Claflin, W. G. Corthell, Eugene H. Sprague, J. H. Broughton, Frank E. Parlin and Mr. Cummings took part.

Rev. E. W. Hunt, the new pastor of the Unitarian church, was then initiated into the club, being requested to make a speech. He responded happily, telling several stories and emphasizing the fact that a club may stand for a vital force in a community.

All stood when a rising vote of thanks was proposed for Prof. Gardner, the speaker of the evening.

Women's Club

House Warming Musical Program Inspect Clubhouse Informal Reception

A woman's club in Quincy is an assured fact, a fact none could doubt who attended the housewarming at the Brackett house on Tuesday afternoon. In the spring informal meetings were held and the club organized, but it is only now that the actual club life has been entered upon.

Of the three hundred members about two hundred and fifty assembled Tuesday, showing the enthusiasm of the Quincy ladies for the new movement. An informal meeting was held at three o'clock, the president, Mrs. E. C. Bumpus, presiding. She welcomed the members, and told of the work done during the summer in preparing the Brackett house for occupancy by the club.

She announced the gift of a piano from Mrs. George W. Morton and called for a rising vote of thanks, which met with quick response.

It was thought the members would be pleased to hear of the success of their first philanthropic work—visiting nursing—and Mrs. May Willis Hatch was introduced, who told most entertainingly of what had been accomplished. She entered upon her duties July 22, having five cases that month; in August, 75, 23 of which were in one week during the intense heat, and in September, 93. It will be seen that the work is growing each month, and has now become a necessity. Mrs. Hatch was grateful to the ladies who had so generously contributed toward the supply closet which had been a great help in the work.

The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, chairman of the music committee, and proved a veritable musical treat. There were songs by Mrs. Smith of Medfield who had a remarkably sweet sympathetic voice; piano solos by Miss Horton of Atlantic, and violin solos by Mr. Walter E. Loud of this city, who received quite an ovation and played two selections so beautifully that the ladies were insistent in their applause, and he responded with another. Mrs. Smith at the piano was good as she always is.

At the close of the program, members were invited to inspect the clubhouse, to visit Mrs Hatch in her rooms and to enjoy a cup of tea in the tea room. The president, and two vice-presidents, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith and Mrs. Theodore Hardwick, received informally during the tea.

Mrs. J. Henry Emery, Mrs. Arthur E. Sproul and Mrs. John Gow presided at the tea urns, ably assisted by members of the house committee, of which Mrs. George G. Saville is chairman.

An inspection of the house showed that much had been done by the committee. The artistic papering and painting, and the enlarged doorways had brightened up the interior.

The floral scheme was prettily carried out, the drawing-room being in autumn leaves and red dahlias; reception room in yellow, and tea room in pink.

The Quincy Women's club certainly can congratulate themselves on a most auspicious opening of the club season and also on the beautiful club house. Every member feels personally grateful to Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett for his kindness in placing his home at the club's disposal, and will in every way endeavor to use the house that it will be the centre of all good work. Perhaps the few lines by John Wesley would be a good club motto to adopt:

Do all the good you can,
By all the means you can,
In all the ways you can,
In all the places you can,
To all the people you can,
As long as ever you can.

SOLDIER'S WIRELESS DEVICE

Simple Apparatus Signals Footfalls Far Away.

A new wireless instrument weighing but a pound and a half and under exhaustive tests giving better results than the more cumbersome machines now in use has been invented at the Benicia (Cal.) barracks by Hugh Annis, a young soldier of the signal corps. The machine has transmitted and received messages between Mare island and the Yerba Buena station time after time. The apparatus is being used at the barracks.

Placed on the ground, the machine will signal the footsteps of a man walking a hundred or more feet away. The materials used in construction are simple. Annis is a graduate in electrical engineering of a polytechnic school at Terre Haute, Ind.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Mutual Life Contributed to Extent of $90,000

"LEGAL EXPENSE" ITEMS

Payments Made Without Voucher or Receipt--Company Paid $72,000 In One Year For Luncheons For Employes

New York, Oct. 11.—The sessions of the insurance investigating committee were terminated for the week at the adjournment yesterday, because of the death of Speaker Nixon of the state assembly. The committee was holding a meeting to consider what action to take in the event of his death when a dispatch was received announcing the end.

The feature of the day was the presence as witnesses of the executive officers of the Mutual Life Insurance company. These were President R. A. McCurdy and Vice Presidents Granniss and Gillette. While it had been hinted that some expenditures charged to legal expenses might have been contributions to campaign committees, it was announced definitely by Gillette that the Mutual Life Insurance company contributed $40,000 to the Republican national committee last fall; that in 1900 $35,000 was contributed, and in 1896 $15,000 was given for campaign purposes.

Mr. Gillette testified that he paid these amounts personally in cash, and later in the day McCurdy said that while he knew campaign contributions had been made he did not know the amounts. He said that no contributions had been made to campaign committees before 1896 and that no contribution to state or municipal campaigns had ever been made in this or any other state.

An interesting statement was made by Robert Olyphant when he was on the stand. Olyphant is chairman of the expenditures committee and he could not tell what the $25,000 items drawn to his order were for beyond that they were for legal expenses. He said the company maintained a confidential fund for expenditures for which no voucher was taken and no receipt was received. These payments were made upon the assurance of an executive officer that "they were all right."

Vice President Granniss knew little about the contributions to campaign funds, but justified them on the same ground as did President McCall of the New York Life, that the free silver declarations of the Democrats constituted a menace to the interests of the policyholders.

When Granniss was called he assumed the entire responsibility for the terms of the contracts with C. H. Raymond & Co., by which that firm made such large profits. When the method of the expenditure of the $25,000 items was inquired into Granniss, in response to questions from Mr. Hughes, admitted that the general solicitor could get $25,000 any time he wanted it without disclosing for what purpose he wanted it or rendering any account of it. He further said he never knew where a cent of the money spent by the general solicitor went.

In taking up a detailed list of the company's expenses Gillette said the company last year paid $72,000 for luncheons for the employes. It is a custom for the company to furnish their clerks with luncheon. This is at the rate of about $250 a day.

President McCurdy was on the stand during all of the afternoon session. He detailed the manner of his entrance into the insurance business. He is a member of the bar and was admitted in 1856. He practiced in all, about nine years. He was counsel for the Widows and Orphans' Benefit Life Insurance company and C. H. Raymond was its president. When the company went out of business McCurdy went with the Mutual Life as a vice president and soon after Raymond was appointed the general agent for the metropolitan district. Raymond's partner in the agency was a brother of Mrs. McCurdy and when he died he was succeeded by Robert H. McCurdy, son of the witness.

Mr. McCurdy further testified that he never knew what Thebaud, his son-in-law, was betting out of the business of C. H. Raymond & Co., and said he did not think it was any of his business to ask about Thebaud's personal affairs. He said the company did the business to get the commission and that was all he knew. All contracts were made without his knowledge.

Toward the close of the session McCurdy made the statement that an insurance company was not an institution founded to make money for the policyholders, but was, or should be, a great philanthropic enterprise founded to increase and spread its benefits over the entire earth.

Decision Against Insurance Company

Columbus, O., Oct. 11.—By a decision of the supreme court, the administrators of the estate of William Stacey of Cincinnati secured a verdict for $11,400 against the Standard Life and Accident company. The company claimed that Stacey was blind in one eye at the time he applied for the insurance, a fact that was concealed from the company. If the company had known of this defect the applicant would have been placed in the classification of "cripples," on which there is a higher rate of insurance than that which the insured paid in this case.

PRESIDENT'S POWER

Has Absolute Discretion, According to Professor Rogers

Boston, Oct. 11.—Under the auspices of the Anti-Imperialistic league, Professor Henry W. Rogers, dean of Yale Law school, gave an address in Faneuil hall last night on "The Powers of the President."

The speaker made statements on the constitutional status of the executive power. "The president has an absolute and unlimited discretion.

"The power of the President of the United States as it stands at present has been due in part to the decisions of courts; but also to the action of congress conferring authority upon him in many matters and granting wide discretion in its exercise. Congress has chiefly hampered the president in the matter of appointments to and removal from office. Here the president ought to assert his right to nominate without dictation, subject to the senate's right to confirm or reject."

As to the discretion in executing the law of the United States, Rogers said: "That the president has the right to leave unexecuted the laws which he disapproves is as unsound a pretension as any advanced by the Stuart kings. When a president tells the country that it is impossible for him longer to show 'leniency' to offenders against this or that law, he speaks as a gracious monarch, invested with the power of a czar, and authorized at his discretion to suspend the operation of the laws."

May Amend Insurance Laws

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 11.—F. G. Fleetwood and J. G. Bacon, insurance commissioners of Vermont, held a conference here last night to consider the advisability of debarring the Equitable Life Assurance society, the New York Life Insurance company and the Mutual Life Insurance company from doing further business in this state. The commissioners were advised by legal authority that they had no power to shut out these corporations and it was decided to petition the legislature next fall to amend the insurance laws so that the commissioners will have power to deal with foreign corporations.

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 11.—The executive committee of the Manufacturers' association met and, after discussing the communication from the Textile council asking a restoration of the wage scale that was in force prior to July 25, 1904, adjourned without taking any action upon it. No call for a general meeting of the association has been issued, and none may be called for some days. Meantime until one is held it is not expected that a reply will be sent to the Textile council.

FIVE MORE IMMORTALS

Three Women to Have Tablets In the Hall of Fame

New York, Oct. 11.—The names of three women and five men were chosen yesterday to receive tablets in the Hall of Fame of New York university when the canvass of the votes was completed. Maria Mitchell was the only American scientist to be elected at this time, though Louis Agassiz, with 82 votes, secured admission as a foreign-born American.

Mary Lyon, founder of Mount Holyoke college, and Emma Willard, author of "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," and a famous educator, were the other women honored.

Alexander Hamilton, with 87 votes, the highest number received by any candidate at this election, and John Paul Jones, with 53, shares with Agassiz the honor of being the first American immortals of foreign birth.

Two American statesmen were chosen—John Quincy Adams, whose tablet will occupy a niche next to that of his father, John Adams, he having received 58 votes, and James Madison, who secured admission with 56 votes. Patrick Henry, John C. Calhoun, Andrew Jackson, Samuel Adams, Seward, Sumner, Dewitt Clinton, Garfield, John Jay, and Stanton were among the statesmen who failed to be elected.

Riot and Mutiny Held Sway

Beaver, Pa., Oct. 11.—At Midland, the new steel town near here, 300 Italian workmen, armed with pick handles and with an American flag at their head, marched through streets and fields demanding the life of a foreman named Lawler, who, they claimed, knocked down and kicked one of their countrymen. Lawler was spirited away by the Americans in the town. Not a stroke of work was done in the town all day. The Italians would not let the others stay at their jobs. Quiet was restored last night.

A Woman's Throw.

Twas intended for me, well I know it,
The kiss that another did claim;
'Twas because she knew not how to throw it
That the airy caress missed its aim.

While I live in wretchedness single—
And all because girls can't throw straight.

—While many Quincy people declare that the high price of land at Quincy Point prevents many home seekers from building homes there, it is shown by an advertisement in today's issue that their idea of the situation is wrong. In no part of the city can a desirable piece of land be bought at such a low price.

SMASHED ANGELS

Borglum Used Mallet and Chisel on Works of Art

CONTROVERSY OVER SEX

Church People Said Figures Should Be Masculine, While Sculptor Thinks Women the Source of Artistic Inspiration

New York, Oct. 11.—Gutzon Borglum, sculptor of the Angel of the Annunciation and of the Angel of the Resurrection, which were intended to have adorned the walls of the great Cathedral of St. John the Divine at Morningside Heights, announces that he has destroyed the two figures. Mr. Borglum did so because of a dispute which had arisen as to whether the figures should be masculine or feminine.

The sculptor had created his conceptions of the two angels in the form of women, but his work had been sharply criticised on that score. Borglum said that he had received a final opinion of one of the church authorities that the figures must be masculine and he added:

"I went to the cathedral and with a chisel and a mallet smashed the angels into bits. Although I have done nothing in the past year into which I have put more care and thought, and although I felt like the veriest vandal in thus completely wrecking what I knew to be works of beauty and power, I did so to put a stop to useless discussion and to prevent any use being made of the figures other than had been originally intended.

"I am absolutely astounded that any clergyman could stand in the presence of 30 or 40 images of a purely religious and spiritual character and see nothing in them but sex. And now that the whole unpleasant matter is over I am just as sure as I ever was that the feminine side of our race must ever continue to be our chief source of artistic inspiration and will so remain, absolutely unaltered by all pedantic controversies."

Test in Warship Building

Washington, Oct. 11.—The battleship Connecticut is again the leader by nearly 2 percent in the construction race between the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company, building the Louisiana, and the government force at the New York navy yard, building the Connecticut, according to the construction statement for September. The ships are identical in every detail. The principal points to be determined by the test are those of workmanship, and rapidity and cost of construction.

New York, Oct. 11.—Commissioner Ridgeway has discharged from custody former Postmaster Downing of New Rochelle, who was arrested a few weeks ago as the result of the postoffice inspectors finding in his residence and office nearly a sack of unforwarded letters, many of which had been mailed months before. TURNED THE TABLES

Philadelphia Americans Shut Out National Champions

New York, Oct. 11.—In the second game of the world's championship series the Philadelphia champions of the American league defeated the National league champions. On the Philadelphia grounds New York defeated Philadelphia by a score of 3 to 0 and when the latter visited this city they just reversed the score, shutting out the locals. The visiting pitcher was excellently supported, as was McGinnity for two innings. But in the third inning Gilbert, New York's second baseman, made a costly error which gave the visitors a lead which they never relinquished. McGinnity was relieved in the latter half of the eighth inning.

Ramsey Will Be Outvoted

Toledo, Oct. 11.—No directors were chosen at the annual meeting of the Wabash railroad yesterday. The sessions lasted from 9 o'clock in the morning until 11:15 last night, almost the entire time being taken up by the examination of proxies. It is believed that the vote will show that Gould has behind him about $22,000,000 of the bonds and Ramsey has in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. This makes it certain that six men nominated by the Gould faction as directors will be elected.

I look upon brutal football as a pure assault."

FOR GOVERNOR— CHARLES W. BARTLETT

His Election Will Convince Congress that Massachusetts is in Earnest in its Demand for Free Hides, Coal, Iron Ore, Lumber and Wood Pulp.

Charles W. Bartlett, citizen, soldier, advocate, was born in Boston August 12, 1845. His parents removed to East Cambridge a few years later, where he attended the public schools. At the age of 11 he was a pupil of the Putnam Grammar School and much interested in his studies; but he was compelled to give up his school and go with his parents who removed to a farm in the town of Lee, N.H., where the educational advantages were not equal to those of Cambridge.

However, the boy was possessed with a desire to secure an education, and what time could be spared from the many duties he found to perform upon a rocky farm, he attended the district school of Lee. There are still living in New Hampshire quite a number of people who knew Gen. Bartlett at this period of his career, and who tell with pride of the efforts of a dutiful son to aid his parents in getting a living on a rented farm, while at the same time striving to secure an education. It is related by one who knows the early life of Gen. Bartlett that he was an omniverous reader, devoting the long winter evenings after the farm work was completed to careful study and reading of such books as he could secure. It was in that New Hampshire home, devoid of everything but the barest necessities, that the successful advocate of to-day grounded himself in the rudiments of law and history. He was a good farmer and a good student, and the habits of early life imposed upon him by a lack of wealth and opportunity make him thorough in all he does, perfectly frank, open and honest.

Determined to secure an education, opportunity came to attend for two short terms a small academy at Andover, N. H. While enjoying this (to him) great privilege of attending an academy, he continued his studies in private. It was his great good fortune at this time to form the acquaintance of Jeremiah Smith, at present a professor at the Harvard law school. Prof. Smith had graduated from Harvard and was living at the Hale farm, near the home of Mr. Bartlett. He interested himself in the Bartlett boy, encouraged him to study, and aided him in many ways, particularly by hearing him recite the lessons learned.

The pinch of poverty was unceasing, however, and as the season grew more suitable for farming than for study, young Bartlett was compelled to relinquish his studies and go to work as a bread winner. He worked as a laborer in a crew that traveled about the state compressing hay into bales. This was hard work, and the hours were from daylight to dark; but two months of such labor enabled him to accumulate money with which to assist in his education.

At the breaking out of the war he was about 16 years of age, and he was extremely anxious to join his schoolboy comrades and enlist, but being an only son he could not secure the consent of his parents, and at this time could not go to the front. Later, however, he secured the consent of his father, and he promptly left the New Hampshire home, went to Boston, and enlisted as a private in Company A, 5th Massachusetts regiment. He served his term of service and was mustered out in November, 1864.

When he returned home from the war, he resumed his studies at the academy at Andover, N. H., where some boyish prank brought him into conflict with the academy authorities, which resulted in his leaving the school. With a determination characteristic of the man, the boy was more than ever desirous of securing an education, and without saying a word to anyone he went to Dartmouth College, and there took the entrance examinations. One of the many branches in which he was examined he never studied, but it was here that his great reading and retentive memory came to his aid, and not only in this particular branch, but in all others, he successfully passed the examination. He learned in the month of June of his success with his examinations. Then arose the momentous problem of providing the necessary money to defray his expenses. Inspired with a worthy ambition, he sought work to earn the money. The best thing obtainable was employment as a laborer with a bridge-builder. He accepted the opportunity gladly, and was put to work with other men at the dangerous work of building a cofferdam. He continued in the employ of the bridge builder until the college year opened in September. With the money thus earned young Bartlett entered Dartmouth College, and managed to get along until the winter vacation came.

In those days it was customary to permit deserving students to leave college to teach for brief periods country schools throughout New England.

Availing himself of the opportunity to replenish his depleted funds, he went to Truro, Mass., and there in that section of the old Cape Cod town known as Hogsback, young Bartlett made his first appearance as a school teacher. He was successful in his teaching, and with the money accumulated he went back to Dartmouth College for the spring term.

After completing his studies at college that spring he went into the hay fields as a laborer, and followed the harvest from the lowlands to the uplands. With the money earned he went to college for the fall term, later returning to Cape Cod to teach a brief term at Wellfleet. This was a rather peculiar school, in that it was made up principally of those healthy young Cape Codders who passed most of the year in deep sea fishing, returning home for a brief period in winter. There were between 50 and 60 of them, and they were a studious, well-behaved lot and seemed to realize that it was important that they should make the most of their scant educational opportunities.

From Wellfleet Bartlett returned to college for another term, when an urgent request came for a teacher to take charge of a school in which the pupils had been running things to suit themselves. The president of the college sent word that he had two men, either of whom were capable of undertaking the task. One of them was Gen. Bartlett, and the other was Judge Maynard, now of the Superior Court of Massachusetts. Gen. Bartlett was sent out to take charge of the school, and as in almost all his undertakings he was successful. This school was at South Gardner, Mass. Later he again taught at Wellfleet.

While in college Gen. Bartlett was a member of the D. K. E. fraternity. After he graduated from college in the class of '69, he received a proposition to teach the high school at Salmon Falls, N.H. There had been considerable trouble and one term had been broken up. He took charge of the school and taught it peaceably.

In the meantime at every opportunity he had been studying law, and soon after completing his college course he entered the Albany, N. Y., law school. He completed the course, and was admitted to the bar of New York in 1871.

Gen. Bartlett returned to his New Hampshire home and entered into a law partnership with Samuel M. Wheeler of Dover, N.H. He remained there two years, and then started for New York city by way of Boston. When he arrived in Boston he met a friend with whom he had business transactions in New Hampshire who wanted him to take charge of some legal matters in Boston. Gen. Bartlett demurred, saying he had no office or facilities for work, and was on his way to New York. He was induced to call at the office of N. B. Bryant, an attorney, and explain the situation to him. Mr. Bryant very generously gave Gen. Bartlett a desk in his office, and invited him to remain just as long as he wished. The result was that Gen. Bartlett occupied that desk for 15 years.

Gen. Bartlett is the senior member of the firm of Bartlett & Anderson, one of the most prominent and successful law firms of Boston. He is a past commander of John A. Andrew post 15, G. A. R., and resides in Dorchester with his wife. He has been a member of the Suffolk County Bar association since it was founded, and is a member of the Curtis club, the Taylor club and the New Hampshire club, and is president of the Dartmouth Educational association and a member of other Dartmouth alumni associations. He is a man of simple habits, loves horses, baseball, football; but his greatest enjoyment he secures from his home life.

Gen. Charles W. Bartlett is an ideal man for the honorable position of governor of this commonwealth. He is scrupulously honest and fearless. He would represent in the executive office the interests of the whole people. Special interests asking favors at the expense of the people would receive no consideration. He is an advocate of reciprocal trade treaties with all countries, and with Canada in particular. He believes in a revision of the tariff to meet the requirements of the welfare of our New England industries. He has the confidence of the business interests, is trusted by the farmer, and the workingmen will find in him a true friend.

Voters of Massachusetts are urged to cast their ballot for Charles W. Bartlett, and thus emphasize the appeal to Congress for relief from the tariff burden which threatens to crush the life out of industrial New England.

"For the benefit of Massachusetts industries, I believe that Congress should place upon the free list hides, coal, iron ore, lumber and wood pulp, and that duties upon manufactured and other articles be reduced wherever possible. I am also convinced that reciprocal trade treaties should be made by this country with Canada and other nations."—CHARLES W. BARTLETT.

New Leaders

Miss Manning In Ladies List. Clerk Cash In Men's List

Large votes are recorded today among the leaders in both lists in the Scholarship contest. Miss Manning moves up from third place to the top, leading Miss Peterson by 43 votes.

Conductor Johnson is crowded out of first place in the men's list by Clerk Cash, while Drug Clerk Maloney drops from second to fourth place. Engineer Johnson is pushing the leaders. There are two jewelers further down the list who seem to be having a little scrap, and several make small gains.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

The editor requests that large packages of votes be sent flat, as it is difficult to count cupons which have been rolled. Please place also on the first coupon the number of votes sent.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Crowds at the Grand Army Fair

There was another large crowd present Tuesday evening at the Grand Army fair. Those in charge of the several tables report having made some good sales. The only entertainment was that furnished by an orchestra.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

$100,000 MISSING

So Is a Clerk Employed by Adams Express Company

MONEY ALL IN CURRENCY

Man Who Received and Receipted For Package Went Home, Bade Family Good Bye, and Has Not Since Been Seen

Pittsburg, Oct. 11.—The startling discovery was made last night that the Adams Express company has been victimized to the extent of $100,000, supposedly through the peculations of an employe. The following official statement of the affair was given for publication:

"At 4:15 p. m. Oct. 9 a bank of Pittsburg delivered to the Adams Express company at their office in this city a package of currency containing $100,000. Of this amount $80,000 was in $100 bills, $10,000 in $50 bills and the remaining $10,000 in $5, 10 and $20 bills. The $100 and $50 bills, issue of the Farmers' Deposit National bank of Pittsburg and the Bank of Pittsburg, National association, were, in the main, entirely new; some had been slightly used. The $5, $10 and $20 bills were old currency. The package containing this large sum of money was consigned to a bank in Cincinnati.

"This package was received and receipted for by Edward G. Cunliffe, who was then acting in the place of the regular money clerk, who was ill.

"Cunliffe left the office at the usual time Monday evening and yesterday morning, when he failed to report for duty, a hurried examination was made of his department and it was learned that about $1000 of funds entrusted to his care were missing. General Agent Hiner of the Adams Express company immediately called in detectives and placed the matter in their hands. Later developments brought to light the fact that in addition to the $1000 missing the bank package containing $100,000 had not been received at the money forwarding office at Union station, this city.

"Inquiries made at his residence showed that Cunliffe arrived home at the customary time Monday evening and, after changing his clothes, bade his family good bye, saying to his wife that he was going out for the evening, and nothing further has been heard from him.

"Cunliffe has been employed by the Adams Express company since March 1, 1904. Previous to that time he was employed in the Pittsburg service of the American Express company, the Electric Express company and the United States Express company of Hartford, and bore a good reputation. He was methodical, accurate and an excellent clerk.

"Edward G. Cunliffe is described as 35 years of age, looks to be 40, 5 feet 7 inches tall, weighs 170 pounds, medium build, dark brown hair, heavily mixed with gray, wears a heavy, short cropped mustache, dark and partly mixed with gray, could raise a very heavy beard, has blue eyes. He is an inveterate cigaret smoker and is afflicted with what is known as the 'cigaret cough.'"

A warrant has been issued charging Cunliffe with larceny. Every detective in the city has been put to work on the case. The authorities are of the opinion that Cunliffe left the city immediately after bidding his wife good bye Monday evening.

Telegraphic descriptions have been sent to all parts of the country and pictures of the man were mailed to the important cities last night. Neither the express company officials nor the detectives have any further particulars to make public.

Wrote Letters to President

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 11.—Having received a message from Washington saying that H. S. Howard, residing in this city, had been writing insulting letters to President Roosevelt, the police here arrested Howard. The man proved to be an aged negro. He admitted that he had written the president two letters, but denied that they were insulting or threatening. Howard was allowed to go. He is believed to be harmless.

New York, Oct. 11.—In accordance with the provisions of the will of George W. Catt, president of the Atlantic Dredging and Construction company, who died at his residence here, his body has been taken to the Bellevue hospital medical college to be dissected in the interests of science. Catt was the husband of the president of the International Woman Suffrage league.

Slight Chance For Agreement

Budapest, Oct. 11.—The Hungarian diet has been prorogued until Dec. 19 without any untoward incident beyond the displays of angry resentment on the part of the united opposition of the lower house. This gives a breathing space of 10 weeks for further negotiations between the crown and the coalition, but the chances for an agreement are regarded as slight.

Pat Crowe In Court

Omaha, Oct. 11.—Pat Crowe, when arraigned in the police court, pleaded not guilty to the charge of shooting with intent to kill Policeman Jackson. He was taken back to jail. A charge of highway robbery in connection with the Cudahy kidnapping will be filed against Crowe.

State Police Here Once More

Mr. Smith of the State police was in Quincy again last night, following up possible clues in the Winthrop suit case mystery. In company with Chief Burrell several hotels at Quincy Point were visited, but no development was made public.

Stable Location

Mr. Whiting Explains His Letter to Mr. Newell

Editors Daily Ledger:

The Ledger in its very good report of the hearing before the Board of Health Monday evening, on the petition of the Newell & Snowling Contruction Co., for permission to erect a stable for 45 horses, attributes these remarks to Mr. Newell: "Mr. Newell, representing the petitioner, said he wished it understood that his company would not pay for the privilege. Several letters had been received objecting, one stating if he could call at the writer's office matters might be fixed up."

Permit me to trespass upon your columns for a few words in regard to this petition and the above remarks.

I own land at the corner of Bromfield street and the Parkway, having a frontage on the Parkway of some 98 feet. The land is elevated and is one of best sites on the shore front. Plans have been prepared for a dwelling house for all the year round occupancy, to be erected next spring. The piazza and front rooms will be within 20 feet of the parkway, and will command a view of the whole harbor. Adjacent to my land are the well kept places of Councilman William P. Chase, Francis B. Macmamara, Esq., the Wollaston Yacht Clubhouse and several others.

Shortly after the Park Commission awarded the contract for grading the roadway I noticed that the contractors, the Newell & Snowling Construction Co., were grading a piece of the beach about 200 feet square opposite and abutting on my land. I was mystified as to why that particular spot should have been so suddenly singled out of the two and a half miles of roadway which the company was to construct. I inquired of one of the employes, a foreman I think, why that location was selected so early in the work and was briefly informed that a shed for stabling horses was to be erected thereon.

Further inquiry into the matter brought out the information that the Company proposed to build in front of my place which commands the finest view on the shore, and in the midst of a comparatively thickly settled all the year round colony, a large building to be used as a stable for about 50 horses. I also learned that no permit had been asked of the Board of Health.

I at once attempted to see Mr. Newell of the Construction Company as I had the most decided objections to having my place blotted out, but after five unsuccessful attempts wrote to his concern as follows:

"I have been advised that it is the intention of your company to erect a building to be used for stabling a number of horses opposite, and also abutting, or near the property which I own, situated at the corner of the Parkway and Bromfield street. As I have had plans prepared for a permanent dwelling house of considerable size, which I am to have built for my own occupancy at an early date, I do most decidedly object to the erection of a stable, or a shed which may be used as a lodging house for laborers, on that part of the Parkway, at or near the foot of Bromfield street.

"The erection of such a structure, I think that you will readily admit, on land contiguous to dwelling houses is a serious menance to the health of all abuttors, and I trust that this matter can be arranged in a manner which will be satisfactory to yourselves and all interested property owners. I desire to talk this subject over with you before taking it up with Mr. Woodbury of the Park Commission and our Board of Health.

"As my Boston office is near the South station I would be pleased to confer with you at any time it may be convenient for you to call."

In addressing this letter to the person in charge of the construction work I assumed that he was a gentleman and would either readily grant an interview or call and see me and amicably talk over the location of the stable adjoining and opposite my premises, and, if it could be shown to him that he was about to do a great injustice to a neighborhood, that he would acquiesce in locating it where it would be a nuisance to no one, without my being forced to take legal action.

But no notice was taken of my letter by the company, and subsequent events have shown their attitude. At the hearing he gratuitously slandered every citizen who has spoken or written to him in regard to the stable.

It was a splendid piece of bluff, and if it had not been immediately challenged and refuted would have left him in possession of the field as a victim of "graft" and worthy of sympathy at the hands of the Board of Health. When the letter which I wrote to him was suddenly produced and read at the hearing, he collapsed as though struck with a bomb.

I regret exceedingly to feel compelled to enter into publicity in regard to this hearing but as Mr. Newell's accusation was such a bare faced slander not only to myself, but to every citizen who was interested in the matter, as well as our energetic Board of Health, it was up to one of us to pick up the gauntlet and say a few words in refutation of his miscalled for remarks.

Woman Located

Quincy Suit Case Clue Has Exploded

The Quincy end of the Winthrop suit case mystery has been exploded, and dropped. The woman whom the State police thought might be the victim has been found. She is now happily situated, and as her name has never become public property she is spared some unpleasant publicity. The woman in question left Quincy last August.

Harvest Supper At Atlantic

The harvest supper given in Memorial church, Atlantic, Wednesday evening was one of the most successful undertakings those interested in church work have ever entered into. Aside from a great many tickets sold outside before the night, over fifteen dollars were taken at the door. The excellence of the repast well justified those who had anticipated its bounty and the gratuitous offerings of food proved a support of no small number in the well-being of the church. A surprise entertainment by the Boys' Brigade, whose singing pleased everyone was given after supper and the audience crowded the church. Such a success bids fair to stimulate enthusiasm among the Christian workers and is a mute compliment to the earnest endeavor of the present pastor.

Atlantic Ward Is Hustling

Ward Six is showing greater activity in the registration of voters than all the other wards of the city put together, even if it is the smallest ward. At the meeting of the Registrars of Voters on Wednesday evening, 31 names were added to the precinct one list and 11 to the precinct two list, a total of 42. One was also added to the Ward Five list.

Bible Study Club.

The Bible Class Study club was started at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening. Seventeen men sat down to supper, after which the following officers were elected: President, J. C. Rand, manager of the Boston Associated Press; Secretary-Treasurer, Franklin Manuel.

Following the supper the various classes separated for Bible study. The total membership of the club at present is twenty-five.

Each Wednesday evening at 6.15 o'clock the club will meet for supper, and all men are cordially invited to join.

Work Progressing On the Parkway

The Newell & Snowling Construction Co., who have the contract to do the sub-grading of the boulevard from the National Sailors' Home to the Atlantic bridge, have already commenced work on their contract which must be completed by December 1906.

The work now in progress is in the rear of the National Sailors' Home. The top loam of road over embankment has been taken off and a large gang is now at work making the fill from this point across the marsh toward the Wollaston Yacht club.

This fill is being made of beach gravel that is being taken from the shore nearby. It is being transported from the shore by ten or more scoops.

The scoops are swung between two wide tired wheels, each being drawn by a pair of powerful horses. These teams drive down onto the beach where another pair of horses is attached. The four horses draw the scoop over the beach until it is filled, then the two horses draw it to the roadway where it is dumped.

As the gravel thus taken is below low water mark it is not possible to do much except between tides. Quite a fill however has already been made.

Suppositions Incorrect.

Editors of the Daily Ledger.

Will you kindly devote a few lines of your valuable space to the correction of a false rumor which seems to have gained currency, to the effect that, in certain recent cases of sickness which have resulted fatally in this vicinity, the patients either were themselves Christian Scientists, or had Christian Science treatment?

As neither of these suppositions is correct, it would seem but fair to all concerned that the fact should be made known; and it is with this end in view that this statement is made, and not for the purpose of raising an issue as to the relative merits of Christian Science and other systems of treating disease.

The value of Christian Science as a therapentical agency, like that of any other method, can be determined by fact alone. Therefore care should be taken, in dealing with such matters, not to confound it with other systems with which popular thought is frequently inclined to associate it.

Family Album

Exhibited At Harvest Festival at Quincy Point

The annual Harvest Festival under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society connected with the Washington Street Congregational church was held in the vestry on Wednesday evening. It was well attended and proved a great success.

At 6.30 o'clock a Farmer's supper was served and judging by the merriment and the disappearance of the many good things with which the tables were loaded, it is safe to say that appetites are still good and plain food still has a good relish.

The bill of fare included: corned beef, corned shoulder, baked beans, brown bread, white bread, rolls, pickles, pickled beets, doughnuts, cheese, apple pie, mince pie, squash pie, pumpkin pie, custard pie, Washington pie and Indian pudding.

The following named young ladies served: Miss Christie Moody, Miss Helen Sherburne, Miss Esther Sidelinger, Miss Walker, Miss Viola Hayden, Miss Bertha Smith and Miss Marion Johnson.

At eight o'clock the entertainment was opened. Almira Peas exhibiting her "Famous Family Album." It certainly was one of which any family might be proud, and the "pictures" were certainly life like, and exceedingly picturesque in the old time costumes.

Miss Peas of the program was Miss Auwelda Smith of Quincy Point, and the ease with which she spoke, and the lapse into old time language, was certainly appreciated by all, as shown by the absolute quiet which prevailed—except when a pause allowed unstinted applause, for each, and every "pictur" shown. Praise is also due Mr. Carl Sherburne, who is a prince of stage managers, leaving nothing to be desired in this direction. Miss Mary L. Hayden of Cambridge presided at the piano.

The pictures shown were:

Mother,—Miss Evelyn G. Hayden.

Father,—Harold Newcomb.

"Me, as a little girl,—Miss Ella May Melville.

Eben, my husband,—Fred H. Smith.

"Me," as a bride,—Miss Grace Lapham.

The twins,—Miss Mary Gay and Miss Beatrice Adams.

Parson,—Carl Sherburne.

Parson's wife—Miss Elizabeth Scouler.

Parson's son,—David Melville.

Sister Jane,—Miss Theo Crane.

Sister Jane's husband, Deacon Jabey Higgs,—James A. Melville.

Sophelia, Jane's youngest daughter,—Miss Eleanor Crane.

Ann Liza, Jane's oldest daughter,—Miss Gertrude Foster.

Village Beauty,—Miss Helen Lincoln.

Grandpa Hobbs,—Frank Melville.

A grand display of fruits and vegetables was made, members of the Ladies' Aid contributing and also the following named persons: Mrs. H. H. I. Smith, Mrs. Peterson, Glidden Bros., Seller Bros., Mrs. Perry Green, Mr. Solomon Ford of North Weymouth, Mrs. Leban of East Braintree, Mr. T. B. Thomas, Consolidated Grocery, and Johnson Bros.

Ice cream was served at the close of the entertainment.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

It is rather hard on Washington society that the son of Secretary Shaw should prefer to work as a dock hand to returning to the National Capital with his mother and sisters.

In its new style heads some say they hardly recognize the Daily Ledger. A change, however, is a good thing once in a while. The style is not only original but unique and striking.

Congraulations to ex-Mayor Quincy on his engagement to Miss Honey. The city of Presidents is proud to have been the city of your birth, has watched with interest your prominence in State and National affairs, and with ability, wealth and Honey further success may be yours.

The Women's club may accomplish that which other agencies have failed to do, and that is to unite the people of Quincy. The membership of the club comes from all parts of the city and seems to be working together harmoniously. The club has high ideals, and we wish it success.

The illustrated feature of the Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger will be a sketch of Miss Alice Roosevelt, the President's daughter by J. A. Edgerton. It will tell of her personality, her triumphal march in the far east, and her charms and accomplishments. These three-column articles are now a regular feature of the Saturday Ledger.

The Democrats of Massachusetts have promptly inaugurated an aggressive campaign. Last year newspaper publicity contributed to success. Who knows but it may this! Most of the daily newspapers of the State published as an advertisement on Wednesday an illustrated sketch of Candidate Bartlett.

The attempt of the Government clerks of Washington to have themselves placed on the pension list is not finding great sympathy outside their immediate families. There is no more reason why the public should support Government clerks than other workers. They have an easy job and are well paid for it. Their employer never fails and pay is as certain as taxation. Let them exercise ordinary economy and thrift and they will not need a pension.

It was a pretty thing for Frederic Allison Tupper to pay the high tribute which he did to the late Dr. Sheahan. Many will now recall the warm attachment which existed between the two when Mr. Tupper was headmaster of the Quincy High school, and will share between them the honors of having made the institution so popular that Quincy finds its difficult to furnish accommodation for all who seek knowledge within its walls.

MOURNING EMBLEMS

Boston's Mayor Insists That They Remain on Hospitals

Boston, Oct. 12.—Dr. Pope, superintendent of the Emergency hospital in Haymarket square, was called by Mayor Whelton over the telephone and asked: "By what right did you remove the mourning emblems placed on the hospital in memory of our late mayor?"

"I removed them," replied Dr. Pope, "by orders of our superintendent, Dr. Rowe, of the city hospital."

"You replace the emblems by 10 o'clock tomorrow morning or there will be other removals than mourning emblems," came back from the mayor's office. "I want the city's tribute to our late mayor kept on all city buildings for 30 days, and please see to it that this executive order is complied with."

It was explained that Dr. Rowe told the board of trustees of the city hospital that he felt that emblems of mourning on a hospital were not pleasant for either patients or their friends to see. He thought that they should be removed, and the trustees agreeing with him, Dr. Rowe telephoned the order to Dr. Pope. The hospital is draped again.

Windfall For New Hampshire Church

Rochester, N. H., Oct. 12.—The Methodist church of this city becomes the beneficiary to the extent of $28,933.47 under the will of the late Solomon Evans, who died in July, 1898. Evans' will provided that if his son Charles, who went west some years before, did not appear within seven years, half of his property should go to the church. The executors of the will made every endeavor to find Charles, but without success, and yesterday a check for the above amount was sent to the church.

Odd Romance and Marriage

Providence, Oct. 12.—The marriage of Lewis Buck, aged 73 years, a wealthy farmer of Cheney, Minn., to Mrs. Mary E. Whipple, 40, of this city was the culmination of a rather odd romance. A number of years ago Buck's sister was married to Nathan F. Whipple of this city, and the latter, upon his wife's death, married Mary E. Everley. Whipple himself died about three years ago, and Buck and Mrs. Whipple, who were corresponding as relatives, fell in love with one another.

Charged With Accepting Bribe

Boston, Oct. 12.—Charged with accepting a bribe of $120 for revealing information as to bids for government work, Timothy J. Swift, assistant custodian of the federal building, was arraigned before Commissioner Hale. He pleaded not guilty. Robert T. Bourn of the firm of Bourn & Hadley of Templeton declared that he had paid $120 to Swift for showing him the bids of other contractors on the construction of case slips to be used in the postoffice.

Labor Men Reject Socialism

The child labor committed reported, recommending that aliens coming here be taught American labor ideals, and that a movement be inaugurated to make child labor laws national in scope.

Attempted Murder and Suicide

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 12.—Celeste Belerenzo, an Italian fruit dealer, last night shot his wife and then committed suicide. The tragedy was the outcome of a quarrel at the home of the couple. The woman was badly wounded and her recovery is considered doubtful. Belerenzo's death was almost instantaneous. According to the police, the husband had been drinking.

RAILROADS' REPLY

To Agitation For Government Regulation of Rates

COMMERCIAL LYNCH LAW

Assertion That Interstate Commerce Commission May Become Prosecutor, Jury, Judge and Executioner at Same Time

Newark, N. J., Oct. 12.—That government control of railroad properties as proposed in the Esch-Townsend bill which was considered at the last session of congress is unfair, unjust to the railroads, opposed to the fundamental principles of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence and is equivalent to providing by statute for the enforcement of commercial lynch law, is, in substance, the reply of the railroads to the agitation for railroad rate legislation, as outlined by President Spencer in an address last evening before the Newark Board of Trade. Mr. Spencer said in part:

"Up to the present time shipper and carrier have been free to work together with out political interference. It is now proposed to change this system, and substitute one in which artificial bureaucratic methods will take the place of the natural laws of trade and commerce which have been the controlling force in the evolution of the present system.

"It is proposed to grant power over the earning capacity without imposing corresponding responsibility for the necessary expenses and risks of continuing the business.

"The president in his last annual message laid special emphasis upon the necessity for doing away with rebates, and for the keeping of the highways of transportation open to all upon equal terms. No rational suggestions have been made, however, as to how the granting of rate-making power to the interstate commerce commission could be effective to this end.

"One of the most serious objections to the legislation proposed is that under it a rate once fixed by the commission would continue in force indefinitely unless changed by the commission or by the court. Under such a law all rates would in time become commission rates, and the functions of railway managers in making adjustments to meet the exigencies of commerce and in extending the sphere of usefulness of the transportation system of the country would, step by step, come to an end. All rates would soon be machine-made only, and commercial and industrial centres now acknowledging no bounds for the ultimate distribution of their products would find themselves operating in narrower and narrower zones, finally circumscribed by governmental edicts as to where their wares should go.

"The plan of conferring upon the commission the power to make or revise rates and make them effective prior to review by courts would be open to the decisive objection that it is necessarily unjust to the railroads, and opposed to the fundamental principles of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence that rights of property and persons shall be enforced and protected according to due process of law.

"Virtually there is not a single respect in which the interstate commerce commission resembles a court. It is a sort of railroad grand jury. In the courts of the country a grand jury cannot try a case which it has investigated and inaugurated, and no member of the grand jury can sit upon the jury which tries the case. The commission which investigates offenses and initiates prosecutions may and does in addition sit in judgment upon some cases which have been the subject of the investigation and prosecution. In other words, the plaintiff in the litigation is the judge that tries the case.

"Why should one class of property be discriminated against and be denied the protection of established procedure when all other property interests have full benefit of the untrammelled judgment of the duly constituted courts? According to the plan proposed, the rates made by the commission become effective pending review by the courts. Surely if the railroads are entitled to a trial in court, they are entitled to that trial before penalties are enforced. A judicial trial, to be effective, must take place before, and not after, condemnation and punishment.

"To place in the hands of one tribunal which is or may be prosecutor, jury and judge, and at the same time executioner, is equivalent to providing by statute for the enforcement of commercial lynch law."

Endorsed by Lumber Interests

Washington, Oct. 12.—President Roosevelt has received further endorsement of his attitude toward the enactment of railroad rate legislation from the big lumber interests of the country. Officials of the National Wholesale Lumber Dealers' association and the Central Yellow Pine association of Mississippi told the president that their associations approved heartily of his course in the rate legislation question and urged that upon the interstate commerce commission ought to be conferred more power to deal with discriminatory railroad rates.

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION

American Bankers of the Opinion That It Is Necessary

Washington, Oct. 12.—There prevailed in the important speeches before the American Bankers' association convention here the sentiment that financial legislation is necessary. Thirty-three hundred bankers applauded Secretary Shaw to the echo when he concluded a lengthy address, the burden of which was a panorama of the prosperity of the country contrasted with a monetary system which is inflexible and liable thereby to bring disaster at any crucial time. Frank A. Vanderlip, former assistant secretary of the treasury, saw the same prosperity, and he also saw dangers ahead.

Secretary Shaw suggested a remedy—a heavily taxed national bank note currency which would be drawn forth at times of unusual demand for money and by reason of the tax be retired immediately upon changed conditions. Mr. Vanderlip had no advice to offer.

Mr. Ridgley, comptroller of the currency, pointed out the necessity of changed methods in some respects in the government's supervision of national banks. President Swinney of the association reviewed its growth and development for the year. President Roosevelt was applauded and thanked for his successful efforts in making peace between Japan and Russia.

Train Passengers Were Searched

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Passengers on an 18-hour train which arrived in Chicago from New York were searched before being allowed to alight and one of them, J. J. Croake, was arrested, charged with robbery. The victim of the robbery was Samuel M. Hamm, whose watch and purse containing $153 were found in Croake's suit case. The prisoner protested his innocence. A number of persons of prominence were among those who underwent the ordeal of having their clothing and baggage searched by detectives. Croake is a circus performer. He has been touring Europe and had just returned to America.

Lake Erie's Fishing Zone

Erie, Pa., Oct. 12.—From instructions received from Secretary Shaw at Washington the opinion is expressed that both the United States and Canada will recognize a fishing zone along the boundary line in midlake that will allow for the drifting of nets. Shaw refused to sustain the action of Collector of Customs Leach of Cleveland in seizing the fish tug Valiant when the captain of the boat protested that he was only pulling the nets that had been set on the American side and had drifted across the line.

Perfetti Gets Fifteen Years

Providence, Oct. 12.—Henry Perfetti, who has been on trial here on a charge of assault with intent to kill upon Mary Foley, was found guilty by a jury and sentenced to 15 years in state prison last night. Mary Foley and Perfetti were until recently residents of Boston, where the man was a cook in a hotel. On Aug. 31 the two were in Providence together and quarreled, because of the woman's refusal to live with Perfetti, and Perfetti stabbed her in the breast with a knife.

Ramsey Out of the Wabash

Toledo, Oct. 12.—Joseph Ramsey, Jr., failed completely in his effort to wrest control of the Wabash system from George Gould. Not only was he utterly defeated in all he undertook, but he was forced from the directory of the road, and now has nothing whatever to do with its management in any manner. He struggled gamely to the last, but was so hopelessly in the minority that he never had a chance.

A Mayor,s Extraordinary Action

RAW MATERIALS

Difficult For Massachusetts to Obtain Them

TARIFF IS OPPRESSIVE

Democratic Candidates For Governor and Lieutenant Governor Review the Situation as It Appears to Them

Boston, Oct. 12.—Charles W. Bartlett and Henry M. Whitney, Democratic nominees for governor and lieutenant governor respectively, were the principal speakers last night at a mass meeting held in this city to ratify the nominations for state officers made at the recent Democratic state convention.

General Bartlett was loudly applauded when he arose to speak, being forced to stand several minutes, while the people cheered and the band played the national anthem. Mr. Bartlett discussed the tariff almost exclusively. He said in part:

"Massachusetts suffers in this way—we are cut off geographically from the rest of the country, and this adds to the difficulty of our obtaining cheap raw materials. We are cut off by the tariff laws from a free and fair market in obtaining these supplies from our foreign neighbors. We are compelled to pay tariff toll on raw material for our factories and for our food and shelter for our people.

"Not only is Massachusetts remote from the great material and food supplying sections of this country; she is also more dependent than are most other states upon the rest of the country. Massachusetts would starve if her mills would stand idle; if she could not obtain food and materials from outside her own borders.

"With reasonable tariff duties Massachusetts would be more favorably situated than are other states to produce many articles. With the present tariff duties she is less favorably situated. This fact makes the tariff more oppressive to Massachusetts than to most other states."

Mr. Bartlett argued that one remedy is to abolish the duties upon hides, which is mentioned in the Democratic platform as one of the articles which Massachusetts cannot produce. He concluded:

"By your vote let it be understood that the people of the state demand relief, and one of the things from which they demand relief is a tax aimed directly at Massachusetts interests for the benefit of a combine that is moving to hamper and exterminate a great industry. It is an insult to our intelligence to talk about a benefit to a party when the only logical inference is that the combine pays to support the party, and that this tax is levied for the purpose of giving to the combine the means to furnish the money."

Mr. Whitney received an unusually warm reception when introduced by the chairman, and his speech was frequently interrupted by applause.

Mr. Whitney devoted the early part of his address to a criticism of Senator Lodge. Specifically he criticized the senator for saying at the Republican convention that the day was long gone by when a state should stand out as South Carolina could in the 30s and undertake to nullify a national law because the tariff schedules did not suit the products. "Because, forsooth," Whitney said, "40,000 men of Massachusetts honestly believe that a change in the tariff would promote the welfare of Massachusetts and have the courage to say so, it is held that they are guilty of treasonable practises."

Mr. Whitney attacked the senator's position in arguing that free raw material was nothing but free trade and asked if the senator was ignorant of the fact that 46 percent of our total imports are now on the free list. Speaking of reciprocity, Whitney said:

"It is because Massachusetts, having within her borders few or none of the raw materials for her several industries, feels more and more the increasing competition with other localities more favored in proximity to the source of raw materials and to the trade centres."

The speaker asserted that the removal of import duties on hides, iron ore, lumber, wood pulp and coal which are used in all Massachusetts industries would help offset the handicap which Massachusetts is under. He went on:

"Since it is useless to hope for any enlargement of our trade relations with Canada and Newfoundland through the operations of treaties and reciprocity, and since the Canadians are understood to contemplate making a change soon in their tariff, possibly in the direction of retaliatory protective measures, the reciprocity people believe the loss of a great part of our $152,000,000 of exports may be averted by admitting free from Canada the products of the sea, the mines of the earth and the forests—the things which Canada chiefly raises and which, while forming the greater part of her exports to us, involve a tax on the living expenses of our own people. That is the natural solution. That has been the purpose of the recent agitation in Massachusetts."

Must Return to Providence

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 12.—Governor Pardee has issued requisition papers for the return to Providence of W. O. Gilman and A. L. Rice, wanted in that city to answer a charge of obtaining money by false pretences. The men are under arrest in San Francisco.

WANTED BOY'S JOB

Maine Man Tried to Get It by Use of a Revolver

Bridgeton, Me., Oct. 12.—Thirty hours after Benjamin Kimball, aged 18, a farm hand, had fallen unconscious from his milk wagon, with a bullet through his head, Henry Douglas, 21 years old, who had been discharged from the farm, confessed that he lay in wait for the boy and fired at him through a hole in a wall. He said that he shot Kimball so that he might lay him up for a few weeks and get the job at the farm.

The shooting occurred on the highway not far from the farm of Oswald Luck, where Kimball was employed. The boy was driving his milk wagon back to the farm, having completed his deliveries. When the team arrived at the farm without the boy a search was made for him and he was discovered lying unconscious in the road. Very little hope was entertained of his recovery, but he regained consciousness for a few minutes and his chances of surviving his wound are considered good, although the bullet passed completely through his head.

When the officers were notified of the shooting they went to the scene, and soon after discovered Douglas with a revolver in his hand, asking who had been shot. He was examined closely and, as he made evasive answers, he was locked up. After being rigidly examined by the officers later he confessed that he shot Kimball.

Meat Famine Growing Worse

Berlin, Oct. 12.—Reports from all parts of the country make mention of measures that are being taken to abate the meat famine. At Eisenach a conference of the municipal authorities in that region decided to establish regular rabbit markets, and in the Munich public markets also rabbit stalls have been established. Since horseflesh has risen in price and dogflesh is no longer obtainable, a number of municipalities have begun the buying of carloads of sea fish at the coast towns and selling them at cost to citizens.

New Charge Against Crowe

Omaha, Oct. 12.—When the preliminary hearing of Pat Crowe, alleged kidnapper of Eddie Cudahy, was called, Crowe waived that formality and was bound over to the district court in $5000 bail. In case of his securing bail on the charge of shooting a policeman he will probably be rearrested on the highway robbery charge, filed yesterday in connection with the Cudahy kidnapping.

To Relieve Marines In Far East

Washington, Oct. 12.—Commandant Elliott of the marine corps has made arrangements for sending 500 marines to the Philippines at the rate of about 100 a month. These men are being recruited in the middle west. A BLOODY BATTLE

Three Negroes Killed Five Men Aboard a Schooner

OCCURRED ON HIGH SEA

Blood Stained Decks Give Evidence of Fierce Encounter--Mutiny Arose as Result of a Quarrel Over Breakfast

Wilmington, N. C., Oct. 12.—The murder of Captain Rumill and four of his crew of the four-masted schooner Harry A. Berwind, in a mutiny while the vessel was bound from Mobile to Philadelphia, is the story told in a special to The Star from Southport.

Schooner Blanche H. King, Captain Taylor, bound from Brunswick, Ga., to Philadelphia, put into Southport, bringing in irons three negroes, all that remained of the crew of the Harry A. Berwind. The captain, mate, cook and an engineer who did hoisting work aboard the latter vessel apparently had been killed in the mutiny and their bodies thrown overboard and the body of a fourth sailor, a negro, was found lying on the deck, where he, too, had been killed.

The Berwind was bound to Philadelphia from Mobile, which port she left Sept. 23. She was sighted 30 miles off the Cape Fear bar by Captain Taylor, whose attention was attracted by the reckless manner in which the ill-fated vessel was being steered, her course threatening to run down his own vessel.

It develops from the stories of the negroes brought in irons that the mutiny arose as the result of a quarrel aboard ship early Tuesday morning about the coffee made for breakfast.

The King was signalled by the Berwind 30 miles east of Frying Pan lightship, and in response to a signal Captain Taylor sent his mate, engineer and others on board the Berwind. The decks of the schooner were crimson with blood, giving evidence of a fierce encounter. The berth of the mate was spotted with blood, indicating that he was butchered in bed.

After the boarding party from the King handcuffed the mutineers on the ship, one of the negroes complained the irons were too tight and hurt him. The bracelet on the negro's arm was loosened, when the captive whipped out a pistol and shot one of his own crew. The total list of killed is four whites and one negro.

The King left a prize crew aboard the Berwind. Commissioner Collier and Deputy Marshal Knox left last night for quarantine to take charge of the captives.

Injunction Against Typos

Toledo, Oct. 12.—Judge Morris has granted a sweeping injunction restraining the local Typographical union and the Central Labor union from interfering with the employes of the German Express company, which has recently declared for the open shop.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Judge Holdom has granted an injunction restraining Typographical union No. 16 and its members from interfering with employes of members of the Chicago Typothetae.

Crazed by Jealousy

Dorr, Mich., Oct. 12.—Insane through jealousy, George Wise, aged 48, a farmer, cut his wife's throat from ear to ear with his jackknife and then hanged himself last night. Three months ago Wise was examined as to his sanity, but was adjudged to be of sound mind. He had made threats to kill his wife, but she refused to enter complaint against him. Wise and his wife had been married 19 years. They had five children.

Attributed to Black Hand

New York, Oct. 12.—Gaetano Costa, a butcher, 40 years old, was murdered last night in his shop in Brooklyn. Costa was alone when the murderers entered. Two men standing near the entrance to the shop heard shots and saw four men run out into the street. An examination of the body showed four bullet wounds. The murder is believed by officers to be the work of the Blank Hand. No arrests have been made.

End of Beef Arguments

Chicago, Oct. 12.—The hearing of arguments on the demurrers to the indictment returned by the federal grand jury against five of the big packing concerns and 17 of their employes has closed and if Judge Humphrey retains his present impression of the case, one half of the indictments charging the packers with conspiracy in restraint will be sustained and the remaining counts overruled.

Markel Contract Annulled

Panama, Oct. 12.—The last action of the Panama Canal commission before sailing from Colon for New York last evening was the annulment of the contract awarded to J. E. Markel of Omaha for feeding and caring for the employes of the canal. The reason for this action is that the department of materials and supplies is handling the commissaries successfully.

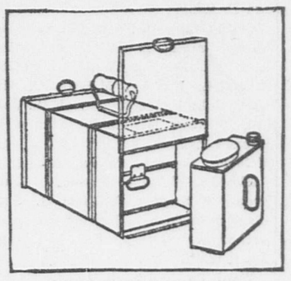
Express Company Makes Restitution

Cincinnati, Oct. 12.—The First National bank of this city has received by telegraph from Pittsburg $100,000 which was to have been brought by express but disappeared in Pittsburg. The express company directed the payment to the bank immediately on finding that it had been actually in their possession at the time of its loss.

HANDY DINNER PAIL.

Has Separate Compartment For Each Kind of Food.

Even the dinner pail offers the student an opportunity to comment upon the evolution that is inevitable in man's handiwork of the present day and generation. The one time universal kettle bears but slight resemblance to the modern adjustable dinner pail, with its several receptacles to keep each of the articles carried in good, as well as attractive, condition.



PAIL WITH FLASK REMOVED.

An example, in which economy of space is reduced to a science, is shown herewith—the happy thought of a New Yorker.

It consists of a casing, open at the ends and provided with sliding covers. The interior is divided into a number of compartments, each complete in itself and removable through either end of the casing. At one end there is a small flask to carry the beverage preferred by the owner. Beyond are other compartments or receptacles to hold the fruit and staple viands which constitute the midday repast.

As each receptacle is complete in itself and practically air tight, there is no opportunity for the different articles to become mussy or to otherwise lose their original attractive appearance when packed.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE WORK CURE.

Congenial Labor Nature's Most Potent Medicine.

Congenial work with mind and hands should be encouraged in all persons for its prophylactic as well as its curative influences. Rest will prove serviceable doubtless in numbers of cases, but its application should be restricted and carefully studied. There are many conditions where absolute rest will not only prove useless, but really harmful. To send a man from an active business life to one of complete inactivity will often prove disastrous, as much so as to prescribe all food for the obese.

The nervous will complain that they do not feel like work. If left to themselves and told to do absolutely nothing, not even to read, they are sure to dwell upon their infirmities and grow thereby morose and hypochondriacal, thus increasing their invalidism. The desire for work should be encouraged in all conditions and in all classes.—Medical Record.

Mental Athletics.

Pure air, clean and proper food, regular and suitable exercise sum up the means of fortifying the body against disease, said Dr. Henry Maudsley in a recent address before the British Medical association. These, however, he added, were not quite all, for they left out the mind. As a sound body was the condition of a sound mind, so the wholesome exercise of a calm and well disciplined mind, ready to meet all changes and chances with composure, ministered mightily to the health of body. He thought the science of human nature would make it more and more plain that sound thought, good moral feeling and devotion to a high ideal were the solid foundations of health and wealth of mind in individuals, in families and through families in nations.

Timing Autos by Wireless.

E. H. R. Green of Dallas, Tex., railroad president and son of the famous Hetty Green, has gone in for automobiling as a pastime, with the result that he has designed an electric system for the timing of automobiles on the race track. It is said to be extremely simple in its construction and application and can be laid down upon any course without any elaborate preparation. As the vehicle passes certain points along the course a record is made of the time at the judges' stand at the starting point. The system involves the use of the wireless method.—Scientific American.

The Biggest Slip on the Great Lakes.

Dredging has begun at the Ecorse plant of the Great Lakes Engineering works for the largest slip on the great lakes. When completed it will be 1,100 feet long, 180 feet wide and 16 feet deep. The new slip is the third one at the big plant and is on the south or down river side. It is 200 feet longer than either of the present slips and 30 feet wider. When completed the big slip will be used for storing vessels while being fitted out and for boats undergoing repairs.—Detroit Free Press.

Aluminium Paper.

Aluminium paper is now manufactured in Germany and recommended as a substitute for tin foil. It is not the so called leaf aluminium, but real paper coated with powdered aluminium, and is said to possess very favorable qualities for preserving articles of food, for which it is used as a covering.

FORTY PIES A MINUTE.

Machine Made Pastry the Latest Pittsburg Novelty.

Nice, sweet, juicy pies, the kind that mother used to make, are to be turned out at the rate of forty every minute, or 24,000 every ten hours. The man who is to accomplish this remarkable thing is E. L. Sons, a Pittsburg baker, who has invented a machine which will work these wonders and at the same time do away with pie pans and the regulation oven. One machine with such a capacity can be handled by three men, who will take the places of 100 bakers.

The machine will work on much the same principle as a waffle iron, and it was from that instrument that Mr. Sons got his idea. The machine contains a great endless chain like a waffle iron except that the "cups" are in the shape of a round pie. A man will stand at one end of the machine and fill the "cups" with dough.

They will pass through a furnace which will partly bake them before reaching the man who will supply the filling. Then a third will put the "lids" on, and the pies will pass through another furnace and come out ready for the table. Mr. Sons has completed one of the machines and says that it works perfectly. The variety of pies baked at one time is without limit.—New York World.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

An ornamental plot has been build through the centre of Grafton avenue from Edge Hill road to Sheldon street. The appearance of the street has been greatly improved by it.

Edward B. Wheeler has sold his house on Adams street to Brookline parties who will occupy it.

William Clark, aged 74 years, took an overdose of laudanum Wednesday afternoon and was in a serious condition for some time. Dr. McIntosh was summoned and succeeded in saving his life.

Resolutions.

WHEREAS,—In the dispensation of Divine Providence, St. Ambrose Court has sustained the great loss of its physician, friend and benefactor, Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan, be it

RESOLVED,—That while submissively recognizing the fact that "He doeth all things well," we appreciate fully the loss we have sustained in the removal from our midst of one whose ear was ever open to the call of charity, whose heart was ever responsive to the sufferings of others, and of one to whose untiring care and watchfulness is due the fact that never has a soul under his charge been deprived of the consolations of mother church though often purchased at much sacrifice to himself.

To the bereaved wife, his sons, and sister we tender our heartfelt sympathy in this, their hour of affliction, and earnestly beg of God to sustain, to comfort them, and to lead them to recognize the fact that the Divine hand that holds this chalice of suffering to their lips bears within it also the balm of healing. They do not mourn alone—their grief is shared by many in this community who have been the recipients of his bounty and whose grateful prayers will obtain for him the eternal reward that is promised to all who die in the Lord.

RESOLVED,—That these resolutions be placed upon the records of the Court, a copy sent to the family, and printed in the Daily Ledger.

TODAY'S COURT.

Samuel Rofle and Henry J. Murch were fined $10 each for exceeding the speed limit with automobiles at Randolph.

Henry Dugan of Braintree was arraigned for assault on Edward F. Condrick. Case continued until Oct. 21.

Contest Over $665,000 Estate

Claiming that Horace B. Taylor, a wealthy liquor merchant, was not legally divorced from her and married to Mrs. Ella C. Taylor in 1876, Mrs. Abbie E. Taylor, his wife by first marriage, is contesting his will before the Suffolk probate court, says the Herald.

Mrs. Taylor is an octogenarian and lives in Quincy. A contestant of the will with her is her son, George B. Taylor of Boston. His father's will disinherits him, stating, however, that he was liberally provided for.

The contested will was made on March 27 last, and gives one-third of the estate to Mrs. Ella C. Taylor, whom it mentions as his wife, and the other two-thirds to his other son, Henry W. Taylor of Berkeley, Cal., a child by his first wife. Mr. Taylor died on July 17 last, and left an estate of the value of $665,000. He was about 90 years old at death.

He had obtained two divorces from his first wife, the first early in the seventies at Fort Wayne, Ind., and the second, after a remarriage, at Portland, Me, in 1876.

The hearing yesterday consisted only of the giving of the testimony of Dr. Clara C. Simmons of 535 Beacon street and Charles Douglass of 96 West Newton street, two of the attesting witnesses.

The hearing was then continued until Oct. 30. Judge Grant appointed Daniel B. Ruggles. Mrs. Ella C. Taylor and Henry W. Taylor, special administrators to conserve the estate pending the outcome of the contest.

Drug Clerk Maloney Now at Top of the List

Votes are not a drug with Drug Clerk Maloney and he seems to have all he wants when occasion requires. Today he moves up from fourth place to the top of the list. Conductor Johnson has also jumped over Clerk Cash whose stay in first place was short lived.

There were also gains by Fred S. Sheppard, Jeweler Reynolds and Jeweler Jefferson and others down the list.

In the ladies list Miss Ethel Merritt moved up one place but is only two ahead of Miss Mahoney. Miss Manning continues number one. Miss Winneberger, Miss Rounds and others gain.

New candidates continue to come in nearly every day.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

The editor requests that large packages of votes be sent flat, as it is difficult to count cupons which have been rolled. Please place also on the first coupon the number of votes sent.

Candidates noticing any error in the count of their votes should notify the editor promptly as votes are destroyed after a few days.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

The Hole No Place

To Locate Large Stable. Excavation An Eyesore

Anyone who takes a look at that big hole near the Atlantic beach, left by Coleman Bros., will have no hesitation in saying that the objections by the residents to having a stable located in it were well founded.

Coleman Bros. were the contractors who made the sub-grading of a part of the Atlantic boulevard.

They found gravel a hard thing to get. Several desirable building lots near Faxon road were purchased and from these the gravel was taken. They dug these lots to a depth of nearly 25 feet. The hole thus left is useless for building purposes and must always remain an eyesore to the residents of that vicinity.

It might be flooded and make a skating pond but the chances are that it will eventually become a dump for old rubbish. Some people have already begun to use it for that purpose.

If a stable were located in this dump it would be impossible to drain it, and with 45 horses it must certainly become a nuisance and a menace to health for the entire neighborhood.

At the north and east ends of the hole are dwelling houses, not many hundred feet away, yet near enough to be damaged by the stable.

On the south and west sides are vacant building lots which it is understood are to be put to the same use as those by Coleman Bros. These will be dug away and when the contractors have completed their work the present eye sore will have been enlarged. It is impossible to imagine any use to which the lots can then be put.

At the south and west of the hole a little further off are many houses. They are situated on high ground and in an excellent position to receive the full benefit from any odor that might arise from a large stable should one by any possible chance be located where contemplated.

In face of the opposition that developed at the hearing the Board of Health could not do otherwise than give the petitioners leave to withdraw, which they have done.

It is understood that the company feel that it would be equally as useless to petition for a location for a stable on what is known as the Hull property and they will give that up.

Just where the stable will be located is as yet in doubt, although it is reported that they are trying to secure a site in the rear of the National Sailors' Home. There should be no great objection at that point.

Board of Health Complimented

Editors of Quincy Ledger:

The city is to be congratulated upon having at last a Board of Health who are not afraid to enforce all needful sanitary regulations. Their handling of the Newell & Snowling case has endeared them to every citizen of Wards Five and Six.

The erection of a great stable near dwelling houses is a serious menace to any community. It is hardly to be wondered at that there was a large turnout of remonstrants at Monday night's hearing.

If the company was really going ahead on the construction of the building at the foot of Bromfield street in the midst of a thickly settled community without first asking leave from the Board of Health, it must have thought that this was an easy city indeed. It is not surprising that some of the abuttors waxed wroth and wrote sharp letters to the contractor.

However, the Board of Health had a stiff backbone and soon put a quietus on an illegal proceeding.

The Mayor To Have Opponents

Ex-Councilman Benjamin Johnson Republican Candidate

Some weeks ago Mayor Thompson announced that he was a candidate for reelection. No other gentleman has publicly announced his candidacy, but there is no doubt but that the Mayor will have one rival at least for the Republican nomination, and should he be nominated he may have Democratic and citizens' rivals on election day.

Ex-Councilman Benjamin Johnson is an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination and his friends have put in an immense amount of work for him in all wards and they now appear to be confident of success. He has the support of those who are known as hustlers and it is becoming evident that Mayor Thompson cannot rely on his phenomenal plurality of over 1000 last year to be reelected.

To some, however, Mr. Johnson is no more acceptable than Mayor Thompson and efforts have been made, particularly at Wollaston, to get some other gentleman to enter race for the Republican nomination. President Walter F. Nichols of the City Council, ex-Councilman Nathan G. Nickerson, and Representative R. R. Freeman have all been considered.

Some ask, why a change? Mayor Thompson they say, has filled the executive chair with ability and dignity; he is a safe and conservative official, and as good a Mayor as Quincy ever had.

The query is met by his opponents by a criticism of his appointments as Department officials. At Wollaston and Atlantic, in particular, the attitude of the present administration toward the public schools is criticised, especially in its failure to provide accommodations for pupils at the High school. In West Quincy there is opposition because of the Crescent street obstruction, while Houghs Neck is indignant over the failure to equip the new fire station.

Mr. Johnson has the support of many of the ex-officials of the city, including ex-Mayor Bryant, and some of the present City Hall appointees are said to be out for him. Mr. Johnson's service in the City Council was in the year 1897 being elected from Ward Two where he then resided. He was a member of the Finance Committee. He declined a reelection.

Mr. Johnson now resides in Ward One on School street, and is manager of the Johnson Lumber Company in Ward Two. He has been successful in business, and is popular socially.

It is probable that Mr. Johnson will not have the easy walkover for the nomination that his friends anticipate. Whether there will be a third candidate for the nomination is not known, but there are less than three weeks in which to trot him out.

Among the Democrats Marshall P. Wright and Dr. Hallowell have been urged to accept the nomination, but both prefer to pass it by. It will probably go once more to ex-Councilman George H. Wilson, who in 1903 received 1860 votes to 2155 cast for Mayor Bryant.

The time for filing nomination papers of Republicans to be voted for at the caucuses Nov. 14 will expire Thursday Nov. 2, two weeks from next Thursday, so it will be seen that the time is getting short to circulate nomination papers.

Successful Fair By King's Daughters

A very attractive fair was held Wednesday evening, in the Congregational vestry at Wollaston, under the auspices of the Whatsoever circle, King's Daughters.

The vestry was prettily decorated with autumn foliage and hydrangeas. There were seven tables each having a silver cross, with the letters "I. H. N." in purple.

The doll table was a special feature, the table representing toy-land with fifty beautifully dressed dolls. The candy table was popular as usual, clearing twenty-five dollars. A chaffing dish supper was served.

During the evening, a musical program by the Potter trio, was much enjoyed. The fair was a success financially, over a hundred dollars being received, to help carry on the winter's work of the circle, among the poor and needy.

Republican Club Issues Statement

The Republican club of Massachusetts got into the campaign on Wednesday. It held a meeting at its rooms, 19 Milk street, Boston, and a committee prepared and issued an address directing attention to the charges, and the investigation made, relative to the passage by the Legislature of 1890 of the act "to authorize the West End Street Railway Company to build elevated railroads," Henry M. Whitney, the present Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, being then president of the corporation in question.

To the voters of Massachusetts:

An act "to authorize the West End Street Railway Company to build elevated railroads" was before the Legislature in 1890, and was approved July 2 of that year. There had been so much said about the methods by which the passage of this act had been secured that on June 12, 1890, the following order was passed by the House:

Ordered: That a special committee be appointed to inquire into the methods used for and against applications for legislation concerning elevated railroads.

This special committee investigated the charges made by Mr. George Fred Williams against the West End Railway Company. The first charge was "that the West End Railway Company had maintained a large corps of lobyists and legislative counsel and made expenditures through them and its officers beyond any legitimate purpose in securing legislation," and the committee reported that $24,798.62 was the amount of expense incurred for the purposes set forth in charge one.

The committee found "that the testimony as to the number of persons employed and as to the sums paid to them, or still remaining to be paid, indicates to the committee that the West End Company has made a bad practice distinctly worse. The committee can hardly believe that other applicants for legislation have spent such large sums of money in endeavoring directly and indirectly to influence legislative action, or have bestowed their retainers with such a lavish hand."

Mr. Henry M. Whitney was president of the West End Street Railway Company at the time of this investigation, and had been for two years and a half, ever since the road was incorporated.

At this time, when the use of improper influences to affect the action of state Legislatures is so widely and justly condemned, is it well for Massachusetts now to elect Mr. Henry M. Whitney Lieutenant-Governor, and thus put the seal of her approbation upon the methods which were employed to secure West End railway legislation in 1890 when he was president of that corporation?

The Republican Club of Massachusetts, by

GRAFTON D. CUSHING, Pres.
CHARLES B. BARNES, Jr., Sec.

Pine Tree Club.

A meeting of the Pine Tree club was held Thursday evening at Colonial hall. There was a large attendance and a most enjoyable evening was passed. There was no set program for the entertainment, but members contributed solos, and there was some speech making. Then there was dancing and refreshments.

It was voted that hereafter regular meetings be held the second Thursday of each month at Colonial hall.

Boys over twelve years have been invited to a reception at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday evening.

FOR SHIP SUBSIDY

Bankers Pledge Themselves In Its Favor

A DECLINE IN SHIPPING

Blief That It Can Be Checked and Prestige Which We Once Enjoyed Upon High Seas Can Be Regained

Washington, Oct. 13.—The American Association of Bankers has put itself squarely on record as favoring government subsidies for the upbuilding of the American merchant marine. Resolutions reviewing the growth of American commerce and the decline in American shipping, and pledging the association to throw the weight of its influence towards the enactment of a ship subsidy law were presented by the executive council of the association and adopted by a rising vote in which it was estimated that three-quarters of the delegates took the affirmative side.

The report of the currency committee was received, but no action taken thereon. The report followed the suggestions made previously by Secretary Shaw in his address before the convention for an emergency currency. Former Representative Pugsley of Peekskill, N. Y., who submitted the report, expressed the opinion that congress would enact financial legislation if the bankers presented a united demand for some specific measure. The report outlined several changes in the system which it might be advisable to make by legislation.

The enthusiasm of the day was vented on the ship subsidy proposition. The five enacting clauses of the resolution are as follows:

"Resolved, by the American Bankers' association, assembled:

"First—That the members of this association are deeply interested in any measure which will promote the interest of the whole country commercially and industrially, and especially with reference to our foreign commerce.

"Second—That we favor and most respectfully urge the passage by congress of some measures to foster and encourage the upbuilding of our merchant marine and give us back the prestige upon the high seas which we once enjoyed.

"Third—That we favor the ship subsidy measure, which has received consideration by congress, which, we think, would tend to restore our flag upon the seas and build up our merchant marine to the extent that the necessities of our trade now and in the future may demand.

"Fourth—That we recommend that our senators and congressmen favor some just and equitable measure that will bring about the results and afford the relief above suggested.

"Fifth—That through our legislative committee we memorialize the senate and the house of representatives of the United States with a copy of these resolutions."

The convention will terminate with the session today, the program of which includes the discussion of practical banking questions, addresses, and the election and installation of officers.

Leonard Indicted For Larceny

New York, Oct. 13.—Harry A. Leonard, the young bank clerk who took $359,000 worth of securities from the National City bank by means of a forged check, has been indicted for larceny. Although it was claimed by his counsel that Leonard, in taking the securities, merely was showing how easily the great financial institutions of the Wall street district might be robbed, his indictment means that a fight will have to be made to save him from the penitentiary.

Doctor's Alibi Fails to Convince Chief of State Police

Boston, Oct. 13.—Chief Shaw says that the statement made in New York by the former Tremont street physician with the intent to demonstrate his innocence of any connection with the Winthrop suit case mystery does not satisfy him that the doctor should be eliminated from the case.

The next move by the state police will be an attempt on their part to interview the doctor, and probably his offer to meet a member of the state force in some place outside of Boston will be accepted. Providence has been suggested as a convenient and agreeable place by the doctor.

In spite of the fact that Pawnbroker Berkman was unable to identify the doctor as the man who bought the suit case, and the alibi alleged by the doctor, Chief Shaw refuses to discard the clue. He will continue his investigations regardless of the doctor's story and his claim that he was in New York on the day the suit case was sold.

The state police feel that some member of the district force should have been apprised that the doctor had been located, and that an officer should have been present when the attempt to identify was made.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Oct. 13.—Dashing along before a stiff southwester and with all sail set, three of the five four-masters that left the Capes of Chesapeake last Monday morning passed here on the race to Boston and a discharging wharf. Holmes Birdsall and the Benjamin F. Poole, are far in the rear.

CUMMINS RAPS SHAW

Thinks Quotations From Secretary's Speech Were Correct

Des Moines, Oct. 13.—Governor Cummins last night, in an address before a Republican club, revived the controversy between himself and Secretary of the Treasury Shaw over the question of whether Cummins, in an address delivered at Chicago, correctly quoted certain parts of a speech made by Shaw before the Des Moines Commercial club. The governor said:

"In making a speech upon the subject of reciprocity in Chicago the other day I referred to an address made by the secretary of the treasury in Des Moines, in which he attempted to defend the senate for its inaction. I accepted the report of his address as published in the editorial columns of a friendly newspaper. He must settle this controversy with the editor of the newspaper. I have no right to pass upon the question of veracity between two such distinguished men, but I may say in passing that a dozen men who heard the speech have offered me their affidavits attesting the accuracy of the report made by the editor."

Governor Cummins' speech last night was in favor of immediate tariff revision and for reciprocity. He declared that all talk of harmony in the Republican party on the tariff issue was idle until one side or the other had been honestly convinced of its error or utterly defeated.

St. Paul, Oct. 13.—C. I. McNair, B. F. Nelson and A. S. Bossard, who were recently ordered by Judge Van Deventer to answer certain questions which might be asked of them, and to produce the books of their respective paper mills in court, refused to comply with the order and were adjudged in contempt of court. Judge Van Deventer sentenced each of the contumacious witnesses to pay a fine of $150, and to be confined in jail until purged of contempt. Immediate notice of an appeal to the supreme court of the United States was given. This acts as a stay of sentence and the respondents were released on bail pending the decision of the supreme court.

London, Oct. 13.—The revelations by the Paris Matin of alleged reasons for the resignation of M. Glenwood Ranges.

For some time past the interesting statement has been published by the makers of the Glenwood range that "every seven minutes in the day a new Glenwood is made and sold."

At one of the Glenwood stores in Boston an old Glenwood range has been placed on exhibition for the past few months which has a very interesting history. It was purchased twenty-three years ago by Mr. Alfred S. Ives of Salem, Mass., and has been in constant use since that time until about a year ago, when it was exchanged for a modern Glenwood. Not a single warp or crack appears, and it is apparently as good as the day it was purchased.

Fishing Rights Off Newfoundland Abrogated

A VIOLATION OF TREATY

One In Existence For Nearly Ninety Years Given New Interpretation by Premier Bond --An Appeal to Roosevelt

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 13.—This city is seriously disturbed by the receipt of private dispatches to vessel owners from captains at Bay of Islands, N. F., saying that the cruiser Fiona, with the minister of marines and fisheries, has arrived at the Bay of Islands and has forbidden all vessels with American register to fish for herring there, notwithstanding their hitherto undisputed treaty rights. It is believed that the success which the Gloucester cod fishing interests has met with in the past summer, in spite of the retaliatory bait act passed by Newfoundland in the spring, has led to additional hostility on the part of Newfoundland fishermen.

In fishing circles some such step was anticipated, especially as reports had reached here that Premier Bond contends that the right to fish on the west coast of Newfoundland, under the treaty of 1818, does not mean that the Americans may fish in the inlets and harbors of the coast. Still a number of vessels recently sailed from here for the usual fall fishing, relying on the fact cited by the opposition in the Newfoundland parliament, in reply to Bond's contention, that the theory changed the interpretation which had been put upon the treaty for nearly 90 years.

Gloucester skippers for some time past have reported to owners here that Newfoundlanders were hostile. In this connection the famous Fortune bay riot of some years ago, when the natives tore up nets of the American fishermen fishing there under treaty rights and drove off the fishermen with firearms, is recalled, and it is feared that similar trouble may come now.

A communication has been sent to President Roosevelt appealing to him to point out to the Newfoundland government the alleged violation of the treaty.

FOR GOVERNOR— CHARLES W. BARTLETT

His Election Will Convince Congress that Massachusetts is in Earnest in its Demand for Free Hides, Coal, Iron Ore, Lumber and Wood Pulp.

Charles W. Bartlett, citizen, soldier, advocate, was born in Boston August 12, 1845. His parents removed to East Cambridge a few years later, where he attended the public schools. At the age of 11 he was a pupil of the Putnam Grammar School and much interested in his studies; but he was compelled to give up his school and go with his parents who removed to a farm in the town of Lee, N.H., where the educational advantages were not equal to those of Cambridge.

However, the boy was possessed with a desire to secure an education, and what time could be spared from the many duties he found to perform upon a rocky farm, he attended the district school of Lee. There are still living in New Hampshire quite a number of people who knew Gen. Bartlett at this period of his career, and who tell with pride of the efforts of a dutiful son to aid his parents in getting a living on a rented farm, while at the same time striving to secure an education. It is related by one who knows the early life of Gen. Bartlett that he was an omniverous reader, devoting the long winter evenings after the farm work was completed to careful study and reading of such books as he could secure. It was in that New Hampshire home, devoid of everything but the barest necessities, that the successful advocate of to-day grounded himself in the rudiments of law and history. He was a good farmer and a good student, and the habits of early life imposed upon him by a lack of wealth and opportunity make him thorough in all he does, perfectly frank, open and honest.

Determined to secure an education, opportunity came to attend for two short terms a small academy at Andover, N. H. While enjoying this (to him) great privilege of attending an academy, he continued his studies in private. It was his great good fortune at this time to form the acquaintance of Jeremiah Smith, at present a professor at the Harvard law school. Prof. Smith had graduated from Harvard and was living at the Hale farm, near the home of Mr. Bartlett. He interested himself in the Bartlett boy, encouraged him to study, and aided him in many ways, particularly by hearing him recite the lessons learned.

The pinch of poverty was unceasing, however, and as the season grew more suitable for farming than for study, young Bartlett was compelled to relinquish his studies and go to work as a bread winner. He worked as a laborer in a crew that traveled about the state compressing hay into bales. This was hard work, and the hours were from daylight to dark; but two months of such labor enabled him to accumulate money with which to assist in his education.

At the breaking out of the war he was about 16 years of age, and he was extremely anxious to join his schoolboy comrades and enlist, but being an only son he could not secure the consent of his parents, and at this time could not go to the front. Later, however, he secured the consent of his father, and he promptly left the New Hampshire home, went to Boston, and enlisted as a private in Company A, 5th Massachusetts regiment. He served his term of service and was mustered out in November, 1864.

When he returned home from the war, he resumed his studies at the academy at Andover, N. H., where some boyish prank brought him into conflict with the academy authorities, which resulted in his leaving the school. With a determination characteristic of the man, the boy was more than ever desirous of securing an education, and without saying a word to anyone he went to Dartmouth College, and there took the entrance examinations. One of the many branches in which he was examined he never studied, but it was here that his great reading and retentive memory came to his aid, and not only in this particular branch, but in all others, he successfully passed the examination. He learned in the month of June of his success with his examinations. Then arose the momentous problem of providing the necessary money to defray his expenses. Inspired with a worthy ambition, he sought work to earn the money. The best thing obtainable was employment as a laborer with a bridge-builder. He accepted the opportunity gladly, and was put to work with other men at the dangerous work of building a cofferdam. He continued in the employ of the bridge builder until the college year opened in September. With the money thus earned young Bartlett entered Dartmouth College, and managed to get along until the winter vacation came.

In those days it was customary to permit deserving students to leave college to teach for brief periods country schools throughout New England.

Availing himself of the opportunity to replenish his depleted funds, he went to Truro, Mass., and there in that section of the old Cape Cod town known as Hogsback, young Bartlett made his first appearance as a school teacher. He was successful in his teaching, and with the money accumulated he went back to Dartmouth College for the spring term.

After completing his studies at college that spring he went into the hay fields as a laborer, and followed the harvest from the lowlands to the uplands. With the money earned he went to college for the fall term, later returning to Cape Cod to teach a brief term at Wellfleet. This was a rather peculiar school, in that it was made up principally of those healthy young Cape Codders who passed most of the year in deep sea fishing, returning home for a brief period in winter. There were between 50 and 60 of them, and they were a studious, well-behaved lot and seemed to realize that it was important that they should make the most of their scant educational opportunities.

From Wellfleet Bartlett returned to college for another term, when an urgent request came for a teacher to take charge of a school in which the pupils had been running things to suit themselves. The president of the college sent word that he had two men, either of whom were capable of undertaking the task. One of them was Gen. Bartlett, and the other was Judge Maynard, now of the Superior Court of Massachusetts. Gen. Bartlett was sent out to take charge of the school, and as in almost all his undertakings he was successful. This school was at South Gardner, Mass. Later he again taught at Wellfleet.

While in college Gen. Bartlett was a member of the D. K. E. fraternity. After he graduated from college in the class of '69, he received a proposition to teach the high school at Salmon Falls, N.H. There had been considerable trouble and one term had been broken up. He took charge of the school and taught it peaceably.

In the meantime at every opportunity he had been studying law, and soon after completing his college course he entered the Albany, N. Y., law school. He completed the course, and was admitted to the bar of New York in 1871.

Gen. Bartlett returned to his New Hampshire home and entered into a law partnership with Samuel M. Wheeler of Dover, N.H. He remained there two years, and then started for New York city by way of Boston. When he arrived in Boston he met a friend with whom he had business transactions in New Hampshire who wanted him to take charge of some legal matters in Boston. Gen. Bartlett demurred, saying he had no office or facilities for work, and was on his way to New York. He was induced to call at the office of N. B. Bryant, an attorney, and explain the situation to him. Mr. Bryant very generously gave Gen. Bartlett a desk in his office, and invited him to remain just as long as he wished. The result was that Gen. Bartlett occupied that desk for 15 years.

Gen. Bartlett is the senior member of the firm of Bartlett & Anderson, one of the most prominent and successful law firms of Boston. He is a past commander of John A. Andrew post 15, G. A. R., and resides in Dorchester with his wife. He has been a member of the Suffolk County Bar association since it was founded, and is a member of the Curtis club, the Taylor club and the New Hampshire club, and is president of the Dartmouth Educational association and a member of other Dartmouth alumni associations. He is a man of simple habits, loves horses, baseball, football; but his greatest enjoyment he secures from his home life.

Gen. Charles W. Bartlett is an ideal man for the honorable position of governor of this commonwealth. He is scrupulously honest and fearless. He would represent in the executive office the interests of the whole people. Special interests asking favors at the expense of the people would receive no consideration. He is an advocate of reciprocal trade treaties with all countries, and with Canada in particular. He believes in a revision of the tariff to meet the requirements of the welfare of our New England industries. He has the confidence of the business interests, is trusted by the farmer, and the workingmen will find in him a true friend.

Voters of Massachusetts are urged to cast their ballot for Charles W. Bartlett, and thus emphasize the appeal to Congress for relief from the tariff burden which threatens to crush the life out of industrial New England.

"For the benefit of Massachusetts industries, I believe that Congress should place upon the free list hides, coal, iron ore, lumber and wood pulp, and that duties upon manufactured and other articles be reduced wherever possible. I am also convinced that reciprocal trade treaties should be made by this country with Canada and other nations." — CHARLES W. BARTLETT.

PEPPERY COMMENT

Unitarians Barred From the National Federation

LACK OF CONSISTENCY

Clash With Trinitarians Is Made Sharper Than Ever--Unitarians Practically Declared to Be Not "Christians"

New York, Oct. 13.—Rev. Dr. Minot J. Savage of the Church of the Messiah, Unitarian, commenting upon the vote of the executive committee of the inter-church conference on federation, which is to be held in this city next month, to exclude representatives of the Unitarians from the convention, said:

"That such an action has been taken causes me no surprise. Those who assert that a belief in the divinity of Christ is all-important to salvation are at least consistent in excluding us from their work of saving mankind. This we have to admit. They are consistent, just as were Catholics who burned Protestants and Protestants who murdered Catholics in the middle ages. Disbelief meant eternal ruin; therefore, cut it out, root and branch—kill the body if necessary, but check its spread. It was consistent, was it not? But don't you think it is rather late to be living up to such ideals of consistency?

"And even consistency itself gets muddled now and then, as, for instance, in the treatment accorded to our Unitarian young men in the Y. M. C. A. That organization is anxious they should come in; it takes their money, but in return it is forced by its consistent purpose to deny them the voice in its management, the vote in regard to its affairs that is given to young men of other churches."

Dr. Donald S. Mackay, a member of the executive committee of the Inter-Church Federation, said of the exclusion: "The Unitarians say they are Christians and desire to join in the work. What can any such conference as this do but take their word for it and admit them? Lots of us accept them as Christians; I know that I do most emphatically. Why, if we were having such tests applied, a good, consistent out-and-out Baptist would have to insist on the immersion of the Presbyterian delegates before he could accept them as really and truly fellow-workers. Many of us feel deeply the debt we owe to Channing, and we are anxious to have the Unitarians at the conference. The action taken was nonsensical, in my opinion."

About 700 official delegates and alternates are expected to attend the conference, representing about 18,000,000 church members. Among the delegates elected were Rev. Edward Everett Hale, chaplain of the United States senate; John D. Long, ex-secretary of the navy, and Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot, president of the American Unitarian association and son of President Eliot of Harvard. The committee in charge of the scheme declined to admit these three delegates.

What Eliot and Long Think

Boston, Oct. 13.—In an interview, Rev. Dr. Samuel A. Eliot of this city, president of the American Unitarian association, commented upon the action of the executive committee of the National Federation of Churches in excluding delegates of the Unitarian denomination. Dr. Eliot said:

"The Unitarians are ready to cooperate in all good causes and are only sorry that the men of the other Christian communions deny to them the chance of helpfulness. I fear that the American people will not believe much in a movement that denies to Edward Everett Hale a place in its councils."

Former Secretary of the Navy Long, who, with Rev. Dr. Eliot and Rev. Dr. Hale, was named as a delegate by the Unitarians, expressed the opinion that the report from New York must be incorrect. "No good men," he said, "would be guilty nowadays of any such narrowness."

Rev. Lewis G. Wilson, acting secretary of the American Unitarian association, and a number of prominent Unitarian pastors who were seen said they deplored the action of the executive committee of the federation, and thought a grave mistake had been made by it.

Indictments Against Bank Officer

Lockport, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Frederick R. Green, cashier of the defunct Fredonia National bank of Fredonia, was indicted in the district court here. There are 35 specific counts against Green. The first 13 counts charge false entries, made by Green in his reports to the comptroller of the currency.

Big Gusher Causes Trouble

Fairmont, W. Va., Oct. 13.—The residents of Fairview are without fires and artificial lights because of the danger from escaping gas from a new well that came in yesterday and is not yet under control. The well was struck in the middle of the town by a gas company and the flow is heavy.

Wintry Weather In Ohio

Cleveland, Oct. 13.—A furious gale, accompanied by heavy rain and hail, which began Wednesday night, still continues. At Chardon from six to eight inches of snow has fallen. Telephone wires were carried down in all directions.

HAIR TELLS CHARACTER.

Color of Hair Said to Indicate a Person's Temperament.

Many people believe that blonde, or light hair denotes affection and dark hair constancy. A person without hair is not devoid of character; far from it. The disposition of the average bald-headed man is to show such solicitude for the welfare of others, that he neglects himself. A germ causes baldness. Prof. Sabouraud, of Paris, France, inoculated a rabbit with Dandruff germs, causing it to become totally bald in five weeks' time. To rid the scalp of these dangerous germs it is necessary to apply Newbro's Herpicide.

"Destroy the cause—you remove the effect."

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Funeral of Sunday School Worker

The funeral of Miss Hannah O'Brien was held this morning from St. John's church, where she had long been a teacher in the Sunday-school. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated with Rev. John J. Coan as celebrant, Rev. Julian E. Johnstone as deacon, Rev. John J. Casey as sub-deacon, and Rev. John P. Cuffe as master of ceremonies. Rev. Daniel C. Reardon was also present and a delegation from the Religious Sisters' Order, of which the sister was a member. The Gregorian mass was rendered, Miss Grace McDermott singing "Passing out of the Shadow" after the absolution service. The services were largely attended and there were many flowers. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

Pilgrims Arrive For the Big Game

Mayor Thompson is interested in Association football, and is serving on the reception committee as the representative of the Quincy club to help entertain the Pilgrim team from England, which is now in Boston. The team of English gentlemen is making a triumphal tour of this country and Canada, having suffered, but one defeat in 21 matches, the score at Chicago, being 2 to 1 against them. In three games only have they been scored against.

The Pilgrims arrived in Boston Thursday evening, and a cordial welcome is being extended to them. On Saturday they will play a picked team at Fall River and on Monday comes the big game in Boston against a picked team representing Greater Boston. Five players are from Quincy and Thomas Robertson of this city will probably be captain. Already 200 Quincy rooters have secured tickets for the match.

The Pilgrims will be given a public reception some day before their departure from Boston, which is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 17.

Continued Praise.

To the Editors of the Ledger:

Many kind words have been spoken in the last few days concerning Our Hospital on the hill—but the writer gladly adds to their number, as far as the power lies, to give expression to his gratitude for the continued unvarying, never ending goodness, sweetness, and gentleness that came to him so bountifully during the time that he was privileged to stay there as a patient.

The writer calls to every one, rich or poor, great or small, to open wide his purse and his heart and give to an institution, that stands always ready to serve you and yours, without stint or measure and stands for the time being as mother, father, and loving friend.

A Patient.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

New Leaders Again Today

One Leader Of Yesterday Drops to Number Three

The leaders in the Scholarship contest are so closely bunched that a new name is now expected at the top each day. Yesterday it was reported that the leader in the men's list had dropped to third place, and the same is true today of Drug Clerk Maloney who held first place yesterday. Both Conductor Johnson and Clerk Cash have jumped ahead of him, and the former leads by just fifty votes.

In the ladies' list both Miss Manning and Miss Peterson gained, but the latter moved up to the top, having a lead of 54 votes. Miss Tilton, Miss Swanson, Miss Mountain and others also gained.

Tomorrow the Daily Ledger will announce the selections for second prizes in the contest, and it is probable that there will be third and fourth prizes. It is not too late for new candidates to enter the contest and secure one of the prizes.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

To Examine The Books

Creditors Of Quarries Company Hold Meeting

A largely attended meeting of the creditors of the Quincy Quarries Co., was held Thursday afternoon at Music hall. There was a general discussion of the affairs of the company and on the proposition made by Theophilus King for a reorganization of the company. The plan proposed admitted the creditors as stockholders. No definite action however, was taken on the proposition.

W. G. A. Pattee, Esq., who represented some of the creditors offered a motion which prevailed, for the appointment of a committee of three to examine the books of the company. The meeting then adjourned.

Horace F. Spear and Frank S. Patch are the Quincy members of the committee.

Hospital Returns

Collections Are Just Beginning To Come In

Reports from the various wards show that nearly all the 122 collectors have been busy most of this week distributing the envelopes. And now the returns have begun to come! Owing to the very great effort that is being made this year to raise at least $5,000, the Hospital Week Committee would again repeat the words at the bottom of page two of the little paper—"If you think you will give $1, just ask yourself if you cannot possibly give $2; if you think you will give $10, give $20."

Charged with Assaulting Women

Young Fellow Pursued By Minister And Caught

A man who gives his name as Henry Haskins, and says he is 19 years of age, and lives at 63 Albany street, Boston, was arrested last evening after a lively chase. The persuers were headed by Rev. A. B. Tyler, pastor of the West Quincy Methodist church and Fred L. Bager, who were followed by quite a crowd.

It is alleged that Haskins had held up a young lady on Hall place who placed his hand over her mouth and threw her to the ground.

The young lady in question is Miss Amy A. Miller, the 16 year old daughter of John L. Miller of Hall place Miss Miller had been attending services at the West Quincy church. After the services she accompanied a friend to the car and was on her way home when the assult took place.

Miss Miller says that she had reached a point opposite the church, when a man stepped up to her, and wanted to see her home. She refused his offer. He then grapped her, and placing his hand over her mouth, threw her to the ground.

She wrenched his hand away, and cried for help. Her cries were heard by Rev. Mr. Tyler and Mr. Badger who were coming from the church. They ran to her assistance, and upon their approach the man jumped up, and ran toward Crescent street.

From Crescent street the fellow ran to Willard street with the pursuers hot on his trail.

Officer Hinchon heard the cries, and joined in the chase, and the fellow was captured. He denied all knowledge of the assault, but was fully identified by Miss Miller.

To the officer he gave the name of Henry Haskins. He said he lived at 63 Albany street, Boston, and had been at work for Boynton & Russell at Wollaston. The fellow had been drinking but was not intoxicated. He was locked up on the charge of attempting to commit a felonious assault.

An hour previous to the affair on Hall place Mrs. Howard C. Barnes of 18 Pine street was held up at Wollaston. Mrs. Barnes was on her way home through Beale street about 7.30 o'clock with her daughter. They had reached a point near the corner of Pine street when a young man grabbed Mrs. Barnes by the waist. He then placed his hand over her mouth and attempted to throw her to the ground. She forced his hand away and screamed for help, as did also her daughter. At this the man became frightened and ran toward Adams street, and might have continued to West Quincy.

The police were notified, but when they arrived no trace of him could be found.

The police are inclined to believe that Haskins and the man who assaulted Mrs. Barnes are one and the same person.

They believe that when the fellow ran away from Mrs. Barnes he made his way through the Ward Four playground toward the West Quincy depot to take the train for Boston. This is the route he would naturally take and in doing so would pass through Hall place where the second assault took place.

The time between the two assaults was just about what was required to cover the distance from Beale street to Hall place.

Later in the evening Mrs. Barnes saw Haskins at the Police station but was not certain whether he was the man who had assaulted her.

She seemed to think that the man who assaulted her was an older man than Haskins. As stated above however the police believe Haskins the man who committed the assaults.

Miss Miller told her story of the assault to the court in a low voice, and positively identified Haskins as the man who made the assault upon her.

When Haskins was asked by the court if he wished to ask her any questions about her testimony, he grumbled, "No I guess not."

When asked if he desired to make any statement in his own behalf, he made the same reply.

The court then held Haskins in $2,000 for the grand jury.

The prisoner does not appear to be over and above bright.

RACE PREJUDICE

Unfits Governor Wright For the Philippines

HAS NOT YET RESIGNED

President Has Decided Upon His Withdrawal, but Disclosure of Purpose May Delay His Departure From the Islands

Washington, Oct. 14.—The conflicting reports in regard to the resignation of Luke Wright as governor general of the Philippine islands, which is vigorously denied in official quarters, is the unfortunate result of a "premature exposure" of administration policies. Wright has not resigned, and has little present intention of doing so. The administration planned to retire him, a project long in contemplation, which gained headway from some observations of Secretary Taft during his recent trip.

These do not reffect in the slightest degree upon Governor Wright's integrity or ability; he is simply not adapted to the present needs of the position. This disclosure of the administration plan is proving highly embarrassing to the president and also to Wright, and to neutralize that embarrassment the governor's stay on his return to the islands will doubtless be prolonged beyond the original intention.

Governor Wright's appointment was an attempted piece of strategy on Mr. Roosevelt's part. He thought that Democratic criticism of the administration of the Philippines would be estopped by having a prominent southern Democrat in charge there, just as he felt that Catholic criticism of the school system would be allayed by putting a Roman Catholic commissioner at the head of the school system, as he did with General Smith of California.

But in this Democratic strategy, President Roosevelt overlooked something which his Booker Washington dinner experience should have emphasized, and that is the southern attitude toward the race question. When Taft was governor he entertained the Filipino members of the commission and the courts, with their wives and daughters, at the Malacanan. He brought the chief justice over to Yale, which conferred upon this Filipino jurist the degree of doctor of laws. The small minority of cultivated Filipinos naturally expected an exchange of social courtesies when they were given a part in the civil government. It all went on well under Taft in spite of some "anti-nigger" cries on the part of the American element.

When Wright was in this country last, President Roosevelt spoke with him of this phase of the question, patting him on the back, with the assurance that, of course, Wright would realize the folly of transferring anything like American race antagonism to the Philippines. The governor's reply was brief, but dignified. He said: "That is a very deep question, Mr. President."

Although he has been formally courteous to the natives, on a basis that would not be allowed in the south, it has become apparent to them that neither he nor Mrs. Wright like the part they are taking. When the Philippine commissioners traveled over this country last year, aside from visiting St. Louis, which is essentially northern, they were studiously kept away from southern territory. None of the Filipino youths now being educated in this country on public school scholarships have been sent to southern institutions.

While this was one of the smaller aspects of Wright's administration, it has long appeared that he was not "getting on well there," a situation somewhat disguised from the United States by the excellent relations existing between the civil government and American news sources there. The American people do not welcome any unfavorable reports of the colonial experiment, and even so good a "Republican" as Taft was criticised for acknowledging so much as he did of the local difficulties on his recent return from the archipelago. He feels that a new governor there is necessary, although it had not been the intention of the administration to hurt Wright's feelings by letting this purpose get out in advance of his own announcement of a desire to retire.

GUILTY OF PERJURY

Lawyer Averill Fails to Appear In Court For Sentence

Salem, Mass., Oct. 14.—Charles J. Averill, the Topsfield lawyer charged with perjury, was found guilty in two counts, but when it came time to sentence him he could not be found. A capias was immediately issued for his arrest. Daniel L. Crowley, who defanded Averill, says he has not the slightest idea where his client has gone.

The case grew out of an attempt at jury-fixing, for which one Walter C. Dunnells was given a house of correction sentence. Later he sent for Averill and had a talk with him at the jail in the hearing of a concealed stenographer.

Averill, in the course of proceedings, denied parts of the conversation credited to him, and an indictment in two counts charging perjury was found against him. The jury was out but an hour.

Trudeau was arraigned before Justice Stebbins. After a full examination it was decided that the deed was one of justifiable homicide and the clerk was discharged.

WEED PULLING FOR GOSSIPS

Pennsylvania Ladies Form Novel Club to Stop Village Tattle.

Residents of the little village of Atco, down in Camden county, Pa., are busy removing weeds from their yards, and the beautifying process was brought about through the diplomacy of the wife of Rev. William L. Squires, who is the pastor of the Presbyterian church at that place, says the Philadelphia Press.

The removal of the weeds was the preliminary move by several prominent residents who have joined a club, the object of which is to refrain from gossip under a penalty of removing weeds from her own yard or that of her neighbor.

The other night Mrs. Squires invited several of the lady members of the church to the parsonage, and after they had partaken of tea and cookies she unfolded her neat little plan, which she hoped would put a stop to the gossip in the community among the members.

The scheme as explained by Mrs. Squires is like this: "Every one who enrolls as a member must promise not to participate in any kind of gossip whatever, except, of course, what is good for the cause of religion. The meetings will be held every two weeks at the home of the members. If any member of the club is self conscious of having participated in gossip detrimental to the church of the community or any member thereof during the two weeks it shall be her duty to pluck from her yard or that of her neighbor a weed for every violation of her promise. At the ensuing meeting all these weeds will be gathered into one huge pile and burned."

One of the male members present was asked to join, but declined, declaring that he had a weak back, and as his duties compelled him to do considerable talking he was afraid that his bundle of weeds would be so heavy at the end of two weeks that he would be unable to carry them.

EMBEZZLEMENT, FOLK SAYS

Missouri Governor Talks of Insurance Aid to Campaign Funds.

Governor Joseph W. Folk of Missouri in a recent speech at Warrensburg, Mo., announced his views on life insurance "graft" in this language, says a Warrensburg, Mo., dispatch:

"When directors of the great insurance companies use money for their own profit, that is 'graft;' when the president of a great insurance company takes funds held in trust for the beneficiaries of insurance policies and without their knowledge and consent converts a part of a trust fund into a political campaign fund, that is embezzlement, just the same as if a public official in charge of public funds were to put his hands into the public treasury and take therefrom money which he turns over to some one else for political or private purposes.

"If insurance companies cannot exist without resorting to bribery and surreptitious violations of the law, it would be better for the people that they be wiped out of existence. The time may come when the state will insure her own citizens at a far less cost and with far more safety to those who need that protection. When one reflects that Missouri alone sends away premiums amounting to $14,084,946.38 a year, the gigantic nature of the insurance trust can be realized. The millions piled up in the great insurance companies seem to be the foundation of what is known as the 'system' whereby the financial affairs of the country are manipulated to the injury of the people and the benefit of the special few."

A Novel Hunting Trip.

That the motor car is capable of being put to surprising uses is demonstrated in an article in Harper's Weekly describing an automobile hunting and camping expedition recently made by three Americans through Maine and Canada. Three autos started on the trip northward from Portland, carrying, in addition to the members of the party, a "road building" equipment consisting of block and tackle, rope, axes, shovels and crowbars, four tents, a cooking outfit, a supply of concentrated foods, rifles and fishing tackle. The autos journeyed through tracts of forest so wild that it was necessary to clear a way for them, and at night camp was pitched by some lake or stream. Considerable game was shot from the machines in the course of the trip, which extended as far as Bic, Quebec.

Where They Feared the Eclipse.

The effect on uneducated people of the recent solar eclipse is vividly described in the following letter which a London Chronicle correspondent recently received from a noncommissioned officer of the royal engineers stationed at Malta: "Did you see much of the eclipse on the 30th? We had a splendid view of it here. The Maltese nearly went mad with fright, thinking the world was coming to an end. All the people in the village where I am living ran into the church, while some rang the church bells and some even fired off large squibbs (something of the fireworks tribe, I mean), but it was all over in about a quarter of an hour, and then the Maltese left the church and made their way back to their houses, looking very much scared."

ULTIMATUM READY

France Will Not Dally Much Longer With Venezuela

MAY RESORT TO FORCE

Has Full Assent of Washington, Which Expects to Settle Our Grievances by Diplomacy--Foreign Property Seized

Washington, Oct. 14.—American grievances against Venezuela may be settled by diplomacy, while France, in the absence of any diplomatic relations at Caracas, may yet be compelled to resort to a show of force.

Despite the assurances of foreign office officials at Paris, it is stated here that the French ultimatum has been practically ready to dispatch for a week or more, and that France has the full assent of the Washington government to adopt an effective course of action against Venezuela to obtain the renewal of diplomatic relations and the restoration of French property seized by the Caracas government.

This, briefly, is the situation. The French ultimatum will be held up until further conferences have occurred between the French embassy here and the state department. So far as Judge Calhoun, the American special commissioner, has reported to the department, there is nothing in the situation at Caracas that cannot be settled by patient and firm diplomacy. American and French property, it is contended, has been seized unjustly by President Castro, but ample precedent is found in history for the settlement without resort to force of problems far more complicated than the present issue.

While not prepared to announce definitely its exact course of action, the Washington government has let France know informally its belief that American grievances against Venezuela, although severe, can be settled without the assistance of American warships. This information was not communicated with any intention of forestalling a resort by France to force, but was in answer to the earnest request of the Paris government.

Patience in France is rapidly becoming exhausted over the delay of the government in proceeding against Venezuela, and this fact necessarily acts as a spur in the conferences between Paris and Washington. This government will give France every possible assistance toward a diplomatic adjustment. A thorough understanding exists between Paris and Washington on this subject, and even if France shall find it necessary to establish a Pacific blockade against Venezuela the Washington government will offer no objection, having already assured itself that the Monroe doctrine is not involved in any way.

In diplomatic circles the opinion is expressed that the Venezuelan president will yield before a Pacific blockade is established. The aversion on the part of France and the United States to the use of warships in this case arises from the fact that the blockading of Venezuelan ports at this time will affect not so much Venezuela as it will the creditor powers to whom a portion of the customs receipts has been awarded by The Hague tribunal until their claims shall have been paid in full.

HENRY IRVING DEAD

Was Considered the Foremost Actor of His Time

London, Oct. 14.—Sir Henry Irving, who was universally regarded as the most representative English actor of contemporary times, died last night.

Sir Henry was giving a series of performances in the English provinces and this week was playing an engagement at Bradford. Last night he portrayed one of his most characteristically intellectual parts, the title role in his own stage adaptation of Lord Tennyson's "Becket" with marked success.

After the performance Irving returned to his hotel, reaching his rooms at 11:30 o'clock, when it was observed that he was in great pain. Physicians were immediately summoned, but before they could arrive he was seized by an attack of syncope and expired within a few minutes, without having uttered a word, in the presence of Bram Stoker, his immediate manager, and a few other intimates.

To the last moment of his life Irving's heart was in the work to which he had devoted his career—the raising of the standard of his art. On Wednesday he was entertained at luncheon in the Bradford town hall at which the mayor presented to him an address from his admirers. In replying to the address, Sir Henry eloquently advocated the establishment of theatres by the municipalities. "I am sure the time will some," he said, "when you will regard the theatre as necessary to a liberal education and be prepared to consider any reasonable suggestions for the extension of its legitimate influence. It may be that in years to come our countrymen will scarcely understand how in our times so potent an instrument of good or ill as the stage was left entirely outside the sphere of public administration."

Ready to Reveal Secrets

Chicago, Oct. 14.—After fighting months against answering certain questions asked during the injunction proceedings in the teamsters' strike, John Donahue, under sentence of committal to jail for contempt of court, filed a petition unexpectedly before Judge Kohlsaat asking leave to answer. The petition was a surprise to Donahue's attorneys as well as to the union labor officials. The matter, however, is out of Kohlsaat's jurisdiction, an appeal having been taken to the circuit court of appeals, which court must grant the permission asked by Donahue to reveal the secrets of the Railway Express Drivers' union, guarded at so much expense and bitterness.

Dominguez confessed that he put Carmona in the trunk, but said he did not intend to murder him. He had over $3000 in stolen money on his person when apprehended.

Fishermen Were In the Wrong

Kingston, Ja., Oct. 14.—The British cruiser Diamond has returned from a visit to the Nicaraguan coast. Its mission was to settle a new dispute between the authorities of the republic and the Cayaman turtle fishermen. The commander of the Diamond found that the fishermen had been trespassing in Nicaraguan waters through ignorance of the limits, which have now been clearly defined, and both parties are satisfied.

Twenty Thousand Will Be Idle

Gera, Germany, Oct. 14.—The weavers in four mills here having refused to withdraw their notice of an intention to strike, the Association of Mill Owners has voted a general shutdown of their factories Oct. 27. Bank Depositors Scared

New Orleans, Oct. 14.—Owing probably to the publication of a story in a newspaper here, a run began on the Germania savings bank. The Auctioneer

...By...

WADE MOUNTFORTT

Copyright, 1904, by Wade Mountfortt

THE last bony horse had been led from the auction block, and Mart Roberts was about to step down from his stand when a ragged man with a yellow face and sunken eyes touched him on the arm. The ragged man pulled an old silver watch from his pocket and handed it to the auctioneer. Roberts straightened up, took off his hat and faced the crowd, which had begun to melt away.

"Gentlemen," he shouted, "let me have your attention again for a few moments.

"Now, gentlemen," said Roberts, "I have here in my hand a solid silver, full jeweled, stem winding hunting case chronometer. It belongs to the yaller faced gent immediately there on my left. He is traveling an' is sick an' broke. He has a wife an' four children in a wagon down here on Salt creek, an' they've all got the ager. So he desires to barter, sell an' dispose of at public vendue to the highest bidder this full jeweled, solid sterling silver hunting case watch. How much am I offered to start it?"

"Five dollars," piped a farmer.

Roberts grew poetic over the mother and children who were "weepin' in the valley," but $5 was all he could get for the watch. Then, with a great show of magnanimity, he waved the ragged man away, refusing to accept a fee for the sale.

There was a sudden commotion in the crowd. Old Hiram Brumfield pushed his way to where the ragged man was folding up the five dollar bill.

Brumfield caught the stranger by the throat and growled, "Whar did y' git that watch?"

The ragged man tried to speak, but Brumfield was choking him. There was fury in the old man's face.

"Men," shrieked Brumfield, "I've got a murderer here! That watch belonged to my murdered boy! Git the watch, men; git it! I'll hold this snake till some of you git the watch!"

Twoscore men pressed close to where Brumfield stood holding the trembling stranger. A roar of oaths swept over the crowd. The town marshal pushed his way into the jam and found a dozen men holding the lean and ashen faced man.

"Jeff," shouted Brumfield as the marshal caught the prisoner by the collar, "here's the viper that killed my boy! That's my poor Henry's watch!"

Brumfield snatched the watch from the man who had bought it and pressed it to his lips.

"Men, you all know how my poor boy was shot an' killed by a burglar two months ago. Oh, I have prayed for the time to come when I could git these old hands on the viper's throat!"

"Stand back, everybody!" yelled Jeff Williams, the marshal. "Gimme room to get out with this feller!"

"Hang the murderer! Hang him!" bawled a half drunken man.

Mark Roberts turned upon the vociferous one and roughly pushed him aside. But the drunken man's cry did its work. Instantly there were shouts of "Lynch him! Hang him!" from dozens of throats. As Williams reached the courthouse door he made a lunge and pushed the prisoner inside. Mart Roberts stopped on the stone step and faced the mob. One man, closer than the others, carried a halter and was fighting to enter the door. Roberts planted himself in front of the man.

"WHAR DID Y' GIT THAT WATCH?"

The old auctioneer's eyes were ablaze. From under his long black coat a shining revolver leaped like a flash of lightning.

"Stan' back!" he yelled. "I'll kill the first man that sets a foot on this here step!"

The mob stopped as though it had collided with a stone wall.

"Get out of this yard, every one of you!" shouted the auctioneer, and as he spoke he advanced upon the foremost of the mob, striking viciously with his revolver. In twenty seconds the courthouse yard was cleared.

* * * * * * *

After the marshal had locked his prisoner in the dungeon under the courthouse Mart Roberts went into the cellar to talk to the man. The emaciated one was holding to the wooden bars and peering out.

"They was hot after you," said Roberts by way of opening up a conversation.

"They never give me any show," said the man. "I ain't afeared of 'em; I ain't done nothin'."

"Where did you get that watch?" Roberts asked.

"I bought it in St. Louis," said the man. "Do you hang people in this town for havin' watches?"

"Well, Colonel Brumfield says that watch belonged to his boy, who was killed by a thief."

"Good heavens!" moaned the prisoner. "Here, listen to me. I'm a stranger, an' I don't know a soul in the town. I'm travelin' from Illinoy to Kansas. My wife an' children are down thar on the creek bank in a wagon shakin' to death with the ager. This here's all a mistake, friend."

"Where is your wife an' children at?" asked the auctioneer.

"Down thar by the ford on the creek—down thar starvin' to death, man. An' their pappy locked up in this hole for a murderer! Great goodness! I don't keer for myself, but poor Lizy an' the babies"—

"Don't worry about your folks," he said. "Don't you want a drink of water?"

Roberts handed a tin cup through the bars, and the prisoner drank as though he were famished.

"What's your name?" the auctioneer asked.

"Jim Darrow."

"You'll need a lawyer."

"I ain't done nothin'—thank you," said Darrow, handing back the cup. "An', besides, I ain't got a cent in the world except this $5, an' the man that bought my watch will want that."

"Man to man, now," said Roberts—"no lying—did you kill Brumfield's boy?"

The prisoner drew himself up, looking the auctioneer in the eyes, and replied:

"As God is my judge, no! I never heard of Brumfield or his boy or anything about any of this till ten minutes ago."

"I believe you, an' I'll stand by you," said Roberts.

"An' my wife an' babies"—

"Never mind, now," said Roberts. "We will take care of them. You keep a stiff upper lip."

Roberts rode to the ford with a farmer who went that way. Twilight had settled down when he reached the place where the mover's family was camped. Near the roadside the auctioneer saw a flickering light and heard the fretful cries of an infant. Coming closer, he saw an old wagon covered with a ragged piece of canvas. Nearby an animal that might once have been a horse was tethered to a sapling. A woman sat near the campfire holding the fretting baby in her arms. Lying on the ground and on strips of bedclothing were the three other children. The woman was trying to quiet the infant, and occasionally she glanced toward the road.

"Good evenin', mum," said Roberts. "Are you Mrs. Darrow?"

"Yes, sir."

"Your husband"—

"My gracious, what's happened to him?" cried the woman, now standing erect and holding the child close to her breast.

Roberts stammered at first and then blurted out, "He's been arrested!"

"Arrested?" She repeated the word in a bewildered tone.

"Yes; he's been accused of stealin' a watch."

"Where is he?" she exclaimed, putting the baby on the ground.

"Well, don't get frightened now, mum; don't get frightened," said Roberts. "He's locked up, but"— "Locked up!" she gasped. "Locked up! Why, man, locked up, you say! Don't they know he's pretty nigh dead with the ager?"

The woman caught up her apron and held it to her eyes. The babies clung to her torn skirts, whining piteously. "Locked up!" she moaned over and over again. "An' tomorrow's his chill day!"

Roberts put the woman and the children into the wagon, hitched up the bony horse and started for the village. On the way he tried hard to urge the miserable horse out of a snail-like gait. The mother continued to sob and moan, and the children all cried at once, while the horse crept along as though every step would be its last.

Roberts saw men hurrying along, and once a party of horsemen, uttering loud curses, passed him at a gallop. Finally when the outlandish rig had turned a corner into the main thoroughfare of the village Roberts saw the glare of a fire on the public square and heard volleys of cheers and yells.

As the vehicle passed a group of men Roberts heard one say, "We can't do anything till after midnight; the sheriff's on the lookout."

To this another replied, "We'll get him as soon as the crowd gets worked up right."

Roberts pounded the old horse and drove into the throng of men that had gathered near the auction stand. The county attorney and the mayor were on the box side by side. The mayor was haranguing the crowd and begging the people to go to their homes and let the law take its course. Some of the listeners cheered for the mayor; others jeered at him. Roberts drove the staggering horse close to the speaker's stand, and, leaping from the seat, he tore off the tattered wagon cover that hid the woman and her children from view. Mrs. Darrow's face was as pale as a corpse; her little ones were huddled close about her, and the baby was still crying.

The auctioneer mounted his stand. The red light of the bonfire lit up his familiar face.

"Hooray for Mart Roberts!" yelled half of the crowd.

"Gentlemen," exclaimed the auctioneer, assuming his characteristic pose, "you have listened to the mayor an' the county attorney, an' now I want to ask you to listen to me for a few brief seconds."

The crowd was moving closer and massing around the wagon where the woman and her children were huddled. Stern faced men gazed curiously at the woeful spectacle.

"You've done about enough today, Mart!" cried the drunken man, whose tongue was still unbridled.

"I'm not half through, either," replied Roberts.

"Gentlemen," he continued, "if ever in all your bornden days you ever saw a wagon load of misery it is before your eyes right now. This here woman an' these helpless little children are the family of that poor ragged feller that is locked up in the courthouse over yonder. I want every man of you who ever had a mother or a sister or a wife or a daughter to look at these poor, miserable, helpless, starvin' human bein's. Men, the only hope an' strength that this little bundle of rags is got in all this wide world is locked up in that jail over there, an' you are pantin' an' yelpin' for his life!

"I'M GOIN' TO SEE THAT THEIR PAPPY GETS A SQUARE DEAL!"

"Men, I don't know that man over there in the jail no more'n Adam; I never saw him in my life till he came up here today. I never saw his wife an' children till two hours ago, when I found 'em down by the creek bank cryin' an' waitin' for their pappy to come home an' bring 'em something to eat. I brought 'em here, an' I'm goin' to take care of 'em! I'll tell you something else I'm goin' to do; I'm goin' to see that their pappy gets a square deal! There ain't goin' to be no lynchin' in Martinsburg tonight!"

Roberts' voice reverberated in the narrow streets and rang out upon the night air as keen as the notes of a bugle. As he stopped talking to catch a short breath a yell of approval went up that echoed in the remotest parts of the village.

The auctioneer saw the moment of his triumph, and his quick wit turned it to account.

"Gentlemen," he shouted above the roar of voices, "this woman an' these children are sick an' starvin'. They haven't got anything in the world but their rags an' that poor old hoss. Now, gentlemen, while I talk I'm goin' to ask the mayor an' the county attorney to pass among you with their hats an' give every one of you a chance to show that the milk of human kindness is still in your breasts!"

"Hurrah for Mart Roberts! Hip, hip, hurrah!"

The din of shouting was so loud that for once in his career Mart Roberts could not hear himself talk, but he talked on just the same. When the noise had died away and the two officials were passing the hat, Roberts' voice rang out again, louder, shriller, sweeter than ever. Now he pleaded with his audience, now he joked them, now he threatened and now he exhorted.

"There's a man just dropped in a dollar!" he exclaimed. "God bless you, brother! That dollar has bought you the brightest crown in heaven. When you wear that crown down the glitterin' streets of the New Jerusalem, they'll surely take off their hats to you. Oh, my friends, crowns in glory are for sale here!"

The auctioneer's iron gray hair was disheveled, his face was aglow with perspiration and his voice rose and fell in a singsong tune for all the world like that of a camp meeting shouter with the power on him.

There were volleys of frenzied applause as Mart rattled on. He was hoarse and almost exhausted. The mayor and the county attorney dumped double hands full of silver in the woman's lap. The wagon was driven away, while Roberts urged the crowd to disperse. His crude eloquence had its effect, and in half an hour Martinsburg had gone to sleep.

When Squire Riley opened court next morning the halls and the stuffy little courtroom were packed with people. James Darrow, the prisoner, was brought in to be arraigned. Mart Roberts, smiling and bowing triumphantly, was at the ragged man's side. Mrs. Darrow and her children were on a bench in a corner.

The county attorney arose, looking very solemn, and addressed the justice of the peace. He said: "If it please the court, we desire to withdraw the complaint against this defendant. On examining the books of a watchmaker here we find that this watch found in the possession of this defendant was never the property of the late Henry Brumfield. There being not the slightest evidence against the defendant, the state asks that the case be dismissed."

Mrs. Darrow sprang up with a scream and wrapped her arms around her husband's neck. She kissed his wrinkled, yellow face and said, "Pappy, this is your chill day."

In the cheering and the uproar that followed Mart Roberts mounted the squire's bench and, holding up the old silver watch, shouted:

"How much am I offered to start it?"

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The recount of votes for candidates for the Legislature disclosed the fact that the winning candidates, Messrs. Hultman and Sandberg seldom received votes on the same ballot. Where Mr. Sandberg received a strong Swedish vote Mr. Hultman received very little Swedish support. By combining this vote on both candidates the Republicans can easily elect Messrs. Hultman and Sandberg Nov. 7. There should be no bullets on that day.

Lively Runaway

There was a lively runaway in City square at 11.30 this morning. The horse was that of Theophilus King. It was attached to a two-seated open carriage and left standing alone for a few minutes in front of the residence of ex-Mayor John O. Hall.

Suddenly, without warning, the horse started on the run through City Square. The animal dodged several teams until it reached the corner of Chestnut street. Here the runaway struck one of Johnson Bros. teams standing in front of their store.

Johnson Bros. team was turned around and the horse thrown down and cut about the legs. Mr. King's horse continued down Chestnut street, thence through Miller Stile road and up the hill on South street, where he was stopped. A broken whiffletree was the only damage.

The case of Fred S. Brockaway, the motorman in charge of the service car that it is alleged caused the fatal accident at Hingham last July, was not heard in court today as anticipated. Brockaway was arrested at the inquest upon a complaint charging him with manslaughter. The case had been continued twice before and it was on the docket for trial today.

When the case was called, however, counsel were not ready and it was rgoin continued until Nov. 18. Brockaway is out on bail.

Tremont Temple Pastor.

Rev. F. C. W. Parker, assistant pastor of Tremont Temple, Boston, will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Parker represents one of the largest religious interests in Boston and is eminently qualified to speak to young men.

There will be a "Social Sing" at 3.30 in the reception room, in which all are invited to participate.

Mrs. F. J. Moore will be the soloist at the 4 o'clock meeting to which all men are invited.

Quincy Pastor to Take Part.

The Synod of New York will meet this week in Dr. McLennon's church, Brookline street and Warren avenue, beginning Tuesday at 8 P. M.; sermon by Dr. W. C. Lawson of New York State. Dr. McLennon's church will be dedicated to the worship of God tomorrow at 3 P.M. Rev. Mr. Barr and others from this wil take part.

Fall has surely come, for that beautiful flower, the chrysanthemum, so typical of the season, is with us again, judging from the fine specimens presented to us this week by William Patterson, of the Hillside nurseries at Wollaston. He has remarkable success with the flower and has some specimens as big over as a plate.

A special session of the district court for naturalization will be held Monday evening.

Unity Club

Opens Season With Reception. Will Study Canada and Mexico

A large number of Wollaston Unity club members and their friends, assembled in the vestry of the Unitarian church last evening. It was the opening meeting for the season, of the club, and took the form of a reception and a reunion.

The vestry was most beautifully decorated with hundreds of red crepe paper poppies, against an evergreen background and presented a charming appearance.

The president of the club Mrs. George W. Bennett, assisted by Mrs. Charles Crane and the Rev. Mr. Hunt, received the guests. The ushers were Miss Dorothy Fay, Miss Margaret Barnes, Miss Bula Loud and Miss Beulah Hatch were dressed in quaint Arcadian peasant and Mexican costumes.

After the informal reception a short program was given which included two piano duets, finely rendered by Miss Ethel Parker and Mr. William Weston; also a solo, "My Heart is in the Highlands," composed by Mrs. Edith Noyes Porter and sung by Mrs. Frank A. Page.

The address of welcome was given by the president. In a few well chosen words Mrs. Bennett spoke of the work that had been done in years past by the Wollaston Unity club and of its high standing in the community as a literary club and hoped that this, the thirteenth season might prove to be the most successful in the club's history.

Frank A. Parlin, of the executive committee, spoke briefly of the program for the year. The "key" could be found, he said, in the decorations of the room and the costumes of some of the ladies. Canada and Mexico will be studied and several evenings will be given on subjects suggested by a study of these countries.

All present were then invited to meet the secretary, Mrs. Crane, join the club and receive a copy of the program.

Refreshments were served from two tables, one of which was presided over by Mrs. Parlin and Miss Elizabeth Thayer dressed in Canadian costumes, from which was served tea and fancy cakes; and from the other, the Mexican table, one could have coffee, sandwiches and cake, served by Mrs. Cummings and Miss Fish, dressed in appropriate costumes.

A very pleasant social evening was enjoyed by all present and much credit is due the executive committee, who had it in charge.

The officers for the year are: President, Mrs. George W. Bennett; Vice-President, Mrs. F. W. Plummer and Rev. Ernest W. Hunt; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Charles K. Crane; executive committee, Mr. Frank E. Parlin, Mr. Charles F. Harper and Mrs. Henry G. Fay.

Bellevue Park and Montclair.

George Kessler of Pope street has just had a telephone put into his house.

It would be greatly appreciated if there might be a pay station put in some house in Bellevue Park or Montclair.

Mrs. Daniel Donnoly, soon to be a resident of Quincy, fell down the stairs of her new house the other day and sprained her ankle.

On the Montclair links on Thursday, the Winchester Country team won the handicap as bogey match with a score of 18 down. Friday their was an individual medal play match.

It was not Jeremiah W. Donovan of Squantum street, but plain Jeremiah Donovan who was in court last week for assault on Officer Boutin. The former suffered much annoyance on account of it, but is one of the most honored and highly respected citizens of the district.

Miss Katherine Kessler has been spending a few days with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Kessler of Pope street.

Miss Annie Irving of Squantum street has gone to Scituate to spend the winter with her cousin, Mrs. M. Aimsly.

Mrs. F. E. Parlee is entertaining her mother and sister of Cohasset for a short time.

From a Boston Doctor.

To the Editors of the Ledger:

Understanding that you are having in Quincy a "Hospital Week," I want to say that your citizens ought to feel proud of their Hospital, for among Boston doctors it has the reputation of being well equipped, of doing good work and of providing a particularly homelike abode for the sick and helpless.

This is his sixth season at teaching in Quincy and he hopes this, his first one in Music Hall, will be his most successful. No spectators other than parents of pupils will be allowed at the classes, and the best of order will be insisted upon at the classes and assemblies. AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The Junior Friday club is this year to make a study of American literature. The season will open Monday at the home of Mrs. Lawrence H. Sturtevant, Adams street, with Miss Georgianna C. Lane as chairman of the afternoon's program. Subject for papers and discussion will be sources of American literature and Puritan writers, Anne Bradstreet, Cotton Mather, William Wigglesworth and Jonathan Edwards.

The meetings of the Quincy Women's club are held on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month at the club house on Presidents hill. The next one will be on October 24th at three o'clock. There will be a short business meeting followed at half past three by a lecture.

"Summer Reminiscences" made a pleasant subject for the opening of the season of the Current Topic club of Dorchester. Each member told of her vacation journeyings after which there was a social hour and refreshments.

Most of the clubs have auspiciously opened the season and are starting into routine club work, be it self improvement, civic improvements or philanthropic and educational work.

Members of the Quincy Women's club were quick to respond to the call for a contribution of one dollar each toward the chairs, cups and saucers and silverware for the club house, as voted last spring. Nearly every member has been heard from. Those who had not visited the Brackett house before were much pleased with it at the house warming on Tuesday afternoon. It seems in every way suitable for a club house, the large high posted rooms being in keeping with a dignified club of women, banded together for social and educational purposes.

The Brighthelmstone club of Brighton and Allston is one of the most active women's clubs about Boston. The social service committee has collected $130 for the N. E. Home for Deaf Mutes, set out 250 plants, shrubs and vines around the Brighton branch library; replaced dead trees on Brighton avenue and set out trees in High school yard. The club this season is to have classes in French, also in current events and literature.

Friday was "Chelsea Day" with the Chelsea Woman's club. Papers were read on the history of the city, and prominent people of the past. It was an enthusiastic and patriotic meeting attended by present and past city officials and many people who formerly made Chelsea their home.

Some of the subjects to be discussed at the state federation meeting at Athol next week are: food adulterations; the growth of civic pride; the legislative work of the Civic league and a federal union for social betterments.

The opening of the season of the Framingham Woman's club is known as President's Day. The program was "Vacation Notes," when interesting papers were read on, "How to do it," which told of a four days' trolley trip, and "Camping with a Cowboy" an experience in Colorado. The afternoon closed with a tea given by the retiring president to the new president.

The North Shore club of Lynn is considering an amendment to its by laws whereby the annual dues shall be five instead of three dollars, as they find it impossible to do an all round club work on so small a fee.

The Philergians will meet Oct. 17th at 2.30 P. M. in Cochato hall. Miss Sarah A. Hamlin of Dean Academy, Franklin will lecture on "Tom Moore."

Executive board meetings of the Quincy Women's club are held on the third Thursday of the month at ten o'clock. The next one will on Oct. 19th, probably at the club house.

On Monday afternoon in the assembly hall of the high school at three o'clock, Mrs. May Alden Ward will begin her course of current event lextures under the auspices of the Milton Woman's club.

Heavy Gains

But Only One New Leader Today in The Contest

Miss Bates, Miss Mahoney and Miss Merritt made large gains in the ladies' list today in the Scholarship contest, but the leaders were not caught napping. Miss Mahoney, has, however, regained fourth place.

A gain by Conductor Johnson did not save him in the Men's list, as Drug Clerk Maloney added 300 and is again in first place. Engineer Johnson made a large increase as did Fred S. Sheppard and others down the list.

Second prizes are announced by advertisement today and are valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

HENRY M. WHITNEY

RECIPROCITY AND TARIFF REVISION
CANDIDATE FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Henry M. Whitney has had a unique career. He began his business life on a salary of $100 a year. He entered the field of Boston enterprise by paying $1,000,000 for a tract of land in order to widen a street. He has sold out every dollar's worth of stock in every enterprise he ever established as soon as it was safely afloat. Several of the plans which he has carried out were so far-sighted in their scope that the public, which was to benefit from them, resisted the innovation. He took up the fight for reciprocity with Canada at a time when he had just disposed of every cent's worth of interest he held in any company doing business with Canada. He has never taken part in politics before in his life, and he will stump Massachusetts from one end to the other in order to help put the Commonwealth back where it belongs among the manufacturing states of the country.

If the election of Henry M. Whitney depended on the votes of the old employes of the West End street railroad when he was president, there simply would not be any other candidate in the field—he would be elected unanimously. There were six horse railroads in Boston in 1887, all working with a friction that was annoying to the employes and the public alike. The men were obliged to work long and unreasonable hours for unsatisfactory wages and the public did not get the kind of service it required. Mr. Whitney consolidated all these roads, and the public gasped, for it seemed like a gigantic undertaking in those days. The employes were a little uneasy, too, for they did not know what this consolidation portended. Would it mean economy through the lessening of wages and the further increase of hours of labor? Or would it mean a reduction in the forces of the various roads? The employes asked these questions, but nothing detrimental to their welfare happened. Then of a sudden the employes of the various roads became conscious of a new force, a new feeling and personality in the operations of the various lines.

A strange thing had happened—the president of the consolidated roads visited the car stables, chatted freely with the men, joked with them, learned of their troubles if they had any—and most of them had—fixed up the troubles without delay, shortened the hours of labor, reduced the number of trips per man on some of the lines and finally raised the wages of the men from $2 to $2.25 per day on his own volition. This was when electricity was installed.

Then word went round that if any employe had a grievance against the company and he could not settle that grievance, he was free to take the grievance before President Whitney, where he would be received without any red tape and that grievance was settled then and there.

All this was new to the men, and there were not a few of them who were pessimistic about it and said it wouldn't last. But it did last, during the years that Henry M. Whitney was president of the road—it lasted until the men learned to have a regard that was much deeper than respect for their president.

He rode with the drivers on the front platform or the conductors on the rear platform, and chatted freely with them. When he met them on the street he had a cheery smile and a handshake for those with whom he had become acquainted until the whole temper and attitude of the employes of the West End road was changed from indifference to loyalty. Henry M. Whitney put a spirit into the employes of the road which has lasted to this day.

Henry Melville Whitney was born Oct. 22, 1839, at Conway, Franklin county, Mass. His father, the late Gen. James S. Whitney, was an old war horse of democracy in the days before the civil war, though he showed his independence by settling with his vote as a member of the Legislature that Charles Sumner should go to the United States Senate.

The father was a Conway merchant, with manufacturing interests. The boy was sent to the Conway schools, and afterward to Williston Seminary. When he was ready to go into business his father had removed to Springfield as superintendent of the armory. Henry found a place as office boy in the Conway bank at $100 a year. The second year he got a 100 per cent increase, and the third year was raised to $300.

"I can't remember," he says, "whether my father ever helped me out with any money besides what I earned or not. I know I boarded with the cashier of the bank and did some odd jobs for him."

In 1860 he came to Boston and entered the Bank of Redemption as a clerk. Soon afterward he took a place in a naval recruiting office, and when his father was made collector of the port of Boston, he entered the Custom House. The following year he went to New York and set up for himself in the firm of Whitney & Hathaway, conducting a general shipping business.

Meantime General Whitney, the father, had established the Metropolitan Steamship Company. In 1865 the son returned to Boston as agent of this company. The father dying in 1868, the son in 1870 secured control of the company and remained its president until a short time ago, when he sold out all his stock and retired.

His first big improvement for the city of Boston was the Beacon-street boulevard. His father's dwelling was at Beacon and Harvard streets, where Mr. Whitney's mother still resides. Beacon street was a lane. It appealed to Whitney that the man who made that alley into a boulevard, with a street-car line in the middle of it, would not only confer a tremendous blessing on posterity, but incidently make a fortune if he happened to own the adjacent land. He formed the West End Land Co., which raised $1,000,000, bought the land and sent Mr. Whitney into a Brookline town meeting to demonstrate that if he was willing to make the improvement cheap for the town as chief abuttor, nobody else ought to complain. Pretty nearly everybody in sight did complain, but it went through, so far as Brookline was concerned.

The trouble came on the stretch of lane within the Boston limits. The project was resisted in the city, and the Metropolitan street railway, which would lay its tracks on the new boulevard if it went through, made such a fight that Mr. Whitney said: "There's only one way to get rid of these railways; we'll have to buy them all." And he did. The West End Land Company acquired controlling interests in the Metropolitan, the Highland, the Middlesex, the South Boston, and the Cambridge street railways, and consolidated them as the West End street railway.

The Beacon street boulevard was finally laid out, and Boston had the basis of the most magnificent parkway system in the world.

HENRY M. WHITNEY.

Candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Who Favors Reciprocity With Canada and a Revision of the Tariff Laws, So That Hides, Lumber, Iron, Coal, and Wood Pulp May Be Placed On The Free List.

It was characteristic of Henry M. Whitney that in drawing the charter of the West End Street Railway Company he peered into the future and foresaw that the surface lines were never going to suffice for all the traffic that was to be. In that document permission was expressly given the company to build and operate, under certain restrictions, a subway under Boston Common. This was fought like almost every one of the remarkable Whitney prophecies, and it was not until years later that the people had to yield to other management what it had refused to him.

In a trip South Mr. Whitney happened to see one of the earlier short-line trolley installations. He saw at once that electricity was the motive power of the future for city traction, and came back to Boston resolved to get that improvement. People said he was crazy. Others said he desired to electrocute his fellow citizens.

He went right ahead. The consolidation made a system on such a scale it was possible to try experiments which no small line could have afforded. It was all pioneer work, and involved an immense amount of labor and expense. Many cities sent agents to see what Whitney was up to.

The next great Whitney enterprise was the coal business in Canada. He organized the Dominion Coal Company, which combined a large number of mines on Cape Breton Island. The product was sold for manufacturing purposes chiefly along the St. Lawrence River. In the winter that river is frozen, and the men had no work. Mr. Whitney conceived the idea of giving the men work the year round and boosting international trade besides, by selling coal in Boston. A fleet of colliers was chartered, and coal carried to this port. It developed that the kind of coal mined at Sidney was more profitably relieved of its gas, leaving a marketable coke; so Mr. Whitney went to the Legislature for a charter for what are now known as the New England Gas & Coke Company and the Massachusetts Pipe Line Company, to sell gas to the district gas companies of Boston and coke to the public. Here again he was bitterly opposed. Before the Dominion Company was organized, the product was 800,000 tons. Now it is 3,500,000.

The next commercial company was the Submarine Signal, which makes and sells appliances based on an invention of Elisha Gray. When attached to vessels at sea the signals record the approach of passing vessels or nearby obstructions, and prevent collisions. Mr. Whitney retired from this company.

Still another enterprise which has been set down to his credit as a pure work of philanthrophy, but which he protests was nothing but straight business, was the transaction by which the Boston Chamber of Commerce acquired without paying for it the site on which its building stands. The land belonged originally to two wharf companies, the India and the Central. The India wharf people desired to deed over their half for nothing excepting to get back the value with interest from sales of adjacent land. The Central Wharf Company refused to do likewise. Mr. Whitney came forward, bought the whole property and gave the Chamber its site.

Hotel Beaconsfield, Brookline, is another of his enterprises. The only other commercial concern with which he is now connected is the American Asbestos Company.

In the course of his dealings in Canada Mr. Whitney had occasion to make many acquaintances among the people of that country, and became impressed both with their fine qualities as associates and with the unparalleled resources of their new land of promise. When he had disposed of his interest in the Dominion Coal Company he took the time to renew earlier studies of the trade relations between the two peoples, and became thoroughly imbued with the idea that in Canada lies the opportunity for New England to regain all that great financial prestige which was formerly hers in building the railways and cities of the West.

"The artificial wall, the tariff, which obstructs trade, ought to come down," he says. He let it be known to his friends that he stood ready to give of his time and means to help that fight.

The President of the Chamber of Commerce, which has been doing things to further reciprocity for many years, about this time resigning, Mr. Whitney was chosen his successor.

He immediately decided that the way to get a new tariff law was to notify the law makers through the ballot box that the people of Massachusetts wanted it. Since then he has been making a continuous fight on that line.

Mr. Whitney's family life has been peculiarly happy. The son of a mother who at 85 finds her son one of the most distinguished citizens of the state, he married in 1869 Miss Green, daughter of Admiral Joseph F. Green of Brookline, and has been blessed with five children, Miss Ruth, Mrs. J. P. Gardiner, Miss Laura, James S., now a Harvard sophomore, and Miss Josephine.

The Whitneys live in Brookline, with a summer home at Cohasset, where the candidate for lieutenant-governor has a small but fine stud of riding and driving horses. These he never races or exhibits. He is fond of riding and indulges in that sport much of the time.

He is president of the Cohasset Golf Club, but this is not to be taken seriously. He has never held a stick in his hand. His usual means of propulsion about the city is an automobile. He has only been to Europe once.

He is a member of the Algonquin, Boston Art and Country clubs.

He has friends wherever he has had dealings, from the older employees of the street railway system, who speak of him with great respect and esteem, to the business men with whom he is popular by reason of his urbanity, good fellowship and genius for making the other man feel that he is interested in him.

Henry M. Whitney is the man of the hour. He is not in politics because he desires to fill public office. He is a clear-headed, earnest advocate of methods and measures calculated to retain and promote the industrial welfare of New England. He represents that great business interest—New England men who prefer to fight for the rights of New England rather than transfer their capital and their energy to more favored sections of our country.

In him is typified the earnest desire of 60,000 Republican voters of this Commonwealth for reciprocity with Canada and other nations. He will unquestionably receive the support of this class of voters at the polls in November, and his election would be the most effectual notice that could be served on the Congress that the business men of Massachusetts demand prompt relief from the burdensome schedules of the tariff law.

A vote for Henry M. Whitney is a vote for the preservation of our industries—a vote to give more work and better pay to our wage earners—a vote of disapproval for those leaders of the opposition who are willing to sacrifice the industrial welfare of New England for what they conceive to be their duty to a political party.

SHORTSTOP'S MISPLAY

Formed Nucleus of Run Which Gave New Yorks a Game

New York, Oct. 14.—Three to one is now the advantage of the New York Nationals over the Philadelphia Americans in the struggle for the inter league world's baseball championship in the post-season series of seven games. If the local men succeed in getting the better of the visitors in today's contest the world's championship flag will fly from the mast in the Polo grounds.

Philadelphia, heavily handicapped by the loss of the services of the erratic pitcher, Waddell, has succumbed to the masterful work of Mathewson twice and yesterday McGinnity pitched gilt-edged ball.

In the fourth inning Cross, Philadelphia's shortstop, was so anxious to get a bounder that he fumbled the ball and juggled with it long enough to let the batter reach first safely. This was the only error recorded in the game, but it was an expensive one, as it formed the nucleus of a run—the run which won. Were it not for this misplay the game was so closely and well played that it might have gone on to a call on account of darkness.

Boston Americans Winners

Boston, Oct. 14.—The Boston American league team won the deciding game in the local post-season series with the Boston team of the National league, by the score of 6 to 2. The series stands 4 to 1 in favor of the Americans.

Entombed In Burning Mine

Fredericktown, Pa., Oct. 14.—Half a mile back from the entry six miners are imprisoned in the mine of the Clyde Coal company. The mine is on fire, and the belief is general that the entombed men cannot be reached in time to save their lives, even if they are not already dead. Two others were seriously burned, one fatally, in an explosion in the fan-house following the breaking out of the fire in the mine.

Investigation Will Be Lengthy

New York, Oct. 14.—The legislative insurance committee has been forced to the conclusion that its active investigation will lap over well into 1906. Among the contributary factors are the newly realized depth and complexity of the subject, the intention to extend the investigation's scope to certain fraternal societies and the absence from the state of a number of important witnesses.

Discussed Campaign Contributions

Washington, Oct 14.—At the conclusion of Friday's cabinet meeting, which lasted nearly three hours, it was stated by every member that no details of the session could be made public. The subject of campaign contributions and the participation of federal judges in political campaigns, with particular reference to the case of Justice Baker of Indiana, was discussed.

Two Feudists Killed

St. Augustine, Fla., Oct. 14.—George and Edward Carter were killed and several others injured last night at Moultrie after a dance as a result of a feud between the Osteens and Carters. The feud began several weeks ago with a fist fight between members of the two families. Four of the Osteens have been arrested and are held without bail. A fifth has not been found.

Roustabouts Drowned

Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 14.—Heavily loaded with freight, and with a crew of 25 men, steamer Elk, while backing out from the city landing, struck a snag and went down in 25 feet of water. Several negro roustabouts were drowned, but the exact number will probably not be known for several days. The loss of the boat and cargo is estimated at $25,000.

Business Not Retarded

New York, Oct. 14.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that recent mild weather might have been expected to retard business, but freight blockades and several similar conditions testify to the contrary, and the last half of the week brought a seasonable fall in temperature.

Roughly Handled at Initiation

Rochester, Oct. 14.—In the supreme court at Canadaigua a verdict of $2900 was awarded the plaintiff in the case of Oscar D. Thompson vs. the supreme tent, Knights of the Macabees. The plaintiff alleged that he received permanent injuries while being initiated as a member of Hopewell tent.

A Belgian-Dutch Alliance

Brussels, Oct. 14.—The Petit Bleu publishes notable articles calling for commercial and defensive alliances between Belgium and Holland. The articles present the views of prominent statesmen of both countries favoring the projects.

Spain's Budget For a Year

Madrid, Oct. 14.—The budgetary difficulties which, it was rumored, would lead to the ministerial crisis, were overcome during a cabinet council, when the total expenses for the forthcoming year were fixed at $193,000,000.

First Class Equestrienne And a Very Good Shot

"PRINCESS ALICE," the orientals called the daughter of the president during her trip through the far east. Now we Americans are not much given to the "princess" mania, but we have a very lively appreciation of Miss Roosevelt for the reason that she has shown herself a sweet, full blooded and piquant type of American womanhood. That in our eyes is better than being a princess or duchess or what not.

It is doubtful if any young woman in the history of the world ever had so many and varied experiences and such honors showered upon her as have fallen to the lot of Miss Roosevelt. In her own land she has traveled much and has been a popular and social favorite wherever she has gone. In Porto Rico she was showered with attentions unique in the history of the island. In Hawaii she was received with the popular acclaim which aforetime was bestowed on the queens. In the Philippines her progress was like a triumphal march. In Japan she received not only royal attentions, but was given a popular ovation of "banzais" such as the people of Nippon never before gave a woman. In China she was received by the empress dowager, and to cap all she was offered the hand and the heart of the redoubtable sultan of Sulu.

MISS ALICE ROOSEVELT.

After all this old world homage, like a good, sensible girl, she comes home to marry a plain American, if Dame Rumor is to be trusted, the fortunate man being Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati.

We are fairly familiar with "the son of his father" in this land of the free, but the "daughter of her father" has not been brought so much to our attention. If Miss Roosevelt is a fair sample of such daughters we want to hear more of them. Let us know a trifle less of the masculine offspring of greatness and more of the feminine. The change is a relief. It is too frequently the case that where young men are proud of their fathers the fathers have no apparent reason for being proud of the young men. There should be reciprocity in that sort of business. Perhaps it is a fact, as so often claimed, that boys resemble their mothers and girls their fathers. At any rate, Alice Roosevelt is her father's daughter. It is related that one of the Knickerbockers, after seeing the zest with which she danced, remarked in his languid way: "Bah Jove! How stwenuous! She is a chip of the old block."

She Won the Prize.

It was not always so. Just after her debut the daughter of the White House did not appear particularly strong. She was but a slip of a girl, and her friends observed with concern that she tired easily. It was then that the president intervened. He advised athletics and outdoor exercises, especially riding. The present of a fine horse accompanied the advice, also the offer of a gold mounted riding whip as a prize for proficiency in the saddle. The whip was to go either to Miss Alice or her brother Ted and should be awarded to the one that showed the greatest advancement in a given time. It is worthy of note that the daughter won the prize. Nor was this the only result. The air of weariness disappeared, and there was a gain of fifteen pounds in weight. It will be remembered that in his boyhood President Roosevelt himself was quite delicate. The strenuous life in the open was chosen deliberately to improve his health. So the daughter has followed in her father's footsteps in more ways than one.

For example, there is the matter of hats. An artist once painted Miss Roosevelt in a hat about three years out of style. That artist wanted a picture and was wise to human nature, especially of the feminine variety. Like her mother, the young lady was averse to photographs, had none since she was eleven and refused to have one. So this particular artist sent in the picture with the hat three years old, adding the cheerful assurance that he would rather have a photograph, but if he could not get one would use the sketch, antiquated headpiece and all. A family council was called, and the daughter of the house decided that the picture must not be published. The president demurred at this. He asked if the face was not a fair likeness. No objection to the face was developed. But, oh, that hat!

"Is it really so important?" pleaded Mr. Roosevelt.

"I should think," responded the daughter, "that you would be the last to question the utility of the proper hat in one's career."

This was evidently a stab at the famous cowboy chapeau, so the laugh was on the president. Miss Roosevelt went at once to a photographer.

Hit a Bullseye Three Times Out of Five.

Then there is the matter of shooting. Is is not on record that the daughter of her father slaughters bears and wildcats like some of the sons of the house. But she can hit a mark. It was at Coney Island that, after seeing everything that was to be seen, shaking hands with some Filipinos whom she had encountered at the St. Louis exposition and having, as she expressed it, "the time of her life," Miss Roosevelt stopped at a Wild West shooting gallery, seized a gun and hit the bullseye three times out of five.

"Waal, Miss Roosevelt, you can shoot some," said the owner of the gallery. "I knew your father out west."

"Does he shoot any better than I do?" was the girl's laughing response. But the wild westerner was wise in his generation and sidestepped the question.

Here is another quite Rooseveltian escapade: During the trip to Manila the girl dared her escort to leap, dressed as they were, into the swimming pool erected aboard ship. Some versions of the story say the escort in question was Congressman Longworth, while others aver that it was a certain United States senator, name withheld. Whoever it was, the man hesitated. Possibly he did not wish to see the dainty white waist and cream skirt of his companion ruined. Then he may have had some compunctions about his own suit. At any rate, he waited too long.

"Well, if you don't dare I do," flashed the daughter of her father, and into the tank she leaped. The man followed and helped get her back on deck.

The whole world gasped when the president went down in a submarine, but very few knew that his daring daughter had preceded him in such a feat by two years, having gone to the bottom of Narragansett bay in the Moccasin. She was the only woman at that time who had ever descended in such a craft.

Doesn't Understand Like Mother.

Miss Alice's mother died in giving birth to the daughter, but the present Mrs. Roosevelt has been as much a mother to the girl as her own could possibly have been. The following little anecdote prettily illustrates this:

Her teacher at school had been inquiring for Mrs. Roosevelt, who was ill, and Alice answered plaintively:

"She isn't much better yet. Yes, it's pretty hard. Papa stays at home most all the time, you see, and that makes it dreadfully inconvenient."

"Why, how is that?"

"Oh, don't you see? He doesn't understand, like mamma. When mamma tells me to be at home at 4 o'clock and I get there at half past she understands, but when papa says 4 and I get there at even quarter past he doesn't understand at all."

Here is another childhood story that indicates at least a wish to be kind hearted. When walking in the park one day Alice, then a child, sought to comfort a little boy who was screaming and howling because his toy balloon had got away and disappeared amid the clouds. Patting him on the back, she said in a comforting tone:

"Never mind about your balloon, little boy. It has gone to heaven, and when you die you will get it again."

The daughter of the White House is versatile in her accomplishments. She plays and sings as well as most young ladies of her age, is more than a fair portrait and landscape painter, is a first class horsewoman, dances well and enthusiastically and is even said to regale her girl friends with fancy dancing and athletic feats of a high and artistic order. To cap all, she is a sleight of hand performer of more than amateur ability. In tricks that require a hat she uses her father's cowboy sombrero. She speaks several languages, being especially proficient in German. When Mrs. Roosevelt was entertaining some German naval officers the daughter of the house aroused their surprise and enthusiasm by carrying on the entire conversation in their own tongue. She is very fond of poetry, her favorites being Keats and Shelley, from whom she often reads to the younger children by the hour. In addition to all these accomplishments, Miss Roosevelt is said to be a good judge of fast horses, having won money by picking two winners in one day. She has had several pet snakes in her brief career, one green one having been an especial favorite. A girl who likes poetry and snakes, who does fancy dancing and portrait painting, who goes down in submarines and dives in street dress, who is a sleight of hand performer, a wit and story teller and a brilliant social entertainer, is worthy of notice even if she were not a president's daughter.

Miss Roosevelt is evidently becoming used to the white light. When a young man showed her the morning paper containing fulsome notices of her own doings she said:

"Oh, I am used to that! Wait until you're the president's daughter." He is still waiting.

Almost Caused War Between Sultans.

The story of the sultan of Sulu asking Miss Roosevelt to be his seventh wife—or was it his fourteenth?—has been told so often it will not bear repeating, but the tale of how she almost caused war between this same sultan and a rival chief is not so familiar. The rival gave the fair American an exquisite necklace of pearls, and the smile that she bestowed upon him drove the sultan into a jealous rage. Rushing to her side, he jerked from his finger a ring containing a matchless pearl. Bowing low, he presented it. The recipient's smiles seemed to mollify his rage, and the incident ended without bloodshed.

After meeting the mikado of Japan, the dowager empress of China and other great personages it is perhaps remarkable that the daughter of the White House remembers a plain American whom she encountered in California, yet he is more wonderful than all of them. He is Luther Burbank, the wizard who has practically created a new world of fruit. When asked as to his opinion of the president's daughter Mr. Burbank replied:

"She is just a charming girl, and I am delighted with her."

At the same time a grizzled veteran bore this witness:

"She is all right. There are no airs and graces about her, no flimflam. I guess the president is proud of her. I'd like her to be my daughter."

Perhaps it is not just the thing to give away a woman's age, but Alice Roosevelt was twenty-one the 9th of last February. Congressman Longworth, whom gossip is trying so hard to have her marry, is much her senior. He belongs to a family that has been prominent since before the Revolution. He is several times a millionaire and besides is something of a social lion.

DEATH OF NORTHEY

Authorities Think It Was at Hands of Mrs Cooper

HER ARREST EFFECTED

Woman Said to Have Been Dissatisfied With Young Man's Visits to Other Friends In Preference to Herself

South Windsor, Me., Oct. 14.—Mrs. Edwin J. Cooper of this town was placed under arrest late yesterday afternoon on a charge of murdering Charles D. Northey, Jr., at her home on Tuesday last. The state and county officers, who have been investigating the case since an early Wednesday morning, decided that the indications strongly supported the theory of murder and it was agreed to arrest Mrs. Cooper.

The arrest was made by Sheriff Ham as the result of a conference, at which it was agreed that an arrest should be made, providing that a further investigation yesterday strengthened their belief that young Northey did not commit suicide, as at first supposed.

Deputy Sheriff Pinkham arrived here yesterday afternoon accompanied by W. P. Getchell, a civil engineer from Augusta. A general investigation about the scene of the crime was made and measurements taken of distances that might figure in the case. Shortly after 5 o'clock the arrest was made and the prisoner was taken to Augusta.

Young Northey was fatally shot at the Cooper house Tuesday afternoon. He was there, it is alleged, by appointment made at a prayer meeting Sunday night with Mrs. Cooper. According to her own story to the coroner, Mrs. Cooper had purchased a revolver in Augusta Monday to protect herself. On the morning of the shooting, she says, she made a pocket in her outer skirt in which to carry the weapon.

Tuesday noon Northey arrived at the Cooper home, coming from his own home in Whitefield on a bicycle. The young man had previously been employed in Mr. Cooper's blacksmith shop and was said to be always welcome at the house. It was known that he had friends whom he had recently visited at Cooper's mills in alleged preference to the Coopers, and the meeting arranged with Mrs. Cooper is thought to have concerned his neglect to visit her. Exactly what conversation passed between the woman and young man is not known.

The authorities upon the first investigation credited the theory of suicide or accidental shooting. The discovery of evidence to show that three shots had been fired, that Mrs. Cooper had a revolver on her person, and other suspicious circumstances led to the arrest of the woman.

Mrs Cooper In Jail

Augusta, Me., Oct. 14.—Mrs. Edwin J. Cooper was incarcerated in the Kennebec county jail here last night. She refuses to talk on the subject of the alleged crime and said simply: "I expected it," when placed under arrest.

Brought Visions of Bombs

New York, Oct. 14.—Two explosions, which at first were attributed to bombs, but which it was later ascertained were the result of defective insulation, occurred in the Coronet apartments last night. Beneath the stone steps in the basement are located the gas and electric light meters and it is thought that a spark from a defective insulated wire caused the explosion of gas which had escaped at the meter. No one was hurt.

Sentence of Dismissal Commuted

Washington, Oct. 14.—The president has exercised clemency in the case of First Lieutenant Hamilton, Fourteenth infantry, convicted by general court martial of certain violations of the army regulations and sentenced to be dismissed from the army. The president commuted the sentence to a reduction of 30 files in rank on the list of first lieutenants of infantry.

Robbery Instead of Wedding

Montreal, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Betts of London, who claims to have been brought to Montreal by a man named Clive under promise of marriage and then robbed of jewelry worth $1000 and $1000 in money, has seized all of the jewelry brought here by the Baltimore officer from whose custody Clive is said to have escaped soon after the train left New York.

Russians Whip Insurgents

Canea, Island of Crete, Oct. 14.—Russians occupied Armyo, in the Italian zone, Thursday, and a fight with the insurgents ensued, which lasted until last night. The details have been censored, but local papers report that five of the insurgents were killed and eight wounded, and that the Russian troops suffered no casualties.

Seizure of Ammunition

Lomza, Oct. 14.—Several wagon loads of rifle ammunition, in charge of Jewish teamsters, were captured here while on the way to Warsaw. The ammunition is thought to be a portion of a supply imported for use in an uprising.

Crown Prince Steps Down

Stockholm, Oct. 14.—King Oscar resumed the reins of government today, putting an end to the regency of Crown Prince Gustav.

DISCRIMINATING LADIES.

Enjoy Using Herpicide on Account of Its Distinctiveness.

The ladies who have used Newbro's Herpicide speak of it in the highest terms, for its quick effect in cleansing the scalp of dandruff and also for its excellence as a general hair-dressing. It makes the scalp feel fresh and it allays that itching which dandruff will cause. Newbro's Herpicide effectively cures dandruff, as it destroys the germ that causes it. The same germ causes hair to fall out, and later baldness; in killing it, Herpicide stops falling hair and prevents baldness. It is also an ideal hair dressing, for it lends an aristocratic charm to the hair that is quite distinctive. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

This is Hospital Week.

Unity circle of King's Daughters will give a dramatic entertainment in Bethany chapel Wednesday evening, Nov. 8, presenting "The Chaperon."

The alarm from Box 25 at Braintree at 10.30 last night was plainly heard in Quincy and fooled a great many who rushed to box 25 on Canal street.

Some property holders who have paid no attention to the orders of the Board of Health have been summoned into court. Evidently the Board means business.

This afternoon the Quincy and Fore River team meet at the South Quincy playground for the first time in the Merrimack Valley league association football.

The Young People's Religious union of First church will be addressed at their meeting in the chapel on Sunday evening by the pastor of the church, Rev. E. C. Butler.

The piano given to the Quincy Women's club by Mrs. George W. Morton gave general satisfaction at the meeting on Tuesday afternoon, in fact everyone was delighted with its deep rich tones. It was from the Chandler W. Smith Company of Boston and was personally selected by Mr. Smith.

There are several plots of shrubbery at the intersection of streets that have been allowed to go without pruning for several years so that now they look ragged and over large. Just who should trim them back is perhaps a question, but if not done by those living near, then it should be done by the city. Those in the vicinity of Butler road and Merrymount road have been especially noticed as needing pruning.

The Quincy Day Nursery association rummage sale is to be held next week in the store recently occupied by Frank F. Crane on Chestnut street. It is a good time for a sale as house cleaning is about over and many things have been found which will meet with ready sale if contributed. As cold weather comes on second hand clothing is in much demand at these sales.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Another big vaudeville program is announced from Keith's for the week of Oct. 16. Clay Clement, supported by a competent company, will present a delightful one-act comedy, "The Baron's Love Story" a condensed version of "The New Dominion." The playlet tells a pretty love story, in an interesting manner. Salerno, one of the foreign bookings of the Keith circuit and the most expert and dexterous juggler ever seen in this country, and the Three Seldons, another European act, will be included on the same bill. The surrounding program includes the Three Keatons, with little "Buster" the cutest bundle of jollity that ever wiggled himself into the hearts of an audience; Lee Harrison, in an original monologue; John Eberly, a pleasing baritone soloist; the La Vine Cimaron trio, comedy acrobats, and dancers; Mr. and Mrs. Darrow, in an exhibition of sand and smoke pictures; Corbley and Burke, Irish dialect comedians; the Valdings, wonderful double trapeze performers; and McGloine and Smith, in a singing and dancing skit. The customary list of comedy and interesting motion pictures will be shown in the kinetograph.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

"As Ye Sow," a Massachusetts play, written by a Boston clergyman, had its first home presentation at the Majestic theatre last Monday evening and made a hit. William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer are given to establishing precedents which later become good theatrical law. They established several last Monday evening. First, they have proved a man may be a prophet in his own country, for the Rev. Mr. Snyder's work received a warm welcome at the hands of his neighbors. Next they demonstrated a straightforward human interest play, properly cast and properly staged, can be made more the thing in Boston than a musical comedy or an Ibsen fad. And finally, with an audience that crowded the theatre long before the curtain went up, with hundreds left outside clamoring for an opportunity to buy seats, with that audience made up of every class from gallery boy to social leader with a representation of the clergy never seen before in any theatre in America, they proved conclusively that "As Ye Sow" is undoubtedly going to be one of the most popular amusement attractions which Boston has had for many a day. "As Ye Sow" deals with the people who live on Cape Cod, the central figure being a young clergyman and by the way the first clergyman who has been seen on the stage that has approached reality.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Next week the Empire Theatre attraction will be the pleasing comedy "Lord Chumley" written by Messrs. Belasco and DeMille for E. H. Sothern and made a famous success by that artist throughout a season's tour a few years ago. The name part in this play offers fine opportunities for Mr. Howell Hansel in a line of light comedy work in which he has been most successful in the past and there will be a special interest in comparing Mr. Hansel with Mr. Sothern in the central figure of the play's action. All of the leading players will be seen with Mr. Hansel in this production.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The production of "Cleopatra" at the Castle Square Theatre next week will be an extremely notable event. The play demands careful preparation and scenic equipment of the most elaborate order, and every care will be taken to make the production historically accurate and beautiful. The part of "Cleopatra" will be played by Miss Lillian Kemble, and the Marc Antony will be Mr. John Craig. The entire stock company at the Castle Square will be enlisted in the presentation of "Cleopatra" and a large cast of extra people will be engaged in order to fill out the pictures of Egyptian life. A week from Monday, "The Sword of the King," a romantic melodrama made popular by Henrietta Crosman two seasons ago, will be given at the Castle Square.

TODAY'S COURT.

Ellery Clark was arraigned for gunning from a power boat at Cohasset. Case continued until Saturday.

The continued case of Fred S. Brockaway for manslaughter was called and again continued until Nov. 18.

Making Life Sunny

Isn't a bit hard when you try.

THINGS aren't always rosy on the outside, sometimes a bit discouraging on the inside. Beneath all however, a home is just what you create it.

YOU should make it comfortable and attractive. Own the restful furniture, a soft luxurious couch, a comfortable easy chair and other things to correspond.

MONEY can't buy more complete comfort in furniture than what we offer here. But it don't require much money to have these comforts if you wish, for you can open an account at once. A little each week, that's all, buys anything and everything to make your home attractive and life more sunny.

(NOTE.) Our business has doubled in less than a year, can you guess why?

Which Ward?

Will Show Biggest Increase In Hospital Collections?

The collections reported today are chiefly from Wards One and Three. Though some of the Wards have not as yet made any reports, it is not because they are not doing their duty. They will all be heard from in due time, and then which ward will have the honor of showing the biggest increase over last year?

Braintree Man Nominated

The Norfolk county Democratic convention was held Saturday afternoon at Memorial hall Dedham.

The letter from Marshall P. Wright declining renomination for County Commissioner was read and accepted with regret.

John Cavanagh of Braintree was nominated as the candidate.

Welcome at Y. M. C. A.

Clubs of young men now hiring rooms with few attractions might do well to visit the Y. M. C. A. and see the advantages which are offered there before re-leasing club-rooms. Arrangements can be made with the Association whereby they may have a room for their meetings as their own without additional cost than the membership fee, thus holding the club together and at the same time gaining the immense advantages of the new and thoroughly equipped building.

A Fine Place.

Editors of the Ledger:

I wish to say a few words in regard to the Quincy Hospital. I think Quincy is very fortunate in having such a fine institution. Although it is small, a patient gets as good if not better care than any of the larger hospitals. The matron and all the nurses are very kind to their patients, and look after them with the greatest care, to make them comfortable.

I am very glad that I found such a fine place to go while I was sick.

Wilbur T. McCarty,
A Patient.

G. A. R. Fair a Success.

There was an immense crowd at the Grand Army fair Saturday night. There was no entertainment, the entire evening being given up to disposing of the articles that were sold by books. It is impossible at the present time to tell how much was made. The officers of the fair, however, say that it was a financial success and that a good sum will be netted.

The Boys' Reception

The Y. M. C. A. Give 240 Boys A Grand Good Time

Saturday night almost every enterprising boy of Quincy over 12 years of age wanted to go to the Young Men's Christian Association to the reception given by the boys of the Y. M. C. A. to the boys of Quincy.

The two hundred and forty boys who did go were unanimous in the decision that everybody had one of the best times of his life. The boys were met at the door and welcomed by Russell Tupper, Chester Gurney and Reginald Randall. The members of the Boys' Department wore red ribbons which were furnished by Albion Bonney and Harry Glover. Each boy who came as a guest registered, and the tables were under the charge of Ralph Austin, Everett Rhodes, and Arthur Osborne.

The entertainment commenced at 7.15, with a speech of welcome by Master Allison Marsh, who also introduced the talent. On the program were violin solos by Lee Brooks and Roy Sidelinger; piano solos by Ernest Mehaffey and Henry Smith; selections on the harmonica and guitar by Mr. Marinel; vocal solos by Harry Glover, and several other selections, which helped make the evening most enjoyable. After the musical program, Mr. Carl T. Clifford gave a stereopticon talk on "Boys' Work and Boys' Camps," which was of great interest. At the conclusion the Boys' Work Committee of the Women's Auxiliary served refreshments.

The invited guests were the members of the Boys' Work Committee, Messrs. Claude E. Patch W. H. Bently, and Rev. W. E. Gardner, and the Boys' Work Committee of the Womens' Auxiliary, Mrs. C. W. Guy, Mrs. C. T. Sherman, Mrs. E. W. Branch, Mrs. McFarland, and Mrs. W. G. Shaw.

Much credit of the success of the evening is due to Everett Rhodes and his committee, who arranged the program. Others who assisted were Harold and Carl Marsh, Carl Cranshaw and Bruce Saville.

One Design Or Dory Boats

There was a good attendance Saturday night at the meeting at the office of Fred E. Tupper held in the interest of forming a dory or one design class of boats for racing next season.

The meeting developed into a discussion of the merits of the two boats. While the dory would be a little cheaper to build, it developed that she would always have to have a crew on board, and that she could not be well used as a pleasure boat.

On the other hand the one design boat similar to those being built at Hingham would make a good racing boat and could also be used as a cruising boat for pleasure sailing.

Plans for both boats were shown but no decision was reached. Another meeting will be held at an early date.

The Order of Eastern Star, will give a supper and social whist, at their hall, Greenleaf Block, Wednesday evening, Oct. 18th. Supper from 6 to 7.30 o'clock. All are invited.

Business for City Council

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. Several petitions for minor licenses and telephone attachments will be received.

The Committee on Streets will report on the petition to accept Newcomb place as a public way; on the petition to lay out North Payne street; on the order for a gravel sidewalk on Wollaston avenue.

The Joint Committee on Streets and Finance will report on the communication of Miss Farrell relative to fence on Willard street.

The committee on Licenses will report on several petitions for minor licenses.

Reports may also be expected from the Finance Committee.

Public hearings will be held on the petitions of the Telephone Co. and Electric Light Co. for attachments and locations for poles.

In the calendar are several orders granting attachments and pole locations, and the Maple place extension order will probably come up.

The W. Y. C. Hot Dog Party

One of the advantages of a "Hot Dog Party" are that the bill of fare can be nailed upon a shingle. Those who got up the treat for the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday evening surely were professionals and entitled therefore to hang out the shingle. Not all the members had a bill of fare, but at the head table occupied by the officers and ex-commodores each man had one on a shingle. At the top was a frankfurt and artistically arranged then a doughnut, a piece of cheese, a long roll, a cigar, and matches. The bill of fare was supplemented with delicious coffee.

Preceding this banquet there was a social hour, enjoyed by members in the pool room, reading room, lockers or upon the verandas as it was a beautiful moonlight evening. While the guests were at the tables popular music was played by the local orchestra.

First on the program came the presentation of prizes to the winners of the championships. Commodore Wiley spoke a few words of congratulation in each case and awards were made as follows:

Class A, won by George F. Sawyer of the Eclipse,—a marine clock.

Class B, won by Lyman Hewitson of the Sheila, a cabin lamp.

Class C, won by Eleazer Drew, a marine clock.

The prize for power boats was previously awarded to the Mischief.

Each gentleman responded upon receving the prize, and the band played his favorite air.

After the banquet "Bill" Field sang one of his most popular songs and there were reminiscences and stories and congratulations for the officers by Vice Commodore W. M. Chase, Vice Commodore George F. Sawyer, ex-Commodores Fenno and Baker, John J. Henry, Secretary Dill and others.

Secretary Dill spoke mainly of the efforts to organize a one-design class in Quincy and vicinity, plans having been prepared for a yacht 22-foot overall, for which several orders have been placed.

The committee on supper were John J. Henry, Edgar James and George Winslow, who came in for much praise.

Died of Injuries.

William Bavin of Somerville, formerly of 36 Union street, Quincy, died on Sunday at a Boston hospital of injuries received by falling from his team at the South station ten days ago. He was 27 years of age and leaves a widow. Funeral services will be held from his late residence 206 Washington street, Somerville, on Wednesday.

Resolutions.

WHEREAS,—It has pleased the Almighty God to take from our midst our esteemed friend and benefactor, Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan, be it

RESOLVED,—That we, members of the Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 10, to the A. O. H. of Quincy, extend to his family our sincere sympathy in their sad affliction. Therefore be it

RESOLVED,—That while we bow in humble submission to the will of our Father in Heaven, we no less mourn the loss of our brother, a good and active member, that by his death we have lost a true and faithful friend, who at all times was ready to render his services to further the cause of "Friendship, Unity and True Christian Charity," and be it further

RESOLVED,—That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and to the local paper and placed upon the records of this order.

Business School.

The interest manifested in the branch of the Plymouth Business School, recently opened in this city, shows that the young people of Quincy appreciate the opportunity afforded them of securing an up-to-date, thoroughly practical commercial course right at home. The school is well attended already, and the fact that students may enter any school day during the year gives promise of a much larger registration.

UNHAPPINESS DISPELLED.

Men and Women Unanimous About It.

Many women weep and wail and refuse to be comforted because their once magnificent tresses have become thin and faded. Many men incline to profanity because the flies bite through the thin thatch on their craniums. It will be good news to the miserable of both sexes, to learn that Newbro's Herpicide has been placed upon the market. This is the new scalp germicide and antiseptic that acts by destroying the germ or microbe that is the underlying cause of all hair destruction. Herpicide is a new preparation, made after a new formula on an entirely new principle. Anyone who has tried it will testify as to its worth. Try it yourself and be convinced. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

TREATY OF PEACE

It Receives Signatures of Czar and Mikado

ROOSEVELT IS NOTIFIED

Official Announcement by Russian Government Was Held Up as Mark of Appreciation of the President's Services

St. Petersburg, Oct 16.—At 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon Spencer Eddy, the American charge of affairs, officially informed the foreign office that the Emperor of Japan ratified the Russo-Japanese peace treaty Saturday. The French minister at Tokio, at the same hour, informed the Japanese government that Emperor Nicholas had signed the treaty.

The ratification of the treaty of peace was formally announced this morning in The Official Messenger, which says that its operation began yesterday. The text of the treaty is not given.

As a graceful mark of appreciation of the part he took in bringing about the conference at Portsmouth and the resultant peace, President Roosevelt was the first person to be notified by the Russian government that Emperor Nicholas had ratified the treaty. As soon as the signature had been affixed to the instrument and before the treaty had been brought back from Peterhof for the counter-signature of Foreign Minister Lamsdorff, the news was sent directly to the president. Official notification to the French government followed several hours later, when Lamsdorff had completed the ratification by his signature.

The government took no steps to make known to the people of Russia the fact that the czar had signed the treaty before the receipt of the official notification that the instrument had been ratified by the signature of the Emperor of Japan, and the first news, therefore, was communicated through a dispatch from Washington.

As soon as the treaty had been fully ratified the foreign office communicated the fact to the war, navy and other ministries, and the necessary orders were immediately issued to bring home some of the ships interned in neutral harbors.

The date for the exchange of prisoners of war has not yet been fixed. Thomas Smith, American vice consul at Moscow, sent to Medvid yesterday several thousand roubles which had been received from Japan for the Japanese prisoners there.

Japs Begin to Leave Manchuria

Tokio, Oct. 16.—It is believed that the government has sent an order to Manchurian headquarters to begin the evacuation of Japanese troops today. It is expected that Japanese will effect a complete withdrawal of her troops in six months.

Mrs Cooper Pleads Not Guilty

Augusta, Me., Oct. 16.—Mrs. Edwin J. Cooper, who is detained, pending an inquiry into the South Windsor tragedy, was arraigned before Judge Andrews of the municipal court of Augusta. She pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder and a hearing was set for Oct. 23. The arraignment took place in the office of the county jail and occupied but a few moments, after which she went back to her cell.

Hyde Decides to Testify

New York, Oct. 16.—James H. Hyde has finally decided to face the insurance investigation. Through his personal attorney, Samuel Untermyer, it is announced that Hyde will be here in the next day or two prepared to accept a subpoena from the legislative committee. He is expected in the city not later than Wednesday. Hyde has been visiting friends in and near Boston recently.

Von Sternburg Not to Retire

Berlin, Oct. 16.—An official denial is given of paragraphs appearing in the German press to the effect that Baron Von Sternburg is likely to retire from the post of German ambassador to the United States. The question of a change of ambassadors at Washington has not been considered. Von Sternburg will sail for the United States on Oct. 24.

JUMPED FROM BARGE

Deckhand Disappears and Captain Is Held by the Police

Providence, Oct. 16.—Captain Robert J. Lanier of the coal barge Hamilton Fish is detained, pending an investigation into the disappearance of John Rose, a deckhand, after a quarrel on board the barge. At the conclusion of the dispute Rose jumped overboard and started to swim ashore from the middle of the Providence river. Whether Rose was drowned or is in hiding to escape an arrest for mutiny, which was threatened by Lanier, is not known.

Rose, according to Lanier and the steward of the barge, threatened Lanier with steel knuckles. In Lanier's attempt to take the knuckles away from Rose he is alleged to have struck Rose with the heel of his shoe and a capstan bar, after which Rose leaped overboard. Rose swam strongly for quite a distance and an attempt was made to secure aid from another barge. Before a boat could be launched, Rose had disappeared and was not seen again. It is possible that he may have gained shore. Search is being made for him in this city.

Attempt at Train Wrecking

Stamford, Conn., Oct. 16.—An attempt to wreck an express train was foiled yesterday afternoon a few moments before the train was due. George H. Scofield, a tower operator, while walking the track to his home, found a big bar of iron on the track, which, it is said, would have wrecked the train. The bar was firmly wedged against one of the rails of the track on which the express goes. The obstruction was found at the head of a curve.

Fulford Succumbs to Injuries

Newton, Mass., Oct. 16.—Senator George T. Fulford of Brockville, Ont., died yesterday afternoon as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident. Fulford's injuries developed into the paralysis of the vital organs. The accident occurred a week ago yesterday, the automobile in which Fulford was riding coming into collision with an electric car. Louis Zeriax, Fulford's chauffeur, died three days later.

Swansea, Mass., Oct. 16.—The Fall River and Warren, R. I., police searched for three highwaymen who, it is alleged, held up Martin Dunn of South Swansea and demanded his money. The highwaymen obtained nothing, but in a struggle with the largest of the three men Dun received two slight scratches from a knife with which the man attempted to stab him.

Large Steamship.

Germany follows close behind Great Britain, says Harper's Weekly, in the construction of transatlantic liners, and recently there was launched at Stettin the largest steamship ever built in Germany. It is the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria for the Hamburg-American line, and represents the latest developments in that type of vessel designed for large passenger and cargo capacity rather than for high speed. Thus in dimensions the new German liner is inferior to the new twenty-five-knot Cunarder now under construction, but her tonnage (25,500) and her displacement (35,500 tons) are somewhat greater. The new steamer will really be a large town, having a population of 1849, of which 530 will comprise the crew, while there may be 532 first-class passengers, 301 second, 218 third, and 268 in the steerage.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Mr. Charles Dillingham announces the annual appearance at the Colonial Theatre, Boston, on Monday, October 16, of the celebrated prima donna, Miss Fritzi Scheff, and her company, in an entirely new and original comic opera entitled "M'lle. Modiste," by the distinguished composer, Victor Herbert, while the libretto and lyrics are from the pen of Henry Blossom, whose name is rapidly becoming famous by reason of such successful dramatic efforts as "Checkers," "The Yankee Consul," "A Fair Exchange," etc. The simple announcement of the name of Fritzi Scheff is sufficient to guarantee a ready response from her crowds of admirers in and around Boston. Mr Charles Dillingham has this year succeeded in securing for Miss Scheff an opera from America's most popular composer. The combination has already proved itself a very happy one, since it was that delightful opera, "Babette," whose tuneful melodies have become part of the current musical of America, that first brought Miss Fritzi Scheff before the public as a star of comic opera. She will appear for the first time in her stage career in modern fashionable costume and making twenty-one appearances in Boston this season, including Saturday matinees on Oct. 21-28 and Nov. 4.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

SPECIAL PRICES.

Until Jan. 1st, 1906, the experiment will be tried of giving a special discount of Five Dollars ($5) when Music Hall is let for an afternoon, an evening, or until 2 A. M., and a special discount of Ten Dollars ($10) if let until 4 A. M.

The Location is the best of any hall in the city. The street cars pass the door with a turnout right in front of the Hall.

The Floor is of selected maple laid with the greatest care, and is kept in perfect condition, being covered with canvas when not used for dancing.

The Ventilation—a most important consideration—is such as to keep the air pure with even a crowded hall and without causing any drafts.

The Hall is Lighted by electricity, brilliantly and pleasantly, and with a swtichboard arranged so that all desired effects can be obtained in the Hall proper or on the stage. Gas is used as an auxiliary light.

The Heating is direct—indirect, ample, and giving the most healthful results.

The Stage has been designed with care, and is furnished with a generous supply of attractive and appropriate scenery.

For Advertising, the Music Hall Billboards throughout the City are of very great value.

To Darken the Hall, there are special window fittings so that at Loonday the Hall can be made as dark as at midnight.

In case of fire there are pails of water and chemical fire extinguishers throughout the Hall. There is an asbestos fire curtain by which the Stage can be instantly cut off from the Hall proper. There are nine (9) doors opening from the Hall and five (5) separate exits.

As a whole, Quincy Music Hall has been carefully planned to meet the requirements of those who wish a large and really first class Hall.

They Are Steadily Being Grafted Upon China

PROGRESSIVE MOVEMENT

Brought to Strong Position by Japanese Influence--Boycott Against America Really Means "China For the Chinese"

St. Petersburg, Oct. 16.—Upon the receipt here of dispatches from Tokio that Japan soon intends to open negotiations with China regarding Manchuria, a prominent Russian merchant, who is on a brief visit home after a long residence in northern China, was questioned concerning Japan's future operations toward obtaining a predominant interest and influence in the affairs of the Chinese empire. This merchant made the following communication:

"The national progressive movement in China, which has been going through a course of active development for the last 10 years, is today a very powerful factor in the middle kingdom and one with which the Japanese are reckoning to the fullest extent. This movement had its origin with the old secret societies, both anti-dynastic and anti-foreign, which were brought into existence by bad administration on the part of the central government and by the abuses indulged in by missionaries and other foreign residents of China. The Boxer outbreak of 1901 was the startling evidence of this anti-foreign feeling.

"The movement has developed slowly and steadily, outgrowing the old secret societies and forcing them into the background and always progressing toward the ideal of Chinese solidarity and national unity, until today it is quite divorced from its origin and stands alone. The recent Japanese naval and military successes have added to the popularity of the idea and brought it up to its present strong and flourishing condition.

"These are the material evidences of the movement, but of much greater importance and significance are the growth and broadening of ideas with which it has been attended. By this I mean the grafting upon China as a whole of western ideas and ideals, which has resulted in a quickening of the nation at large such as has never been witnessed before.

"This is very significant, but the most important element of this phase of the situation lies in the fact that these ideas have been introduced into China through Japan, one can almost say by the Japanese, who have by this procedure exerted a powerful influence upon the civil education and mental growth of the middle kingdom. Every one knows that the Japanese schools and universities are filled with Chinese students. When these young Chinese return to their country they are the pioneers, not only of western ideas, but of Japan's far-sighted and far-reaching political purposes. Of this fact the Chinese are often unconscious, but the work they do for Japanese on Chinese soil is none the less effective."

After referring to China's recent action in appointing a committee to examine constitutions of various countries, the merchant continued: "The national progressive movement is spreading rapidly. The provincial viceroys are too good politicians to be sincerely pro-foreign, and their affiliation with the new movement has been followed by that of many other influential Chinamen.

"The boycott against American goods was an outcome of this movement and showed its anti-foreign character. While the boycott was directed against the United States nominally because of emigration restrictions, its deeper significance is seen by us who know China and the Chinese in the evidence of the growth of the idea of 'China for the Chinese,' the awakening of China to self-consciousness, and this is a direct result of the progressive movement.

"The boycott has shown the Chinese their power, what they can do when they get together, and at any moment we may see it directed against any other foreign power doing business in China, not necessarily in retaliation for a specific grievance, but as an aggressive act based on the belief of growing nationality and solidarity, self-sufficiency and general anti-foreign sentiment. This is the real danger underlying the boycott movement, a danger which renders it of interest to all merchants doing business out there. The Chinese have become conscious of their entity, their existence and power as a nation.

"Japan will not restore Manchuria for nothing; she has been at work too long and too adroitly to let this splendid opportunity for driving an advantageous bargain escape her. She practically created and then fostered these feelings of solidarity and self-consciousness and now proposes to use them for her own ends. The vehicle is already in motion and Japan's efforts will be to mount it and drive it where she will.

"A most interesting, and, from the standpoint of the Japanese, a most dangerous element in this situation, is found in that it is not always possible to direct and control a strong and growing spirit of nationalism. Southeastern Europe gives many striking examples of this. The Chinese progressives may insist upon turning the lessons they have learned from Japan to their own account, of applying to China and for China alone the ideas of national independence which Japan has nurtured among the best element in the empire. China has quickened to a spirit of patriotism, and as a result China may combat Japan's efforts toward the ideal of 'China for the yellow race' with the slogan of 'China for the Chinese.'"

Korea a Dependency of Japan

Tokio, Oct. 16.—Baron Hayashi, when interviewed by a Jiji representative at Nagasaka, said that the uprisings in Korea are not serious, the irregular mobs being without leaders. He declared that the peninsula is now practically a dependency of Japan. Adequate capital and wise foresight would certainly develop the natural resources of the country and make Korea the source of considerable wealth.

Political Strike of Printers

St. Petersburg, Oct. 16.—Demonstrations on a large scale took place here yesterday, the occasion being the removal of the body of Prince Troubetskoy to the Nikolsai station for shipment to Moscow. Students, workmen and spectators gathered in thousands in the streets and demonstrators with red flags paraded boldly through the city's main avenue. The crowds were several times charged and dispersed by mounted police, but with no grave consequences. A strike of printers was declared last night on political grounds.

Cow Caused Serious Accident

Seaton, Ills., Oct. 16.—Two engineers, two firemen and a brakeman were killed here when a heavy double-header freight train ran into cattle on the track at the speed of 20 miles an hour. Both locomotives and 11 freight cars loaded with grain and lumber were piled in a heap beside the track. A cow lying on the ties between the rails was crushed under the wheels of the pilot truck and rolled along the ties. The animal's blood made the rails slippery and pieces of bone threw the locomotives from the track.

Datto All Wants to Fight

Manila, Oct. 16.—Datto Ali, with his followers in the province of Mindanao, has taken the aggressive and is killing many Moros friendly to the government. Ali has informed dattos who are assisting the federal troops to effect his capture that he is preparing to meet and kill them. Provisional companies of troops are taking the field for a vigorous campaign, aided by friendly dattos who are armed by the government.

No Light on Olney Tragedy

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Efforts to locate the man who disappeared from here on the day of the Olney tragedy, and who is suspected of the crime, have so far proved fruitless. Mrs. Ingerick has not yet been informed of the death of her daughter and the Olney brothers. It is hoped that with the full restoration of her mental faculties she will be able to throw light on the identity of her assailant.

Football May Prove Fatal

New York, Oct. 16.—Caught beneath a score of athletes in a football scrimmage, Sinclair Power, 19 years old, was so badly injured yesterday that surgeons fear that if he recovers he will be crippled for life. Power suffered concussion of the brain, internal injuries and contusions of the legs while playing with members of the Imperial Athletic club against the football squad of St. Anthony's church.

Perdicaris at Washington

Washington, Oct. 16.—Ion Perdicaris, the American citizen who, while residing at Tangier, was captured by Raisuli and whose case was the subject of vigorous representations by this government to the Sultan of Morocco, has taken an apartment in Washington for the winter. His decision to remain in this country for some time is due to the unsettled conditions in Morocco.

Augusta's Spasm of Virtue

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 16.—The police made a raid on every gambling room in Augusta, at every place finding a game in progress. At one place property valued at $7500 was secured. One of the places raided has been operated continuously for the last 30 years and this is the first time in its history that the authorities have ever raided it.

A TREATY OF 1818

Gloucester Fishermen Want Official Interpretation

A TRIP TO WASHINGTON

Effort Will Be Made to Wake Up Department of State--Vessel Owners to Make Test Case With Newfoundland Cruiser

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 16.—As a result of the policy recently adopted by the Newfoundland government to restrict American fishing rights on the coast of Newfoundland, Congressman A. P. Gardner and B. A. Smith, one of the largest vessel owners of this city, left last night for Washington to discuss the situation with Secretary of State Root. Originally it was planned that Port Collector Jordan and a committee from the board of trade should accompany Gardner and Smith, but this project was later abandoned.

The object of the trip to Washington is to secure from the head of the state department an interpretation of the treaty of 1818, in which American fishermen were guaranteed certain fishing rights on the Newfoundland coast. A similar trip to Washington was made last spring, but thus far no interpretation of the treaty has been made by the department of state. At the conference Gardner and Smith will ask Root why the requested interpretation has not been submitted, and will request that an immediate interpretation be given.

The vessel owners of this port are prepared to make a test case of the matter if any Gloucester vessels are interfered with by the Newfoundland cruiser Fiona. One of the grounds on which the Newfoundland government intends to restrict the American fishermen is that Newfoundland sailors are shipped on Gloucester vessels.

In order that this cause may be eliminated, the schooner Dauntless, Captain Young, sailed from this port today with a crew of 24 men, all of whom were shipped here and none of whom belong to Newfoundland. Captain Young believes that he cannot be interfered with by the Newfoundland authorities, and he is planning to sell his catch to other Gloucester fishermen, who will bring it home to this port.

Panic In Gotham Playhouse

New York, Oct. 16.—Hundreds of persons attending a secred concert in the Irving concert hall last night were thrown into a panic by an alarm of fire, caused by a wrangle between the ushers and a man who tried to get in without a ticket. To add to the confusion somebody turned in a fire alarm and when the apparatus rattled up hundreds of people rushed to the theatre. Nobody was injured in the wild scramble that ensued.

Big Purchases by Southern Pacific

San Francisco, Oct. 16.—Julius Kruttschnitt, director of maintenance and operation of the Southern Pacific Railroad company, announces that the Southern Pacific has ordered 140 locomotives of the newest type, 6000 steel flat cars, 120 coaches and baggage cars and eight observation cars. Three steamships also have been ordered for the Southern Pacific Atlantic coast steamship service.

Togo Worships Ancestors

Tokio, Oct. 16.—The news that Vice Admiral Togo worshipped at Ize temple is creating a profound impression. It is believed that ancestral worship will be given fresh stimulation, especially in the army and navy. Togo has shown his implicit faith in what he said in his report of the naval battle, when he attributed the Japanese victory to the protection of the spirits of imperial ancestors.

Car Crashed Into Tree

Detroit, Oct. 16.—Thirteen people were injured last evening, none of them fatally, however, when a street car struck a brick that had been placed on the rails and jumped the track. The car ran 100 feet on the pavement and then crashed into a tree. It is thought that the brick was placed on the track by mischievous boys.

Strikes In Fifty-Three Cities

Indianapolis, Oct. 16.—A bulletin issued by the officers of the International Typographical union says that agreements have been reached between 240 local unions and employers, whereby an eight-hour day has been, or is to be established, on Jan. 1. At the close of the fifth week of the strike men are still out in 53 cities.

Good Attendance at Big Fair

Portland, Or., Oct. 16.—When the gates of the Lewis and Clark exposition closed at 1 o'clock Sunday morning a total attendance of 56,960 for the last day of the fair had been registered, making the grand total attendance for the entire fair period 2,545,509 admissions.

Earthquake In Jamaica

Kingston, Ja., Oct. 16.—An earthquake shock was felt here yesterday afternoon, lasting for nearly a minute. It was oppressively hot before the shock took place.

Nansen as a Diplomat

Christiana, Oct. 16.—The Politken says it learns that Fridtjof Nansen, the Arctic explorer, will be appointed Norwegian minister at Washington.

ISLAND THROWN UP

Plausible Explanation of Tidal Wave Which Struck Steamer

New York, Oct. 16.—Scientists have failed to explain the mysterious tidal wave which swept the decks of the Cunard liner Campania as she was in mid-ocean last Wednesday, and which reported here Saturday with five known drowned, one missing and 30 injured.

Taken in connection with violent upheavals in Calabria, southern Italy, and eruptions of Vesuvius on the same day, and severe earthquakes in Jamaica on the following morning, the theory is advanced that some great disturbance had shaken the bottom of the Atlantic.

In Calabria the shakings of the earth were violent, but did not particularly damage property. The shakings were longer than is usual.

The earthquakes in Jamaica, which began early Thursday morning, were rather longer than usual and had a peculiar effect on the people of the whole island, making most of them ill.

Never before has such a tidal wave swept across the centre of the Atlantic, and it is believed it could have been started only by some immense upheaval of the ocean's bed.

Scientists claim that it is quite possible that an island may have been thrown up somewhere in the ocean, as is quite frequently done in the Pacific.

How Ivins Would Have It

New York, Oct. 16.—In an open letter to G. B. McClellan and W. R. Hearst, W. M. Ivins, the Republican candidate for mayor, outlined his policy, if elected, which includes: Independence of all organizations and individuals; disregard of merely national party considerations in making appointments; retirement from all private business during his term; the acquirement by the city of all lapsed or forfeited franchises; the city to take immediate possession of all gas plants; the construction of a municipal light and power plant, and a revision of the system of public accounting.

Arousing Missionary Interest

Boston, Oct. 16.—Missionaries from many parts of the world proved the feature of a meeting held at the People's temple for the purpose of arousing interest in the work among the young people of the Protestant churches of the city. Among the speakers were Miss Ellen M. Stone, the captive of the Bulgarian brigands; Rev. S. R. Vinton, formerly of a mission in Burmah; Dr. Martha Sheldon, with a record of 17 years in the Himalayas; Rev. Alonzo Bunker, who spent 40 years in Burmah, and Rev. Isaac Pearson, recently returned from a long sojourn in China.

Championship Goes to New York

New York, Oct. 16.—Amid the frenzied plaudits of more than 24,000 baseball enthusiasts, the New York National league champions won the world's professional baseball championship by defeating the Philadelphia American league in the fifth game of the post-season series by the score of 2 to 0. Of the four previous games New York had won three and Philadelphia 1. The division of the receipts will net the winning players $1142 each and the losers $420.

Skeleton In Abandoned Camp

McAdam Junction, N. B., Oct. 16.—Hunters discovered an abandoned lumber camp on the headwaters of the St. Croix river. Investigating the place, they found the bones of a man lying in a bunk. Near the body was a newspaper of 1896 date. It is now recalled that John Hannon lived alone in the woods near this place, but disappeared in 1896, and it is believed that the skeleton is his. There were evidences that animals had devoured the flesh from the bones.

Irving Was Overworked

London, Oct. 16.—That the body of Sir Henry Irving should find a resting place in Westminster Abbey appears to be a very general desire. It seems to be beyond doubt that Irving sacrificed himself by hard work. He had been advised a long time ago to give up arduous roles and only last week he had been reluctantly persuaded to omit "The Bells" in future. It appears that for several years past weakness of the lungs had thrown an undue strain on the heart.

Three Victims of Crossing Smashup

Halifax, Oct. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Ernst, accompanied by their son, were driving to church and when crossing the railroad track at Bridgewater a light engine struck their team. Ernst was killed instantly. His wife was injured internally and remained unconscious until her death, eight hours after the accident. The son was terribly injured and there is no hope of his recovery.

Italian Fracas.

There was quite a lively fracus among the Italians on Canal street late Sunday afternoon. The crowd had gathered to celebrate the wedding of one of their friends that had taken place some days previous.

Everybody was happy but the bride's father. He was wrathy, as he did not like his new son-in-law. Things were moving lively, and there was a great deal of loud and angry talk. Officer Matthews who was near at hand rung for the Patrol wagon.

When the wagon arrived the crowd had adjourned to the street. The four men supposed to be the ringleaders were arrested. After the crowd had dispersed Officer Matthews found a loaded revolver in the street near where the crowd were. It had probably been thrown there by one of the crowd on the approach of the police.

Shot By A Thief

Milkman Who Found Man Helping Himself To His Milk

Jeremiah E. Card, a Milton milkman, had a fierce fight, Sunday morning with a thief whom he discovered trying to steal a jar of milk from the back of his wagon. During the fight Card was shot in his right arm by a pal of the thief.

The affair took place on Randolph avenue. Card heard a rattling among his milk cans, and turning he saw the head and shoulders of a man at the back of his wagon. He stopped his horse, and jumped from his wagon. As he did so the thief started to run with a jar of milk.

Card gave chase and soon overtook the fellow, and grabbed him. The fellow turned and gave him a stunning blow in the face. Card returned the blow, and the men clinched and fell to the ground.

Card was getting the best of the fight when a third man appeared and pulling a revolver fired at Card. The bullet took effect in Card's arm. The fellows then ran off, and Card drove to the residence of Dr. Leslie, where his wound, which was not a dangerous one, was dressed.

Officers Higgins and Farrington were soon on the scene, and obtained a description of the two men. A general alarm was sent out for the apprehension of the parties.

Card finished delivering his milk and then went to the City Hospital where the bullet was taken out.

In Honor of Columbus

Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, attended solemn high vespers at St. John's church Sunday evening in honor of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus.

The clergymen to officiate were Rev. John J. Coan, with Rev. Julian E. Johnstone as deacon, Rev. John J. Casey as sub-deacon, Rev. John P. Cuffe as master of ceremonies. Rev. Matthew F. McDonnell of Braintree, was also present.

The musical portion was under the direction of John Mahan. Stearn's vespers was sung with the antiphones. Thomas R. Donovan sang "Salve Regina;" and D. J. Seward McCurdy "O Salutaris."

Harvest Sunday.

Harvest Sunday was observed at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers and leaves. Rev. Mr. Hunt preached an excellent sermon, taking his text from the ninth chapter of Isaiah, third verse—"They joy before thee according to the joy in harvest."

In the afternoon at four o'clock the annual harvest concert was held. There were recitations and songs by the younger members of the Sunday-school and Mrs. Herbert Gurney, the superintendent, told the children two stories in a very interesting manner and pointed out lessons which particularly pertained to harvest time.

The evening classes at the Y. M. C. A. open tonight in mechanical drawing, English and arithmetic.

First Real Game Says a Spectator

There was a red hot game of foot ball Saturday afternoon in the Merrimac Valley league between the Quincys and Fore Rivers. The game was played on the Ward Three playgrounds and was warmly contested from start to finish.

In strength the two teams were very evenly matched. The Quincys who have been playing rather loosely braced up and played an aggressive game. The score stood 1 to 1 up to near the end of the game when Nuttal of Fore River kicked a goal which gave that team the match.

The game was called at 3.45 and two forty-five minute halves were played. Fore River kicked off and at the start the ball was kept well within Quincy's ground. Then there was a series of good team play on the part of Quincy and the ball went bounding dangerously near Fore River's goal. Several times the Quincys came within an ace of scoring, but by mass play were kept from getting the ball between the poles except on one occasion. Fore River later tied the score, and finally won.

During the latter part of the game T. Robertson received a kick in the face which cut his cheek. He was attended on the field by a physician.

The line-up:

No Alarm Necessary

Prompt action on the part of W. H. Teasdale, chairman of the Board of Health, prevented calling out the fire department at 10.20 Sunday night, and saved a building from being damaged by fire.

Mr. Teasdale had been to the south shore for the day, and in coming home had by mistake taken a train on the main line instead of a branch train. Leaving the train at South Quincy he started to walk home. When he reached Brewers corner he saw quite a crowd collected and upon inquiry learned that there was a fire in John Connolly's blacksmith shop on Granite street. Some of the crowd were trying to find the key to the fire alarm box to pull an alarm. Mr. Teasdale stopped them and bursting open the door of the shop quickly extinguished the fire, which was in a box of oakum, and had evidently been set by an incendiary. Mr. Teasdale spoiled a new pair of gloves in his good work.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Jacob Richards of Commercial street, Weymouth to the marriage of their daughter, Louise Wolcott, to Charles Fullerton Bacon on Tuesday evening, October the thirty-first, nineteen hundred and five, at eight o'clock, at the Union Congregational church.

Ward Two Already Over 33 Per cent. Ahead of 1904

Ward Two is making a splendid showing! Already they have turned in over 33 per cent more than last year and a fourth of their collectors still to hear from! Will any other ward do better? The amounts acknowledged today are all from Ward Two and Three. A number of other wards have made partial returns. We shall have to acknowledge them later.

Easy for Pilgrims

Win the Great Game At Association Foot Ball

During the first half of the great Association foot ball game in Boston on Monday the Greater Boston team, which included five Quincy players, held the Pilgrims from England down to one goal, but were unable to score themselves.

In the second half the Pilgrims were more aggressive and added four goals, winning the match 5 to 0.

McDonald excelled for the Quincy men and once almost beat Sir Charles with a clinking shot. The runs of Offers, Gillespie and Ross were also feature plays of the home team. The visitors outclassed the Bostons, and their team play was perfect.

The Boston Advertiser says: "The speed and dexterity of the play, its open character, and its progress without halt or delay, were much enjoyed, even by the novice. It was easy to see how interesting the game might be to those thoroughly familiar with it, who knew the players individually, and who were personally interested in one team or the other. That the game will ever oust intercollegiate football, as overconfidently predicted by Sir Ernest Cochrane of the English party, seems no more likely than that basket ball or lacrosse will take the place of baseball in this country.

The Globe says: "There is plenty of room for socker football in this country and it is a great game. There is not a dull movement in it, and there are moments just as exciting as one ever sees on any college varsity gridiron, but it lacks the element of personal combat which is embodied in American football, as well as English rugby, and in every respect is entirely dissimilar from our college game."

The Herald says: "The exponents of England's great game have been boasting of late that the game is destined to replace football as the latter is now played in our colleges. But to the collegians present the remark can be attributed, "It won't do." Never can this happen, for the game, though very pretty to look at, has not the essential elements of strenuosity to it that has the American college game. With those people who like to watch a nice, clean-cut game between fast-moving, clean-cut athletes the game might go. And a man must be an athlete to play 90 minutes of it, such as the teams played yesterday, for in that time the 22 men cover about as much ground as a cross-country runner in a championship event, and at a good pace, too. In fact, speed is an essential, quickness another, and gentlemanly conduct almost necessary."

The Post says: "Contrasted with American football, it was devoid of the roughness, fierceness and close play that practically smothers the man with the ball from sight. It was open, easily followed and therefore spectacular all the time. Football critics from colleges all over the country were on the sidelines and followed every move with a critical eye. It was pretty, clever and easy to follow, but none of them left with any apprehension for the future of the now dominant gridiron sport."

Cat Boat Association

The Cat Boat Racing Association held its annual meeting Monday evening at the office of Commodore Crane of the Quincy Yacht club on Temple street and elected these officers:

President,—R. M. Whittemore of Quincy.

Vice President,—George H. Lane of South Boston.

Secretary and Treasurer,—Frank E. Dawes of Neponset.

Executive Committee,—Frederick H. Smith, Herbert W. Robbins, Frank F. Crane of Quincy and E. J. Coleman of Boston.

Gifts of great value and variety are daily being presented to the benedict of the Ward One Republican City Committee. The cashier of a City Square restaurant has presented him with a most beautiful gift and upon arriving at headquarters in the Adams building last evening he was showered with congratulations. It's up to the benedict for the cigars.

The Location is the best of any hall in the city. The street cars pass the door with a turnout right in front of the Hall.
The Floor is of selected maple laid with the greatest care, and is kept in perfect condition, being covered with canvas when not used for dancing.
The Ventilation—a most important consideration—is such as to keep the air pure with even a crowded hall and without causing any drafts.
The Hall is Lighted by electricity, brilliantly and pleasantly, and with a swtichboard arranged so that all desired effects can be obtained in the Hall proper or on the stage. Gas is used as an auxiliary light.
The Heating is direct—indirect, ample, and giving the most healthful results.
The Stage has been designed with care, and is furnished with a generous supply of attractive and appropriate scenery.
For Advertising, the Music Hall Billboards throughout the City are of very great value.
To Darken the Hall, there are special window fittings so that at noonday the Hall can be made as dark as at midnight.
In case of fire there are pails of water and chemical fire extinguishers throughout the Hall. There is an asbestos fire curtain by which the Stage can be instantly cut off from the Hall proper. There are nine (9) doors opening from the Hall and five (5) separate exits.
As a whole, Quincy Music Hall has been carefully planned to meet the requirements of those who wish a large and really first class Hall.

The City Council

Pass the Maple Street Extension Order Municipal Light

An important meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. One of the noteworthy orders to pass being that to lay out and extend Maple place from Washington to Chestnut street.

Owing to a joint committee meeting it was 8 o'clock before the Council was called to order. Councilmen Barry, Chamberlin, Hynes and Savage were absent.

Councilman Stone did not wish to oppose the order for he thought the street should be accepted. He did object, however, to paying more than the assessed value for the Rice property.

Councilman Bass said that was what had been holding up the order. It was the most valuable end of his land that was taken. The Committee had endeavored to have him take a less amount without success.

Hotel Fire At Wollaston

The alarm from Box 55 at 7.55 Monday night was for a lively blaze in the paper hangings store of E. S. Thomas on Beale street. The fire is supposed to have started from an overheated stove, and damaged the stock and building about $250.

The store is a part of the Wollaston Hotel block, and some of the rooms of the hotel were filled with smoke.

The Wollaston apparatus which is located in the next building were quickly on the scene, and had a stream of water on the fire.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

There is talk of changing the name of the famous street in Paris, Rue de la Paix to Rue Roosevelt. The one means the street of Peace, the other, the street of the Peacemaker.

The English gentlemen evidently know how to play association football, and can give the Greater Boston men points, but team play amounts to considerable and these men have been making it their sole business for several weeks.

The Maple place extensions comes high, but the city will never regret that it seized the opportunity and made the improvement before it was too late. It means much to the business centre of the city and to Washington street. Maple street should in a few years become a business street.

When General Sherman was sent to inspect the country given over by Mexico and which included Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and Southern California he reported that he thought another war with Mexico would be necessary to make them take the blanked country back. Those who feel the same way about France and the Panama canal should try to have patience.

The epidemic among Coddington school pupils which some feared might come before the authorities awoke to the unsanitary conditions of the building, may be at hand.

There are several cases of diphtheria among the pupils, and mothers in particular are condemning the school building.

Some of the pupils who are sick attend school in the basement. The Coddington is the only school building without a ventilating system, and the only school building heated by stoves. While most of the school buildings of the city are of brick, the Coddington is of wood and was built over half a century ago. The proper capacity of the building is but 390, yet the last annual report showed that 485 seats were necessary, so that it is also overcrowded. A new Coddington is very much demanded.

Pittsburg, Oct. 17.—Attorney Haymaker, counsel for Mrs. S. E. Mrs. Flower incurred the displeasure of her father, it is said, by marrying Dr. Flower of this city, and when Lockhart died it was found that she had been cut off with the income from $300,000, while her sisters and brothers shared in an estate worth from $25,000,000 to $50,000,000.

Submarine Crew's Close Call

Portsmouth, Eng., Oct. 17.—Submarine boat No. 4 was engaged in diving practice off Spithead yesterday afternoon and was submerged, when water leaked through the exhaust pipe and caused an accumulation of gas. A slight explosion followed, damaging the machinery. The crew of 16, however, managed to raise the vessel, which came up stern first. A government gunboat nearby went to her assistance and saved all the crew. The submarine was towed in here for repairs.

GRIEVANCES AIRED

Gloucester Fishermen Appeal to State Department

ROOT TO DELAY ACTION

Wants Further Information Before Rendering Official Judgment as to Whether Newfoundland Has Violated Treaty

Washington, Oct. 17.—Through Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, the Gloucester fishermen have officially laid before the state department their grievances against the Newfoundland government, which they charge with forbidding all vessels of American register to fish on the treaty coast. This right, the fishermen claim, is granted them by the treaty of 1818 between the United States and Great Britain.

Through the British ambassador, Mr. Durand, Secretary Root has been informed that the Newfoundland government disclaims all knowledge of any action in violation of this treaty. Newfoundland admits the arrival at the Bay of Islands on board the cruiser Fiona of the minister for marine and fisheries, but insists he is there on duty not connected with the question.

Until Gardner has been able to obtain further details of the reputed action of Newfoundland against the fishermen and the reasons therefor, Root will not make further representations to the London government. Gardner has telegraphed to Gloucester to obtain additional information.

The Gloucester-Newfoundland fisheries question was revived last week by a telegram received by Secretary Root from Senator Lodge saying it was reported that the Newfoundland cruiser Fiona had arrived in the Bay of Islands on the treaty coast with the minister of marine and fisheries on board and that the minister had forbidden all vessels of American registry to fish on the treaty coast, where they were then located. A communication was immediately sent to the British ambassador, requesting any information he might have on the subject. The ambassador communicated with the Newfoundland government by wire and since then the secretary has received from the ambassador the contents of the latter's dispatch from the governor of Newfoundland, expressing ignorance of the report and adding that he would investigate its accuracy. These are all the facts in the possession of the department thus far.

Representative Gardner and B. A. Smith, a Boston shipowner, who accompanied him to Washington, had a long conference with Root. Information had reached them that certain American captains of shipping vessels now in the Bay of Islands had been forbidden by the minister of fisheries to ply their business there. The report assigned no reason for this alleged order. A speech made last spring, however, by Premier Bond of Newfoundland, in which he is quoted as advocating the exclusion of American fishermen from certain waters not specifically mentioned in the treaty of 1818, led to the suspicion that the alleged order might form the initiation of this policy.

The Gloucester fishermen contend that if this is the position of the Newfoundland government they are prepared to meet that issue by an array of facts which will prove the incorrectness of any such construction of the treaty. The rights threatened have been enjoyed by American fisher folk for 90 years. That reported interpretation of the treaty would prohibit them from fishing in the bays and harbors of the Newfoundland coast.

It has been suggested that the reported inhibition affected only ships of American register in the belief that they are not licensed to fish. If this is the case, attention will be called to the repeated rulings of the treasury department by which an American register is declared to be a ship's highest evidence of nationality and that it includes a fishing license.

While the question of right to search American vessels is not directly involved in the present controversy, it is the desire of the fishermen to obtain from Root a ruling upon the subject and it was submitted to him. The Newfoundland government, it is said, insists that it has a right to search American fishing vessels to ascertain whether citizens of Newfoundland are on board. The Gloucester men do not acknowledge this right, nor do they deny it, but desire the official judgment of the department upon the question.

Mr. Gardner declares that neither the bait question nor the three-mile limit is involved in the present phase of the controversy, but apparently only the construction of the treaty of 1818 to whether the rights enjoyed for 90 years by American citizens shall be continued. It is believed that there has been some misunderstanding which can easily be cleared up as soon as the facts can be obtained.

Thrifty Man's Will Broken

New York, Oct. 17.—The will of Alpheus D. Dubois was broken by the decision of a jury in the supreme court that its provisions were invalid. Dubois, who had been a public school principal for half a century, had, on a salary of $3000 a year, amassed a fortune of $500,000. His daughter, Mrs. I. B. McKee, contested the will, under which $10,000 was left to her and the bulk of the estate to the old man's sisters.

COAL TAR IN BUTTER

Found In Samples of Product Sold to League Island Yard

Washington, Oct. 17.—That samples of butter submitted as portions of a large quantity supplied to the League Island navy yard at Philadelphia prove to be colored with coal tar dye is the substance of a report which Chief Chemist Wiley of the department of agriculture will submit to Secretary Wilson.

Specimens were recently taken for analysis from the League Island yard hospitals, kitchens and barracks, from the United States receiving ship Lancaster and other navy craft by representatives of the Pennsylvania dairy and food commission. The samples already had been submitted to the state dairy and food commissioner of Pennsylvania, whose findings, which caused a widespread controversy, are corroborated by Dr. Wiley. Dr. Wiley declines to discuss his report pending its submission to the secretary. He says that coal tar dyes, though unwholesome, are not particularly harmful.

GOT HIS HAIR BACK.

Was Perfectly Bald When He Started to Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Frederick Manuell, Maryland block, Butte, Montana, bought a bottle of Newbro's Herpicide, April 6, '99, and began to use it for entire baldness. The hair follicles in his scalp were not dead and in 20 days he had hair all over his head. On July 2 he writes, "and today my hair is as thick and luxuriant as any one could wish." Newbro's Herpicide works on an old principle and with a new discovery—destroy the cause and you remove the effect. Herpicide destroys the germ that causes dandruff, falling hair, and finally baldness, so that with the cause gone the effect cannot remain. Stops falling hair at once and a new growth starts. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

TAKEN FROM RAFT

But Two Survivors of Wreck of Coasting Schooner

FIVE SEAMEN SUCCUMBED

Captain, Mate and Engineer Became Crazed and Plunged In[to Sea as a Relief to Sufferings --Rescued Men In Bad Shape

Boston, Oct. 17.—A north Atlantic shipwreck tale, in which eight seamen suffered so fearfully from exposure, hunger and thirst that five of them either died outright, were washed away, or, crazed by this fearful experience, hurled themselves into the sea, was brought out by the two survivors of the coasting schooner Van Name and King of New Haven, which was beaten to pieces by a gale off the South Carolina coast on Oct. 6.

The two men who lived through the five days and were rescued by schooner Stillman F. Kelly are William Thomas and William G. Warner, both about 29 years old, 6 feet 3 inches tall, and hail from Antigua, British West Indies.

The five, who one by one succumbed, were: Captain William A. Maxwell, Mate E. A. Chase, engineer and a steward, names unknown, and a colored seaman, Alfred Arthur.

The Van Name and King, which has been plying up and down the coast since 1886, left Charleston for New York on Oct. 3 with a cargo of hard pine. Two days later she ran into a heavy gale, and after wallowing about in the heavy seas for several hours, sprang aleak. The pumps were started, but within a short time the engine room was flooded and the pumps choked.

At 8 o'clock on Friday, with her hold nearly full of water, the schooner was hove down on her beam ends. The crew clambered up on the weather side and lashed themselves to the bulwarks. There they remained, soaked by every sea that broke mercilessly over them all day Friday, constantly on the watch for some passing vessel. That night the storm increased in fury and one great wave thundered aboard, breaking both legs of Seaman Arthur.

His companions could do nothing to ease his sufferings, but when, on Saturday, the schooner turned completely over, they managed to cut his lashing and drag him into a piece of the afterhouse. It was several hours before they were all huddled together on their little raft. That night Arthur died in the arms of Captain Maxwell, and to relieve the overloaded raft his body was dropped into the sea.

Sunday brought a ray of hope when a craft was sighted, but the gloom shut in again as she passed by without heeding the little group of armwaving seamen. That night, however, the weather subsided and a little rain fell which was eagerly caught in the tarpaulin and brought a slight relief. It was only temporary and not long after Mate Chase's mind gave way entirely and the raft was again lightened when he threw himself into the sea.

The next victim of the terrific strain was Captain Maxwell, who on Monday forenoon became violently insane and followed his mate's example of self-destruction as a relief to his sufferings.

The spectacle of two men voluntarily throwing themselves into the sea proved too much for the German engineer, and a few hours after Maxwell's death the raft was lightened for the fourth time, when the crazed man jumped into the waves.

The last victim was the colored steward, who expired on the raft late Monday night, and whose body was also dropped overboard by the two remaining seamen.

Relief came 12 hours later when the schooner Stillman F. Kelly, bound up the coast from Ceylon, Ga., to this port, sighted the little raft and hove to alongside. Both Thomas and Warner had to be taken off in slings, and for two days were unable to move.

The rescue took place off Cape Lookout. The Kelly arrived here yesterday afternoon, but the seamen were still too exhausted to land. They will come ashore in a day or two and will probably be sent home. Each of them lost 20 or 40 pounds in weight during their five days' exposure.

JAPAN FOR PEACE

Wants to Be Cordial and Intimate With Russia

MIKADO ISSUES RESCRIPT

Gives Credit For Victories to "Benign Spirits of Ancestors" and Expects Future Blessings From the Same Source

Tokio, Oct. 17.—The official translation of the imperial rescript announcing the conclusion of peace is as follows:

"We have always deemed it a fundamental principle of our international policy to maintain peace in the east and thus assure the security of our empire, and the promotion of this high object has therefore been our constant aim; but last year, for reasons dictated by the necessity of self-preservation, we, unfortunately, were forced into hostilities with Russia.

"Since the war began our army and navy have made adequate provision for home defense and military preparations within the empire itself and have withstood hardships of all kinds during the campaigns abroad, and thus have achieved a glorious success. Our civil officials have diligently performed their duties in furtherance of our will. All measures for the prosecution of the war and for the administration of domestic and foreign affairs have been properly taken, as the exigencies of the situation demanded. Our people have cheerfully borne the heavy burden of national expenditure and have generously contributed to the war fund, thus assisting in advancing the prestige and maintaining the dignity of the state.

"The result is due in a large measure to the benign spirits of our ancestors, as well as to devotion to duty of our civil and military officials and the self-denying patriotism of all our people.

"After 20 months of war, the position of the empire has been strengthened and the interests of the country advanced, and insomuch as we have never wavered in our desire for the maintenance of peace, it is contrary to our will that hostilities should be protracted and our people should unnecessarily be subjected to the horrors of war.

"When the President of the United States, in the interests of peace and humanity, suggested that the governments of Japan and Russia should arrange terms of peace, fully appreciating his kindness and good will, we accepted the suggestion and at the proper moment appointed plenipotentiaries to confer with those of Russia.

"The plenipotentiaries of the two countries having met and conferred frequently, the Russian plenipotentiaries have agreed to the proposals of our plenipotentiaries which were essential, having in view the objects of the war and the maintenance of peace in the east, thus manifesting the sincerity of their desire for peace. We have examined the terms agreed upon by the plenipotentiaries and, having found them in entire conformity with our will, we have accepted and ratified them.

"Peace and glory having thus been secured, we are happy to invoke the blessing of the benign spirits of our ancestors and to be able to bequeath the fruits of these great deeds to our posterity. It is our earnest desire to share the glory with out people and long enjoy the blessings of peace with all nations.

"Russia again is the friend of Japan and we sincerely desire that the relations of good neighborhood, now reestablished, shall become both cordial and intimate.

"In this age, when there is no delay in the world's progress, there should be no cessation of the effort to improve the administration of the nation's affairs, both internal and external. While military efficiency should be maintained in full vigor, even in time of peace, an earnest endeavor should be made to attain success in peaceful pursuits, so that in equal measure with its power the prosperity of the country may be maintained and its permanent progress insured.

"We strongly admonish our subjects against manifestations of vainglorious pride and command them to attend to lawful avocations and to do all that lies in their power to strengthen the empire."

A CHILD BURGLAR

Did Business at Lowell In a Rather Methodical Manner

Lowell, Mass., Oct. 17.—The confession of 12-year-old Alberta L. Vezina, arraigned in the police court for breaking, entering and larceny in the Greek colony, revealed one of the most extraordinary criminal cases in the history of the Lowell police department. It is the first time a child has been arrested for this serious offense.

The story of the little girl, told to the police, shows that there was method in the manner in which she carried on her pilferings. She said she was assisted by a 7-year-old girl. The Vezina girl told the officers that she and the other girl, finding the doors open at 83 Prince street, walked into a room and opened a trunk without any effort.

"What did you do with the money?" asked one of the officers. In reply to the question Alberta pulled a roll of bills amounting to $11 from her bosom, saying that that amount was all she took.

Then she took the officers into another room where she had hidden a knife and silk handkerchief, and into the cellar, where costly silks and lace curtains were found.

PRINCE SEEKS DIVORCE
Eloping Better Half Had Habit of Contracting Big Debts

Gotha, Oct. 17.—The suit brought by Prince Philip of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha for an absolute divorce from his wife, Princess Louise, and for an adjustment of their joint property interests, begun here before the ordinary court for the trial of divorce cases. Both the principals were absent, but the Austrian officer, Lieutenant Mattasich, with whom the princess eloped, was present. The lawyers agreed to an arrangement on the following basis: The prince to continue the payment to the princess of a yearly allowance of $18,000 and also to pay to her a lump sum of $30,000, provided she abandon all further claims against the prince and that after the divorce she adopt the name and title of Louise, Princess of Belgium.

After these terms were laid before the court the lawyers for the princess attacked the competence of the court to decide the case at all. The court then adjourned to Oct. 30.

The prince's bill of complaint, besides alleging the princess' misconduct with Mattasich, says that, although the princess received a yearly allowance, she had contracted debts which in 1895 amounted to $744,812, of which the prince had paid $218,000, and that in her wardrobe were found 75 pairs of silk shoes, 120 pairs of other shoes, 60 parasols and about 100 hats.

The Order of Eastern Star, will give a supper and social whist, at their hall, Greenleaf Block, Wednesday evening, Oct. 18th. Supper from 6 to 7.30 o'clock. All are invited.

Conductor Johnson
Comes to The Front In Contest. Other Gains

Again today there is a change of leader in the men's list in the Scholarship contest. None of the first four occupy the same positions. Conductor Johnson has rung in more fares than Drug Clerk Mahoney, while Engineer Johnson has throttled Clerk Cash. It now takes three figures to give the total of Theodore Hermanson and there are other gains down the list.

Miss Peterson has increased her lead in the ladies' list and is nearing the 1,000 mark. It is most time to hear again from Miss Pitts and Miss Rogers. The gains today are mostly among those who were near the bottom of the list.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who donot care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Auxiliary to The Y. M. C. A.

The October meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary was held Monday afternoon at three o'clock, in the association building. There were over sixty ladies present.

Mrs. J. D. Buckingham led the song service and Mrs. A. A. Ellsworth had charge of the devotional exercises.

Mr. Noon the director of the boys' work, gave a very clear and enthusiastic discription of what the boys of the association are doing in their several departments, after which Mrs. Elizabeth H. Alden, in her usual pleasing manner, read an exceedingly interesting paper on the "Origin and work of other similar organizations."

Diphtheria At Coddington

Diphtheria seems to be getting quite prevalent. There have been a number of cases reported to the Board of Health during the past month and some deaths, one child dying last night. Many of the present cases are among children of the Coddington school, there are at least five cases from that school at the present time.

The first case was that of a child who had been living at Brewers corner, and it is said that the present cases at the school are among children who occupied seats near her.

Naturalization Papers Taken Out

A special session of the district court for naturalization was held Monday evening by Judge Avery. The session was a busy one. Final papers were granted to 45, who were made citizens. Aside from this, 50 primary papers were filed.

TODAY'S COURT.

Ernest Gill and Frederick J. Henderson were fined $3 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

SPECIAL PRICES.

Until Jan. 1st, 1906, the experiment will be tried of giving a special discount of Five Dollars ($5) when Music Hall is let for an afternoon, an evening, or until 2 A. M., and a special discount of Ten Dollars ($10) if let until 4 A. M.

The Location is the best of any hall in the city. The street cars pass the door with a turnout right in front of the Hall.

The Floor is of selected maple laid with the greatest care, and is kept in perfect condition, being covered with canvas when not used for dancing.

The Ventilation—a most important consideration—is such as to keep the air pure with even a crowded hall and without causing any drafts.

The Hall is Lighted by electricity, brilliantly and pleasantly, and with a swtichboard arranged so that all desired effects can be obtained in the Hall proper or on the stage. Gas is used as an auxiliary light.

The Heating is direct—indirect, ample, and giving the most healthful results.

The Stage has been designed with care, and is furnished with a generous supply of attractive and appropriate scenery.

For Advertising, the Music Hall Billboards throughout the City are of very great value.

To Darken the Hall, there are special window fittings so that at noonday the Hall can be made as dark as at midnight.

In case of fire there are pails of water and chemical fire extinguishers throughout the Hall. There is an asbestos fire curtain by which the Stage can be instantly cut off from the Hall proper. There are nine (9) doors opening from the Hall and five (5) separate exits.

As a whole, Quincy Music Hall has been carefully planned to meet the requirements of those who wish a large and really first class Hall.

Making Life Sunny

Isn't a bit hard when you try.

THINGS aren't always rosy on the outside, sometimes a bit discouraging on the inside. Beneath all however, a home is just what you create it.

YOU should make it comfortable and attractive. Own the restful furniture, a soft luxurious couch, a comfortable easy chair and other things to correspond.

MONEY can't buy more complete comfort in furniture than what w offer here. But it don't require much money to have these comforts if you wish, for you can open an account at once. A little each week, that's all, buys anything and everything to make your home attractive and life more sunny.

(NOTE.) Our business has doubled in less than a year, can you guess why?

Quincy Roxbury

Royal Struggle In Which Neither Team Could Score

Quincy High met the strong Roxbury High team Tuesday afternoon and completely out played them in all points of the game. From the kick off it was evident that Quincy was the superior team and that if they worked together would surely win. They stopped Roxbury's fierce rushes in a manner that would do credit to a college team, many times smothering plays before they were started. Especially was this true of the Quincy tackles, Capt. Moody and "Rusty" Comins, who played marvelous football. The ends and half backs also gave good support and were on the spot when needed. The weak spot was left guard and Quincy High must find some man to fill it acceptably. Center and right guard were invulnerable.

On the offensive the Quincy backs worked like machinery pulling and hauling the runner for gains. Here the ability of "Kite" Sanders came out in the straight kicks and end running. Arthur, formerly of Mechanic Arts School gave great promise of becoming a crackerjack by the form he showed in bucking the line. Again Moody and "Rusty" showed up as stars in the art of advancing the ball, always making first down in their rushes.

In kicking, Fallon showed that he is one of the best punters Quincy High ever had, and she has had not a few. Lastly, the snap, vim and speed that young "Bill" Nichols managed the team was wonderful. He used great generalship in sending off his plays and helped the runner superbly.

In short Quincy High has now the best and most evenly balanced team that it has had.

Rough play characterized the work of Roxbury High. They expected a soft snap with Quincy after defeating Dorchester High and intended to play substitutes at the start, but found the situation desperate. Their rooters had a large repertoire of songs, to which should be added "Quincy you are a surprise."

The line up:

Our First Battleship

Rhode Island Also First In Her Class Of Five Vessels

The battleship Rhode Island is scheduled to leave the dock at the shipyard on Thursday, October 26, for her preliminary trial. The crew will be largely made up of workmen from the yard and will number about 375 men.

The vessel will first go to Provincetown and have her standardizing trials, and then will be taken to the Boston dry dock so that the vessel's bottom can be painted, after which the trial run will be made, very likely, over the Rockland, Maine, course.

It may be of interest to New Englanders to know that this ship is the first battleship built in New England to be taken out for trial, also that this ship is the first one of her class, consisting of five vessels, to have her trial.

Ten Financiers Indicted by the Grand Jury at Denver

Denver, Oct. 18.—Leonard Imboden, J. A. Hill, C. B. Wilfley, E. E. Hull, H. L. Hull, C. C. Roberts, W. T. Camp, D. M. Carey, A. B. Davis and J. H. Edmonson have been indicted by the grand jury on the charge of conspiring to steal $1,712,587 from the Denver savings bank.

Wilfley and Edmondson were formerly presidents of the Denver savings bank and Hill was president of the same bank when a receiver was appointed on Aug. 19. H. L. Hull is president of the Mt. Vernon National bank of Boston. Roberts and Carey are officers of the Cherokee state bank of Enid, O. T., Camp and Davis are officers of the Texas State Trust company of Fort Worth, while Imboden and E. E. Hull are promoters.

In addition to the general conspiracy indictment, seven indictments were found against Edmondson on charges of larceny, embezzlement and converting the funds of the depositors to his own use. He is charged specifically with the robbery of $105,000. Warrants were immediately issued for the arrest of the indicted men.

Something About Hull

Boston, Oct. 18.—H. L. Hull, one of those indicted on a charge of conspiring to steal from the Denver savings bank, succeeded Thomas N. Hart as president of the Mount Vernon National bank of this city less than a year ago. The Mount Vernon bank went into liquidation last month, the Boylston National bank taking over its business. Hull has no residence in this city. He is a western man.

Exciting Episode on Street Car

New York, Oct. 18.—Passengers in a crowded Broadway car were thrown into a panic last night when a detective suddenly entered and, after ordering the motorman and conductor to lock both doors, summoned three men whom he suspected of being pickpockets to surrender. The three suspects defied the detective, who drew his revolver and, keeping the men covered, opened the front door and blew his alarm whistle, at the same time ordering the motorman not to stop. Women screamed and fought to escape and men dodged behind each other to escape a threatened fusillade. After the car had run several blocks two policemen boarded it and the supposed pickpockets were arrested without further trouble.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Fortifications For Panama Canal

Washington, Oct. 18.—Fortification of the terminals of the Panama canal is one of the subjects to be considered by Secretary Taft when he makes his visit to the isthmus. Fortification of the canal was forbidden by the first Hay-Pauncefote treaty, but this treaty was amended so much by the senate that Great Britain rejected it. The canal treaty which is now in force allows the United States to use such military force as may be necessary to police and protect the canal. As nothing is said regarding fortifications, this government assumes the right to erect such fortifications as will adequately protect the canal.

France Gets After Venezuela

Washington, Oct. 18.—In sending warships to the West Indies, France is acting with the full approval of the Washington government. Before this action was decided upon Ambassador Jusserand informed Secretary Root of his government's course of action, which Root heartily approved. It is made clear that the Washington and Paris governments have arrived at a thorough understanding regarding Venezuela.

Left Nagasaki Unexpectedly

San Francisco, Oct. 18.—Transport Sherman has arrived from Manila with a large number of cabin passengers, 247 enlisted and 20 military prisoners. About 20 soldiers and several passengers, who went ashore at Nagasaki, were left behind, as the vessel sailed sooner than was anticipated.

Burton Indictment Faulty

St. Louis, Oct. 18.—Judge Vandeventer, in the court of appeals, has sustained the demurrer to the indictment of Senator Burton of Kansas on the ground that the indictment is faulty. He has ordered that another indictment be returned at once.

Bandits Release British Officers

London, Oct. 18.—The correspondent of The Daily Mail at Madrid says that, fearing an attack by a British torpedo boat, the bandits of the Anjera tribe released the two British officers, Captain Crowther and Lieutenant Hatton, who have arrived at Ceuta.

Cholera Spread by Flies

Paris, Oct. 18.—Professor Chantemisse, head of the Pasteur institute, lecturing at the Academy of Medicine, said that flies were the greatest disseminators of cholera and that his experiments had proved this fact.

FISHERY RIGHTS

Contention of Gloucester Vessels Is Sustained

NATIONALITY OF CREWS

Does Not Enter Into Question on Treaty Coast of Newfoundland, Provided Owner, Master and Mate Are Americans

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 18.—The feeling over the Newfoundland herring fisheries, which has been quite intense since the arrival last week of the cruiser Fiona at the Bay of Islands, was much relieved last night by a telegram from Benjamin A. Smith, who, with Congressman Gardner, has been in Washington for two days conferring with the state department, stating that American registered vessels have the right to fish on the treaty coast of Newfoundland, provided the owner, master and mate are Americans.

The herring fishing fleet, the greater part of which has been held in the harbor pending the settlement of what was believed to be a very delicate question, will leave at once for the west coast of Newfoundland, principally for the Bay of Islands and Bonne bay, where, it is understood, the fish have already appeared.

The following telegram was received from Washington by President Cunningham of the Gloucester Board of Trade:

"Vessels of American register have the right to fish at any point, bay, harbor or inlet on the treaty coast of Newfoundland, with or without entering at local Newfoundland custom houses, for any kind of fish in any method they think best, provided owner and master and mate are Americans, irrespective of nationality of crews or of locality where crews are shipped, except Newfoundland crews shipped in Newfoundland territorial waters within the three-mile limit.

"If Newfoundland has local laws, which I do not think is the case, forbidding her citizens to ship in foreign ports or on the high seas for purpose of fishing in her own waters, your rights may not be so clear as far as Newfoundlanders shipped at Sydney are concerned."

This telegram was sent by Smith after consultation with Gardner and with his full approval.

The Gloucester fishing interests have great confidence in Smith and the telegram is regarded as a semi-official statement from the department of state to the effect that it will stand behind the position which local fishermen have entertained regarding the fishing treaty of 1818.

The advice of Smith is therefore regarded as safe and conservative, and it is believed here that the difficulty over the fall fishing, which last week seemed particularly threatening, has been satisfactorily adjusted.

Conflicting Statements

Washington, Oct. 18.—Representative Gardner of Massachusetts had another conference with Secretary Root yesterday afternoon regarding the Gloucester-Newfoundland fisheries controversy. A telegram was received from the captain of the U. S. S. Grampus, the fish commission's boat now in Newfoundland waters, stating that vessels of American register are not permitted to catch herring. Through British Ambassador Durand the secretary was informed that the governor of Newfoundland denied that American fishing vessels were forbidden to catch herring.

Promotion For Faithful Official

Washington, Oct. 18.—Colonel W. N. Michael, who has been chief clerk of the state department since the late John Sherman was secretary of state, is to be succeeded by Charles Denby, a son of the one time United States minister to China. Michael is to be transferred to an important post in the consular service which will pay him a much larger salary than that he is now receiving.

A PROFIT-SHARING PLAN

Wages to Be Also Increased Five Percent at Fall River

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 18.—The plan of Governor Douglas to settle the Fall River mill controversy bore fruit when the manufacturers made their reply to the demands of the operatives for a restoration of the former wage scale, by establishing an increase of 5 percent and a profit-sharing scheme, whereby the operatives will receive a percentage of the profits of the mill.

By the offer of the manufacturers they bind themselves to immediately increase the operatives' pay 5 percent. Whenever the margin between the cost of raw cotton and the value of the finished product exceeds 75 cents they agree to give the operatives a dividend.

This dividend is 1 percent for every cent the margin shall exceed 75 cents until the margin reaches 85 cents, and ½ percent for every cent in excess of 85 cents. This means practically an increase of about 13 percent at the present time.

In July, 1904, a reduction of 12½ percent in wages was made and a nine months' strike followed. The proposal of the manufacturers not only restores the old scale of wages, as requested, but it makes a slight advance.

In addition to the 25,000 employes immediately affected, it is believed that the plan ultimately will be adopted by every mill centre in New England, as Fall River's influence in the textile world is paramount.

Feared a Conflagration

Oldtown, Me., Oct. 18.—Half a dozen wooden buildings and a large quantity of lumber stock were burned last night, entailing a loss of $35,000. When the out of town apparatus arrived, however, the fire was under control. The fire started in a lumber pile.

IS FAR-REACHING

New Civil Service Rules Authorized by President

THE POWER OF REMOVAL

It Becomes Absolute In Case of Cabinet Officers When They Personally Know of Inefficiency or Misconduct of Employes

Washington, Oct. 18.—An amendment to the civil service rules has been authorized by President Roosevelt. Hereafter a cabinet officer will have the power to remove summarily and without hearing any civil service employe in his department who, to the personal knowledge of the head of the department, had been guilty of misconduct or who is inefficient in the performance of his duties. By the terms of the amendment the cabinet officer must have personal knowledge of the misconduct or inefficiency of the employe whom he proposes to discharge. With this personal knowledge, the power of the head of the department is absolute.

The amendment authorized by the president is one of the most important and far-reaching made to the civil service rules in many years. It confers upon cabinet officers practically unlimited power as to the personnel of their departments. The amendment is made to rule XII, section 2, which provides that the appointing officer in the executive civil service shall report in detail to the civil service commission all changes in their departments as soon as made, and the reasons for making them.

Heretofore in every case of the removal of a civil service employe charges had to be filed against the person whom it was proposed to remove and the employe was given time in which to meet the charges with such defense as he might have to make.

Under the authorized amendment, such a proceeding will not be necessary. A head of a department may discharge an employe for misconduct or inefficiency, with the simple statement to the civil service commission that the misconduct or inefficiency is a subject of his personal observation. The discharged employe will have no recourse.

It is said that the amendment was made at the instance of members of the cabinet who hold that, under the present construction of the civil service rules, they often are unable to deal properly with cases of misconduct and inefficiency of which they are personally cognizant. Assurance is given that the amendment was not made to apply to any particular case now pending. Its purpose as stated is to improve the discipline of the departmental forces.

President Roosevelt issued the following executive order embodying the terms of the new regulation: "When the president or head of an executive department is satisfied that an officer or employe in the classified service is inefficient or incapable and that the public service would be materially improved by his removal, such removal will be made without hearing; but the cause of removal shall be stated in writing and filed. When misconduct is committed in the view and presence of the president or head of executive department removal may be made by summarily and without notice."

While members of the cabinet frequently have discussed such an amendment to the civil service rules as is now authorized the subject was brought directly to the attention of President Roosevelt recently by the misconduct of a chauffeur of one of the government automobiles. The driver of the automobile piloted his machine directly in the way of the president's carriage and seemed to take delight in cutting him out of the road.

When the president learned who the chauffeur was he said he ought to be discharged as incapable of operating the machine. The subject was pressed by members of the cabinet and the decision was reached to make the amendment to the civil service rules in order that misconduct of a government employe might be made the subject for immediate dismissal.

The civil service order was the most important subject considered at yesterday's meeting of the cabinet. Secretary Root brought to the attention of the president and his fellow cabinet members the protest of the American fishermen against the action of the authorities of Newfoundland as to bait, but no decision was reached.

As the president left on his trip through the south today, no cabinet meetings will be held for two weeks.

HELD UP IN WOODS

Rural Letter Carrier Received a Bullet in His Head

Keene, N. H., Oct. 18.—Rev. G. W. Ruland, a retired clergyman, who carries the mail over one of the rural free delivery routes in this vicinity, was shot and wounded last evening by a highwayman. Ruland managed to escape before the robber secured any money or mail matter.

Ruland says that as he was driving through the woods on the Walpole road a man suddenly appeared from behind a clump of bushes, levelled a revolver at him and demanded his money. Ruland told the robber that he was interfering with the United States mail, and at the same moment whipped his horse and started on a rapid drive down the road. The robber then fired at Ruland, the bullet taking effect in the head, just over the right eye.

Ruland continued about 15 miles further on his route, but telephoned to the police of this city, informing them of the attempted holdup. When Ruland returned here last night physicians removed the bullet, which had made its way under the skin to a point behind the left ear, but which had not broken the bones of the skull. The local police believe that they have a clue to the identity of Ruland's assailant.

Railroad Responsible For Death

Springfield, Ills., Oct. 18.—Failure to have electric headlights on trains was described as negligence on the part of a railroad by a coroner's jury, after holding an inquest over the body of Mrs. John Musch, who was killed in a railroad wreck. A passenger train ran into some coal cars that projected over the main track from a siding. The jury held the railroad guilty of negligence, as the engineer failed to see the danger for want of a proper headlight.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The president has ordered the admission of Pang Hong, a 25-year-old American-born Chinaman, who has been detained at Portal, N. D., for the past month. Pang went to China a year ago to visit relatives and, notwithstanding he carried a passport, his admission was refused by the treasury officials.

Cars Went Down Embankment

Cheyenne, Wyo., Oct. 18.—Thirty-four persons were injured, three probably fatally, in an accident to a passenger train near Horse Creek. The train was rounding a curve when two cars left the rails and rolled down a 20-foot embankment. The locomotive and baggage car passed over a weak spot in the track in safety.

"Puffs" For the Mutual Life Supplied to Newspapers

M'CURDY RECALCITRANT

Refuses to Discuss Reason For Reducing Dividends on Policies as Business Increased and Assets Piled Up

New York, Oct. 18.—Testimony in the life insurance investigation, which was resumed yesterday, was most exciting throughout, and only the repeated threats of Chairman Armstrong to clear the room prevented violent demonstrations of disapprobation of Richard A. McCurdy, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, who was on the witness stand practically all day.

In McCurdy's testimony a feature entirely new was disclosed, and this was that the Mutual Life Insurance company employed a literary bureau to send out to the press of the country news matter that was of benefit to the company.

This information was elicited during the probing of the "legal expenses" account. It came out when a voucher for the payment of $2500 to Joseph Howard, Jr., in 1904 was produced. Another voucher for the same amount paid in May, 1905, was marked "repayable on demand" and "for professional services." McCurdy had vised the vouchers and explained that Howard was a newspaper correspondent and that his professional services consisted in syndicating news stories. Pressed further, McCurdy said: "Mr. Howard was a correspondent for the Boston Globe and several other papers." McCurdy further said that he paid Howard about $2500 a year for these services and that the voucher for May, 1905, was "really a loan or an advance."

An attempt was made to obtain from McCurdy the reason for reducing the dividends on policies as the business increased and the assets piled up. The examples cited were principally on the policies of the 10-payment life plan. One in particular for $3000, which in 1876 drew a dividend of $55.76, had been gradually cut, until in 1904 it received but $3.

To all the questions on this matter the witness said he was not fortified with the information required; that these were actuarial matters, and when pressed for his opinion replied that he refused to discuss the question or to enter into any discussion. He would proffer a witness, his actuary, whose business it was to know these things, but as for himself he "would not discuss the question."

During the efforts made to induce him to answer the questions as to the reduction of dividends McCurdy launched forth into a protest as to the manner in which the investigation was being conducted. He was asked by Senator Armstrong how he would conduct the investigation and told that if he had any better method the committee would be glad to know of it.

Again taking up the question of the reduction of dividends, Hughes read a long list of policy numbers with the amounts of the face of the policy, the premiums paid in and the dividends received by the policyholders. The only explanation for a specific instance of a reduction of dividends McCurdy gave was that he supposed the policyholders had a reduced rate policy.

The legal expenses were recurred to and a number of vouchers for the payment of various sums were read. It was brought out that William Barnes, Sr., of Albany had appeared before the committees in Albany last winter and had received $1000 from the New York Life Insurance company as well as the same amount from the Mutual Life Insurance company. Later it appeared from a letter to McCurdy, written by William Barnes, Jr., that Barnes, Sr., was under an annual retainer to the Mutual Life Insurance company.

A voucher in 1902 for $10,000, payable to T. H. Bowles, was explained by McCurdy as part payment in settlement of a suit Bowles, formerly the general agent in Milwaukee, had brought against the company. It was testified to earlier in this month that Bowles had been dismissed by the company for insubordination. McCurdy said yesterday that the insubordination consisted in "throwing mud" and trying to injure the company. Bowles agitated a policyholders' crusade against the company and McCurdy said the suit was settled to end the agitation, adding that the agitation went with Bowles.

The entire testimony of the day was a continual thrust and parry between counsel and the witness, and when adjournment was taken for the day Hughes had not finished with McCurdy. The latter will be recalled and questioned along the lines of the trust companies and subsidiary organization of the Mutual Life, and also as to what moneys were made out the trust companies.

Public Scales Nearly Ready

Commissioner Burke expects to have the public scales on Granite street ready for use in a few days. The delay has been on account of the beam. The beam sent with the scales was rejected by the Commissioner, as it was not what was ordered. It was therefore sent back and the non-arrival of the new beam has prevented the scales being completed.

The new scales are located on Granite street near the freight depot of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. and will be much in demand not only by stone teams which come by way of Granite street, but by citizens sending and receiving freight by the railroad.

Y. M. C. A. Evening School.

Three of the Y. M. C. A. evening classes have commenced, mechanical drawing, monumental and freehand drawing, naval architecture, with a total enrollment of 43. Two more classes begin tonight and one Monday, which will bring the enrollment to about 75.

This is greatly in excess of last year for the first session of classes. The classes will probably steadily increase during the next four weeks. Visitors are invited.

Some of the rooms at the Coddington school will be fumigated tonight by the Board of Health.

Window Blinds.

Outer blinds for windows were unknown until the fourteenth century. The Venetian or interior blinds are so called because they were first used in Venice.

When Gas Was Strange.

When gas lamps were first placed on the London streets people came from long distances to see them. Many marveled at the brightness of the light and could not be made to understand how the lamp could burn without any visible means of supplying it with oil.

Vinegar.

Vinegar is mentioned in the Egyptian records as a medicine in the tenth century B. C.

"Footman" and "Groom."

The extra man servant who is stationed on a carriage beside the coachman is often called by his employer a footman. This, according to the Anglican standard, to which we bow our submissive heads, is a misnomer. He is the groom.

The Angelica Plant.

The angelica plant is native to Europe. It grows wild in most of the northern parts of that continent, being also found in the Alps, the Carpathian and the Ural mountains.

The Barbados.

The Barbados were named by an explorer with a smattering of Latin. The word signifies "bearded" and was suggested by the hanging moss on the trees, which bore a distinct resemblance to long hair and beard.

Altruism.

"Altruism" is derived from the Latin by a process similar to that used in the word egotism. Its meaning is exactly the opposite of the latter, however, for the altruist is supposed to prefer the welfare of his neighbor to his own. The word was first employed in its present sense by Comte, the French philosopher.

The Tennessee River.

The Tennessee river was named by the Indians Taensas, "river of the great bend," an allusion to the wide sweep made by its currents. The word is also interpreted "a crooked spoon."

Conspicuous by Its Absence.

"Conspicuous by its absence" is an expression used by Lord John Russell in a speech made by him on April 6, 1859. The expression is, however, as old as Tacitus, having been employed by that historian in exactly the same way as by Lord John Russell, who, being a thoroughly classical scholar, no doubt translated it and adapted it to his own use.

October Weddings

Quincy Bride And Newton Groom Quincy Groom And Melrose Bride

At the home of the bride on Presidents hill Wednesday evening, was united in marriage Miss Annie Jerusha Eaton, daughter of Mrs. William N. Eaton, and Edgar Schuyler Barker son of Mrs. M. E. Barker of Newtonville. The ceremony was solemnized at half past six by Rev. Ellery C. Butler of the First Unitarian church, only the immediate family being present.

Miss Grace Eaton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and she was dressed all in white. The bride's gown was of white satin, lace and chiffon and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The best man was Wentworth P. Barker of Newtonville, and the ushers: George Page of Chestnut Hill, Boyden Loring of Dorchester, Philip Schuyler of Newton, Fred Howe of Braintree and Nathan Keith of Dorchester. The bride was given in marriage by her mother.

Following the ceremony a reception was held from eight until ten o'clock which was largely attended by the friends of the young people. In the receiving party with the bride and groom were Mrs. Eaton, Mrs. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Doble and Mr. Wentworth P. Barker.

The house was prettily trimmed with potted plants, cut flowers and a bright array of autumn foliage.

A wedding supper was served and there was music by Odell's orchestra. The presents were beautiful, with quantities of silver and cut glass.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Barker are to reside at Newtonville where they will be at home on Tuesdays after December the first.

Milne---Allen Nuptials

On Wednesday evening, one of Quincy's popular young men journeyed to Melrose Highlands to wed a fair daughter of that town. The groom was James Milne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Milne of South Quincy, and the bride Florence Louise Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Allen of Melrose Highlands.

The ceremony was solemnized at the home of the bride at eight o'clock, by Rev. David M. Lockrow. Miss Alice E. Allen, sister of the bride was maid of honor, and the groom was attended by Albert C. Bruff of Quincy, as best man. Miss Margaret Milne, sister of the groom, played the wedding march from Lohengrin, and the bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride was charming in a gown of satin messalene over white taffeta and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was in a gown of pale violet silk and carried white chrysanthemums.

Autumn leaves and cut flowers made most beautiful decorations. A wedding supper was served and the presents were displayed, there being many choice pieces of silver, cut glass, pictures, etc.

Guests were present from Quincy, Boston, Melrose and vicinity, also the club of which the bride was a valued member.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Milne are to reside at 3 Bennington street, South Quincy, where they will receive their friends after January first.

Crowley Sullivan

Mr. James T. Crowley, one of Quincy's well known young men, was united in marriage Wednesday to Miss Mary Emma Sullivan of East Weymouth.

The marriage took place at the church of the Immaculate Conception, East Weymouth, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Fr. Lynch.

The bride was attended by Miss Gertrude Crowley, a sister of the groom, and Mr. Michael Sullivan, brother of the bride, was best man.

The bride wore a plum travelling-suit, and hat to match. The bridesmaid's gown was of mode nun's veiling, trimmed with lace, and she wore a white beaver hat.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride 38 Washington street from 5 to 9 o'clock and was attended by immediate friends.

The gift of the groom to the bridesmaid was a necklace of gold beads, and his gift to the best man was a pearl scarf pin.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowley left on a late train for Central Valley, N. Y., where they will pass their honeymoon. They will be at home to friends at 4 Murdock street, Quincy Point, after November 19.

The gifts to the bridal couple were numerous and beautiful.

Quincy Man With Big Circus

Lawrence P. Bowden of 45 Phipps street, who is travelling with the F. A. Robbins circus, writes that he is now taking care of the elephant, and working the lion in the big show. The animal jumps through a hoop and over a bar and walks on his hind legs. One month ago, he says, the lion got into a fight with his mate, the female, and after a battle of 45 minutes killed her. After that he was very bad. When Bowden went into the cage he would snarl and growl. It was very difficult to work him. Last Friday night in Pocomoke City, Ind., Bowden entered the cage, taking with him his hot irons as usual, When the lion made a spring at him he fought him off with the irons, but the irons getting cold, and no let up from the lion, he called on the head trainer to shoot him, and he shot him dead. The skin was sent to Mr. Robbins' home. The season closes in Dover, Del., Thursday, Oct. 19, and Bowden will soon visit Quincy.

LeCroix May Withdraw Name

A largely attended meeting of the Democratic City Committee was held Wednesday evening at French's hall. James H. Elcock, the party's candidate for representative, was present and addressed the meeting. Candidate LeCroix was also present and made a few remarks. It is probable that Mr. LeCroix will withdraw his name today.

Gains are reported only in Quincy, Waltham, New Bedford and Marlboro. Among the cities to lose this year are Worcester, Cambridge, Somerville, Lowell, Lynn, Chelsea, Haverhill, Gloucester, Brockton, Beverly, Fitchburg and Newburyport.

Match Game Tonight.

This evening at the popular Granite street bowling alleys the Non Quit social club rolls the Iroquois social club in a match game. The two clubs being very popular among the local fans in this city, a goodly number of supporters will be seen on the side lines. Bowling has come to the front thus early in the season and as Prof. Ferris has put the finishing touches on the alleys, this winter promises some good bowling.

Gold Offered as Prize.

The Quincy Women's Christian Temperance Union, desirous of interesting the boys of our city in the cause of "no-license," and appreciating the valuable aid which they rendered a year ago, will hold a prize-speaking contest in Faxon hall, Monday evening, December 4. The Union offers a prize of ten dollars in gold to the best speaker on that occasion.

Eastern Star Social.

There was a large attendance Wednesday evening at the supper and social of the Eastern Star at Greenleaf hall. Supper was served from 6 to 7.30, the menu consisting of cold meats, salads, etc. The balance of the evening was spent at whist. Ten tables were in play and souvenirs were given for the best scores.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The question arises, will the boulevard benefit Atlantic residents enough to compensate for the loss of the bathing beach and boat landing? After all isn't it a thoroughfare that will be used by out-of-town visitors and autoists more than by the townspeople.

It is pleasing to note that the collection for the City Hospital will be much larger than last year. If there is netted a few thousand dollars over the amount needed for current expenses, which can be applied to the payment of debt, the Hospital will be in a position to enlarge its accommodations, and become almost self supporting.

The withdrawal of County Commissioner Marshall P. Wright as a candidate for renomination, ensures the election of John F. Merrill of Quincy, the Republican candidate. Senator Merrill's long experience in business, in the halls of legislation, and acquaintance with Norfolk county, qualifies him for the position and his Quincy friends wish him a large majority and success in office.

The success of the battleship Rhode Island on her trial trips will be watched with interest by Quincy people. The requirements are great, and the Rhode Island is the first one of her class to be put to the test. As it is the first battleship built in New England the product of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company is something more than a local or State affair; all New England is interested, and it will be a proud day for "Little Rhoddy" when the big battleship sails the ocean.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ People need go back but a few years in this district to recall what it meant to get about from place to place, as compared with the methods of transportation today. Even the crowded cars, much as we rail against them and properly dislike them, are havens of rest compared to the old stage coach, which the sun beat down on in summer and made insufferably hot when there was a crowd on board, and which was deadly cold and uncomfortable amid the gales and snowstorms. Cramped and weary, the passenger emerged after an hour's ride feeling as though he had just walked ten long miles; and there was positive suffering for people who had to make long trips morning and evening to and from their work. To go five miles then was infinitely worse than to make a trip of four times that length now in the smooth trolleys, and took it almost as long in the former as in the latter case. In few ways have modern improvements and ways of making life easier been more notable than in the transportation service given the general public.—Brockton Enterprise.

Insurance Witness Confronted With a Voucher

AN ARREST MAY FOLLOW

Clerk For Mutual Life Testifies That Company Maintained a House at Albany and Charged Cost to "Legal Expenses"

New York, Oct. 19.—The district attorney's office has been called upon by the legislative insurance investigating committee because of the testimony of one witness, and the question of an arrest is now being considered. The witness in question is George J. Plunkitt, an 18-year-old telephone operator in the employ of the stationery firm of L. W. Lawrence & Co., from whom the Mutual Life Insurance company purchased a great deal of supplies.

It was brought out in Tuesday's testimony that among the vouchers for money charged to legal expenses was one for $901 signed by George F. Plunkitt. His identity was not disclosed until yesterday, when Plunkitt was called to the stand. He testified as to his employment, and when shown the voucher denied that he had ever signed it. He further denied that he had ever received that amount of money from the Mutual Life or that he had rendered the company any service.

Mr. Hughes asked Plunkitt to write his name in ink on a piece of paper, which he did. This and the voucher were then offered in evidence, and the similarity of the signatures was called to the attention of the committee. Shortly after this incident the district attorney's office was communicated with and soon Assistant District Attorney Rand appeared. All that Rand would say was that he had been summoned by Chairman Armstrong, and when the chairman was questioned he said the matter was now out of the hands of the committee and "was up to the district attorney's office."

Another feature of the day's hearing was the passage at arms between Chairman Armstrong, Counsel Hughes and James M. Beck, counsel for President R. A. McCurdy of the Mutual Life. Beck accused Hughes of misleading the public by not following out his lines of interrogation to the end.

Chairman Armstrong then said that the work of the committee must not be obstructed. The committee, he said, wanted all the information it could get that would be helpful, and the witness had placed himself in the position in which he found himself by his continual evasive answers. Armstrong said further that every witness will be treated with all possible courtesy. Hughes then said if he had erred it was by showing courtesies when circumstances justified an entirely different course, adding that evasion would be held up to the contempt it has always received. There was a spontaneous outburst of applause when Hughes had concluded, which was stopped only by a threat to clear the room.

W. M. Carpenter, a clerk in the supply department of the Mutual Life, made an excellent witness for the committee. Carpenter was under the direction of Superintendent Fields of this department and was very close to Fields in his "legislative supervision" at Albany. Carpenter told of how a house has been maintained in Albany for several years at the expense of the Mutual Life. Fields occupied it only during the legislative session and on several occasions two members of the insurance committee of the legislature lived at the house with Fields.

Mr. Carpenter leased the house and paid for the servants and supplies with money furnished him by the Mutual Life. He did not know whether these members of the insurance committee ever shared in the expense; he never received any money from them, but he said that they might have paid Fields. No account was kept of these expenditures, and the money was all received on vouchers calling for disbursements for legal expenses. A house has been maintained for a period of about 10 years in Albany under these conditions, but not always in the same street.

Later in the day, when McCurdy was recalled, the president said he did not know that the Mutual Life's funds had been maintaining this house, although he did know that Fields had rented a house to escape the risk of illness in hotels.

An attempt was made by Hughes to get trace of Thomas D. Jordan, former controller of the Equitable Life Assurance society. Frank D. Jordan was called under a subpoena, and he said he saw his father last on Labor day. He did not know then that he was going away, and did not know where he was now. Under persistent questioning by Hughes, young Jordan said no mail was forwarded to his father and that he did not know whether his father or his mother were living or dead.

Edgar W. Rogers, a clerk for L. W. Lawrence & Co., was called. A voucher drawn in December, 1902, for $1,667.50, and signed by Rogers, was charged to legal services of the Mutual Life, but Rogers could not remember the circumstances of a transaction so far back. He ackpowledged that it bore his signature and that he must have received the money, but for what it was disbursed he could not remember.

PROFIT SHARING PLAN

Officers of Textile Unions Not Enthusiastic Over It

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 19.—The cotton mill operatives in Fall River as a whole have not reached a final decision as to which plan they prefer—that of the Manufacturers' association or the one followed by M. C. D. Borden, owner of the Fall River Iron Works mill, who yesterday announced that wages would be restored on Monday next to a level of those which prevailed on Jan. 23, when a cut-down of 12½ percent was made to meet a similar reduction in other mills in 1904.

The association on Tuesday announced a direct advance of 5 percent, with a profit-sharing plan based on the margin of profit, which at this time would bring the total advance to 13 percent.

The officers of the Textile unions are in New York attending the annual convention of the United Textile Workers of America and there is no one here authorized to speak for the unions. Dispatches from New York indicate that officers of the textile workers are not enthusiastic over the announcement of the profit-sharing plan, but so far as can be learned it will go into effect next week, although a request will probably be made by the Textile council for a conference with the manufacturers.

Awarded $2 In $60,000 Suit

Dedham, Mass., Oct. 19.—The Norfolk superior court last night disposed of the proceedings instituted by O. H. Lufkin against two physicians and a nurse from whom he sought to recover $60,000 for alleged wrongs. The jury awarded Lufkin the sum of $2. It was alleged that the physicians had Lufkin arrested and examined as to his sanity. Expert alienists, however, pronounced Lufkin sane, and he took the case into court.

Martin Recovers From Assault

Boston, Oct. 19.—George Martin, who has been in a hospital here nearly four weeks as the result of an alleged assault upon him by Eben S. Plympton, the actor, was discharged from the hospital yesterday afternoon and at once went to the home of Plympton. Plympton, who was arrested for the alleged assault, is out on bail awaiting trial. The two men were close friends.

Killed In Peculiar Manner

Leicester, Mass., Oct. 19.—While looking for chestnuts with several friends Edward Moosette left a shotgun leaning against a fence. Miss Albina E. Bercume, aged 19, was near the gun when someone shook the fence and the weapon, falling to the ground, was discharged. The charge in the gun struck Miss Bercume behind the right ear and killed her instantly.

Johnson No Longer a Suspect

Augusta, Me., Oct. 19.—The tramp theory was eliminated from the Mattie Hackett murder case by the release of Joseph A. Johnson, who has been detained as a witness in the case. It was two months ago that Mattie Hackett met her death by strangulation at Kent's Hill, in Readfield, and the next day Johnson became an inmate of the Kennebec county jail.

Convicted of Murder

Providence, Oct. 19.—Angelo Caparco, an Italian, who was placed on trial on the charge of having murdered Francesco Agace, a fellow countryman, was found guilty and was sentenced to life imprisonment in state prison. Agace's murder occurred as he was about to leave this city because, it is alleged, of Caparco's attentions to Mrs. Agace.

Held For Killing Guide

Boston, Oct. 19.—Herman Popp of this city, arrested near Skowhegan, Me., on a charge of manslaughter for shooting a guide, left here last Friday with a party to go deer hunting in the Maine woods. Popp is 40 years of age and resided with his widowed mother. For a number of years he has been a member of the Boston Globe art department.

Boston's Heavy Registration

Boston, Oct. 19.—Registration for the state election closed in Boston last night with 112,237 names on the list. It was a surprise to the registrars to find it so large on an off year. More names will be added for the city election, making, it is expected, the largest registration ever made.

Worried Over Ill Health

Boston, Oct. 19.—Despondent because of continued ill-health, Sewall M. Rich of this city, a restaurant keeper, committed suicide last night at his home. Rich sent his wife to the theatre before committing the deed. He was 62 years old and reputed to be wealthy.

Life Sentence For Murder

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 19.—Samuel Capobianco was convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of Angelo Salomita. Capobianco lay in wait near the railroad station for Salomita, and when the latter came along opened fire on him.

Burglar's Body Identified

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 19.—The body of the burglar who was shot and almost instantly killed while in the act of robbing a store at Sheldon has been identified as that of a young man who represented himself to be Frank Mayo of Boston.

Quickly Convicted of Bigamy

Winsted, Conn., Oct. 19.—It took a jury in the superior court at Litchfield only 10 minutes to convict Charles F. Christian, bigamist, and Judge Roraback gave him an indeterminate sentence of from two to five years in state prison.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds.

AN APPRECIATION.

1818—1905. 1829—1905.

A few weeks ago there died in Quincy an aged couple, residents here for the past seventeen years, who deserve more than passing notice. They were excellent representatives of that type of industrious Scottish men and women, whose sons and daughters are to be found prospering in all parts of the civilized world.

Mrs. George Reynolds passed away August 22d, aged 76 years and 6 months; while her husband followed September 25th at the ripe old age of 88 years.

George Reynolds was born at Aberdeen, Scotland, in December 1818 and his wife, whose maiden name was Agnes McHardy, was born in Durris, Scotland, in January 1829. They were married at Durris March 28th, 1846, their married life thus extending over the long period of 59 years.

The issue of this marriage was a family of thirteen, seven daughters and six sons, of whom four daughters and four sons still survive. The descendants of these are 35 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were born and raised in Scotland, but emigrated to America in early manhood and womanhood and most of them are located in Quincy and vicinity.

Nine years ago a large assembly was held at their home in Glencoe place to celebrate the golden anniversary of their wedding and from appearances then, it was fully expected and hoped that the worthy couple would live to celebrate their diamond wedding, but this was not to be. For some time past, the health of Mr. Reynolds has been very frail and the end was not unexpected. The old lady, however, was bright and exceedingly smart until shortly before her death.

From early life Mrs. Reynolds was a sincere Christian and evidenced her belief by a long life of unselfish devotion as wife, mother and friend. She was one of those of whom it can truly be said that her children arise and call her blessed. The family circle mourn the loss of parents passed beyond, but they have the consolation of knowing that the aged pair upo whom the grave has so recently closed, had nobly and worthily run their earthly race and have now but passed to their reward, where—

"Death divided friends at last Shall meet to part no more."

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. "ROOSEVELT DAY"

All Richmond Turns Out to Honor President

PRAISE FOR THE SOUTH

Chief Executive Himself Has Strain of Confederate Blood--Honors Valor and Self Devotion of Men Who Wore Gray

Richmond, Oct. 19.—Roosevelt day in Richmond broke with lowering clouds, but by 10 o'clock the sun shone in a clear sky. Business was practically suspended at 11:30 o'clock and nearly the whole population was on the streets, gathered at the station or lining the sidewalks along the route announced for the procession. The decorations were profuse. At 12 o'clock the presidential train pulled into the Main street station, in which the reception committee had gathered. Governor Montague, Mayor McCarthy and Captain Curtis formally welcomed the president to Richmond. Then the president was escorted to the speaker's stand in Capitol square.

The line of march was through some of the principal streets to the western part of the city and return to the Capitol square. The speaker's stand was faced by one of the greatest multitudes ever assembled in Richmond. The president's set speech was in praise of the courage and self-sacrifice of the south. He made brief reference to foreign affairs and said our voice must be effective for peace, but it must not be the voice of the craven. He said justice should be dealt the rich and poor alike, and that class distinction would cause the republic's fall.

The luncheon in honor of the president begun a little after 3 o'clock. As the cigars were being passed, Mayor McCarthy proposed a toast to the president, which was drunk enthusiastically and Mr. Roosevelt rose to respond. He was greeted uproariously. The president said:

"One among the very many great Virginians at the time when this nation was born (and I quote Patrick Henry) said: 'We are no longer New Yorkers or New Englanders, Pennsylvanians or Virginians; we are Americans.' And surely the man would be but a poor American who was not touched and stirred to the depths by the reception that I have met with in this great historic city of America.

"Coming by the statue of Stonewall Jackson, in the city of Lee, I felt what a privilege it is that I, as an American, have in claiming that you yourselves have no more right of kinship in Lee and Jackson than I have. I can claim to be a middling good American, because my ancestry was half southern and half northern; I was born in the east and I have lived a good while in the west.

"There was an uncle of mine, now dead, my mother's brother, who has always seemed to me to come nearest to typifying in the flesh that most beautiful of all characters in fiction, Thackeray's Colonel Newcome—my uncle, James Dunwoody Bulloch, an admiral in the Confederate navy. In short, I claim to be neither northerner or southerner, easterner nor westerner, nothing but a good American, pure and simple.

"Next only to a man's having worn the blue comes the fact of the man's having worn the gray as entitling him to honor in my sight. I have the grandson of General Grant and the grandnephew of General Lee and the son of Phil Sheridan on my staff. I think it is a middling good staff, too.

"In my regiment, organized at the beginning of the Spanish-American war, I think that there were more men whose fathers wore the gray than there were men whose fathers wore the blue. The only rivalry that ever entered their heads was rivalry as to which man could show himself best entitled to the praise of having done all that in him lay for our country and our flag.

"Gentlemen, I cannot sufficiently express to you my deep appreciation of the way in which you have greeted me today. You cannot be nearly as glad to see me as I am to see you. Let me say once more, what I said in my more formal address. Think of the good fortune that is ours, as a people, in having, each of us, whether we in our own persons or through our ancestors, wore the blue or the gray, the proud right to challenge as our own all of the valor, all of the self-devotion, all of the steadfast adherence to the right as God gave to each man to see the right, shown alike by the men who wore the blue and by the men who wore the gray in the great contest that was waged from '61 to '65."

The presidential party left last night for Raleigh and the farther south.

Making Life Sunny

Isn't a bit hard when you try.

THINGS aren't always rosy on the outside, sometimes a bit discouraging on the inside. Beneath all however, a home is just what you create it.

YOU should make it comfortable and attractive. Own the restful furniture, a soft luxurious couch, a comfortable easy chair and other things to correspond.

MONEY can't buy more complete comfort in furniture than what w offer here. But it don't require much money to have these comforts if you wish, for you can open an account at once. A little each week, that's all, buys anything and everything to make your home attractive and life more sunny.

(NOTE.) Our business has doubled in less than a year, can you guess why?

PROBING PRINTING

The President Desirous of Further Investigation

PLAN TO SAVE $1,000,000

Rubbish Published on Expensive Paper and In Elaborate Bindings Often Winds Up In Clearance Sale of Waste Material

Washington, Oct. 19.—The Keep commission has again turned its attention to the government printing office and has devoted much time to hearing Acting Public Printer Ricketts' suggestion for saving from a million to a million and a half dollars by cutting off the printing of useless documents Ricketts already has communicated his plans to the president, who regarded them so highly that further investigation was requested.

It is a well known fact that the basements of the Capitol and other storage rooms are crowded with printed matter for which there is no room and which could not be distributed for any purpose. The document rooms of the departments are also full of such printed rubbish. They are published often on expensive paper and in elaborate bindings costing many hundreds of dollars and there they lie and rot, finding a place finally in a clearance sale of waste material.

Mr. Ricketts' idea is to cut out this expense by reducing the copies of such works to the actual needs for distribution. Because a document of a scientific or technical nature is printed, Ricketts argues, is no reason for making several thousand copies when the demand is sure not to be more than a few hundred.

Moreover, Ricketts is of the opinion that many of these volumes need not be printed at all. The fact that the United States maintains a large and expensive plant, he holds, is no excuse for printing a large edition of some book or pamphlet which from the nature of the case will not be read by half a hundred people.

In addition to the useless printing of the departments there is much work of this kind done for congress that could be omitted. It is customary in preparing the reports of the two houses and of the several committees to print the same matter as many as four times. Ricketts makes it plain that one or at the most two publications of the same report should be sufficient. Serious effort will also be made to reduce the useless bulk of the Congressional Record.

AN AMERICAN REGISTER

Decision That It Carries With It a License to Fish

Washington, Oct. 19.—After a conference between Secretary Root and British ambassador Durand it was announced that a speedy and satisfactory solution of the Gloucester-Newfoundland fisheries controversy was in sight.

The facts obtained show that the Newfoundland inspector of revenue protection service directed that American vessels should not be allowed to fish under American register, on the ground that they had never done so in the past. Prior to this time the American fishermen had bought bait in Newfoundland under fishing licenses. They are now prevented by law from buying bait and the authorities have been unwilling to permit them to catch herring without a special fishing license

Secretary Root informed Durand that an American register is a ship's highest form of nationality and carries with it not only a license to trade, but also a regular fishing license.

As soon as this fact is made clear to the Newfoundland authorities, it is expected that they will withdraw all objection. Meantime the American fishermen, with the approval of the state department, have been instructed to continue their fishing.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Opening Reception.

Many of the former pupils of Elmer W. Baker attended on Wednesday evening his opening reception at Quincy Music hall where his assemblies and classes will be held this year.

The first assembly will be held on Saturday evening of this week, and the beginners class will start next Wednesday evening.

—The Weeks-Hill pharmacy on Temple street is giving away a cake of Colgate's cashmere bouquet soap to each caller. This is a nice article.

—Representative Landis of Indiana who says that he is going to move for an investigation of the government printing office with a view to discontinuing some of the worthless publications, has a good field of work before him. Some of these publications could doubtless be spared with no bad effects on the post-office receipts, or the bill for printing.—Old Colony Memorial.

Miss Manning

In First Place In Contest With Over A 1000 Votes

To Miss Margaret Manning belongs the honor of being the first lady in the Scholarship contest to pass the 1,000 mark. She moves up today from third place to the top of the list, leading Miss Peterson by 78 votes. Miss Bates and Miss Mahoney make gains and the latter moves up to third place.

In the men's list, Conductor Johnson seems to strike a winning pace, as his vote grows daily. Others down the list however, make gains today.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchan has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

DOES IT PAY

From the Deep

[Original.]

My dear wife came to me literally from out the deep. One afternoon the mate called to me from the forecastle that he saw a boat on the starboard quarter. The events that followed in rapid succession are as fresh in my mind as on that eventful day, but never till now have I been completely happy, for not since then till now have I been free from dread.

I ordered the vessel put off a couple of points, and as we neared the boat I could see that it was an officer's boat, probably the captain's gig that had belonged to some ship. I could see something lying in the bottom, and as we got the boat under our bows it was plain that the something was a woman. She was brought aboard unconscious and carried below. I gave up my room to her and directed that she have every attention. The truth is that when I saw her lying on the deck oblivious to all about her there was something in her face that drew me strangely to her.

As soon as she was provided for I ordered her boat to be hauled on deck, and I examined it. It was an old boat, and it had been so battered that I could not read the name. There was nothing about it to identify it. At 9 o'clock that night the woman came to herself, but the stewardess said that she was too weak to be questioned. The next morning the newcomer had revived sufficiently to talk, but said that she could not remember a single event in her past life. I had known a similar case where a man had been shipwrecked and nearly starved. On recovering consciousness he had, like this woman, forgotten the past. I directed the stewardess to search the woman's clothing for some mark, and she found on an undergarment the letter Q. This was all there was in the way of possible identification.

In time the woman came on deck and sat wrapped in blankets, revived by the fresh air. For the want of a better name we called her Miss Queery. She was about twenty-two years old, but whether she had been married or not of course we couldn't tell. Not all of us considered her pretty, but to me there was something infinitely more engaging in her expression than mere beauty, an expression reflecting some great past grief. I took her into my heart, and she has kept her place there to this day.

We had picked up Miss Queery not far out of New York on a voyage to the Pacific and Japan. I insisted on her making the ship her home until we returned to America, for, in the first place, I loved her, and in the second common humanity forbade my leaving her in a foreign country to shift for herself. She had no other course but to accept my hospitality and completed the long voyage with us.

Our return was one persistent pleading that she would become my wife. She resolutely declined on the ground that she might have a husband. In vain I argued that the chances were that one of her age was not likely to have been married. She said she would not take that one chance. At the same time she gave every evidence that she loved me. Indeed, the fact that we must be separated by an uncertainty was as great a grievance to her as to me.

Before sailing on another voyage I discussed with her what course we should pursue. I proposed that we take action to discover her identity. Then if she had not been married our course would be plain. If it came out that she had a husband living, she could choose between us.

"Your past life is blotted out," I said, "and there is no law to prevent your marrying whom you like." To this she replied, "Suppose after marrying you it should come to my knowledge that I had a husband, would you consider it my duty to leave you?" "Certainly not," I replied. "If you knew today you had a husband living, a husband identified with that past obliterated life, and married me, I would not blame you."

This ended the argument, for she gave her consent, though the marriage was to be of the Scotch order, simply mutual pledges in presence of witnesses.

Three voyages my wife made with me, during which we were both supremely happy. At times I noticed a dread cross her brow and knew what she feared. But I laughed at her fears and assured her that on the high seas nothing could part us.

We were stopping at a hotel between our third and fourth voyages. One morning my wife took up a morning paper—she always scanned the papers when ashore—and, suddenly glancing at her, I saw her shiver with some intense emotion. As soon as she had collected herself she said:

"It has all come back to me." And, handing me the paper, she pointed to an item giving an account of the killing of Richard Quinlan, a seafaring man, in a drunken broil in a sailors' boarding house. "My husband!" she exclaimed. "He was drunk when he put me in the boat. I had lived a life of horror with him and was glad when he sent me out on to the ocean to die."

So it was that the name of the man she had once dreaded brought back all at once an existence that had been a blank for years. Her father and mother were living, and she at once started for the New England village where they lived. She found them well and returned, after a brief visit, in time to sail with me. MARTIN PEASLEY.

Something Doing

In the Boys Department of Quincy Y. M. C. A.

These are busy days in the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. Tomorrow comes another "hiking trip." This time the boys are going chestnut hunting, and as good a time as they had on the last hiking trip is expected. The party will leave the Y. M. C. A. building at 9.15 A. M. sharp, and will return about 5 P. M. Every boy in Quincy should take this in. Every fellow brings his own lunch.

In case of rain or dampness tomorrow the trip will be postponed one week, and should this be necessary, there will occur at 2 P. M. the first junior bowling tournament of the season. The boys who secure the highest scores will make up the Boys' Department bowling team.

Saturday, the 28th of the month will occur a "Mystery Breakfast." This is to be free to the boys who expect to go in the Bible classes. The breakfast will be served at 7.30, and will be served by the Woman's Auxiliary. Those planning to attend must turn in their names to Ralph Austin or Mr. Noon before Thursday night.

The membership of the Boys' Department is steadily increasing. The total membership is now 93, and indications point to 200 when the weather gets a little colder.

A Glimpse of Western Schools

Whatever may be said of the average educational conditions East and West, it must certainly be admitted that the West has many remarkable local leaders in educational progress, among whom Superintendent O. J. Kern is easily first. In a typical county, within fifty miles of Chicago, he has secured an educational equipment that is little short of [illegible]tionary, has created an educational public sentiment that is unprecedented and has attracted attention far and wide. He is, withal, one of the best educational speakers in the country.

Through no aspiration on his part, but in order that the teachers and public of New England may know at first hand the story of his achievement, he has been borrowed from the directors of Winnebago County for a two weeks' campaign hereabouts, and Providence, Haverhill, Quincy, Gardner, North Adams, Westfield, Melrose and other places will have the privilege of listening to the best representative of the men who do things in the West. He has hundreds of large photographs with which he illuminates his accounts of the educational transformation that is going on in the West. His work here began Oct. 16.

Superintendent Kern will speak at High school hall, Quincy, on Thursday evening of next week at 8 o'clock. The lecture will be free to all, and will be interesting to all whether engaged in educational work or not. The general public is cordially invited.

Surprise Party.

A surprise was party given Miss Gilbert Bouchard at her home on Water street. Thursday evening. The guests presented her with a beautiful gold locket and chain. Games were played, and refreshments were served.

The guests were: Lucy Moyle, Emily McDonald, Annie Nightingale, Mary McDonald, Nellie Nightingale, Esther McDonald, Edith Nord, Gertrude Small, Eleanor McDonald, Yvonne Bouchard, Emma Bouchard, Murry Kerr, Eben Kerr, Eddie Carson, Daniel Mullin, Leo Mullin, Emil Bouchard, Gordon McDonald, Fred Nord, George Reynolds, and John Souden.

Daniel Webster Reservation.

The commission of which ex-Governor John D. Long is chairman, to consider the expediency of the establishment of a reservation and museum on the so-called Daniel Webster estate in Marshfield, commemorative of Webster's public service, will give a hearing in the State House in Boston (Room 446), to all persons interested, on Thursday, November 2d, at half-past ten o'clock A. M.

Civil Service For Firemen

There has been more or less inquiry among the call men of the Fire Department as to the working of the new law requiring call men to take Civil Service examination. From what can be learned among those directly interested there does not seem to be a clear idea of the working of the law or rule.

This rule includes all regular or permanent men and also call men of the fire force of any city except Boston. The rule classifying the fire force went in force July 1, 1905. The effect of this rule is that all persons in the service of the fire force either as permanent or call men on that date have the protection of the civil service rules applying to removals and discharges.

Appointments to the permanent or call force, however, can not be made hereafter except from the civil service list except where otherwise provided by special statute.

Competitive examinations will be held in each city for the position of firemen, and an eligible list established of those passing the examination.

In case of a vacancy occurring after July 1, 1905, either in the permanent force or in the call force, requisition must be made upon the Civil Service Commissioners in accordance with the rules.

Applicants for the appointment to either the permanent or call force must be not less than 22 years of age nor over 35 years, at the time of making application, except that a call man, who shall apply for the permanent force, may deduct from his actual age any time, not exceeding ten years, during which he has continuously served as call man.

In other words, a man who is just under 45 years of age, and who has continuously served as a call man for the 10 years next preceding the date of filing his application, is entitled to apply for examination for the regular or permanent force.

Ward Three

Has More Voters Than Any Other Ward Of The City.

As already noted Quincy has 18 more voters than at the last election. The figures by precincts for three years are given below and show where the gains are being made:

	Nov. 1903.	Nov. 1904.	Nov. 1905.
Ward One, Pre. 1,	428	457	454
Ward One, Pre. 2,	477	508	518
Ward Two, Pre. 1,	297	303	291
Ward Two, Pre. 2,	389	420	432
Ward Three, Pre. 1,	509	541	544
Ward Three, Pre. 2,	410	435	438
Ward Four, Pre. 1,	423	440	445
Ward Four, Pre. 2,	489	481	472
Ward Five,	840	889	897
Ward Six, Pre. 1,	341	354	375
Ward Six, Pre. 2,	294	306	304
	4,897	5,134	5,152

Seven of the eleven precincts made gains, but only four of the wards, viz: Wards One, Three, Five and Six. Ward Two continues with the same number, while Ward Four lost four.

Ward Three is now the largest ward with Ward One a good second, and Wards Four and Five not far behind. Ward Six continues the smallest but is gaining on the others. The number of voters by wards is: Ward One, 972; Ward Two, 723; Ward Three, 982; Ward Four, 917; Ward Five, 897; Ward Six, 679.

Engine House Destroyed by Fire

The alarm from Box 45 at 10.52 Thursday night called the department to a lively blaze in the boiler and engine house of J. S. Swingle at West Quincy. The building is situated on the high hill back of the West Quincy depot and made a fine illumination. The road leading to the quarry where the building is located is very rough and next to impossible for the fire apparatus to pass over. The firemen were therefore obliged to fight the fire with chemicals which had but little effect upon the flames.

The building with its contents was destroyed entailing a loss of $2,000.

The Coddington To Be Ventilated

The Coddington school building was closed at noon today until Monday morning. The object of the closing was to permit workmen to put in a ventilating shaft. An eight inch shaft will be put in, running from the basement up through the roof.

In addition to this a stove will be set up in the basement. With this stove and ventilating shaft the foul air in the basement will be carried off, and the rooms ventilated.

There have been many wild rumors as to the number of cases of diphtheria in the Coddington district, but there are really only five or six.

Men's Meeting.

The men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon will be addressed by Rev. Maurice A. Levy of Medford. His subject will be "The Most Startling Thing in the World." Mr. Levy is one of the brightest men in the profession about Boston and will be sure to have an interesting address. The music is a feature and begins with a social song at 3.30, to which all men are invited.

Art for the Quincy Schools

Eight of the Quincy schools will soon receive works of art won under the name of the Coddington school, where Miss Julia E. Underwood is a teacher.

The Boston Herald's gifts of statuary as awards in the now memorable school contest last spring have arrived in Boston. They came upon the Red Star steamer Manitou, plying between Boston and Antwerp, reaching the piers at the N. Y. N. H. & H. railroad South Boston yards Tuesday afternoon.

The Herald comments: It must be said that the statuary is late in coming, much later than anybody expected and nearly two months behind the date intimated as a probable time of arrival. The opening of the schools appeared to be a timely occasion for distributing the awards and the original arrangements were made with that in view. There appear, however, to have been unexpected difficulties in getting out such a mass of statuary.

It is one of the hopes of The Herald management that these statuary awards will serve at least as nuclei for larger and later collections; will initiate a general movement toward better art in the schools; will incite alumni and alumnae, who are now adults and possibly with something to spare, to go on in the good work. The children have done their share, as is, or at least will in a few days be evident.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The illustrated feature of the Saturday eight-page Daily Ledger relates to Charles Evans Hughes, the insurance investigator, who is now examining John A. McCall, George W. Perkins, Richard A. McCurdy and others in New York. It is an interesting three-column article.

Boston also has a loss in number of voters, the total for the State election this year being 1981 less than a year ago. Only five of the twenty-five wards gained, while twenty wards lost. Quincy's gain in voters is more conspicuous with losses in Boston, Worcester and most of the large cities of the State.

There was a time when there was a sharp race in Quincy between voters and school children, first one being ahead and then the other. But now the children seem to have triumphed, for there are by the Oct. 9 report 5767 enrolled in the Quincy public schools with an average daily attendance of 5509. When registration of voters closed this week the number of voters was 5,149.

The Milford Journal truly says that what tariff revisionists want to do is to get their entering wedge into the Dingley tariff and, with that beginning, proceed to smash it, along with what it represents. All the enemies of protection are in the revisionist ranks. The Dingley tariff, when the time comes, will be changed, so far as it needs modification, by its friends and by the steadfast supporters of the protection of American wages and American industries.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The evidence elicits the curious fact that a life insurance president doesn't have to know hardly anything in order to hold his job.—New York Commercial.

☞ Reading the testimony offered in the life insurance inquiry by President McCurdy, of the New York Mutual Life, no surprise is caused by the statement that the witness was jeered by the audience. Of course, it was very improper to make a demonstration in the committee room, but the provocation was great. The impudent assurance of the man who, by his own admission, had advanced the interests of himself and his family at the expense of the policy holders, whose money he was supposed to guard, was too much for human nature to accept without a protest. A man with his ideas of propriety, business faith and common honesty should be given a lesson that will be salutary.—Lynn Item.

Association Football

Quincy plays Merrimac in the League series tomorrow at Ward Three playground. The game will start at 3.45 o'clock.

Merrimac defeated Andover last Saturday and if Quincy plays as hard as they did against Fore River, a very stiff game should be the result.

Quincy has secured a fine player in Anderson an ex-Swedish International man, and judging by his great work in last Saturday's game with Fore River his place on the Quincy team is permanent.

At the Ward Two playground the Fore Rivers will have as rivals the Boston Rovers, a strong aggregation of football players.

Quite a large number of our townspeople were at the National baseball grounds, Boston, on Monday last, and they saw the Pilgrims, of England defeat all New England by a score of 5—0. The Englishman played a fast, clean game, their team work was perfect, our home players did well to keep the score where it was. Mayor Thompson, Representative Nicol, and Councilman Spargo were greatly interested in the proceedings.

The general opinion of those who saw Association football played, as it should be played, for the first time was that, it is a splendid game, clean-cut spectacular and manly in every sense of the word. It is no game for weaklings as it calls for the highest physical training on the part of the contestants.

We trust that our local players have benefited by what they saw the English team do, and that all rough, unmanly conduct will be eliminated from the games to be played henceforth.

CUNLIFFE'S PELF

Nearly $80,000 Found In House of His Brother-In-Law

PACKED IN A SUIT CASE

Recipient Claims That He Was Unaware of Nature of Contents --Adams Express Fugitive Is Under Arrest at Bridgeport

Bristol, Conn., Oct. 20.—Nearly $80,000 of the money stolen by George E. Cunliffe Oct. 9 from the Adams Express company in Pittsburg was recovered last night at the home of Joseph W. Boardman, Cunliffe's brother-in-law. For just a week the fortune had lain in an old suit case unknown to Boardman, who was holding the valise, expecting its owner would call for it any day. The exact sum found was $79,953.55.

As the result of the statement made by Cunliffe in Bridgeport last night that he had sent $80,000 of the plunder to his brother-in-law, Boardman, in Bristol, a reporter called at the Boardman home last night and asked Boardman if that was so. Boardman, who is a young man and the agent here for the Electric Express company of Hartford, said that he had received no money, but that on Oct. 12 a suit case came to his house from Bridgeport and as there was no name on it he had not opened it. His wife signed for the case and Boardman placed it in a closet, thinking it was sent to him as an agent of an express company to be called for later.

Boardman told the reporter that if he wished he would send for the police and that they could break open the case. Chief Arms and Captain Belden of the police force were then sent for and in their presence the case was torn open. Huge bundles of money in the shape of bills tumbled out on the floor and also a black suit of clothes, a pair of shoes and two shirts. As the money was being counted Superintendent Curtis of the Adams Express company's New England agency and William H. Minster, superintendent of the Pinkerton detectives, drove up to the house and were shown in. Curtis then counted the money and found a total of $79,953.55. There were 15 bundles of $100 bills, making a total of $50,000, and the rest, with the exception of $3.55 which was in the pocket in the coat, was in $50 bills.

No one was more surprised at the display of money than Boardman himself and his story is fully believed. Curtis packed the money in a valise and took a train for Hartford.

Boardman says that he has received no word from Cunliffe recently.

Boardman is a highly respected young man here and has been the local agent for the Electric Express company for some time. He lives with his wife in Park street.

BURNED $20,000

Cunliffe Was Afraid That Big Bills Would "Give Him Away"

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 20.—George E. Cunliffe, the Adams Express employe who disappeared from Pittsburg with $101,000 in cash, was arrested here. He made a confession and expressed his willingness to return at once to Pittsburg.

The most important development in the case is the fact that it became known that Cunliffe had shipped nearly $80,000 of the stolen Adams Express money to his brother-in-law, Joseph W. Boardman, in Bristol, on Oct. 12, three days after the robbery.

The fact that the money has been found was not told Cunliffe. The police and private detectives here believe that the rest of the money is in Bridgeport and have started a search for it. Several persons with whom Cunliffe has been friendly during the last week are watched, the detectives believing that they can account for nearly all the remainder of the big sum stolen.

It is figured out that Cunliffe spent less than $150 during his stay here. The police announce that nearly $300 was found in an old bag in the closet of Cunliffe's room by a maid in the hotel, which makes a total of about $86,750 accounted for.

About midnight D. C. Thornhill of the Pinkerton agency, who assisted in the arrest of Cunliffe, had a talk with the prisoner in his cell and told him that $80,000 had been recovered at the home of his brother-in-law in Bristol and pressed him to tell where the missing $20,000 was hidden. Cunliffe finally said: "You'll never get it; I have destroyed it."

Thornhill at first doubted Cunliffe's story, but the prisoner stuck to it, saying that he had burned the money in his room in the hotel where he stopped here. He said that he was afraid the bills would give him away, as they were of large denomination and practically marked, as they were notes of the Allegheny National bank of Pittsburg and that everybody was looking for them. Cunliffe said that rather than carry them around he burned them.

If his statement is true, and the detectives think it is, the total amount of money stolen is accounted for. In view of the fact that Cunliffe assured the detective that there was no money hidden in this city, Thornhill at once decided to take an early train for New York and left with Cunliffe at 5:08 this morning.

Fall River Unions May Reject Five Percent Increase

New York, Oct. 20.—The last resolution adopted last night by the United Textile Workers of America before finally adjourning their convention was one offering moral and financial support to the mill operatives of Fall River under any and all circumstances. President Golden later explained that this action was taken for the reason that the unions may not see fit to accept the offer of 5 percent increase in wages offered by the Manufacturers' association.

"The action of M. C. D. Borden in restoring the old schedule," he said, "strengthens our hands to such an extent that we feel there is nothing else left for the other manufacturers to do but to grant the 14 percent increase demanded, which would be simply a restoration of the original prices. However, I do not anticipate any further trouble of a serious nature between operatives and employers and the resolution just adopted is simply precautionary."

Russia's Announcement of Peace

St. Petersburg, Oct. 20.—An imperial manifesto proclaiming the ratification of peace between Russia and Japan says: "God has caused our fatherland to suffer sore trials from the blows of fate in a sanguinary war, but the struggle has afforded manifold proofs of the bravery and courage of our glorious troops against a brave and mighty enemy. The eastern portion of our country will now develop itself in peace and good neighborliness with the Japanese empire, which has now become our friend."

Emperor's Auto Got a Bump

Berlin, Oct. 20.—Emperor William was crossing the street last night in front of the castle in his automobile when an automobile cab approached at high speed. The emperor's chauffeur saw the cab when it was almost upon him and turned his machine sharply. The cabman at this moment threw the brakes on with full force. Nevertheless, the two machines collided with a considerable shock. Emperor William's car took him into the court of the castle. The other machine was disabled.

Vessel Without a Crew

New York, Oct. 20.—A sailing vessel in mid-ocean, deserted by her crew, but with sails set and proceeding with fair speed toward the shore of North America, was sighted by the Teutonic, which arrived here. The Teutonic's officers believe that the vessel is the barge Orion, whose crew were rescued from their ship by the steamer Etruria. One living thing, a black dog, was seen on the lonely vessel by the Teutonic's passengers.

Banquet Taken From Hotel

Moncton, N. B., Oct. 20.—Severe denunciation of cigaret smoking and liquor drinking was made in a sensational manner by the Provincial Sunday school convention here. Governments were arraigned for trifling with the liquor laws. Objections being raised to the holding of a banquet of Bible workers in a hotel where there was a barroom, the delegates adjourned to a restaurant.

Our Army Cannot Be Beaten

Washington, Oct. 20.—In answer to the recent criticism of the American army by a Berlin newspaper, Lieutenant General Chaffee said: "The American army is not 'rotten.' Man for man and soldier for soldier, I am willing to invite comparison with any other army in the world. Our army is at least the equal of that of Germany or of Russia, with which it has been compared."

Shaw Conferring With Bankers

New York, Oct. 20.—Secretary of the Treasury Shaw is visiting Wall street. His mission, according to report, is to confer with bankers in regard to the flotation of the Panama canal bond issue and to sound the bond dealers concerning the legislation necessary to make the bonds marketable at the price agreed upon when the issue was determined.

Taigny Backed by France

Washington, Oct. 20.—That France intends to stand by her representative at Caracas, M. Taigny, is reiterated by Ambassador Jusserand, who declares that Taigny has the hearty support of his government, which approves all of his acts at Caracas. Venezuela was the subject of a conference yesterday between Secretary Root and Jusserand.

To Man Gloucester Fishermen

North Sydney, N. S., Oct. 20.—A number of fishermen from the west coast of Newfoundland arrived here on the steamer Bruce, and it is expected that nearly all of them will sign as members of the crews of the Gloucester fishermen now in port.

Royalty to Tour India

London, Oct. 20.—The Prince and Princess of Wales have started on their six months' tour of India. King Edward, Queen Alexandra and the other members of the royal family and the cabinet ministers bade them farewell at the railroad station.

Emperors Thank Roosevelt

Washington, Oct 20.—Formal, but none the less hearty, expressions of thanks have been received from the Russian and Japanese emperors to President Roosevelt for his services in the cause of peace in the Far East.

M'CURDY IS DEFIANT

Declares He Will Not Be Driven From Office

IS AGAIN ON THE STAND

Trust Companies Became Prosperous After Being Taken Up by Mutual Life--President Insured in Many Companies

New York, Oct. 20.—Richard A. McCurdy, president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, made the statement Thursday that he had no intention of resigning, that he was elected to serve until June 7, and that nothing can or will drive him out.

It was also announced from the district attorney's office that no action will be taken regarding the George J. Plunkitt matter that was turned over to the district attorney Wednesday by the legislative committee that is investigating the insurance companies.

Closing one of the most sensational and strenuous weeks of the insurance investigation, the committee just before adjournment yesterday concluded the examination of Richard A. McCurdy, with the exception of a few details he is to supply next week.

Mr. McCurdy has been on the stand the greater part of the three days of this week's session, and some of his testimony has been the most startling of any that has been adduced before the committee. His testimony yesterday, however, was very much of a technical nature, though it was of much value to the committee in its work. When he resumed the stand yesterday morning it was to take up his testimony as to the Mutual Life's connection with trust companies that was interrupted by adjournment Wednesday.

The information furnished by McCurdy disclosed that the trust companies with which the Mutual Life was connected became very prosperous soon after they were taken up by the Mutual Life. Two cases in point were the Morristown Trust company, at Morristown, N. J., where the McCurdy family live, and the United States Mortgage and Trust company. The former is now controlled by the Mutual Life, and McCurdy testified that besides being a director of this trust company he is a large stockholder and would take more stock if he could get it.

The Mutual Life keeps a balance of not less than $200,000 with this company, on which it draws from 2 to 3 percent. The latter rate has been paid only since Sept. 1. McCurdy did not know the holdings of the other members of his family in this company. In the syndicate operations McCurdy said he participated not with the idea of drawing funds, but to obtain his share of the commission allowed by bankers.

Mr. McCurdy was asked what life insurance he carried, and he was unable to say at once, but James M. Beck, his counsel, presented a statement showing when the policies were taken out, for what amounts, and the plan. These aggregated $200,000, all in the Mutual. McCurdy testified that he was also insured in the Equitable, the Washington, and the Connecticut Mutual. Before he left the stand McCurdy said he paid $4500 for his apartment in the Grosvenor building, which is owned by the Mutual.

When McCurdy was excused his son, Robert H. McCurdy, was called to explain some charges for traveling expenses in 1904. He said one of his duties as general manager was to visit the agencies about the country. Three such trips were made, the expense of which aggregated about $3600. McCurdy said that while on one trip he was accompanied by his father, mother, wife and the latter's maid, but that the expense accounts were for himself individually and did not include those of any other member of his family or party. He had a private car on one of the trips. He could not tell why the expenses on these trips were so large, but said he would furnish the details later.

Mr. McCurdy was followed by W. W. Richards, comptroller of the Mutual, who was explaining the manner in which the Mutual acquired some properties by foreclosure, when the committee adjourned until next Tuesday.

Directors That Failed to Direct

Pittsburg, Oct. 20.—Investigation into the condition of the Enterprise National bank, which was closed by the comptroller of the currency, shows beyond doubt that the institution was conducted in a manner entirely unknown to the directors. It is learned that since the investigation started papers and notes have been brought to the attention of the directors which they never saw before.

Greeks to Petition For Bishop

Cleveland, Oct. 20.—Delegates representing 300,000 members of the United Greek Catholic churches in the United States met here and took the first step toward petitioning the pope for a bishop of their own nationality, with a view to preserving intact the religion which their forefathers maintained in Hungary, Galicia and Austria for a thousand years.

Rev. Ralph J. Haughton will preach at both services at the Quincy Point church on Sunday.

The annual dinner of the Adams Academy Alumni Association will be held in Boston at the University Club on Monday, Oct. 30.

The searchlights of the battleship Rhode Island were tested Thursday night. They were flashed over the city for an hour or more.

Councilman Chamberlin of Wollaston, will soon cease to be a resident of Quincy. He is to move to Pope's Hill, where he expects to be located after the first of November.

There is a hot fight on in Ward Six among the Republicans for councilmen. Rumor has it that there will be half a dozen or more candidates who will seek the nomination at the caucus.

The special committee of the City Council appointed to consider the subject of a municipal gas or electric plant will hear all persons who desire to present their views on the subject next Tuesday evening.

William King of 34 Centre street has an old picture which he has prized for many years, of Lord Nelson in the battle of Trafalgar, just 100 years ago. It was on Oct. 21, 1805, that the engagement took place and Nelson lost his life.

APPEARING OLD

Acts as a Bar to Profitable Employment.

You cannot afford to grow old.

In these days of strenuous competition it is necessary to maintain, as long as possible ones youthful appearance.

It is impossible to do this without retaining a luxurious growth of hair.

The presence of Dandruff indicates the presence of a burrowing germ which lives and thrives on the roots of the hair until it causes total baldness.

Newbro's Herpicide is the only known destroyer of this pest, and it is as effective as it is delightful to use.

Herpicide makes an elegant hair dressing as well as Dandruff cure.

IN TARHEEL STATE

President Roosevelt the Recipient of Great Ovations

MEETS JACKSON'S WIDOW

Tells Her It Is Worth Whole Trip to Shake Her Hand--Talks on Railroad Rates and Gives Advice to Students

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 20.—The ovation which President Roosevelt received during his journey through Virginia was continued as he traveled through North Carolina. Beginning with his arrival at Raleigh at 9 o'clock yesterday morning he was greeted by cheering crowds at Durham, Greensboro, High Point, Lexington, Salisbury and Charlotte, the demonstration in this city being a fitting farewell of the citizens of the Tarheel state.

During the 30 minutes of the president's stay here last evening he had from 25,000 people a reception of the most enthusiastic character. He created the wildest enthusiasm by referring to the Mecklenburg declaration of independence, to Mrs. T. J. Jackson, widow of General Stonewall Jackson, and Lieutenant William E. Shipp, a monument to whom he passed en route to Vance park, where he spoke for 15 minutes.

The feature of his visit was his meeting with the widow of the great Confederate leader. When the train pulled in Mrs. Jackson was present as the head of a committee of ladies appointed by Mayor McNinch to receive Mrs. Roosevelt. When the president was introduced he took her hand and remained talking for five minutes.

"Mrs. Jackson," he said, "you do not know how glad I am to meet you. Why, it is worth the whole trip down here to have a chance to shake your hand." He referred to her grandson, Jackson Christian, whom he appointed to a cadetship at West Point. "He is a mighty fine fellow, Mrs. Jackson, a mighty fine fellow, by jove."

While the president was speaking in the park Mrs. Jackson entertained Mrs. Roosevelt at her home and a hundred Charlotte women helped to entertain her. After Mrs. Roosevelt had returned to the car she sent a handsome bouquet of American beauty roses and a note to Mrs. Jackson.

The feature of the day was the president's visit to the fair which is in progress at Raleigh. There he delivered an address which dealt with the important questions of railroad ownership and the organizations of capital and labor.

Discussing railroad rates, the president declared that government control is necessary, as it would put an end to delay and shams. He urged the people to take care to preserve forests and said that the creation of reserves would be a profitable policy. In conclusion the president praised the industrial progress of the state.

At Durham, where a stop of about 10 minutes was made, the president devoted his remarks to the students of Trinity college. A flat car had been converted into a gaily decorated stand and from this the president spoke. In the course of his remarks to the students the president said:

"There must be no coercion of opinion if collegiate training is to bring forth full fruit. You men of this college, you men throughout the south who have had collegiate training, bear a peculiar burden of responsibility. We have a right to expect a special quality of leadership from the men to whom much has been given in the way of a collegiate education. You are not entitled to any special privilege, but you are entitled to be held to a peculiar accountability; you have earned the right to be held peculiarly responsible for what you do.

"We have the right to expect from college men not merely disinterested service, but intelligent service. The few peoples who exercise self-government always have to war not merely against the knavish man who deliberately does what he knows to be wrong, but against the foolish man who may mean very well but who in actual fact turns out the ally of the other man who does not mean well; and we must depend upon you men who have been given special facilities in education to guide our people aright so that they shall neither fall into the pit of folly nor into the pit of knavery."

A bit of sentiment was responsible for a short stop at Lexington, where the president was greeted by several hundred people, to whom he spoke briefly. Lexington is the county seat of the only county in North Carolina that gave President Roosevelt a majority at the last national election. Owing to this fact the president was requested to stop for a few moments to extend greetings to the people and receive greetings from the 300 orphan children, cared for in an asylum there.

This morning the president paid a visit to Roswell, Ga., the home of his mother. From there he goes to Atlanta, where most of the day will be spent. Mrs. Roosevelt will leave him when Atlanta is reached and return to Washington.

WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN

Jerome Pays Respects to Tammany Leader In Fiery Speech

New York, Oct. 20.—With skyrockets screeching in the air, brass bands and political clubs braving a wetting in the drizzling rain, and practically all the candidates afield, the municipal campaign in Greater New York begun in full swing last night.

District Attorney Jerome attacked the present Democratic administration and the nominees. He was most bitter against Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany hall, and compared him disparagingly to Richard Croker "a real man, a man with a jaw; a man that stood up and never lied to a friend; a man who stood good and true when he gave you his word, and told you he would or he would not, and then did as he said. Croker was my friend, though I fought him for 20 years. That kind of man I could deal with; not the miserable kind of man from Good Ground.

"Richard Croker was practically driven from this town by the one question 'Where did you get it?' Where did this recrudescence of Croker, this faint imprint, this shadow of a mighty man get it? Where did Good Ground and the automobile and the liveried servants come from? Joint debate is a cheap thing to offer me, but I would like nothing better than a joint debate with Charlie Murphy. Half a dozen questions not out of the range of the criminal law and that weak shadow of a strong man would be effaced from the globe."

Bishop Deplores Race Suicide

London, Oct. 20.—The falling birth rate was the subject of interesting comment by the bishop of London, Dr. Ingram, in an address to the clergy of his diocese. It appeared to him, said the bishop, to be an artificial diminution by artificial means. The practice of the deliberate prevention of conception has spread like a blight among the middle classes and must be viewed as a sin. The prevailing love of comfort was largely responsible for this and the clergy must teach others to live the simplier and heartier life which their forefathers lived.

Japan and the Philippines

Washington, Oct. 20.—Declaring that Japan welcomes the presence of the United States in the Philippines, Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, last night gave a statement in which he says that Japan feels "great repose about the Philippines, because they are occupied by the United States with the firm hold of its authority over the archipelago—not to speak of many object lessons being given them by the new owner by introducing modern improvements in various ways."

Accidental Aphyxiation

Winthrop, Mass., Oct. 20.—An employe of Magee & Young's grocery store in this town, on going to the office of the store, found George T. Young, a member of the firm, lying there dead. It is presumed that Young slept in his store and before falling asleep lighted a gas heater. This evidently filled the small office with poisonous fumes, so that the sleeping proprietor never recovered consciousness. Medical Examiner Harris judged the death to be accidental.

Asphalt People Aided Rebels

New York, Oct. 20.—The payment of $130,000 through American asphalt companies to support General Matos' revolution in Venezuela was testified to by Vice President Andrews of the National Asphalt company. Andrews gave this testimony before Commissioner Gilchrist in the taking of evidence to be used to settle the suit of the Venezuelan government against the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company for $11,000,000 damages.

Cut Throat of New-Born Baby

Des Moines, Oct. 20.—Miss Mattie Teager, one of the prettiest girls in Des Moines, has confessed to the police that she murdered her one-hour-old baby by cutting its throat and that she hid the body of the infant in the bottom of her trunk. Miss Teager, who is in a critical condition, is guarded by police, and if she recovers will be taken to prison.

Rome, Oct. 20.—Apprehensions regarding possible international complications have been aroused by the receipt of an official announcement from the British admiralty to the effect that the British squadron, which should have visited Naples Nov. 10, will not leave home waters at present, but will remain nearer the Baltic sea.

Theft of $10,000 In Diamonds

New York, Oct. 20.—Mrs. George W. Hoadley was robbed of $10,000 in diamonds at her home in the Buckingham hotel. John Yorke, a waiter, and Albert Schultz, who until two weeks ago was a bellboy at the hotel, were arraigned in court and remanded. Neither suspect would talk in court, except to deny the charge.

"FRESH" FRESHMEN

Disturbers' Privileges Curtailed by the Yale Faculty

New Haven, Oct. 20.—The Yale faculty held a special meeting for the purpose of taking action in regard to the recent disturbances by members of the freshman class. After various forms of punishment were discussed the faculty drew up the following, which was made public:

"The faculty decided to take full responsibility in the punishment of the freshman class for the disturbances on York street, Sunday, Oct. 8, and it was voted to put the occupants of the three large dormitories in York street on special probation. This involves the loss of the privileges of cuts and marks for the fall term."

The decision of the faculty in thus punishing the men in the three foremost dormitories for academic freshmen means that all football men rooming in those places will not be allowed to take trips out of town. Every time a team goes out of town it means at least one cut or a mark, and as several football players room in the dormitories in question, the punishment is more severe than it would appear to be at first glance.

The dormitories placed under the ban of the faculty are Pierson hall and the houses at 238 and 250 York street, opposite.

Civil Suit Against Gilman

Providence, Oct. 20.—Demurring to the indictment on which they were brought before the superior court, William O. Gilman and Aubrey L. Rice, stock and investment brokers, who were extradited from San Francisco, will be accorded a hearing on their demurrer as soon as the court and lawyers can arrange a convenient date. In the meantime bail of $5000 in the case of each was required. Gilman at once furnished surety, and straightway was rearrested on a civil suit for $12,000 alleged damages, brought by the United National bank of this city, which the defendants are charged with defrauding out of $5600. Rice remained locked up at the courthouse.

Protest Against Adopted Son

Salem, Mass., Oct. 20.—A protest by counsel for the relatives of Mrs. Jennie P. Chase, the wealthy Swampscott woman who died from gas poisoning under mysterious circumstances, has been filed in the probate court, asking that the decree of adoption of DeForest W. Chase as the son of Mrs. Chase be declared null and void. The ground on which the protest is based allege that the petition for the adoption of the boy was procured through fraud, undue influence, threats and duress on the part of Dr. Horace Chase, her husband, and father to DeForest.

Attacked by Wife and Stepsons

Madison, Conn., Oct. 20.—An assault at the hands of his wife and two stepsons, which will result in the death of Frederick Bachman, occurred last night at his home in East River. Bachman went home to supper as usual and finding that no supper had been prepared, asked his wife where it was. "Here's your supper," she is alleged to have said, at the same time striking him on the head with a piece of iron. Mrs. Bachman's sons, it is alleged, then beat him until he was unconscious. The woman and her sons have been arrested.

May Have Been From Lowell

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 20.—From a telephone message received from Lowell, Mass., it is believed that Frank Mayo, who was shot on Oct. 13 in a store in Shelburne, which it is claimed he had entered unlawfully, was from Lowell. A woman who claimed to be a sister of Mayo has given the local officers a description of him. A picture of the dead man will be sent to her for further identification.

Open Shop Men Organize

Boston, Oct. 20.—An organization known as the "open shop" Electrical Contractors' association of Boston and its vicinity has been formed here, with Herbert S. Potter as president. The objects of the association are announced to be those of assisting and protecting its members against the encroachments of labor unions and to promote a bond of good fellowship among its members.

Hayes is 25 years old.

Daly left his home six years ago after acting in a peculiar manner for some time.

The annual dinner of the Republican club of Massachusetts held last night at Symphony hall, Boston, was a most enthusiastic gathering, attended by nearly 1000 diners, and fully as many more ladies and gentlemen in the balconies. Quincy was well represented.

Very demonstrative ovations were given to ex-Gov. Bates, Candidate Guild and Senator Lodge in particular. All the speakers saw much in the Republican administrations both State and National to commend, and applause was frequent.

Antiquity of Soap.

The origin of soap is a mystery, but we have many evidences of its antiquity. It is mentioned at least twice in the Bible under the name of borith at a period corresponding to several centuries before Christ. In the Louvre in Paris there is an interesting old vase of Etruscan manufacture whose age is computed at about 2,500 years. It is interesting in connection with our subject as bearing a group of children in relief who are engaged in blowing bubbles from pipes. Though we must not overlook the fact that certain vegetable juices are capable of being used in blowing bubbles, it is for many reasons more probable that soap of artificial manufacture was employed for the purpose. In the unearthed city of Pompeii, the preservation of which has been the means of revealing to us many antique customs, there is to be seen a soap manufactory, with all the kettles and other paraphernalia pertaining to the business; also a quantity of soap, evidently the product of this antique "soapery." The memorable volcanic eruption, while removing a city from the face of the earth, preserved to us the evidences of a high civilization.

A Kind Voice.

There is no power of love so hard to get and to keep as a kind, voice. A kind hand is deaf and dumb. It may be rough in flesh and blood, yet do the work of a soft heart and do it with a soft touch. But there is no one thing that love so much needs as a sweet voice to tell what it means and feels, and it is hard to get and keep it in the right tone. One must start in youth and be on the watch night and day, at work and at play, to get and keep a voice that shall speak at all times the thoughts of a kind heart. It is often in youth that one gets a voice or a tone that is sharp, and it sticks to him through life and stirs up ill will and grief and falls like a drop of gall on the sweets of home. Watch it day by day as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you in days to come than the best pearl hid in the seas. A kind voice is to the heart what light is to the eye. It is a light that sings as well as shines.—Elihu Burritt.

Students Must Have High Ideals.

Whatever the student's bent, whatever his ultimate intention in the way of practice may be, the same simple rules will hold good. He must be earnest in his desire to learn, and he must never be contented with partially understanding. He must be methodical, working according to a plan and ready to sacrifice his personal pleasures and comforts to carry out that plan. And he must keep before him a high ideal of his professional duties, ever remembering that his mission is to prevent disease and heal the sick. He has joined an altruistic profession, one where the rewards are often incommensurate altogether with the labors, but one where his power of doing good if thoroughly and intelligently exerted will be greater than it would be in any other walk of life.—London Lancet.

Zangwill's Revenge.

While yet an obscure writer Israel Zangwill submitted to an American magazine a poem, which he received back in due course with the customary slip expressing the editor's great sorrow at his inability to make use of the contribution.

The manuscript found its way into a pigeonhole, to be resurrected some time later when fame had found him out. The poem was sold to the same magazine to which it had originally been sent, but this time the editor cabled a request to the author and paid a fancy price for it.

Experimented With Poisons.

When Antony and Cleopatra were contemplating suicide they made a collection of a great variety of poisons and tried each of them on two or more slaves in order to ascertain whether death was accompanied with much apparent suffering. One historian declares that over 200 persons lost their lives in order that the information might be obtained. The result was that Antony killed himself with a dagger and Cleopatra either with one of her selected poisons or by a serpent's bite.

When Man Wooes.

The average man wooes for choice a humming bird of the most gorgeous plumage. The man's taste is perfectly understandable. The mistake comes later. When he has secured his bird he carries it home and expects to find in the cage a demure little canary possessed of every staid, domestic and canarylike attribute.—London Queen.

Repartee.

Mrs. Jawback—Get right away from here, you nasty tramp, or I'll call my husband! Oliver Mudd—G'wan! Yer husband ain't to home. Mrs. Jawback—How do you know? Oliver Mudd—Husbands of women like you never are to home 'cept for meals.—Cleveland Leader.

Light Vote Today In the Contest

Miss Ethel Merritt and Miss Mildred Rogers made the largest gains today in the Scholarship contest. The first four remain the same but there are some changes down the list, and there are two new candidates.

In the men's list Thomas Skinner has moved up from 13th place to number 8 and should not find it difficult to go higher. The gains are mostly among those with less than 100 votes. There is one new candidate with a single vote, who may yet make his mark.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Placid Hindoo Servants.

Hindoo servants are the most imperturbable people in the world. You may throw one downstairs or pat him on the back. He accepts both with exactly the same expression of countenance. The Indian's religion is at the bottom of all his acts, all his feelings. He eats, sleeps, moves and has his being according to religious formula, and his doctrine of reincarnation forms his whole philosophy of life. The fact that you are the master now is due to the fact that you have been the servant in some previous reincarnation. He is the servant now, and the only chance for him to be reborn in the master's position is to learn all the lessons of his present incarnation. He takes everything philosophically. It is all a part of the day's work.

Was Willing to Go to Sea.

At the time when William E. Chandler of New Hampshire was secretary of the navy Admiral Meade was commandant of the navy yard in Washington. They got into trouble somehow, these two positive gentlemen, and the commandant was summoned before the secretary one day on a matter of importance. The secretary told the commandant that if he kept on, or words to that effect, he should certainly be obliged to punish him by sending him to sea. "Mr. Secretary," said Meade, "I haven't anything to say except that when it is punishment for an officer of the navy to be ordered to sea, what is your service coming to? I should like to go to sea, sir. Good day."

London.

London is a shop and a bank, a gambling hell and a cathedral. Its streets are paved with gold and set with thorns. It is the place for a rich man and the place for a poor man. It is all wealth and happiness. It is all poverty and distress. It is a huge paradox. Many things are possible in London that are also impossible. If it so please you and you possess the ability to do so you may live not merely a double life, but half a dozen different lives, which will never clash with one another. You may be in London at the same time a priest and a pirate. It is big enough for both of you.—J. H. M. Abbott in Spectator.

Hats on In Church.

Pepys shows that in the seventeenth century both men and women wore their hats to worship. "To church," he writes, "and heard a simple fellow open the praise of church musique and exclaiming against men wearing their hats on in the church." Later he notes that he saw a minister "preach with his hat off, which I never saw before." The hat was then an integral part of both male and female costume, and Pepys catches "a strange cold in my head by flinging off my hat at dinner."

A Cold Storage Romance.

He—The postmaster replied. He said that Miss Smith died of old age several years ago.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Savage Ear.

"Father," said the small boy, "what is blank verse?"

"Blank verse, my son," answered the man of no literary pretensions, "is something that generally sounds as if it had been written by a man whose mind was a blank."—Washington Star.

If you wish to please people you must begin by understanding them.—Reade.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The Social Realm.

Soft was the violet's vernal hue,
Fresh was the rose's morning red,
Full orbed the stately dahlia grew—
All gone! Their short-lived splendors shed.
The shadows lengthening, stretch at noon;
The field's are stripped, the groves are dumb;
The frost flowers greet the icy moon—
Then blooms the bright chrysanthemum.

Joanna Dell and William Dell of Willard street were arraigned in court this morning for violation of the rules of the Board of Health. The particular rule violated was failure to connect their premises with the public sewer after being ordered to do so.

The Board of Health, for sanitary reasons, have ordered a number of estates connected with the public sewer. In every case, with the exception of these two, the order has been complied with In these cases, however, it is alleged that the parties have persistently refused.

The cases were called in the second session of the district court this morning, and were ordered continued until Nov. 4.

When the cases were called the City Solicitor, counsel for the Board of Health, and the witnesses for the complainant were in the main court room, and the first they knew that a continuance had been granted was when so informed by defendant's counsel.

White---Wilson Nuptials

A quiet but very pretty autumn wedding took place Sunday Oct, 15th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Spencer, Winter street, Quincy Neck, when Mr. Joseph White of Sheffield, England, and Miss Florence Wilson of the same place were united in marriage.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward Anderson, the bridal couple standing beneath an arch made of autumn leaves and wild flowers.

While congratulations were showered on the couple an aunt of the groom, Mrs. Annie C. Wells, recited an orignal poem.

Refreshments were served, and the guests enjoyed an hour or so of social intercourse. Mr. and Mrs. White left for Boston where they will make their home for the present.

Burglary on Franklin Street

The bicycle store of John H. Gilli at 3 Franklin street was entered by burglars sometime last night. The parties gained entrance by forcing a window at the back of the store. They carried away an Ivers-Johnson bicycle, a phonograph, horn, stand and records, three boxes of cigars and three boxes of cigarettes. The value of the articles taken was $150.

Intercollegiate Golf.

The tournament for the New England Intercollegiate golf championship was held this week on the Montclair links and won by E. Clapp of Williams college who yesterday defeated A. W. Mitchell of the same college.

Points of Interest.

Quincy will soon be as famous for pilgrimages as Plymouth and Concord, as parties come now almost daily. Surely there are many historic spots of National interest, and enterprises which are novel to many. A brief list is given below.

MYLES STANDISH SPRING.

On the beach to the left and back of Squantum Inn. Spring of fresh cold water, where Standish and his party breakfasted and thence started to explore the country around Boston Bay.

Many other points of interest might be mentioned: Thomas Crane Memorial Hall which is the public library building; Merrymount, the home of Mrs. John Quincy Adams, where Morton erected his famous May pole in 1626; the soldiers' monument at Mount Wollaston cemetery with its tablets; the famous Quincy granite quarries, many of great depth; the granite yards where monuments and statuary are being cut, and the polishing mills where granite is polished. Also the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company where warships are being built for the government.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

☞ Eyeglasses fitted scientifically. No guess work.—Williams.

Recovery of More Money Stolen by Cunliffe

PRISONER'S PROPOSITION

Wanted to Give Detective $40,000 For a Pledge of Secrecy--Friend Who Revealed Fugitive's Whereabouts Rewarded

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 21.—The chances that the police will recover nearly the whole of the $101,000 stolen from the Adams Express company in Pittsburg by Edward G. Cunliffe, who was arrested here Thursday and taken to Pittsburg yesterday, seem bright. Last night $9065 was found in a trunk belonging to a butler in a prominent family at Black Rock, but the butler and the family by whom he is employed were ignorant of the fact that the large sum found was within the house.

The discovery of the money in the Black Rock home was brought about by keeping a close watch on one of Cunliffe's chance acquaintances, George Eisenman, who was with Cunliffe when he was arrested. According to Eisenman's story, he met Cunliffe in a cheap hotel Wednesday night, the two being together for some time. Cunliffe had a package with him and as the men were about to leave each other Cunliffe said that he wanted Eisenman to take care of the package, as it was laundry which he wanted to keep in a safe place. Eisenman took the bundle to his sister's house and when alone opened it and found the big sum of money.

Captain Arnold of the local detective bureau, who saw Eisenman with Cunliffe when the latter was taken, went to the home of Eisenman's sister and found the bundle of shirts, but no money, and he suspected that Eisenman had abstracted a part of Cunliffe's plunder. Eisenman was shadowed all yesterday and he was seen to give a small package to his friend, the butler. Last night Eisenman was taken to the Black Rock house and asked the butler for the package. He went to his trunk and turned it over to Arnold intact. The butler had not been told what was in the package. Arnold would not reveal the name of the butler or the family which employed him.

Two other new features of the chapter of events in connection with the capture of Cunliffe cropped out last night, one being an attempt by Cunliffe to bribe Arnold and the other being the story of betrayal by a friend of Cunliffe for the purpose of securing the reward of $2500 offered by the Pinkertons for his arrest. During one of the talks which Arnold had with Cunliffe Thursday night, the prisoner made a proposition to divide the $80,000 which he had sent to his brother-in-law, Joseph W. Boardman, in Bristol, on the promise of secrecy. Arnold was to have received $40,000 if the scheme was carried out according to the plans of the prisoner, who was to tell the Pittsburg authorities that the hiding place of the money would never be known.

Arnold led the prisoner on in his proposition and after Cunliffe's plans were laid bare the detective told Cunliffe that the money he intended to split up already had been found in Bristol.

The betrayal of Cunliffe by his friend, James Missett, is interesting. Missett formerly lived in Bristol and knew Cunliffe well. At the present time Missett is employed by one of the cheap hotels in this city. Last Tuesday Missett went in the Tremont hotel barroom and saw Cunliffe standing at the bar. Missett went up to him and said: "Hello, Cunliffe, what are you doing here?"

Cunliffe turned around and pretended not to know Missett, who was sure of his man. Missett then said: "Why you know me, I'm Missett. You used to play policy with me in Bristol." Cunliffe still denied that he had ever seen Missett.

Missett then left the barroom and when outside inquired the amount of the reward offered for the capture of Cunliffe. The next morning Missett went to New York and on reaching there visited the Pinkerton agency in Broadway. "Gentlemen," he said, "I know where Cunliffe is and I want to know what reward is offered for him." He was told $2500.

The Pinkerton people thought at first that Missett was a crank, but he assured them that he was in earnest and said that if the Pinkertons would give him a written agreement that he would get the reward if he told them where the missing man could be found, he would do so. This was agreed to and Missett told them. The arrest of Cunliffe followed. Last night Missett returned from New York with the $2500 reward and proceeded to spend it lavishly throughout the lower part of the city.

Back to Scene of Robbery

Pittsburg, Oct. 21.—E. G. Cunliffe arrived here last night. A large crowd of people had assembled at Union station to see the prisoner, but the officers left the train with their man at Homewood, 6 miles out, and brought him to the city in a carriage. The fugitive was landed in detective headquarters and put through the "third degree."

No word of any kind could be secured from the officials beyond the statement that a commitment would be made out for his incarceration in the county jail.

BODY CUT IN TWO

Attempt to Evade Fare Caused Death of Unknown Man

Providence, Oct. 21.—While evading arrest last night for the non-payment of his fare, an unknown man fell from or jumped from the Colonial express, bound from Washington to Boston, and lost his life. The man was found on the front platform of the baggage car when the train was passing through Westerly. The conductor brought him into the baggage car, intending to hand him over to the Providence police. As the train approached this city the stranger dashed through the forward door of the car and evidently climbed onto the tender and then onto the top of the car.

The train crew did not see the man after he left the baggage car. It is supposed that he was struck by an overhead bridge and thrown on to a parallel track. His body, cut in two, was found later, and it is supposed that it was mangled by the train which passed south about the time the Colonial express went by.

The body was that of a man about 25 years of age and 5 feet 6 inches in height. It is thought that the stranger boarded the train at Bridgeport.

Alleged Insurance Corruption

St. Paul, Oct. 21.—The zone of the investigation by the Hennepin grand jury of the old officers of the Northwestern National Life Insurance company of Minneapolis may be transferred to St. Paul. Payments of money have come to light, it is said, for corrupt purposes made in St. Paul which may necessitate action by the local courts in order to secure a conviction. Testimony already placed before the grand jury involves two former state officials, the alleged payment of a $5000 check for the suppression of a report exposing the condition of the company and a voluntary contribution of $1000 each to the Democratic and Republican state central committees.

Steamer Displaces 41,000 Tons

New York, Oct. 21.—Displacing 1000 tons more water than any other craft afloat, her displacement being 41,000 tons, the new steamer Amerika of the Hamburg-American line arrived here after her maiden voyage across the Atlantic. While the vessel made an hourly average speed for the voyage of only 16,463 knots, she is capable of much greater speed. The Amerika has electric passenger elevators connecting the decks, a well equipped gymnasium, a nursery for children and electric and hydropathic baths. A special innovation in sea travel is an a la carte restaurant on board the ship, which is under the supervision of a London hotel.

Politicans Involved In Bank Failure

Pittsburg, Oct. 21.—The sensation in the investigation of affairs of the suspended Enterprise National bank of Allegheny is the report that among the dead cashier's papers was found a confession giving in detail the operations which culminated in his death and the closing of the bank. The confession or statement, it is learned from the best of authority, declares that W. H. Andrews is responsible for the whole trouble. President Gwinner of the bank states that notes for large amounts are in possession of the bank which bear the names of W. H. Andrews, F. J. Torrence and other politicians.

There Are Other Great Actors

London, Oct. 21.—Many of the weekly publications have articles expressing regret that the dean of Westminster should have sanctioned the interment in Westminster Abbey of the ashes of Sir Henry Irving. Some of these articles openly assert that there are other actors of Irving's period as great and perhaps greater whom nobody would think of proposing for interment in the abbey.

Woman Kills Former Friend

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Mrs. Clara McCluskey was shot dead at the rear of her saloon here by her former friend, Mrs. May Buckley. Jealousy over Albert Tyrman, an electrician, led to the crime. Mrs. Buckley, after being questioned for several hours by the police, confessed.

OUR TRIUMPH ABROAD

All Europe Bows to Us, Says Congressman Moon.

AMERICAN SUCCESS MUCH ADMIRED

Delegate to International Peace Congress at Brussels Says Supremacy of the "American Idea" of Arbitration Raises This Nation High In the Eyes of the Powers.

"Europe is bowing in submission to the fact that America is king."

In this sentence his European impressions were summed up by Congressman Reuben O. Moon, who recently returned to his home in Philadelphia from a three months' trip abroad as a member of the American group at the international parliamentary peace congress held in Brussels on Aug. 28 and 29, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Congressman Moon also interviewed Pope Pius X. and King Leopold of Belgium, both of whom were complimentary to America.

"Step by step, with ever increasing wonder and admiration, Europe has watched our enormous commerce, our industrial progress our Philippine undertaking, our Panama task and President Roosevelt's crowning success as a peacemaker. Things American have swept across Europe and filled it with admiration until it has become a European byphrase that anything is possible in America.

"The news of the president's success in bringing about peace came as a wonderful climax to our international congress on the eve of its adjournment. What is now known all over the world as the 'American idea' was the most prominent feature of the international congress. All other deliberations dwindled into insignificance in comparison with the discussions of the American idea. This was especially brought home to me by interviews I had with Pope Pius X. and King Leopold of Belgium. They both alluded to the 'American idea.'

"Last year in St. Louis the American idea first took shape in the resolutions recommending, first, a general arbitration treaty which would give The Hague court a jurisdiction, and, second, that delegates be elected or appointed to an international congress with power to make laws for The Hague court to enforce within its jurisdiction.

"It was in Brussels, where the peace congress met, that I met with the most interesting experiences. I had an interview with King Leopold which lasted for more than half an hour, and during that time I was enabled to learn at first hand what royalty really thinks of America. The king is one of the most delightful gentlemen I have ever met. He is a trained linguist and speaks English perfectly.

"Everything which the king said to me was a compliment to America. He expressed the greatest admiration for President Roosevelt and said: 'Your president is one of the most remarkable men of the age, and I watch everything that he does with deepest admiration. I have his picture, with his autograph, hanging in my room, where I can see it every moment. He is an inspiration.'

"The king said he thought the American people were the most marvelous of the age. 'They are great, they are strong, they are factors in every art and science, and they must be considered in every great movement that is undertaken by the nations.' As a matter of fact, the same thought was expressed everywhere we went through the capitals of Europe. Everywhere it was asked: 'What does America think? What will America do?'

"The argument of the American group at the international congress was this: The Hague court, as it exists only by common courtesy, has no jurisdiction and no laws. 'Now, then,' said the Americans to the Europeans, 'you have started this, and you have arrived at a point where you must take one step further and give The Hague court jurisdiction and laws or let it die of inanition.' Our idea, however, was so radical, so fundamental, that the European nations said it was simply impossible, absolutely revolutionary.

"But Richard Bartholdt, chairman of the American group, had worked out and presented the basis for our general arbitration idea in such masterly detail that it not only challenged admiration, but also met most effectually all objections.

"One of the ablest European statesmen, Count Apponyi of Hungary, admitted frankly that Mr. Bartholdt's masterly presentment of the American idea left him no ground for objection. He said he wanted only to add to American progressiveness European caution. The matter, therefore, was referred to a special committee of five, who must report back within three months or before the next Hague conference.

"Then as a climax on the eve of our adjournment came the news of President Roosevelt's wonderful triumph for peace, illustrating most forcibly the supremacy of the American idea of arbitration over the terrors of war. As such the peace news was enthusiastically greeted in the historic Hotel de Ville, where we were all gathered at a ball. The king's band played 'America,' and that night the phrase 'Anything is possible in America' was changed to 'Anything is possible for an American,' for the sincere tribute to President Roosevelt is a tribute to all Americans, of whom he is taken to be a type."

Charles Evans Hughes,

Insurance Investigator

"The Best Lawyer I Have Ever Met"—A Prophet Honored by Those Who Lived With Him—A Legal Hawkshaw With Staying Qualities—Clear of Vision, Courageous, Master of Himself and His Subject. How He Probed the Gas Trust

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES. Six months ago, esteemed reader, you had never heard of such a being. Now, had you? Fame has a habit of jerking a man into the limelight in sudden and unexpected ways. That is what she did to Mr. Hughes. He was just as good a lawyer before he was thus yanked on to the public stage as he is now. But only a few judges, business men and lawyers around New York knew it. Today pretty much the whole country has awakened to the fact.

Perhaps the reason Charles E. Hughes had never been heard of before he began the gas trust and insurance investigations is that he always evaded notoriety. He not only did not court but did not permit publicity. Yet when the late Walter S. Carter, himself an eminent attorney, was asked who in his opinion was the best American lawyer he replied:

"Charles Evans Hughes is the best lawyer I have ever met."

It may be objected that Mr. Carter, having been Hughes' father-in-law and senior partner, was prejudiced in the young man's favor, but there is another view even of that. He had been in a position to study and know his man. It is something to have the undivided esteem of one's business associate and father-in-law.

But even if it may be objected that Mr. Carter was partial the same cannot be said of the judges. Three years ago a distinguished New Yorker asked five eminent judges to name the four or five lawyers who, in their opinion, stood foremost at the American bar in knowledge and management of difficult and complicated contractual litigation. Four of the five judges named Mr. Hughes.

These high opinions were passed before Mr. Hughes had been chosen to cross examine John A. McCall, George W. Perkins and Richard A. McCurdy. They were expressed even before his keen thrusts punctured the gas trust. It was then, by the way, that Hughes uncovered the fact that the trust sold gas for a dollar that cost it only 28 cents. When that investigation was started most everybody predicted that nothing would come of it. That was before they had heard of Hughes. When he was chosen later for the insurance investigation he was known at least to the New York public. As a result predictions were rife that the insurance probe would reveal something. It did, and if Charles E. Hughes stays where he is it will reveal more.

A Man Who Stays.

That he will stay goes without saying. His recent refusal of the Republican nomination for mayor of New York settled that. In his declination was much that revealed Mr. Hughes' true character. There was no pretense that under other circumstances he would not have been gratified to have accepted the high honor. But his sense of duty to the insurance investigation would not permit him to do so. The proposition had been made to him that he need not make a speech in the campaign or take any time from his work on the insurance committee. That did not alter the situation as he saw it, however. The imputation of political motive would be cast on the committee's work if he accepted, he said, and he could not permit himself to contribute to such a result. It was not a small thing to put aside that nomination, for with the indorsement of other anti-Tammany organizations there was some chance of an election, and the mayoralty of Greater New York is not an honor offered to every man.

Against this flattering prospect of personal honor, however, Mr. Hughes set his public duty to the investigating committee, and there was not the slightest faltering on his part in choosing the right course to follow. If more men had the same clear vision to see and the courage to follow public good rather than private gain there would not be so many calls for investigations in the republic. Such an example is refreshing.

Third Among Forty.

Charles E. Hughes was born at Glens Falls, N. Y. His father was a Baptist minister. Part of young Hughes' boyhood was spent in Newark, N. J. Later the family moved to New York city, and Charles graduated from one of the most famous high schools of the metropolis, when he was a year too young to enter college. That year he was taught by his father, and the next was spent in a college in New York state. The last three years of the college course, however, were passed at Brown university, where the boy graduated at an early age with the third honor of a class of forty. That class has since been described by one of the professors as "the brightest and meanest" in the history of the institution. How much young Hughes contributed to this reputation for smartness and meanness is not known, but evidences are not lacking that he did his share. The most notable trait about the future lawyer at that time was the ease and facility with which he mastered his lessons. Given fifteen minutes in which to prepare, and he could make a creditable recitation. After leaving college he taught for a time, although his extremely youthful appearance made it difficult for him to secure a situation. He attempted to read law while teaching; but, finding that he could not do two things well, he gave up teaching and entered the Columbia Law school. From this institution he graduated with honors sufficient to secure his admission to the offices of a prominent firm in New York. Failing health, however, caused him to take a law professorship at Cornell university in Ithaca, N. Y., where he remained until in physical condition to return to the metropolis. Here he lectured for a time in one of the law schools of the city and later entered the firm of which he is now the head. He made a specialty of commercial law. In school he had shown an aptitude for mathematics, which is now shown in the capacity for "eating up facts and figures."

Learned the Gas Business.

It was Mr. Hughes' reputation as a commercial lawyer, coupled with the ability he had exhibited as a cross examiner, which caused the legislative committee investigating the gas trust to choose him as its counsel. He has since admitted that at the time he knew absolutely nothing of the gas business. After his thorough manner, however, he went to work reading up, spending night and day on the task. At the end of a week he surprised everybody by his technical and comprehensive grasp of the subject. At one time he requested a firm of expert accountants to find for him the cost to the company of securing gas. They reported that it would take them months to make the necessary investigation. Thereupon Mr. Hughes dug into the books for himself, with the result that in an incredibly short time he had lain the groundwork for bringing out the now famous testimony that the company paid only 28 cents for the gas which it sold to the consumer for $1. Not a bad profit, that.

His Study of Insurance.

At the time of his selection as counsel for the insurance investigation Mr. Hughes says that he knew as little of that subject as previously he had known of gas. A similar course was followed. Two weeks of study night and day followed, and the result was not only a surprise to the public, but to the insurance men themselves. The manner in which the inside secrets of the business were dragged forth indicated that Mr. Hughes is not only an expert cross examiner, but that he has a good working knowledge of the whole insurance question. There are hints that the lawyer has had sources of information at hand other than those contained in the dry record books of the companies; that he has had various tips and private hints from inside sources. There are more jealousies in the insurance business and in other circles of "high finance" than were displayed in the Alexander-Hyde fight. It is not impossible that counsel for an investigation might receive many valuable pointers from those who would never show their hands in the open. At any rate, Hughes seems to be master of the situation.

Charles E. Hughes would not be classed as a brilliant man. He has none of the quality usually called personal magnetism, whatever that stock phrase may mean. His appearance is that of a very ordinary man of affairs. No one would turn to give him a second look. He is quiet, courteous, gentlemanly and methodical. That description will apply to many, perhaps most of the men in business. The quality in Hughes that has attracted most notice is his perfect poise. He is always master of himself and his subject. He never gets rattled, never loses his temper. He resorts to no sensational or "smart" tactics, but quietly and persistently he reaches the point at which he is aiming.

A Pen Portrait.

He is of medium height, rather spare of build, with high, narrow and intellectual forehead, eyes set wide apart, refined nose and the lower part of his face covered by a brown beard. At ordinary times his eyes are half veiled by drooping lids and his face without expression. When interested his entire attitude changes. The eyes are piercing, and his features show alertness and nervous energy. He is fond of golf and mountain climbing, his summers being invariably spent in the Swiss Alps. He is a clear, logical speaker, but scarcely an orator.

Mr. Hughes not only works all day at his office, but usually takes a stenographer home and works evenings. On this head he himself says:

There is a pleasure in achievement, there is an inspiration in work, and work well done will make a man contented with his lot. I believe in work, hard work and long hours of work. I have never known a man to break down from overwork; it is the worries and the dissipations that cause men to break down; work alone will not do it, except in rare cases.

Founded Rockefeller Class.

It is not generally known that Charles E. Hughes founded the Sunday school class now taught by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and still addresses it occasionally, but such is the case. There is no hypocrisy about this keen minded lawyer, however, for he says:

My views on religion are not what most of my church friends would regard as orthodox—in fact, I have rather free views, but I recognize that we have in the churches the greatest conservative force in our affairs and, if for no other reason than this, I feel they should be supported. There is a lot of cant about them, but they have a great power for good, whether one agrees or not with the teachings of their ministers.

One who speaks as frankly as that must have candor and courage, and these two attributes go to make up what Pope declared the "noblest work of God" and what the public evidently deems Charles E. Hughes to be:

An honest man.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

We appreciate the news sent to us from all parts of the town. It is a friendly interest and helps make the local paper what it should be. Always send your name with it, then we know who to thank.

Today is the anniversary of the admission of the first inmate to the Sailors Snug Harbor at Germantown establisbed in 1854. An institution of which we hear but little, but which is a haven for old sailors, and provides them a good home.

A vigorous effort will be made to bring the National Forest Reservation in the White Mountains before Congress this winter. Articles have been prepared by Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Senator Gallinger and a number of others, which will be published during the next few months in "Forestry and Irrigation," the publication of the American Forestry Associatien. It is a good move to make these forests a national reservation.

Ex-Governor John L. Bates continues to hold a warm place in the affections of the Republicans of Massachusetts, as was shown by the enthusiastic greeting given him at the Republican Club banquet. At the eleventh hour he took the place of Secretary Bonaparte, but as usual his speech was vigorous and a good campaign document. He failed to see where Gov. Douglas had fulfilled obligations on some of the issues upon which he was elected, either to labor, to the veterans of the civil war, or in reducing State expenditures which Democrats have in the past alleged to have been extravagant.

The report of water used by different municipalities of the Metropolitan district shows that Boston's big percentage is on the increase. Boston used 87,684,100 gallons per day during September out of a total of 113,735,400 gallons. This was over 78 per cent. Again we ask, does Boston pay 78 per cent. of the cost of maintenance of the Metropolitan system?

The amount used in Quincy was insignificant compared with Boston, only 3,144,600 gallons per day, or less than three per cent. It would amount to precious little to install meters at large cost in Quincy and the other small cities, as they use now, altogether, less than 22 per cent of the water. It is in Boston where there must by economy in the use of water, or they must pay in proportion to water used.

Drift of Opinion.

☞If President Richard A. McCurdy of the Mutual Life isn't any more efficient in the executive chair than he is in the witness chair, the wonder as to what he does to earn more than a hundred-and-fiftieth part of his $150,000 salary is bound to grow.—Hartford Times.

☞A telephone boy who testified in the insurance investigation, and is suspected of having failed to tell the truth, is to be arrested on a charge of perjury, it is said. On the surface it would appear that this youngster was the first witness before the committee to have failed in his oath to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, but there is a suspicion that justice looked over her bandages and sized up some other witnesses who have evaded their oaths. —Haverhill Gazette.

☞Have you heard the siren on the auto? Well, it is awful! We have many reasons to be prejudiced against the automobiles and chauffeurs, they have not been over careful, many have disobeyed the speed laws—but just as they were beginning to win favor, and people were thinking they were learning better and were not so bad after all—they have taken to the shrieking siren—a most terrible wail, that frightens horses and many of us poor mortals that have troublesome nerves.—Beverly Times.

Annual Reports Of Day Nursery

The Quincy Day Nursery has just completed its second year. Mrs. Fanny Sears, the secretary, in brief reports that two very successsul rummage sales were held during the year. Since December an assistant has been employed at the Nursery, and in June three extra rooms were rented. At Christmas a children's party was held and at New Years a reception to mothers and children.

There has been a steady increase in attendance at the Nursery reaching 247 in September; in no month less than 119. The matron is efficient. The association has received many gifts of money, food and clothing. In the yard during the summer there was a pretty flower garden. Thanks are due to many for help.

The treasurer reports $543.38 on hand Jan. 1, 1905, and $165.30 Oct. 1. The receipts were $286.39 including $75.60 from parents, $31.50 from dues, $142.91 from rummage sale, $7.36 in interest and the balance in gifts. The expenses were $664.47, including $111.33 for rent, $803.00 for salaries, $136.09 for groceries, $41.50 for coal, and the balance miscellaneous.

The matron, Miss Gove, reports that the children have greatly enjoyed the sand box and that they took several outings. She says donations of clothing could be put to good use. The total attendence has been 1599, and the monthly average 178. There have been 339 visitors, and donations have amounted to $15.24. Mr. Patch has also given ice throughout the year.

Dr. Frank S. Davis the visiting physician says: "I am pleased to report that my visits to the Day Nursery of Quincy have impressed me very strongly in its favor. Everything in the rooms has appeared well kept and as sanitary as could be expected. There are many things yet to be desired, which will come in good time, if all work as in the past."

Formerly on School Board

John F. Cole, a former well-known resident of West Quincy and a man who had endeared himself to a large circle of acquaintances by his many amiable qualities, died Oct. 12 at the home of his son, Richard A. Cole, 270 Newbury avenue, the well-known and popular letter carrier. Mr. Cole has been in poor health for some time. His funeral was held Saturday morning at the Sacred Heart church where a requiem high mass was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. John P. Cuffe. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Cole was born April 5, 1842, and had been a resident of West Quincy for many years. He was one of the charter members of St. Francis Court, M. C. O. F., and was a past chief ranger of that order. For 12 years he served faithfully as the superintendent of the Sunday school connected with St. Mary's church, and will be affectionately remembered by many young men and women who were pupils there during his superintendency.

In 1889 Mr. Cole was elected a member of the School board and filled that office with credit and ability. He left several sons and daughters who have the sincere sympathy of many friends in the loss of one who was a kind and loving father to his family, and a useful and honorable citizen to the town and city of Quincy.

Stir until it begins to thicken, pour into a mould and set on the ice. Serve in a glass dish and powder the top with chopped almonds.

Norfolk County Not Liable

The rich town of Wellesley did not succeed in saddling upon Norfolk county the numerous claims for land damages. The majority of the supreme bench decided this week that the town of Wellesley must pay the land damages of abutters arising out of the relocation of and widening of Worcester street, overruling a decision of the court in one case which held that the county foot the bills. Chief Justice Knowlton, who wrote the opinion in the overturned case, dissents from the majority opinions in the present cases.

There are 40 land damage suits pending against both the county and the town which will now have to be defended by the town alone, the county being exonerated from liability. The town, which was moved to ask for the improvement of the street in order to grant the Boston & Worcester Street Railway Company a location for its tracks, was given a bond by the street railway company to indemnify it for the expenses, including the land damages.

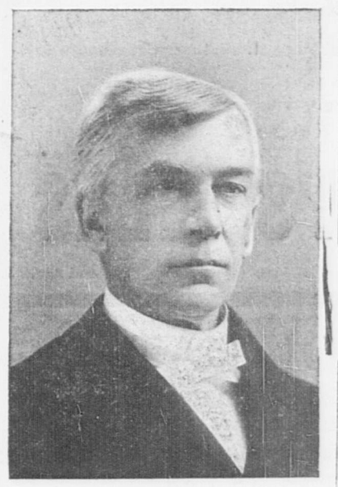
New Pastor At Braintree

Rev. William O. Ayer of Brockton, who has received a call to Braintree to become pastor at the Baptist church was there last Sunday and preached eloquent sermons, morning and evening. He is a genial man, strong in personality and active in his work.



Mr. Ayer was born in Sangerville Village, Piscataquis county, Maine, June 25, 1845, and was converted to Jesus Christ in June 1862 at Bangor, Maine.

The following October he was baptised into fellowship at the First Baptist church in Bangor, by Rev. A. K. P. Small. He graduated from Colby college, Aug. 12, 1868 and the Newton Theological institution, June 14, 1871.

August 9, 1871, Mr. Ayer was united in marriage to Miss Ella M. Stevens, of Waterville, Maine, and they have worked faithfully together until her death the tenth of last August.

Rev. W. O. Ayer was ordained at Peterboro, N.H., Oct. 11, 1871, and was settled as pastor there that year. He has also been pastor of the First Baptist church, Skowhegan, Maine; First Baptist church, Everett, Mass; Baptist church, Livermore Falls, Maine; and the Warren avenue Baptist church, Brockton, Mass. In each place he has worked for several years, especially in the latter, over eleven years.

Mr. Ayer resigned in April from the Warren avenue church in Campello and since that time has been acting pastor until two months ago, when Mrs. Ayer died. Perfect harmony has resigned between pastor and people and it is hoped the Baptist of Braintree and the former supporters of the church will give him their support.

When asked recently if he intended to retire from the ministry he replied emphatically, "No sir, not until the One who called me into it calls me out. I have had too much pleasure while I have preached the gospel and shall continue as long as I possibly can. I feel much younger today than I did twenty years ago and I think I am good for twenty years more of active work."

Although Mr. Ayer has not accepted the call to the Braintree Baptist church he has preached here as a candidate and Sunday was very much pleased by the encouragement given him.

Thayer Academy Notes.

A reception and dance was given last evening in the White Gymnasium, under the auspices of the class of 1907. The president of the class, Mr. Harold Sprague, assisted by Miss Persis Kingsbury, vice-president; Dr. Gallagher, Mr. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Skillings and Miss Sears and her mother, Mrs. Sears, received during the forepart of the evening and dancing followed. Students, their parents and friends, composed the happy gathering and a very pleasant social evening was enjoyed by all.

The Thayer football team went to Hyde Park yesterday afternoon, playing the High school eleven of that place. Although this year's team is comparatively light, yet the boys were confident of making a creditable showing against their heavier opponents.

Y. M. C. A. Convention.

This year's Y. M. C. A. convention in Westfield November 10-12 promises to be, if not the best, one of the best ever held. Mr. T. S. McPheeters, senior member of the McPheeters' Warehouse Company, St. Louis, a member of the International committee and for some fifteen years the efficient chairman of the Missouri state committee, will deliver an address at the banquet Friday evening, Nov. 10, on "Why the Young Men's Christian Association Appeals to Business Men." Another speaker, S. D. Gordon, was for four or five years state secretary of Ohio. He will be remembered as one of the most interesting men on the program of the International convention in Buffalo two years ago.

—Dedham has a Ministers' club which is a great success. It is a good thing for ministers of all denominations to get together once in a while.

Going to California.

Miss Annie H. Leonard, clerk in the office of the City Clerk at City Hall severs her connection with that office today. Miss Leonard has been connected with this office continuously since 1898, and had become thoroughly conversant with the manifold duties of the office and was a valuable assistant. Being of a sunny genial disposition she made for herself a host of friends not only among the employes at City Hall, but among those who daily have business with the office with which she was connected. These friends, while they will miss her at the office, unite in wishing her success and all kinds of good luck in her new home in Los Angelos, Cal., for which city she leaves Monday to accept a lucrative position.

AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

A regular meeting of the Quincy Women's club is to be held at the club house on Tuesday afternoon. A business meeting, when the matter of enlarging the club will be voted upon, will be held at three o'clock, and at half past three Mrs. James H. Wheeler, Jr., of Brookline, will lecture on "William Morris and his legacy to posterity." Mrs. Wheeler is an interesting speaker and a delightful afternoon is promised the club.

The opening meeting of the Junior Friday club on Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lawrence H. Sturtevant was most enjoyable and most of the members were present.

Club women of Somerville are talking of a federation of the clubs of that city. It is a city of clubs and a federation would surely be in line with the fine work done there by the women.

Mark Twain is to be a guest of the College club at their new clubhouse on Commonwealth avenue, Boston, on Tuesday.

Birthday congratulations to Dr. Jeffrey R. Brackett, the friend of the Quincy Women's Club, who was 45 yesterday. Certainly many years of usefulness are ahead for one so young who has obtained renown for charitable work.

A class in Current Events has been formed in connection with the Philergians and will meet with Mrs. R. F. Burleigh of 1010 Washington street, South Braintree, Monday afternoon, Oct. 23d, at three o'clock.

The Wheaton Seminary club met for the first time this season at the Vendome, Boston, on Saturday. A perfect autumn day brought out a large gathering. Graduates of forty years ago met those of last year and the contrast was very marked. Besides new members there were many who had not been able to attend for years. The president, Mrs. Stebbins, greeted the club. The club voted to entertain officers of other clubs at the November meeting. The afternoon's program was very enjoyable, a concert being given by a lad of twelve and a miss of about the same age. Miss Knights, a granddaughter of the school, gave a lecture on her travels in southern Germany. The afternoon closed with the usual tea and social.

A class for the study of French will soon be formed by the Philergians of Braintree.

Ladies of the Monday club, Weymouth with their invited guests filled the hall Monday afternoon and listened to an exposition of "Hiawatha" by a full-blooded Sioux Indian—Professor Charles Eastman. The president Mrs. Heckman after quoting a few lines from Longfellow's poem aptly introduced the speaker. Professor Eastman discoursed on Indian legends and told many interesting traditions of the various tribes. Starting with those the poet Longfellow had transcribed so faithfully in his poem and mentioning others that differed somewhat in this poetical version from the way in which he had known them in the first fifteen years of his life on the plains before he knew A B-C. Professor Eastman was graduated from Boston university in 1890, and shows his training and education despite an occasional idoim that betrays the influence of his native speech and dialect. The president requested that America be sung as the speaker represented the race that owned this land before the white man had formed here a great nation—The United States. The next meeting occurs in three weeks and will be held on November the sixth. Preparations are being completed for Gentleman's night on November the 20th at the New Congregational church, East Weymouth. An open meeting.

The Friday club met yesterday with Mrs. Wilson Marsh of Irving place. During the summer the club lost by death its president, Mrs. Schenkelberger, which saddened what is usually one of the happiest meetings of the year. Mrs. Wilson Marsh has been elected to the presidency, the other officers being Mrs. Wadsworth, secretary and on the executive board besides the president and secretary, Mrs. Z. S. Arnold, Mrs. F. A. Tupper and Mrs. Ernest Cockayne. The club is to continue this season the study of the latter portion of the Victorian era of English history and literature.

The class in Parliamentary Law which meets weekly at the home of Mrs. G. W. Wheeler, Braintree, is well attended and great interest is shown in the work by members of the Philergians.

The Woburn Woman's club has arranged a federation day, a gentlemen's night, a reciprocity day, and a children's day. The club is planning to give a whist party in November, to raise money for philanthropic purposes.

The Somerville Woman's club opens its season this afternoon, when Prof. George Vincent of Chicago university will lecture on "The Larger Selfishness."

The Philergians held the second meeting of the season at Cochato hall, Braintree, Oct. 17th, the president Mrs. O. W. Allen, presiding. The limit of membership is nearly reached, there being now 141 members. Miss Sara A. Hamlin of Dean academy, Franklin, Mass., and Mrs. Myrtie Smith of Medfield, furnished the entertainment of the afternoon. Miss Hamlin related incidents in connection with the life of Tom Moore. She read some of his poems, and Mrs. Smith sang several of his world famous songs, which today ring with as sweet a melody as when first presented to the world. Many interesting anecdotes were related, associated with the history of Ireland and the influence upon her people through the songs of Tom Moore, was vividly and strongly told.—Carolyn A. Bill, R. S.

The first in Current Events lecture course of the Milton Women's club by Mrs. May Alden Ward, was given Monday afternoon in the Assembly hall of the High school and largely attended. She spoke of the conclusion of peace between Russia and Japan and of the political changes in Russia.

The program as made up to Feb. 1st for the meetings of the Quincy Women's club is:

Oct. 10—House warming and musicale.

Oct. 24—Lecture, Mrs. James H. Wheeler, Jr., William Morris and Legacy to Posterity.

Miss Keith Married in Japan

An event of interest to mission circles in Japan, and to a wide circle of friends in America, was the marriage of Miss Cora F. Keith to Rev. Charles M. Warren, which took place at the house of the bride's uncle, Rev. Otis Cary, in Kyoto, Japan, on Sept. 23, 1905. Both bride and groom are missionaries of the American board, and both have been in educational work, Miss Keith being a teacher in Kobe college for girls, Mr. Warren in the Doshisha university.

The day was bright and balmy, and the weather left nothing to be desired.

The three rooms which were thrown together to accommodate the more than a hundred guests, were decorated with vines, potted plants and chrysanthemums, white, yellow and lavender. The bay window where the ceremony took place was turned into a bower with tall feathery bamboos above and potted ferns and palms below, while the adjoining broad piazza was gay with rugs and with draperies of the Japanese and the American flag. Guests from a distance were met at the train by the Kyoto hotel carriage and span, which was at their disposal all day, and afforded a novel and welcome variation from the usual method of conveyance in the land of the jinrikisha.

Promptly at half past two, to the music of Handel's Largo, played by Miss Grace Learned of Kyoto, the bridal procession descended the stairs. It consisted of Rev. and Mrs. Cary, followed by the bride and groom, and after them Rev. and Mrs. Pettee of Okayama. In the ceremony Dr. Cary was assisted by Dr. Pettee, who is pastor of the Mission church of Christ in Japan, of which the bride and groom are both members.

At the close, the benediction "God be merciful unto you and bless you, and cause His face to shine upon you." (Ps. 67: 1) was chanted by a quartette, after which the Aaronic blessing was pronounced by Dr. Cary.

In the reception and collation that followed, congratulations were offered by a very interesting assembly of guests.

At least six different missionary organizations were represented, and four different nationalities. The educational institutions with which the bride and the groom had been connected were present in delegates from both the students and the faculty, the Doshisha being especially well represented by Pres. and Mrs. Niwa and many other distinguished professors with their wives.

The wedding gifts displayed the interesting diversity of products of two hemispheres. The supply of beautiful silver from friends in America blended with and supplemented the dainty porcelain, embroideries and wooden pieces of Japanese manufacture.

The bride's gown was from America, being a silk muslin trimed with ruffles, insertion and a lace yoke.

The bride and groom will spend their honeymoon among the hills of Karuizawa. They will finally be settled in Matsuyama, on one of the southern islands of the empire, where Mr. Warren will engage in evangelistic work.

Their many friends bid them Godspeed as they enter their new home in the south. C. B. DeF.

Same Old Calamity Cry.

The advertising of the Democratic state committee has commenced in the same old calamity cry that Massachusetts is being depressed by the wicked Republicans. They insist that a man must vote for their candidates for governor and lieutenant-governor to "emphasize the appeal to Congress for relief from the tariff burden which threatens to crush the life out of industrial New England." Look over Massachusetts and see if there is much crushing going on. New England today is in better shape industrially than it has been for years, and comparisons with the period when we were under a Democratic administration will offer the best argument to refute this calamity cry. The savings banks deposits of the present day are rising $600,000,000. These are the earnings of the working people. In 1896, when we were under a Democratic tariff, they were only $474,000,000. Is there much crushing about that?

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of soil—of sunshine—and of atmosphere—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and rubbing in vaseline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble—it's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys the germ and healthy hair is the sure result.

MUST HUNT IT OUT

Duty of American Citizens to Smite Corruption

PRESIDENT AT ATLANTA

Declares That Corporations Must Come Under Government Control--Hears Harvard Yell From Technology Students

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 21.—At the luncheon tendered to President Roosevelt here the president, after paying a glowing tribute to Joel Chandler Harris, Uncle Remus, the author, who sat beside him, launched into a speech on the corruption of the public conscience. He said, in part:

"The surest way of blunting the public conscience in dealing with corruption is to confuse the public mind as to who is corrupt and who is not. In our legislative bodies, in our national congress, if you find that any man is corrupt, you are not to be excused if you do not hunt him out of public life, whether he is of one party or whether he is of another.

"So far from asking that you be lenient in your judgment of any public man, I hold that you are recreant to your duty if you are thus lenient. Do not be lenient, but do be just.

"If you know that he is corrupt, if you have good reason to believe that he is corrupt, then refuse under any plea of party expediency, under any consideration, from refraining from smiting him with the sword of the Lord and of Gideon."

During his speech in the earlier part of the day at the fair grounds the president, referring to the growth of corporations and the necessity for government control, said in part:

"There is every reason to be vigilant in searching out what is wrong and unflinchingly resolute in striving to remedy it.

"Take, for instance, the growth of corporations in this country. Undoubtedly there is need of regulation by the government, in the interest of the public, of these great corporations, which in modern life have shown themselves to be the most efficient business implements.

"In my judgment, all corporations doing an interstate business, and this means the great majority, should be held accountable to the federal government, because their accountability should be co-extensive with their field of action."

The president's reception at Atlanta was marked by intense enthusiasm. Not less than 100,000 welcomed him to the city as he proceeded along the line of march to the fair grounds.

A visit was made to the Georgia School of Technology, where the 500 students mingled their college yells with the "Rah, rah, rah" of Harvard, the president's alma mater, and in the latter the president joined heartily, leading the cheer several times. President Roosevelt made a brief address.

After a drive about the city under the escort of the cavalry and the reception committee, the president left for Jacksonville.

The visit of Mrs. Roosevelt to Atlanta was the feature of the day second only to that of her husband. Mrs. Roosevelt was met at the train by a delegation of women headed by the wife of Governor Terrell and Mrs. Clark Howell, who piloted her to the governor's mansion. There a hundred or more of Atlanta's leading society women had gathered to extend their welcome. Mrs. Roosevelt's stay was cut short by the arrival of her train for Washington

CONVICTED OF LARCENY

Climax of Troubles Which Overcame Financier Cole

Boston, Oct. 21.—Colonel Henry W. Comstock, an aged promoter and financier, was convicted in the superior criminal court here, Judge Crosby on the bench, of the larceny of two $1000 New York Central and Lake Shore railroad bonds from Mrs. Cora A. Frothingham of Atlantic. Sentence has not yet been imposed.

Comstock is so infirm that he came to court on crutches. He has been in jail since his arrest last June, refusing to accept bail offered by friends. He gained considerable notoriety last June by reporting to the police that he had been robbed of $112,000 in negotiable securities while a passenger on one of the Fall River line steamers. Before the police investigation was completed Comstock went into bankruptcy, the petition showing liabilities amounting to $300,000.

American Bantamweight a Winner

Chelsea, Mass., Oct. 21.—James Walsh of Newton, Mass., was given a decision over Peter Stanley of London last night, at the conclusion of the first international boxing contest fought in this city for many years. During the early part of the bantamweight bout Stanley did most of the offensive work, but Walsh seemed to be in better condition at the end of the scheduled 15 rounds. Stanley entered a protest when Referee Buckley announced his decision, claiming that he had fairly out-pointed Walsh.

Tragedy Blocks a Wedding

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 21.—A wedding last night was thwarted when William King of Boston, a horse trainer, who came to wed Katherine Sebec, shot C. W. Scott, a whisky dealer, a guest for the wedding. King and Scott quarreled and Scott was shot in the face and is not expected to survive. When arrested King asserted that his betrothed had shot Scott. The woman denied the crime and the police say that King fired the shot.

There have been several encounters and yesterday afternoon Eugene Magruder was badly cut in the face and had three teeth knocked out by a brick thrown by a negro.

Business Confidence Expanding

New York, Oct. 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that activity broadens in commercial channels and confidence expands because of the many evidences of conservatism. Business is brisk and improving, yet there is no disposition to start a boom either in commodities or securities. Manufacturers are receiving liberal orders for remote deliveries.

Baby Scalded to Death

Boston, Oct. 21.—Louis Stone, 2 years old, died at his home from scalds received from hot soup. His brother, Myer, who is 10 years old, tripped in walking down stairs at their home and he stumbled over an oil stove on which a pot of soup was being cooked. The baby was playing on the floor and the hot soup was spilled on him, causing the injuries from which he died.

Middletown, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Martin Ingerick, the only survivor of the tragedy at the Olney farm two weeks ago, has sufficiently recovered from the injuries she sustained at that time to be informed of the deaths of her daughter and the two Olney brothers. She says that she has no recollection of anything in connection with the crime.

It is expected that the trouble will be soon adjusted.

Final Payment For Friar Lands

Manila, Oct. 21.—The question of the friar lands purchase was practically settled when the commission paid the Dominican order $3,225,000, which is the last payment. The sum of $7,000,000 was appropriated for the purchase of the friar lands in the Philippine islands. The friars held about 403,000 acres of land.

PRINCE LOUIS' VISIT.

How He and His Men Will Be Entertained In New York.

To entertain properly the jack tars of the squadron of Prince Louis of Battenberg, who is coming here in November, the enlisted men aboard Rear Admiral Evans' battleship squadron have raised $10,000. Not a man in the fleet failed to contribute, the Japanese stewards vieing with the negro stokers. Some of the fund is to be spent at Annapolis before the squadron of Queen Victoria's grandson gets to New York.

Escorted by Rear Admiral Brownson's division of four armored cruisers, the British squadron will leave Annapolis on Nov. 8, arriving at New York the next morning, the 9th being the king's birthday. There will be considerable gunpowder expended as the visitors make their way up the bay to their appointed berths in the North river. There will be the national salute of twenty-one guns from the Drake as she approaches Governors island, which will be answered by an equal number from the saluting battery of the post.

Then as the Drake nears the North river anchorage the flag of Rear Admiral Evans flying from the battleship Maine will be saluted with thirteen guns, the Maine replying gun for gun in honor of the admiral's flag which Prince Louis flies on the Drake.

In all likelihood the Coney Island entertainment of the visiting bluejackets by the bluejackets of Rear Admiral Evans' fleet will prove the most spectacular feature of the entire programme. Twelve hundred American bluejackets will entertain an equal number of British bluejackets. There is to be a mighty dinner at one of the Coney Island hotels, to which the men will go in two chartered steamboats. After the dinner there will be a vaudeville entertainment.

WOMAN STEEPLEJACK.

Mrs. Corbett Mounts High Flagstaff and Dexterously Wields Brush.

Mrs. Charles J. Corbett, who claims to be the only female steeplejack in the world, awed pedestrians on State street, Trenton, N. J., recently by ascending a flagstaff rising from the roof of the Broad Street bank building to a height of 120 feet, says the New York American. She appeared a mere speck in the air, and men and women held their breath as she swayed in the high wind that swept the city.

Mrs. Corbett has been engaged with her husband in this city at painting the gas tank of the Public Service corporation. For two weeks she has gone to her work daily sitting in a saddle rigged by her husband and dextrously wielding a brush. The woman is only twenty-three years old and since her marriage to Corbett three years ago has been his colaborer, going fearlessly to the top of the highest flagstaffs. She is a woman of education and dresses stylishly and with good taste while on the street. When at work she wears bloomers. Her skin is browned by the sun and wind, and she is a picture of health.

Mrs. Corbett was born in Clayton, Mass. She says she has always been fond of adventure and in her childhood shocked her acquaintances by doing stunts in the topmost branches of the highest trees and on the ridge poles of buildings. She met her husband, a professional steeplejack, while he was painting a spire of a church in Clayton and prevailed on him to send her up to the top of the steeple. The townspeople were amazed at the feat, but Mrs. Corbett said she felt as much at home at the top of the steeple as she did on the ground. The acquaintance that began in the shadow of the little church in Clayton ripened into love, and three years ago Miss Urbons became Mrs. Corbett.

New Life Saving Coat.

A London tailor has invented a new life saving coat and gaiters, with which it is possible for a person clothed therein to maintain an upright position when immersed in the water, even if not possessing a knowledge of swimming, says the Scientific American. The coat resembles in appearance an ordinary pilot coat, but it is fitted with an air belt, which is inflated with air through a tube. The gaiters each weigh two pounds and are fitted with two brass wings, or blades, fastened to the back of the heel. As the wearer moves his feet in the water these wings open and shut and not only propel the wearer along like oars, but enable him to maintain an upright position from the waist upward in the water. A practical demonstration of the utility of the invention was recently undertaken in the river Thames by the inventor and its efficiency and life saving qualities clearly shown, even when moving against the tide.

Vivisection by Women.

Eight women students have entered a large class in vivisection, which will be taught this quarter at the University of Chicago, says a Chicago dispatch to the New York Times. They will experiment on dogs, for which they pay 50 cents each; cats, for which they pay 25 cents, and, as one of the instructors said, on "anything else they can get hold of." This course will be conducted notwithstanding continuous protests made all over the country by individuals and humane institutions.

Hospital For Fishes.

Practice vs. Preaching!

In voting a man should use discrimination and choose between the Practice of the members of one party and the Preaching of the other for campaign effect.

Republican Candidates Who Practice What They Preach.

HON. CURTIS GUILD, JR.

TO SAVE THE CHILDREN.

At the recent convention of the State Federation of Labor a resolution was passed endorsing

HON. CURTIS GUILD, Jr.,
Republican Candidate for Governor, for his efforts in behalf of the abolition of child labor in this country. He was recognized as the true friend of labor.

A MODEL MILL TOWN.

Students of labor conditions have placed their seal of approval upon Hopedale, the mill town which

HON. EBEN S. DRAPER,
Republican Candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, and his family have established, and 3000 or more people find work in plenty there, at good wages and under the most beautiful and beneficent surroundings.

HON. EBEN S. DRAPER.

What have the Democratic candidates done to equal this? Which is the true friend of labor, the man who does things for labor at every opportunity, or the man who is continually telling what he would do if he ever had the opportunity and then dodges the opportunity?

THE TRUE FRIENDS OF LABOR ARE GUILD AND DRAPER.

DERELICT IN DUTY

Ring's Administration Lax and Inefficient

TO LOSE HIS POSITION

Trial by Court Martial Considered by the Navy Department--Censure For Officers Who Personally Corresponded on Matters of an Official Nature

Washington, Oct. 21.—The action of the navy department upon the report of the court of inquiry convened at the request of Pay Director James A. Ring, U. S. N., to inquire into his administration of the office of general storekeeper at the Boston navy yard, was made public at the navy department. Following is the official statement:

"The court finds that Pay Director Ring has been negligent and careless in the performance of his duties in a number of instances; that his administration of his office has been lax and inefficient beyond excuse, and that he has shown a disregard of the provisions of the navy regulations to such an extent as to constitute a grave dereliction of duty. The court, however, after mature deliberation upon the whole subject, recommends that no further proceedings in the premises be taken.

"The facts brought out by the court are, in the department's judgment, sufficient to fully support the findings and they are accordingly approved, but the recommendation against further proceedings cannot be approved. In fact, it has been a subject of very serious concern to the department whether the interests of the service do not demand trial of Pay Director Ring by court martial for his evident failures of duty disclosed in this record.

"In view, however, of the court's distinct recommendation against such action, and of the fact that no corrupt motive on the part of Pay Director Ring is shown for his omission to comply with the regulations, the department concludes, upon a view of the whole matter, that the interests of the service would be best served in this particular case by the refusal of his request that he be restored to duty as general storekeeper, and by an expression of the department's dissatisfaction with his official action.

"The court further finds that personal correspondence on official matters has been held between certain officers, but it does not appear from the evidence that there existed any improper motives on the part of these officers.

"Such conduct is regarded as, in the language of the court, 'subversive of discipline' and liable to serious abuse. The court recommends that the department express its marked disapproval of this method of treating official business. This recommendation will be carried out and letters of admonition will be addressed to the officers concerned, it being regarded as of great importance that the restrictions of the navy regulations as to what matters should be avoided in personal correspondence must be observed most carefully."

Some of the silverware found in her room has the names of the Waldorf, Empire and others hotels on it.

Counterfeiting In Hawaii

Honolulu, Oct. 21.—A federal grand jury is investigating the case of alleged counterfeiting by men who sailed from Honolulu on the army transport Sherman. A confession is said to have been made by one of the defendants, implicating others. It is expected that indictments will be found against two prisoners, who are in San Francisco, and that they will be brought back for trial.

One Ward "Shy" a Signature

Boston, Oct. 21.—Judge Lawton has dismissed as legally insufficient the petition of John A. O'Keefe and 190 others against the city of Lynn for an investigation of the water board of that city. Under the law the signatures of 25 property owners or taxpayers of each of the seven wards of Lynn are required to give the petition standing. It bore but 24 signatures from ward 7, and this was the reason for its being thrown out of court.

Czar to Lose Ducal Adviser

St. Petersburg, Oct. 21.—Although a rescript announcing the retirement of Grand Duke Vladimir has been drawn up for publication in the Official Messenger, it is said that efforts that are now being made to restore the former relations between the grand duke and the czar will possibly be successful. The retirement of Vladimir would deprive the czar of one of the last of his grand ducal advisers.

TEN VESSELS WRECKED

At Least a Dozen Lives Lost In Storm on the Great Lakes

Chicago, Oct. 21.—The storm which swept over northern Lake Michigan, Lake Huron and Lake Erie was one of the most severe in recent years. As far as returns are obtainable, 10 vessels have been completely wrecked and 12 or 15 others more or less seriously damaged. Twelve lives are known to have been lost, and the gale on southern Lake Huron and Lake Erie is still blowing fiercely and it is feared that other losses both of life and property will be reported.

The gale on Lake Michigan was the worst this year. The boats around Chicago were comparatively safe, as the gale was off shore. The east shore of Lake Michigan suffered severely. Wharf property was swept away at St. Joseph, South Haven, Holland, Grand Haven and Muskegon. The total damage is $50,000. Much summer resort property along the west shore of Lake Michigan was damaged. The storm did not work as much havoc on Lake Superior as on the lower lakes.

Million Dollar Verdict Reversed

New York, Oct. 21.—The state supreme court has handed down a decision reversing a decision by a lower court which had awarded $1,000,000 to Morris C. Menges in a suit against President Fitzgerald of the Mercantile Trust company of New York city. Menges alleged that he had given valuable information to Fitzgerald which led to the purchase of the Western Maryland railroad by a syndicate for Wabash railroad interests, and that Fitzgerald has promised to pay him $1,000,000 if the sale was accomplished. A new trial was ordered.

CHICAGO GIRL'S EXPLOIT

Miss E. L. Baker First Woman to Climb Mount Breithorn.

THE ASCENT MADE BY MOONLIGHT

She Scaled 13,777 Foot Peak In Alps and Accomplished Round Trip In Twenty-four Hours — Strange Delusions and Yearning For Crackers and Milk Assailed Young Woman on Her Journey Into the Clouds.

Over dizzy crevasses where woman never climbed before, up slippery inclines where a single misstep meant death, dangled by a rope from precipitous heights and hauled back almost starved and beset by strange delusions, these are a few of the perils passed through by Miss Edith Lee Baker of Chicago, who has conquered the Breithorn, a 13,777 foot peak in the Alps, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Miss Baker, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Baker, has accomplished what many women have attempted to do and failed. She ascended the Breithorn, a snow covered mountain fifteen feet higher than the world famed Jungfrau, and made the return, all in twenty-four hours of heart breaking toil, fatigue and privation.

Many women have tried the ascent before, but no woman, with the single exception of Miss Baker, can boast that she ended the adventure by a triumphant return inside of twenty-four hours. In a letter to friends in Chicago Miss Baker has described her feat.

Miss Baker is just five feet tall. Her father is a retired real estate man and former president of the Chicago Cold Storage company. He and his wife gave up their home in Chicago to accompany their daughter to Europe.

Miss Baker spends her vacation period in mountain climbing. The Bakers make their home in Neuilly, a suburb of Paris. Leaving Zermatt, where she was stopping with her father and mother, on the morning of Sept. 10, Miss Baker reached the Theodule Cabane in the afternoon of the same day, a tremendous climb for a woman. With only a short rest she started at 9 p. m. of the same day to climb to the summit by moonlight. She reached the top at 11:30 and then ended the journey by making the descent to Cabane. Miss Baker expects to climb the Matterhorn, 14,705 feet, another season. Emil Perren was her guide on the Breithorn climb.

"It was the prettiest little ascent imaginable," said Miss Baker in a letter. "You should see me hold on to a rock with my teeth. There was one place, though, where, I regret to say, I dangled. It was an absolutely smooth, slippery slab of rock with a tiny foothold, a crack, just four inches beyond the very farthest stretch of my toe, and a hand hold one foot too high, so I swung in space—it seemed an age to me—until the guide hauled me up.

"The Breithorn is fifteen feet—think of it—higher than the Jungfrau, which I climbed last summer, but I am sorry to say it is less difficult, although with lots of ice and snow, a test of endurance to mountain climbing. At the Cabane I had bouillon and a dab of omelet in a sea of grease. After this magnificent meal I went into the kitchen to warm by the stove, the only fire in that frozen place. Heaven deliver me from the remembrance of that kitchen!

"This cabane is a sort of an awful inn—five rooms, 26 francs each, and nothing to eat.

"I felt the altitude and suffered by it, but was determined to accomplish the full ascent. When well up, so far up in the world of ice it seemed return might be impossible, I began to crave warm milk. Of course it was impossible to get it there, but the thought—the torturing thought—kept with me that I must have warm milk. Not having this, I remembered a roll left over from my luncheon. That roll—the best I ever tasted—with a little cold tea, had to last me from 10 o'clock until 5. I never had starved before, and I never want to again.

"You get strange delusions when at these high altitudes and without the food you really need. Every mountain and every inclosed valley I saw on the long descent became to me huge bowls of crackers in which hot milk bubbled, and yet I could not dip into them and have my fill. When I reached Zermatt at last my first words to papa were a cry for crackers and hot milk, and he said afterward there were real tears in my voice. I drank gallons of water when I could get it. They wouldn't let me touch the snow. But the water actually didn't taste wet, really and truly. That hot milk was wet, tasted so good, and made me feel less hungry. Then I went to bed.

"Every peak of the southern Alps and the dim chains of the Oberland, too, were visible in that wonderful unearthly light. And the snow and the deep shadows—it was beyond this world!

"After it was all over it really made me ashamed of myself. I had made a double ascension never accomplished by any woman before, and I had seen such splendors and glories of the Alpine world as I had never dreamed existed, but the only thing I could think of when I was safe at home was the awful needs of my stomach.

"Now that I am myself again I can hardly write of what I saw on the Breithorn in the wonderful moonlight. There are some memories that overwhelm me and are beyond expression. They are too near now, too sacred and divine, to write freely of. I cannot really say I saw these things with my eyes. Rather my soul felt them."

BRAINTREE.

The young people about town are making preparations to observe the Hallowe'en season in a proper and enjoyable manner.

Mr. B. A. Lovering of Columbia, N. H., took advantage of the fall excursion to Boston and is spending a week with his sister-in-law, Mrs. W. L. Holmes. He reports snow on the mountains and frozen ground at home.

Rev. C. F. H. Crathern attended the annual meeting of the American Missionary association at the Old South church, Worcester, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

Miss Nellie McGuinnis of Calais, Maine, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Welch of Tremont street, is receiving congratulations from her friends. For many weeks she has suffered with a severe and complicated sprain of the ankle. She has lately been through a dangerous operation at the Carney hospital, and it is now believed that she will soon be entirely recovered.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Sweeney and family have moved from Crescent avenue into the house on Dyer hill owned by Eugene E. Hall.

Died on Oct. 6, Sarah Harris Baldwin, widow of Dr. Elijah Baldwin, of Canterbury, Conn., formerly of South Braintree.

Mrs. Mildred Dexheimer of Quincy, will visit South Braintree, Oct. 23, and act as inspecting officer of Antietam camp auxiliary.

The first of the series of pleasant services was given in the South Congregational church last Sunday evening. An illustrated lecture with stereopticon views on the subject "How the Poor Live in a Great City" was given by the pastor and taught the audience many new lessons.

The entertainment last night in the Town hall by John and Mary McCay, brother and sister, both blind, was very much enjoyed by those who were able to attend. Miss M. E. C. Bannon, a popular teacher in the Noah Torrey school, deserves great credit for the success of the affair.

Mrs. William Baker, 82 years of age, of Weymouth, passed away on Saturday having been an invalid for months. She was a life-long resident of Weymouth and was a daughter of the late Peter Cushing of Washington square. Deborah Cushing Baker and Rev. Melvin Nash conducted the funeral on Monday.

John Rennie died at his home on Union street, Monday morning at 9.45, in his 92d year. He was born in Wigtown, Scotland, March 21, 1814 and his first home in America was in Hopkinton, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Yutema will start on Monday to visit their old home in Holland.

Miss Miriam Thayer, now of the Somerville Latin school, visited former pupils and friends in town, Saturday and Sunday.

The King's Daughters entertainment at Union church was a musical, social and financial success. The merry and pleasing cantata by the children under the direction of Mrs. H. B. Bachelder was greatly enjoyed. The tables of home-made candy, aprons, cakes, preserves and ice cream, were soon despoiled of their contents, under the efficient charge of the Unity Circle.

The members of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post, G. A. R., the members of the Women's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans and the Daughters of Veterans are cordially invited to attend the historical and patriotic lectures in the South Congregational church on Sunday evenings.

A large delegation from Union church attended the fall conference of Congregational churches at East Weymouth on Tuesday. The disapprobation of the members present at the action of the New York federation committee, in refusing to accept Dr. E. E. Hale, Dr. Samuel Eliott and John D. Long as delegates to a federation of religions, was clearly manifested. Resolutions expressing this regret were passed and it was voted to send a copy of the same to the New York committee and also a copy to be published in the Congregationalist.

Mr. J. B. Poore was publicly installed as the second highest officer of Blue Hill lodge 208, A. O. U. W., at G. A. R. Hall, last Wednesday evening. D. D. G. M. W. Charles F. Greene and suite of Brockton, performed the solemn and impressive ceremonies of installation, and the ladies present were greatly pleased with the entertainment. Foreman Poore made a graceful and eloquent speech in acceptance of the office, followed by M. W. Warren B. Keith who presided, and M. W. E. G. Annis who spoke at length relative to the proposed Degree of Honor lodge which will probably be instituted Nov. 15th. The new lodge is already certain of a representative membership, and with such a live committee as Messrs. Burleigh, Keith, and Annis should be a success. Several of the members expect to visit Norfolk lodge of Norfolk Downs on Monday evening.

Rev. Samuel Morrison of Maple street had the misfortune to scald his foot and being unable to get about the house Mrs. Kingsbury of River street has been attending to the needs of Mr. Morrison and wife.

Today the shooting season of the Kennel club will open at Meadow Brook farm. A blackbird trap has been added to the lot of pigeon traps and will be used today for the first time.

Registrars of voters hold a meeting in Engine hall, East Braintree, this evening. Oct. 25 they meet in Engine hall, Braintree, and the 28th in the Town house.

Rev. William O. Ayer occupied the pulpit of the Braintree Baptist church last Sunday. In the evening, he took his text from Psalm 48-14: "He will be our guide even unto death" and preached an able discourse to a goodly congregation.

Mrs. Adelaide Jackson of Middle street, who was operated upon last Saturday at the Bay State hospital, Boston, is reported comfortable and hopes for complete recovery.

The Knights of Pythias held their first whist party of the season at quarters Thursday evening. A good number gathered together for the first party.

Tuesday morning a cow, owned by Mr. Roulston of Union street, while pastured in the Hollis lot on Middle street, fell head first into a well. She was pulled out by H. M. Hollis and others just in time to save her from strangulation.

The removal of the stone wall is a great improvement to the beautiful estate of Mr. T. A. Watson on Quincy avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Dwight of Dorchester attended service at Union church on Sunday morning, renewing former associations. They were warmly welcomed by their friends after service. They dined with Mrs. E. C. Richards and Mrs. H. B. Bachelder of Washington street, Weymouth.

On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of next week, there will be held a series of Evangelistic meetings at the M. E. church, to be conducted by the clergymen of the neighboring Methodist churches. Two different speakers each evening. Everyone will be welcome to come.

Wednesday evening was a gala night at Cochato club. Invitations had been issued for a barn dance. The large hall was profusely decorated with cornstalks, squashes and autumn foliage under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Arnold and Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Perry. Mullally's orchestra furnished fine music.

The Jar of Coughing

Hammer blows, steadily applied, break the hardest rock. Coughing, day after day, jars and tears the throat and lungs until the healthy tissues give way. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral stops the hard coughing, heals the torn membranes.

We have no secrets! We publish the formulas of all our medicines. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Another big program, fully as strong as that of the preceding six days is announced from Keith's for the week of Oct. 23. Hal Davis and Inez Macauley will be the principal attraction, presenting the well known comedy melodrama, "Pals,' which scored a big hit at Keith's about two years ago. Mr. Davis and Miss Macauley will be supported by an excellent company, the scenic surroundings will be unusually good and the closing portion of the act is said to be the most stirring bit of entertainment in the varieties. The surrounding show is a notable one, including the Six Valdares, one of the best troupes of comedy and trick bicyclists in their line; Stuart, Barnes, "the Chesterfield of monologue comedians;" May Belfort, a pleasing singing comedienne from Europe; Fred Ward and John Curran, in a new version of "The Terrible Judge;" Kern's mimic dog, presenting quite a novelty in that line; the Maginleys, in an aerial acrobatic specialty, and the Durbyelle sisters, finger shadowgraphists. The usual new list of comedy and interesting notion pictures will be shown in the kinetograph. Underlined for the week of Oct. 30 are the Six Musical Cuttys, presenting one of the most artistic musical acts in the varieties.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The popularity of Sardou's "Cleopatra" at the Castle Square Theatre during the past week has been unprecedented. Hundreds of people have been turned away at every performance, and as a result, the management has been compelled to cancel all previous arrangements and to continue "Cleopatra" through the coming week, the second of its engagement. The spectacular effects, the scenery, and the acting have all combined to make "Cleopatra" the sensation of the theatrical week in Boston.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

Next week the Empire attraction will be the dramatized version of "Richard Carvel" made by Edward E. Rose and successfully played through the country by John Drew and his company a few seasons ago. The interesting story told by Winston Churchill of life in Maryland in the years 1775-77 is reproduced in the play in a condensed form, retaining, however, all its important events and introducing most of the characters so skilfully drawn by the author of the novel. To meet the demands of the cast of this play a large number of extra people have been engaged and the regular members of the Empire Stock Company will be given especially interesting opportunities.

The Assessors' table of aggregates for 1905 is published below in comparison with other years. The population of Quincy by the census this year was 28,067, and as there are only 3,657 resident individuals assessed, about one in eight are taxpayers.

Row at Italian Christening

There was a christening at the house of Antoni Castoni at 102 Field street on Sunday. The gathering was peaceful enough at the start, but before it wound up became lively and developed into a row, during which it is alleged that several shots were fired. Word reached the police of what was going on, and Lieut. McKay accompanied by Officer Goodhue, Lyons and Holloran went to the scene in the patrol wagon.

They placed five men under arrest for disturbing the peace, viz: Antonio Castoni, Frank Madonna, Carmini Carueo, Giovanni Frogoni and Pantokeone Vintrio.

Upon being searched at the police station a razor was found on Castoni's person, while Madonna had several cartridges and two razors.

It is claimed that a row followed an argument, during which Madonna drew a revolver and fired several shots, none of which took effect.

Religious Union.

The second meeting of the Wollaston Young People's Religious Union was held in the Unitarian vestry Sunday evening at seven o'clock. After the usual opening exercises Miss Almira Simmons gave a short talk on the fair, "Scenes from Bookland," to be held at 25 Beacon street, Boston, this week. The president then introduced the speaker of the evening, Frank E. Parlin, who spoke on "Clean thinking and speaking." He took his subject in the broadest sense and gave such an excellent talk that all present were, greatly interested and instructed by it.

Burns Prove Fatal.

Theodore Roosevelt, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Myett of Baxter street, died Sunday evening at the City Hospital from burned received at home that morning. He was playing with his father's overall, when he started a fire from some matches in the pocket. Mrs. Myett was also badly burned about the hands and arms in trying to save the child.

The child was alone up stairs at the time, and the mother hearing the cries rushed to the room and found her child enveloped in flames. With some difficulty she extinguished the flames with a rug.

The child was badly burned about the body, arms, legs and head. He was attended by Dr. Ellsworth who ordered his removal to the City Hospital.

No New Cases.

The changes at the Coddington school were not completed this morning, and it was necessary to dismiss the school as the carpenters were noisy. Mr. Bentley, the head master, reports, that there have been no new cases of diphtheria for ten days.

The Thayer Academy foot ball team was shut out by Hyde Park High on Saturday who scored 46 points, making 7 touchdowns and kicking 6 goals.

—A novel feature in the harvest decorations at St. John's, Blackpool, London, has attracted much attention at the services. A poor woman, unable to afford fruit, flowers or vegetables, still anxious to give her mite, filled a bottle with water, and labeling it "Thank God for the rain," sent it to the church. The Vicar, appreciating her good intentions, gave it a prominent place among the decorations.

—A most graceful act is that of the offer of King Edward of a Bible to Bruton Parish, of Williamsburg, Virginia, the second oldest church, and the longest in continuous service in the country, in honor of its 300th anniversary.

Drift of Opinion.

☞No one seems to know the why and the wherefore of the president's order of a few days ago prohibiting employes of the government from instructing or aiding applicants for civil service positions in preparation for their examinations. Possibly it was to prevent actual or pretended information as to examination papers, and if it was, the order might well have been extended to a statute which could be enforced against the score and more of preparatory schemes which are advertised all over the country and which, because of their headquarters in Washington, pretend to have special opportunities for giving their patrons privileged information and training for such examinations. As a rule, they are frauds from the start and by false representations coax gullible men and women into the scramble for government positions and get their ducats for substantially no return.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ Are we to have no more "Gibson girls?" It would seem so, for the artist who has made them popular has decided to cast them off, and make no more line drawings in black and white. We shall miss the dear creatures, for while there are many imitators of the Gibson style, there is only one Gibson, and the creations of his pencil can never be mistaken for others. Last year he attempted something in pastel, and was so well pleased with its reception by the art critics that he has decided to go to Europe, and take a long course of study in paint and color. It is too early to assume that he has made a mistake, but it is not often that an artist who has made a name in one field of art can step into another and win success. Gibson is still young, being only 38, and having conquered in the line which he has made famous, possesses an ambition to win other victories. If he succeeds, he will place his name high on the honored hall of genius.—Lynn Item.

THE PEOPLE ALL

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well, for the information of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means, a destroyer or killer of "Herpes," Now "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys; after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists. CLEARLY DEFINED

Rights of Yankee Fishermen Off Treaty Coast

WILL NOT BE MOLESTED

No Distinction Between Registered and Licensed Vessels--Crews Must Not Be Shipped Within Three Miles of the Newfoundland Coast

Hamilton, Mass., Oct. 23.—That the Gloucester fishing fleet is practically secure against molestation by the Newfoundland authorities in the pursuit of the herring on the treaty coast of the island was asserted last night by the receipt of the following telegram by Congressman Gardner from Secretary of State Root:

"This department is advised by the British ambassador, on the authority of a telegram to him from the governor of Newfoundland, that no Newfoundland official is preventing American vessels from fishing on the treaty coast; that no distinction is being drawn between registered and licensed vessels; that the local officers in Newfoundland have been told that American captains must not engage crews off the Newfoundland coast to fish for them, but no objection is made to their using the nets themselves.

You may advise your constituents in Gloucester, in order that they may infrom their captains on the treaty coast, that any prohibitions which there may have been by Newfoundland officers against fishing by registered vessels can now be ignored, and American vessels, whether registered or licensed, may now proceed to take any kind of fish.

"If any vessel has in its crew any men shipped within three miles of the Newfoundland coast, such men should be discharged."

Mr. Gardner immediately communicated the telegram to the Gloucester Board of Trade, with the result that D. B. Smith & Co. sent the following message to their vessels in the Bay of Islands:

"Secretary of state telegraphs to Congressman Gardner that any prohibition by local Newfoundland officials against fishing in registered vessels can be ignored. He also directs that if any vessel has in its crew men shipped within three miles of the Newfoundland coast, such men shall be discharged."

There are nearly a score of vessels at the Bay of Islands from Gloucester, the herring having struck in about 10 days ago, and others are leaving daily for the fishing, which is said to be fairly good.

Fiona's Orders Disregarded

Boston, Oct. 23.—Congressman Gardner, in an interview last night, said: "As a matter of fact we have known for two or three days that the Newfoundland government had not carried out its notice to our fishermen that they would not be permitted to fish in American vessels. Under advice from Gloucester our registered vessels began to fish about three days ago, disregarding the orders from the Newfoundland cutter Fiona, the local customs officials and the manifesto of the secretary of the Newfoundland fisheries board."

Russian Traffic Tied Up

Moscow, Oct. 23.—Traffic on seven of the nine main trunk arteries of commerce radiating from Moscow is completely paralyzed by the railroad strike, and the commercial heart of Russia has been shut off from all communication with the rest of the empire except with a narrow section to the northwestward. The revolutionists, by a sudden and unexpected blow, have shown their ability to lay their hands on the throats of the nation's commercial life.

Pope Pius X Honored

Rome, Oct. 23.—A monument to Pope Pius X, subscribed for by Catholics all over the world, was unveiled at Riese, the little village in the Venitian provinces where the pope was born. The pope is represented in the act of administering a benediction. The eldest sister of the pope and other relatives, who own an inn called "The Two Swords," where they themselves serve the customers, were the recipients of much attention.

ROSE'S BODY RECOVERED

The Medical Examiner Declares Death Due to Drowning

Providence, Oct. 23.—The body of John Rose, the deckhand who disappeared from the coal barge Hamilton Fish on Oct. 14, as she was lying in the Providence river, after a quarrel with the captain, was found yesterday floating in the bay off Pawtuxet. Medical Examiner Longfellow held an autopsy and gave his opinion that, although several bruises were found on the man's head, they were not serious, and that death was due to drowning.

The captain of the barge, Robert M. Lanier, was arrested the day following Rose's disappearance, charged with assault, and is at present out on $4000 bail, pending a trial of the case. His vessel is supposed to be at present at Newport News.

The captain claimed that Rose threatened to kill him and assaulted him, and that in self-defense he struck Rose over the head with one of his shoes which he had in his hand at the time. Rose then jumped overboard and swam some distance, when he disappeared. Search was made for him, but he could not be found, and it was a question whether he had been drowned or whether he had reached the shore safely and remained in hiding to avoid arrest for mutinous conduct.

Alleged Shooting at Neighbor

Bangor, Me., Oct. 23.—Albert Wood of Eddington, aged 14, charged with murderous assault on Ernest Cyr of the same place, was held in $2000 for the grand jury after a hearing in court here. Cyr, who was Wood's nearest neighbor, was awakened during the night by the barking of a dog. Raising the window, Cyr was ordered to throw up his hands. He dropped to the floor and at the same instant a bullet came crashing through the window just above his head.

Collision of Electric Cars

Westfield, Mass., Oct. 23.—Ten persons were slightly injured last night in a collision between two electric cars on the line running between Westfield and Holyoke. None of the injured sustained broken bones or internal injuries. A car bound for Holyoke was standing on a switch when the Westfield bound car came rapidly along, jumped the switch and struck the stationary car a glancing blow, shattering all the glass in both cars.

Tug Bumped Into Schooner

Chatham, Mass., Oct. 23.—Schooner Mary Weaver of Portland, Me., Machias for New York, had her mainboom and davits shorn off and the mainsail torn in a collision off Highland light an hour before dawn with an unknown tug, bound north with a tow of three three-masted barges. The hull of the Weaver was not injured, and word was sent to Boston for a tug to tow her to that port.

Journeyman Plumbers Organize

Providence, Oct. 23.—Plans were perfected here last night for the permanent organization of New England journeymen plumbers. The new organization, which will be known as the New England Convention of Journeymen Plumbers, is formed for the purpose of effecting a more thorough organization of the craft in New England. T. H. Maddox of Hartford was elected president.

Brothers Were Unfortunate

Willimantic, Conn., Oct. 23.—John C. Dondero, 27 years old, died last evening as the result of an injury received in a football game at Jewett City Saturday. Doctors state that a cerebral hemorrhage was the cause of his death, superinduced by the player's poor physical condition at the time. A brother of Dondero was kicked in the eye soon afterward and will lose the optic.

Another East Rock Victim

New Haven, Oct. 23.—In attempting to climb the face of East rock, John Tracy, 22 years old, slipped after almost completing his task and fell headlong down the jagged side of the rock, a distance of 100 feet. His head was cut open, several bones were broken and he is internally injured. Several persons have been killed trying to scale East rock. Tracy cannot recover.

Providence, Oct. 23.—An outing of the What Cheer Social club of this city, held at Moswamsscut lake, was marred by the drowning of William E. Dwyer, 27 years old, in a boating accident. Dwyer and two companions were out rowing when a change of seats was decided upon, this operation causing the overturning of the boat.

Textile Council Against Manufacturers' Plan

WANT STRAIGHT SCALE

Raise of Slightly Over Fourteen Percent Preferred to Five Percent and Profit Sharing Plan --How Operatives Look at It

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 23.—The Fall River Textile council, representing the organized cotton mill operatives of the city, yesterday decided to refuse the offer made by the Manufacturers' association last week to advance wages 5 percent and introduce a profit-sharing plan. The council had requested the restoration of the reduction of 12½ percent, which went into effect July 25, 1904. No immediate trouble in the mills is anticipated as the result of the disagreement and it is probable that further negotiations will be conducted.

The Textile council held a special session of 2½ hours' duration and, according to Secretary Taylor, the sentiment was unanimous that the council should insist upon a straight advance of slightly over 14 percent. The secretary was instructed to send the following notice to Secretary Hathaway of the Manufacturers' association:

"Your letter of Oct. 17, containing a proposition of the Manufacturers' association to substitute a 5 percent advance and a sliding scale of wages has been received and fully considered by the council and I am instructed to say that they reject the proposition as offered and still adhere to their former request for the full restoration, as outlined in their previous letter. The Textile council will meet on Tuesday evening and they respectfully request that an answer be given on or before that date."

With the exception of Taylor, members of the council said that they did not care to comment on their action, as their position in the matter was generally known. Taylor said that the sentiment against the manufacturers' proposition was so unanimous that but one course was left for the council to pursue and that was to reject the mill owners' offer.

"The operatives are satisfied," said Taylor, "that the present conditions warrant a full and complete restoration of the old rate of wages and will not be satisfied unless they receive what they ask for. As to the sliding scale, I have no doubt that if the present rate of wages is made satisfactory to the help they will consider such a proposition."

The members of the executive committee of the Manufacturers' association, when informed of the action of the Textile council, said that the new scale would go into effect at once in all the print cloth mills in the city. The members of the committee had heard of no intention to change the policy adopted and as far as members of the committee were aware there had been no break and would be none in the ranks of the manufacturers.

It is the general opinion that the Textile council was partly induced to insist on the restoration of the old rate by the order of M. C. D. Borden, owner of the Fall River Iron works, where the full restoration went into effect this morning. The Iron works, not being represented in the Manufacturers' association, their owner was not asked by the Textile council to restore the old rate.

The association schedule also takes effect today in the Corr cotton mills of East Taunton. An advance will also be made in the United States mills at Central Falls, R. I., and it is understood that a raise will be granted in several other mills of New England which usually follow the Fall River standard, as soon as the local difficulty is straightend out. The great majority of the cotton mills in northern New England, Rhode Island, eastern Connecticut and in other Massachusetts towns will not be directly affected by the movement here. Today's advance in this city and elsewhere will affect about 30,000 operatives, a number smaller than usual, owing to the short-handed condition of many of the mills.

Work was resumed by all the Fall River mills this morning and if any trouble arises out of the present hitch it is not looked for until after Wednesday next. A reply from the manufacturers is expected tomorrow, but if no reply is made to the last letter of the council the question to be acted upon by the unions will be the same as that which came up in yesterday's meeting of the Textile council—that of accepting a profit-sharing arrangement before the cut down of last year is restored.

Ulcer Spot In Heart of America's Chief City

A LECTURE TO POLICE

Head of Department Points Out Misery That Results From Influences of "Captains of Industry of Vice and Crime"

New York, Oct. 23.—In order to correct an impression that the police of the "Tenderloin" precinct had been instructed to arrest all unescorted women found in the streets at night, Police Commissioner McAdoo visited the station house last night and made a long address to the force. He read the sections of the law on the subject and told the men that he expected them to arrest all improper characters, but that the mere fact of a woman being alone did not justify her arrest and that he would deal severely with any policeman found interfering with a respectable woman. The commissioner said in the course of his address:

"No one's rights will be illegally interfered with, but this precinct can and will be made clean. There are no difficulties in the way which cannot be overcome with legal methods. This precinct is in the very heart of the commercial and social capital of the western hemisphere. It is a disgrace to the city, to the city's morals and to civilization that such an ulcer spot as this should exist in the very centre of it's greatest activities.

"We are bound not only to protect our citizens, but the vast army of visitors from these corrupting influences and unseemly sights. It is for the people of the city of New York to say whether or not they want this place cleaned up. If the press and the pulpit which talk so much about evil conditions here would uphold the hands of those who are enforcing the law the thing is accomplished.

"You are combating great influences," the commissioner continued, "in enforcing these laws; the owners of the property who reap large profits from the base and criminal uses to which it is put; the various business interests which they have on the profligacy and prodigality of vice and who are complaining that with them trade is dull; and lastly, and more potent than all, those men who have grown rich on crime and vice, to whom it is a legitimate industry, whose millions are stained with the blood and tears of wretched women and outcast men, who own the large Raines law hotels where the woman is first robbed of the price of her infamy and when she is arrested is compelled to pay them for the bond that releases her.

"Rich and influential, swaggering and blustering, these captains of the ludustry of vice and crime reach out their influences into the most unexpected quarters. They do not want a police captain here whom they cannot own, and even now they and their hirelings are threatening political disaster to the honest head of the city government for maintaining in office a police commissioner who is not afraid of them."

The commissioner exhorted the men to be loyal to their commander, Captain Dooley, in whom he said he had the fullest confidence.

PUT UP A BATTLE

Officers Had Some Difficulty In Capturing a Maniac

Dracut, Mass., Oct. 23.—Adelard Poirier, an inmate of the Danvers insane hospital, who escaped from that institution some days ago, was captured at his home in this town and returned to the asylum. On Saturday the town authorities learned that Poirier had returned to his home, and during the day Daniel D. Fox, acting in the dual capacity of chairman of the board of selectmen and chief of the local police department, went to Poirier's house, accompanied by another constable. They found that the maniac had turned his family out of doors and had barricaded himself in the house. The officers endeavored to persuade Poirier to accompany them, but he refused and pointed a rifle at them, whereupon the officers retired.

On Sunday Fox, accompanied by several officers, paid a second visit to Poirier's house and finally induced Poirier to accompany them. At first Poirier insisted that the officers walk in front of him, and to emphasize his demand he flourished a loaded revolver. Finally Fox jumped at Poirier and a desperate struggle followed. Poirier's revolver was taken away from him before he could harm anyone, but it required all the strength and cunning of three men to make him a captive. He was returned to the Danvers asylum yesterday afternoon.

Denies Stealing Odd Thousand

Pittsburg, Oct. 23.—Edward C. Cunliffe, the express robber, denies that he took the odd $1000 with which he is charged in addition to the $100,000 package. He shipped the $80,000 in a suit case to Bristol, he said, in care of the express company, figuring on that as the most unlikely place the detectives would search. When questioned as to the $11,000 still missing he evaded reply by railing against the fates which led to the discovery of the $80,000.

CONGO SLAVERY

Missionary Holds Belgians Responsible For It

Boston, Oct. 23.—"Shame on the Belgian government for countenancing the wretched form of slavery now going on in the Congo Free State. Young children are bartered for ivory and skins and are eaten by the cannibal tribes."

This was the statement of Mrs. William H. Sheppard, an Alabama woman who has recently returned from mission work in the Congo region of Africa, and who spoke of her experiences last night at the Eliot Congregational church.

The slavery charge was received with a shudder by the congregation present and the horror of it all was only relieved when Mrs. Sheppard spoke of the repurchase of a number of those children by the American Missionary society and of their conversion.

"It is American money," she continued, "that is doing more for the natives in Africa than that of any other country. It may be tainted, as some people would have it, but it is purifying souls and saving young children from horrible deaths.

"We have our own orphan home 1200 miles in the Congo interior and we have 5000 natives now attending our services."

Association Football

The Fore Rivers Defeat the Rovers. The Quincys Lose To the Merrimacs.

There was quite a crowd of spectators at the Ward Two playground Saturday afternoon to witness the football game in the Merrimac Valley league series between the Fore Rivers and Boston Rovers.

It was a red hot, exciting and close game from start to finish. Both teams were out for victory, and they played great football. The teams were evenly matched but the aggressive play on the part of the local team won them the game.

It was some time before either side scored. Then McDonald of the Fore River made a goal. A few minutes later Gallager of the Rovers pushed the ball through the stakes and tied the score.

The contest was renewed with even greater vigor to win. Both teams played their best, and at one time it looked as though the game would result in a tie.

Nutall, however, by a brilliant play again forced the ball through the goal posts and the victory was won for Fore River. The Rovers tried hard to tie the score again but were unsuccessful.

The line up:

Goals—McDonald, Nuttall, Gallagher. Time—45-minute halves.

The football game on Saturday between Quincy and Merrimac resulted in a win for Merrimac by a score of 3 to 2. Quincy played against the wind during the first half and when the teams changed ends for the second half, the wind died down.

Merrimac's goals were all scored during the first half, Quincy scored one goal in this half which was not allowed, the referee claiming off side play. The goals put to Quincy's credit were scored in the last half.

The game was very fast and clean. There was a large gathering of spectators, considering the high, cold wind which blew down the field during the first part of the game. The Quincy players put up a grand struggle during the last fifteen minutes of the game to win or even make it a tie, bnt luck did not come their way, though they had easily the best of the play.

DISHWASHING MACHINE.

Practical Device of Simple Construction and Operation.

Several dishwashing machines have been patented within the past few years, but most of them have been too complicated in construction. Only the proprietors of hotels, restaurants, cafes, etc., know what a problem it is to wash so many dishes as they use in the course of a day, and a simple device of this kind saves them time and labor. The machine illustrated herewith, the invention of two Ohio men, seems exceedingly practical of operation, no more than ordinary care being required to prevent breakage. The usual table is provided, underneath which are placed the tanks for the water. Rising above the tanks is a mast, upon which is a bracket, the receptacle for holding the dishes being made of a wire of a mesh large enough to allow the accumulations from the dishes to pass through and being suspended upon this bracket. Mounted upon the mast is a hoisting cable, which is operated by a lever secured to the end of the table, the lever automatically locking when the receptacle is at a predetermined depression.

After the receptacle has been filled with dishes the lever is released and the dishes lowered into the tank supplied with hot water, and after a thorough cleansing the basket is raised and again lowered into the other tank, which is connected with the cold water, for a final rinsing. All refuse matter passes off through drain pipes connected with the tanks.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Turbines on the English Channel.

During the official trials of the new turbine steamer Onward for the Dover-Calais channel service of the Southeastern railroad a record for the class of vessel was established. The Onward, which was built by the Denny Bros. of Dumbarton, is practically a sister ship to the Queen, which has been plying upon this route for many months with complete success. A large number of improvements, however, have been embodied both in speed and comfort. In the mile run on the Firth of Clyde a mean speed of 22.54 knots was attained. Another noteworthy feature of the trials was the remarkable speed of fifteen and a half knots which was attained with turbines reversed.—Scientific American.

The Stomachless Man.

The stomach proper has ceased to be a serious problem to the surgeon. He can invade and explore it with impunity. He can even, if circumstances demand, relieve the owner of it entirely and so arrange the loose ends that the functions of nutrition are successfully maintained. To be sure, the patient can never thereafter derive much pleasure from his meals. He must restrict himself to a rigid diet, but for all the other affairs of life he may be as competent as before. There are today several stomachless men who are earning their daily predigested ration in occupations varying from clerk to expressman.—McClure's Magazine.

—Strange how many people are looking for trouble considering there's no salary attached to the job.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Death of Supt. Jaynes

Capt. Clement P. Jayne, superintendent of Sailors' Snug Harbor, died at that institution this morning aged 82 years. Capt. Jayne has been in poor health for some months, his illness being largely due to old age.

Capt. Jayne was born in Hampden, Me. As a boy he exhibited a fondness for the sea, and his earliest memories were with the sea and ships.

When a very young man he made his first sea voyage as a sailor. His inherent love for the sea and persistent enthusiasm in performing his duties was rewarded by promotion from one position to another until he was able to tread the quarter deck as commander.

When the Shanghai Steam Navigation Company needed an efficient man to command its new sidewheel steamship, to take it from Glasgow where it was built to China, Capt. Jayne was selected. He set sail in the middle of April, 1869, with a load of coal for a long voyage around the world. The vessel was named "Morning." She was 315 feet overall and 85 feet beam.

She passed down the coast of France, around Gibraltar, up the Mediterranean to Port Said, thence through the Suez canal, the first vessel to burst into that silent sea. The vessel was engaged for many years in running from Hong Kong to Shaughai, the name of the craft being changed to "Hapek."

Capt. Jayne followed the sea for many years before retiring from active life.

When Capt. Doane resigned as superintendent of the Sailors Snug Harbor, Capt. Jayne was selected for the position.

John L. Miller With the Majority

The School Committee had quite a surprise at their adjourned meeting on Monday night, at which time they hoped to complete the consideration of the High School plans, when Mr. Miller stated that he was in favor of sending two sets of plans to the Council.

The majority of the committee thought otherwise. As Mr. Miller was in favor of the majority rule, and as the minority had accomplished about all they desired, preventing the erection of $120,000 addition when they believed fully as good, if not better could be secured for $100,000, he withdrew further opposition to the so-called Gould plan, for he recognized the urgent need of commencing on the addition at the earliest possible time.

Lower Fares On Street Railway

The railroad Commissioners issued a decision on Monday upon the petition of the selectmen of Holbrook for lower street railway fares. The matter is of particular consequence in Quincy on account of the use of the line to Brockton by the people who work in the latter city.

The decision of the commissioners is as follows:

"The company, in fixing fare points between Quincy and Brockton, has established three of these within the town of Holbrook. This means, among other things, that people who have occasion to take a car in Holbrook between the Brockton line and Pine Hill turnout pay fifteen cents to reach the Braintree station of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. We believe this to be an unreasonable burden upon a considerable number of people, and recommend such reduction in fare as will make this charge ten instead of fifteen cents.

"The company ought to make in the near future a considerable expenditure in the renewal and repair of this line of railway."

Rummage Sale Continued.

The rummage sale for the benefit of the Day Nursery has been so successful, that the management feels encouraged to keep it open two more days and evenings, next Friday and Saturday October 27 and 28, from 1 to 9 P. M.

Every member of the Nursery Association is asked to feel personally interested in getting as much clothing contributed, as possible for these days. A team will call for all articles, if a postal is sent to 110 Adams street.

A New Master And a Holiday

At a special meeting of the School Committee on Saturday evening the resignation of Winthrop N. Crocker as master of the John Hancock and Lincoln schools was accepted.

Mr. Crocker will succeed Albert Candlin as principal of a large school at Waltham at a large increase in salary.

The committee elected to fill the vacancy Archie M. Nickerson, who for four years has been principal at Hingham, and was previously at Whitman.

Mr. Taylor of the Wollaston school was elected as principal of the evening school at the Adams building to succeed Mr. Crocker.

The committee voted to close the public schools Friday, Nov. 3. that the teachers might attend the Norfolk County teachers' convention.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

With the School Commitee unanimous for the enlargement of the High school, the prospects should be brighter for the consumation of this needed improvement, but there are little prospects of unanimity in the City Council. Time will tell.

The enlargement of the Coddington school lot, along the lines proposed by Councilman Stewart, should have been made a generation ago. Private property comes within twenty-five feet of the building on both sides and it is built upon. Whether the new Coddington is located on the same site, is a question which should enter into the enlargement of the school lot now.

One in eight as an average of taxpayers to population is not bad for Quincy, as families average three or four and it means that in every other family on an average there is a taxpayer. But what shall we say of only 1800 or less of the voters being taxpayers? Quincy has 5152 voters and only one in three are taxpayers. The women seem to be the taxpayers, and it is a good argument why the suffrage should be extended to them.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The Gloucester Republicans have decided to have no caucuses for municipal politics this year but to allow all candidates to enter upon nomination papers. Gloucester, like many another city, has found that the experiment of maintaining partisan lines in municipal politics works badly. Factional fights have developed which have threatened to weaken the party in its state and national campaigns and Republicans and Democrats have become mixed in such a manner that they do not always get straightened out in the other campaigns. And yet the nomination paper and the non-partisan ticket will not solve the problem unless there is some greater interest and effort for good government on the part of citizens, aside from the professional politicans, than is shown in the ordinary city. It doesn't make much difference whether a party caucus is called or nomination papers are used, if the element in the citizenship which is nominally interested in securing the best government for the city would do its duty in municipal politics, the reform that is continually being cried for would be readily secured.—Haverhill Gazette.

An Italian-Portuguese Squabble

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 24.—During a dispute between three Italians and three Portuguese last night, Manuel A. Perry, a Portuguese, was shot in the left side and slightly wounded. The police arrested Alfred Heney, an Italian, and Manuel Paza, a Portuguese, on a charge of disturbing the peace. The officers are looking for a man who shot Perry.

Politicians to Be Prosecuted

New Fairfield, Conn., Oct. 24.—Because of neglect to file statements of their expenses, as required by the corrupt practices act passed by the last legislature, 21 of the 29 candidates for office on the Republican and Democratic tickets at the recent town elections are to be brought into court. The county prosecutor has been applied to for warrants.

For an Hour's Less Work

Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 24.—Seventy cutters employed by Chesley & Rugg, shoe manufacturers, have left their work pending a signing of an agreement by the firm for a $16 a week rate of wage for a week of nine hours a day. The cutters have been working 10 hours a day for $16 a week.

A NEW DIFFICULTY

Mill Owners Reject Proposition of Textile Council

ADHERE TO FIRST PLAN

Declare That They Will Stand by Profit-Sharing Scheme Notwithstanding Refusal of Operatives to Accept It

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 24.—The Textile situation here is more critical than it has been at any time since the close of the great strike last January. The Manufacturers' association, representing all the print cloth mills in the city, with the exception of those controlled by M. C. D. Borden of New York, held a special meeting yesterday afternoon and voted to refuse the request of the Textile council that a direct advance in wages to restore the scale which existed previous to July 25, 1904, be made.

The refusal of the association will be acted upon at a special meeting of the Textile council tonight, when it is probable that the entire matter will be referred to a special meeting of all the unions represented in the council on the following evening. Many of the business men fear that another strike will be decided upon by the union, but at this time it is impossible to tell what action the operatives will take.

The association considered a letter sent by the Textile council in which the manufacturers' proposition was rejected and the request was made that the full restoration be granted. The plan of the Manufacturers' association provided for a direct increase of 5 percent and a profit-sharing plan, the profits due the employes to be figured monthly on the market price of cloth, which, however, must show at least a margin over the cost of cotton of 75 cents per cut. The present condition of the market would net the employes about 8 percent, which, in addition to the 5 percent, would make a total increase in wages of about 13 percent. Opinions differ as to whether this percentage would bring the wages up to those paid prior to July, 1904, when a 12½ percent reduction was made.

An advance of slightly over 14 percent would be necessary to bring the recent standard price of weaving to that which existed before the cutdown, but within the past few months many of the mills have been short of help and found it necessary to grant slight advances in certain departments.

The new plan of the manufacturers went into effect yesterday, and no strike occurred, except at the Barnard mills, where the ring spinners remained away. The ring spinning room was shut down.

At the six large mills of the Fall River Iron works, owned by Borden, the wage scale of 1904 was restored in full. To the action of Borden in making a straight advance, and that unsolicited, is attributed in part the strong stand for similar action on the part of the association mills now being taken by the Textile council.

The association was in session less than an hour yesterday. The situation was discussed thoroughly and the decision was reached to adhere to the original proposition. Secretary Hathaway was instructed to send a letter notifying the Textile council of the manufacturers' attitude. No statement was made concerning the time the latter would be mailed, but the council had requested that a reply to its letter be forwarded by tonight, when the council will hold a meeting.

President Tansey of the Textile council, when notified of the manufacturers' decision, said he regretted very much the action of the mill owners, but would not enter into a discussion of the situation.

It is considered probable that before final action is taken by the union that further negotiations will be held between the two sides, and should a strike be determined upon it is thought that the operatives would not leave the mills until the close of the week. It is understood, however, that before drastic action is taken by the unions, strong efforts will be made to reach a peaceful solution of the difficulty.

Thousands Visit New Steamer

New York, Oct 24.—Twelve thousand persons yesterday visited and were shown through the magnificent liner Amerika, the new 41,000-ton steamship of the Hamburg-American line. Perhaps never before have so many people boarded any steamship in a single day. Voluntary contributions, aggregating a considerable sum, were given by the visitors to be devoted to the seamen's orphans fund.

Russia Had Big Army--But

St. Petersburg, Oct. 24.—According to the military attaches who recently returned from the front, Russia had considerably in excess of 1,000,000 soldiers in the Far East when peace was declared. The attaches say that they were specially impressed by the Russian common soldier, who, if properly led, they believe would be a match for any in the world.

Washington Won't Interfere

Washington, Oct. 24.—It can be reiterated on the highest authority that, although convinced that the proposed Anglo-Cuban treaty is distinctly injurious to Cuba's interests, the Washington government has never indirectly or directly questioned Cuba's full right to negotiate such a treaty with Great Britain or with any other foreign nation.

Gardner Outlines Rights of Gloucester Vessels

NO PRIVILEGES NEEDED

Buying of Bait or Shipping of Newfoundlanders, However, Would Lead to Seizure of Vessels, With No Redress

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 24.—Congressman Gardner, at a Republican rally here last night, touched upon the Newfoundland fisheries question and said that Gloucester vessels would be expected to keep within their rights or risk the consequences. He briefly outlined the terms under which vessels would be permitted to fish. Mr. Gardner said:

"We ask for nothing more than our rights. We do not ask for our old privileges, if the right to purchase bait or herring can be called a privilege. Newfoundland has withdrawn these so-called privileges, as she had a perfect right to do. We said we could get along without them, and this we amply proved, so far as bait is concerned, in the last six months. We shall prove just as clearly that our herring fisheries do not depend on any privileges; but we certainly shall not forego our rights.

"Remember that we have no right to smuggle goods into Newfoundland; that we have no right to buy an ounce of herring or ship a native fisherman in her ports. Let it be clearly understood that if our captains find their vessels seized for such acts they can expect nothing from the state department.

"I do not wish to imply that any of my virtuous constituents would do anything of this sort. Perhaps none of them know what smuggling means; but a fishing fleet isn't exactly a church sociable and, to use a colloquial expression, I am personally acquainted with one or two pretty 'hot propositions' who are now in the neighborhood of the Bay of Islands. At all events, I give them fair notice to keep within their rights or risk the consequences.

"We may have to deal with an outbreak of the Newfoundland native fishermen. Three hundred of them, sturdy, determined men all, met the other night and intimated to the governor of Newfoundland that the Fortune bay riots might be repeated if that government did not desist from its policy of forbidding them to take part in our fisheries.

"You all remember what happened in Fortune bay when our fishermen attempted to catch herring under their treaty rights without the aid of the natives. The Newfoundlanders said 'Treaty or no treaty, we don't intend to starve nor see our children suffer.' Out they came with their arms and they tore up our nets. Great Britain paid the bill; but the natives carried their point and I do not believe there is a fisherman sailing out of Gloucester today that does not sympathize with them.

"I, for one, sympathize today with the Newfoundland native. His government has forbidden him to ship on our vessels. His wife and his children must suffer this winter; but we must have our rights and our herring or else the wife and children of the Gloucester fisherman will suffer, too."

New York Mail Delayed

New York, Oct. 24.—Letter transportation by pneumatic tube in New York and Brooklyn was suddenly stopped and the postoffice was forced to hurry its mail in emergency wagons and automobiles. The tubes were seized as a result of the non-payment of interest on the bonds of the New York Mail and Transportation company, which controls the tubes, and for which receivers were recently appointed.

Faithful to Promised Bride

New York, Oct. 24.—On his way to Italy, Alfred Decardo, aged 22, has walked from San Francisco to New York. This young Italian was arrested here for building a fire in the street. He said he was cold and did not wish to spend his money for shelter since he is saving it to pay steamship passage back to Italy to see a girl who promised to be his wife and who now has only a few more months to live.

Quarreling Over a Bishop

New York, Oct. 24.—Reserves from three police precincts were hurriedly summoned last night to quell what threatened to be a serious riot in the Syrian quarter, where fights between the friends and opponents of Bishop Hawaweenis have been frequent of late. Before the police succeeded in clearing the streets half a dozen Syrians received cuts and stab wounds.

Norway Will Not Act Hastily

All Hallows eve next Tuesday.

About a month to Thanksgiving.

A new moon this week Saturday.

A furnace fire does not seem out of place mornings and evenings.

Mayor Thompson returned Monday from a brief business trip.

The next meeting of the City Council will be the night before the State election.

The subject of a Municipal Gas and Electric lighting plant will be aired in the City Council chambers tonight.

The sun now rises after six o'clock and sets before five, but the days will be over an hour shorter next month.

Roy Thornton of Farmun street had the misfortune, while at work last week, to injure the bones in his left hand.

A large red rose was found blooming in a garden on Walker street Sunday with all the arrogance of a spring flower.

There was a big demand yesterday for the Daily Ledger with the three-vote coupon, but the supply was not exhausted.

The Quincy High football team went to Dorchester this afternoon to play the strong Dorchester High team. It is the first game away from home.

Some out-of-town people in passing through the Point district Sunday remarked on the numbers of drunken men tumbling about on every street.

The view of Hancock street from the Atlantic station is pleasing and is speedily losing the appearance of a new thoroughfare under the continued travel of the past two weeks.

Miss Jeannette Sanders of Wayland, who has been appointed teacher in Boston, has taken up her residence with Mrs. Cephas Drew of Walker street during the school term.

Is it the public schools or in the associations outside or in the blood that urges little boys to smoke? Anyway they seem to aspire to the habit in Atlantic and any large fence or friendly tree is apt to shelter a wide-eyed serious child trying his first cigarette in the presence of admiring comrades. Mothers would do well to have keener eyes for their children's friends and tendencies in this progressive century.

The J. Q. Adams House.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Adams are taking great interest in the birthplace of President John Quincy Adams, and are frequent visitors to the house. There is now a large library at the house, and several of the rooms have been painted and papered, and are more cheerful and inviting. The Quincy Historical Society has in J. W. Rideout, the caretaker, a man greatly interested in his work. He keeps the house in good repair and clean, and he is well posted regarding the historic house and the relics there. Everyone in Quincy should visit these houses of the Presidents and take their visitors to see them.

PANAMA OR NONE

President Roosevelt Talks on Canal Question

WORK WILL BE PUSHED

Weapons of Those Opposed to It Will Fail of Their Purpose--Big Ditch to Be Effectively Policed by Our Navy

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 24.—All Mobile last night lent itself to the reception of President Roosevelt, during his two hours' stay here. There was general closing of all business houses and along the route of the procession residences and stores were covered with decorations of lights and bunting in the national colors.

Judge Alford introduced the president, who was briefly welcomed by Mayor Lyons. The formal welcome was then delivered by Colonel E. L. Russell, in response to which President Roosevelt said in part:

"I cannot sufficiently express my appreciation of the magnificent greeting that you have given me today. The man would be but a poor American who could meet you here without being stirred and feeling that he must even more than before strive to do all that in him lies for our common country. I know that the rest of you will not grudge my saying that most of all I am touched by the sight of men who wore the gray in the great parade here today.

"In speaking before the citizens of this great seaport of the gulf, I naturally wish to say a word about the Panama canal. I hold that as a matter of public policy whatever helps part of our country helps the whole. And I did my best to bring about the construction of the canal in the interest of all our people. But if there was any one section to be most benefited by it, it is the section that includes the gulf states.

"Originally I was for the Nicaraguan canal, but when congress acted I abided by the decision of congress. It became evident that we should either have no canal or the Panama canal, and I am for a canal. If we had not acted as we have, all chance of building that canal would have vanished for half a century to come, and as it is we are now assured of having that canal within a comparatively short time.

"I want to warn you not to be misled by interested clamor. Every man who had to do with bringing about the construction of the canal knows that for decades it was opposed, and successfully opposed, by great commercial interests which did not wish to see it completed, and did not wish to see a canal speedily dug through the isthmus and communication between the Atlantic and Pacific speedily established.

"It seems to me evident from certain things I see in a portion of the daily press that those causes are still active and that they are going to try to bring up the issue with the hope of putting off for 10 or 15 years or over the digging of that canal. Their weapons have been and are every form of misrepresentation, and they will fail. You need not have the slightest alarm. Uncle Sam has started to dig that canal, and it will be dug and soon.

"The people who are largely, by the circulation of false rumors and by direct mis-statement, seeking to create confusion, such as will defer the building of the canal, will be disappointed. We have as a people the right to feel genuine satisfaction with the progress that has been made. Let me point out something of which you here will appreciate the significance, the sanitation of the isthmus.

"You remember that a couple of years ago men said you could not dig that canal because yellow fever was always epidemic there. We are digging it and with a cleaner bill of mortality than the isthmus has ever known before.

"I want to say another word and that is about the United States navy. We undertook to build the canal because we said that owing to our position and interest and stand we were the only nation that could or should do it. That means that we have got to protect it and police it ourselves. We do not ask anybody else to help us do the work we have allotted to ourselves. We must therefore bring up and keep up our navy to the highest point of efficiency. It is not necessary to have a very large navy, but it is necessary that, ship for ship, it should be just a little the most efficient navy in the world. In battle the shots that count are the shots that hit. There are plenty of gallant fellows—we saw them among the Spaniards—who will go down with their ships. That is all right. If there is nothing else to be done, go down with the ships rather than surrender. But try to make the other fellow's ship go down first.

"I want our people to feel that in assuming to dig the isthmian canal, in assuming the position we have assumed as regards this western hemisphere and in the Oriental seas, we bind ourselves to keep our navy at such a point of efficiency that there shall be no chance of humiliation at the hands of any foreign foe.

TRAFFIC PARALYZED

Russian Railroads Now Tied Up In All Directions

St. Petersburg, Oct. 24.—The railroad strike situation has now entered on a highly serious phase. The movement is spreading rapidly to all the railroads of the empire and apparently cannot be stopped, while in many cities it is communicating itself to the mill and factory employes. The inhabitants of Moscow are already feeling the effects of the strike in the increased prices of food and they are even confronted by famine.

St. Petersburg has now only one line to the frontier and the employes of this line held a meeting late last night to decide whether or not they should participate in the strike movement.

Brigadier General Barry and Captain Cloman of the United States army, who have been with the Russian army in Manchuria, left late at night for Vienna on what was perhaps the last train out of St. Petersburg. Railroad trains are now running only in the border regions of the empire.

Pathetic scenes are reported from Moscow, where thousands of the poorer inhabitants of the adjoining provinces have been waiting for four days for trains to take them home. They are camping out near the railroad stations and in the streets and many of them are without money and the necessities of life.

Heroes' Descendants In Distress

New York, Oct. 24.—In abject destitution, Matilda Van Dolsen, granddaughter of an aide on the staff of General Washington, and daughter of an officer in the United States army in the war of 1812, died last night in a tiny, squalid room, from paralysis. Miss Van Dolsen, who was 72 years old, lived with her sister, Frances, two years her junior. Recently they were reduced to dire want, depending for a bare subsistence on such light work as they were able to do. In the room in which the aged sisters lived hung the swords and pistols of their father and grandfather, which they had refused to part with, even in the extremity of their distress.

Baseball Champions Honored

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—The Philadelphia American league baseball club, which won the world's championship, was last night honored by a public demonstration. Several thousand high school boys and many firemen's organizations marched, while hundreds of mummers belonging to the New Year's clubs enlivened the procession with their unique costumes. The entire line of march was ablaze with red fire and fireworks.

Canal Dover, Oct. 24.—A mob of several hundred persons gathered in the streets of New Philadelphia and threatened violence to the men operating the cars of a traction line between that city and Uhrichsville because the management of the road had doubled the rate of fare between the two towns. The management finally decided to suspend operation of the line until an understanding with the county commissioners regarding the rate of fare to be charged can be arrived at.

ALLEGED DEFAULTER

Paymaster of Big Concern Is Placed Under Arrest

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 24.—Charles A. Plummer, assistant paymaster at the plant of the George F. Blake Manufacturing company, machinists, of East Cambridge, is under arrest on a charge of taking money belonging to the concern. The alleged shortage amounts to several thousand dollars.

Plummer is married and lives at 43 Pleasant street, Belmont. He has one child. Nearly $2000 worth of jewelry, it is said, was found upon his person when arrested.

Plummer had worked for the Blake concern as assistant paymaster for about nine years and was considered strictly honest. He was trusted by all the officials of the company, and no one ever thought of doubting his honesty or truthfulness.

Many thousands of dollars passed weekly through his hands and he was in full charge of paying the employes of the company in the machine shop. The company employs about 3000 help at the factory.

On Saturday the auditors examined the books. It was found after looking back only three months that $2500 had been taken and the appearances indicated that the amount would be greatly increased upon a further inspection.

The police are investigating the boy's death.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

—The so-called "liqueur-chocolates" which have recently grown into popular favor in London are reported to contain over 5 per cent of pure alcohol. Until a few years ago, says the Lancet, sweets containing a liquid preparation, chiefly alcohol, surrounded by a hardened mass of sugar, were somewhat extensively manufactured. The excise authorities woke up to the fact that revenue was being lost to them, and the practice was stopped, some other fluid replacing the alcohol. That the liqueur chocolates will be promptly suppressed for the same reason is probable.

A Big Jump

Clerk Cash Gains 570 Votes And Now Leads Other Increases

Had a new candidate received the vote today forwarded for Clerk Cash of Johnson Bros. they would have considered that they had a very good start in the scholarship contest. Mr. Cash jumps from fourth place to the top of the list. Engineer Johnson made a gain of 340 votes, and the first quartet are now very closely bunched. Gains are also reported for Messrs. Skinner, Andrews, Young, Ford, Maxwell and others. The three-vote coupons also brought two or three new candidates.

The gains in the ladies' list were by Miss Merritt, Miss Souter, Miss Nightingale, Miss McKinnon, Miss Foster and others. There are also new candidates in this list.

Watch for the bargain days. They will come every week.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Fell Overboard From His Ship

William Gullicksen, a sailor on the whaleback coal barge Bay View discharging coal at Sheppard & Son's coal wharf, was drowned Monday night while trying to board the craft. As near as can be learned the sailor had been away during the evening, returning late. In attempting to board the craft he lost his balance and fell overboard. His cries were heard by members of the crew, and after some difficulty the body was located and taken aboard. Attempts were made to bring him back to life, but they were unsuccessful.

He was 29 years of age and a native of Norway. But little is known of his family connections.

A FACT PROVEN.

Should Convince Even the Most Skeptical of Its Truth.

If there is the slightest doubt in the minds of any that Dandruff germs do not exist, their belief is compelled by the fact that a rabbit innoculated with the germs became bald in six weeks' time.

It must be apparent to any person therefore that the only prevention of baldness is the destruction of the germ—which act is successfully accomplished in one hundred per cent. of cases by the application of Newbro's Herpicide.

Dandruff is caused by the same germ which causes baldness and can be prevented with the same remedy—Newbro's Herpicide.

Accept no substitute. "Destroy the cause you remove the effect."

A SPEEDY BOAT.

New Herreshoff Creation Makes Forty Miles an Hour.

The latest venture of the Herreshoffs in the motor boat field, a freakish craft called the Den, is capable of remarkable speed. When on trial in Long Island sound recently it gave its inventor, Charles F. Herreshoff, Jr., a spill, and Mr. Herreshoff and a friend who accompanied him had a narrow escape from drowning. It was estimated that the boat was going at the rate of forty miles an hour at the time.

A speed close to fifty miles an hour is prophesied when skill has been attained in running it. The Den is considered the lightest boat that ever held so much bottled up power. The hull is thirty-five feet long, four feet six inches wide and weighs but 300 pounds. It is believed that a fleet of torpedo boats designed like the Den will soon be built.

HAWAII ONCE IN THE MOON.

Professor Pickering Accounts For Peculiarities of the Pacific.

Professor W. H. Pickering of Harvard university, the noted astronomer, makes the interesting statement that, although he had never seen the volcanoes of the Hawaiian Islands previous to his recent trip there, he recognized in them old familiar friends. He says he met their ancestors from afar, as it were, through a telescope, and that they are similar to those of the moon; that is, those of the engulfment variety.

While in Honolulu Professor Pickering delivered a lecture, in which he advanced the theory that the moon was originally a part of the earth and was thrown off and that the Hawaiian Islands were about in the center of this lunar gonosis. The space that was left when the moon material was thrown off was the Pacific ocean. The large volcanoes of Mauna Loa and Kilauea on the island of Hawaii, and Haleakala on Maui, were, Professor Pickering stated, in many ways exactly like those he had observed through a telescope on the moon.

Fruit as an Aid to Digestion.

Dr. J. G. Sharp in the London Lancet calls attention to the very considerable digestive action of the juices of such common fruit as apples, pears, cherries, strawberries, etc. He states that the fruit acids combine with the iron in proteid foods and enable the blood to take it up; hence meat and fruit are the proper diet for anaemia. The ferments contained in many common fruits, as well as in the pineapple, give them considerable digestive power of a nature similar to that possessed by the pancreatic juice. To obtain the best therapeutic results from fruit Dr. Sharp recommends that it be eaten at the end of the chief meal. All tinned fruits are lacking in this digestive power, since the high temperature preceding the canning kills the ferments.

Gloves and Microbes.

It was noticed in Paris when King Edward was there that he always appeared in public with his right hand gloved, but not his left. As it is a common practice to carry the right glove loose and not the left, much speculation has been excited by the king's reversal of this custom. One learned writer suggests that it is due to a sound perception of hygienic propriety. The object of a glove, he says, is not to adorn but to protect the hand. Which hand has the more constant employment and is therefore brought into closer contact with microbes? Why, the right hand. It follows that in keeping that hand gloved the king shows his unfailing sense.

One Piece Car Wheel.

A process for making a one piece steel railway wheel has been devised. For a thirty-three inch wheel an ingot about sixteen inches in diameter is used, and with steam hammer and hydraulic press the ingot is forged until the hub and web are brought to practically the finished size. It is then subjected to a process of heat treatment so that the outer portion of the wheel is brought to a rolling heat while the web and hub are kept at a lower red heat. The rolling process brings the wheel to its final shape.

Oxygen For Submarine Boats.

Experiments are being conducted by the naval authorities with a new preparation for the immediate production of oxygen gas in submarine boats and elsewhere, and if all expectations are realized it is believed this new factor will oust the old time method of supplying oxygen. It is said that the preparation will produce oxygen instantaneously by simply throwing a piece into water.

Steel Rails on Curves.

On the sharpest curve of the Boston elevated the wear of the rails is so great that they have to be renewed every forty-four days, wearing down in this short period from 0.60 to 0.77 inch.

Growth of American Commerce.

American foreign commerce in the fiscal year just ended smashed all previous records. It amounted to $2,635,907,333 as compared with $2,451,914,642 in 1904, the previous record year.

A CASE IN DUPLICATE

[Original.]

Henry and Howard Corwith loved each other devotedly. Henry was four years older than Howard, but looked younger. He had been injured when a child, and this had retarded his development. When he was seven years old a cyclone passed over the town where they lived, leaving the swath of a gigantic scythe behind it. The brothers had been left alone in the house, Henry in charge of it and of his little brother Howard. At the time of the passage of the whirlwind Howard was asleep. Feeling the house crashing down upon them, Henry planted himself above his younger brother to protect him. When several hours later they were taken out from under the fallen timbers, Howard was found to be unhurt, but Henry had received severe injuries.

And now at twenty-six and twenty-two respectively Henry was small and thin and pale, Howard a well developed, stalwart man. Henry felt the same affection for his brother as when he had saved him from death. Howard lived under a constant reminder of the sacrifice Henry had made for him, and it was his aim to heap benefits upon the brother who had taken the burden that had permitted his own development. Howard was never so well pleased as at discovering some want of Henry's that he could supply. The pair were observed by their friends, who said that if one brother married the other would receive a blow from which he would never recover.

Fortunately they both fell in love at the same time and with sisters. Henry became engaged to Delia Martin, and Howard soon after became engaged to her sister Belle. It was said that Howard proposed to the sister of his brother's fiancee to save himself from being left with no one to love. However this may be, both brothers seemed satisfied.

Henry Corwith, deprived of the physique with which to live a strenuous life, found compensation in art. After learning all of his profession that could be drawn from American preceptors he resolved to go abroad to study. Belle Martin possessed musical tastes and concluded to take a course of music in Germany. It was agreed that the two should cross the ocean in the same vessel, and upon arrival Henry was to go to Paris, Belle to Berlin. They sailed in the autumn and were to return the following summer.

Howard Corwith endured the separation from his brother and his fiancee as best he could. Howard and Delia had a common interest and naturally turned to each other for comfort. Each found in the other a listener into whose ear to pour a story of enforced separation. Howard talked of Belle, and Delia talked of Henry. The interchange of sympathy was perfect.

Ten months passed. Henry and Belle wrote that they would meet in Southampton and return on the same steamer. Howard's friends, when apprised of his brother's and his fiancee's return congratulated him warmly, but Howard, instead of looking happy over the approaching reunion, wore a troubled look. As the time for the absent ones' return drew near this evidence of some secret dread increased, and on the day of the arrival Howard seemed threatened with nervous prostration.

Delia Martin went to New York to meet her sister, the two girls having arranged to pass a few days in the city. Howard Corwith sent word that he was not well enough to go on to meet his brother and his fiancee, and Henry on reaching port took the first train home. Howard drove to the station for him. At their meeting Henry noticed that Howard looked right past him, avoiding meeting his eye. Henry sighed and bent his head. The pressure of hands was cold and the meeting entirely devoid of warmth. As they drove home together Henry said:

"Fletcher came to see you, I suppose, and brought you the commissions I gave him for you?"

"Yes."

Henry sighed and gazed far away.

"Fletcher told me all about you," said Howard.

"So I supposed," said Henry.

"It was a pleasant season for you and Belle to be together in Switzerland."

"Fletcher spoke of it?"

"Yes."

By this time they reached the house and, alighting, went into the library, where they had so often smoked and talked and exchanged confidences. Then Henry said:

"Howard, this thing is killing you."

"How did you know it?" Howard asked, quickly looking up at his brother.

"I knew Fletcher would give you the facts," replied Henry without noticing the question. "I saw what was on your mind the moment I arrived."

"You are right in assuming that it is killing me. To think that you who have borne the burden for me all these years and must always bear it should have such a brother."

"What do you mean, Howard?"

"I mean that I am a dog. You know it as well as I. But what could I do? We have been thrown together constantly ever since you and Belle went away. I thought I loved Belle. Now I know I love Delia. I have robbed you of her."

Henry went to his brother and threw his arms around his neck. "If you don't know it already," he said, "I'll tell you that I've robbed you of Belle."

Howard looked at his brother in a dazed fashion while he gathered his faculties, then exclaimed:

"Great heavens! Suppose either of us had proved faithful!"

MAINE INDIAN SLAIN

Another Indian of Penobscot Tribe Suspected of the Crime

Oldtown, Me., Oct. 24.—Word was received here of the murder of Peter J. Loring, son of the Indian known to the Penobscots as Big Thunder, at his home on the Indian Island reservation. His death was caused by a bullet from a special 30-calibre rifle.

Peter Rancro, a Penobscot Indian, with whom, it is said, Loring and his wife were seen in Milford, and who, it is said, rowed the couple to Indian Island lake, surrendered last night.

Mrs. Loring notified her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sabbatus Francis, that her husband had been shot. Investigation disclosed Loring lying on the ground in front of his house with a bullet in his back, just below the shoulder blade. The ball had passed entirely through the body and he died within a few minutes.

In Loring's house a special 30-calibre rifle, said to belong to Rancro, was found and the furniture was in confusion, indicating that a struggle had taken place. Search for Rancro was begun at once and the canoe in which he is said to have brought Loring and his wife to the island was found empty on the Milford shore.

Death In Trolley Car Accident

Bangor, Me., Oct. 24.—John McKinnon died this morning from injuries sustained in a trolley car accident at midnight. While going down a steep grade in this city, a car jumped the track and crashed into a dwelling house. McKinnon, who was the only passenger, leaped from the platform, but was caught by the car and dragged for some distance. The motorman and conductor remained on the car and were uninjured. The accident was caused by hoar frost, which prevented the brakes from controlling the speed.

Woman Perished In Woods

North Danville, N. H., Oct. 24.—The body of Mrs. Harriet Merrick, who disappeared from her home here Aug. 23, was found in the woods near here last evening. Mrs. Merrick was 83 years old and for two weeks following her disappearance parties were out daily searching the woods for some trace of her. It is supposed that Mrs. Merrick wandered away and perished from exposure.

Alleged Smugglers In Custody

Portland, Me., Oct. 24.—Deputy Marshal Haskell arrived here last night with a prisoner named George Morrison, who is accused of keeping one of the line stores which has fallen under the ban of the law. The Aroostook authorities have captured Nadeau, who had been living the life of a refugee for some time in order to elude the authorities. He is now in Houlton jail.

Runaway.

There was a lively runaway in Johnsons lumber yard on Monday. A horse owned by an Italian became frightened and ran, colliding with another wagon. Both horses then started toward City Square on the run. They were captured on Pond street before much damage had been done.

The Whaleback steamer discharging coal at the Sheppard wharf at Quincy Point is quite a curiosity and attracts considerable attention.

Battleship Rhode Island Off for Trial

Expected to Meet All Requirements Of Government In Severe Tests

The Rhode Island, the largest battleship in Uncle Sam's navy and the first battleship built in New England, steamed this morning for Provincetown, in charge of Capt. Smith, with Capt. Francis H. Cleverly as pilot and a crew of 350 men.

The ropes were cast off at 6.17 and surrounded by four powerful tugs the battleship moved majestically toward the Fore River bridge.

On the bridge a hundred or more were gathered to see her pass through. The big draw was opened and at 7 o'clock she passed through and headed down the bay steaming through Hull gut and away to Provincetown.

There she will have her standardizing trials to determine the speed at the different rates of revolution of her screws.

This test over, she will proceed to Rockland, Me., where she will be given her speed trial over a measured course.

It was a pretty sight to see the big sea fighter start on her maiden trip, and the crowd on the Fore River bridge gave her three cheers and many well wishes of good luck.

That she will make the speed required by the government, which is about 19 knots, no one for a minute doubts.

Sunday School Union Meeting

That the Episcopal church is in the forward movement for more effective Sunday schools was clearly shown at the annual meeting of the South Shore branch of the Sunday school Union of the Diocese of Massachusetts, which was held in Christ church parish house Tuesday afternoon and evening. There were present delegates from Cohasset, Hingham, Weymouth, Brockton, Wollaston and Quincy.

At the business session the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Rev. William E. Gardner, Quincy.

Vice-President, Rev. Francis B. White, Brockton.

Secretary-Treasurer, Rev. George F. Weld, Hingham.

Representative to the executive committee of the union, Rev. Howard K. Bartow, Cohasset.

Executive committee of the Branch,—Mr. James Kent, Wollaston; Mrs. Margaret F. Ward, Brockton; and Mr. A. B. Burrill, Bridgewater.

After the business session, Rev. Carlton P. Mills explained by the use of printed charts, a complete graded course of instruction, for the Sunday school, in which the grades of the public schools were followed and instruction in the Bible and worship and churchmanship was given in a fitting manner and at the proper age.

At the conclusion of the address, Mr. Mills explained the value of a large number of books on Sunday school work and teachers helps, showing the books explained and passing them for inspection.

Supper was served by the teachers of Christ church Sunday school at 6.30.

At 7.30, there was a brief devotional service followed by an inspiring address on "Some Practical Points on Sunday School Work," given by Mrs. A. S. Higgins of Winchester. Mrs. Higgins described methods by which the devotional life of the school could be improved, and spent much time on the teacher, and his methods in imparting the story, and the moral.

The meeting adjourned at 8.45.

A cloud was cast over the meeting by the serious illness of the secretary-treasurer, Rev. Mr. Weld of Hingham. In his absence Mrs. E. S. Edmands of Hingham was chosen as secretary protem.

The Danger Over.

The diphtheria scare at the Coddington school has subsided, and all danger from further contagion has passed. The building has not only been thoroughly fumigated but a ventilating stack of iron has been built and a heater put under it. There have been no new cases from this building for nearly two weeks and there are only five cases in all.

There are still many children absent and the school is badly handicapped on account of these absentees, but now that the danger is over they should return.

Clock Stolen.

A French clock was stolen on Monday night or Tuesday from the residence of Mrs. E. M. Nash of Summer street, Weymouth.

Black Joe, a well-known resident of Squantum, entertained the passengers on the 3.16 train from Boston Monday afternoon, all the way from Harrison Square to Atlantic. He was from his own standpoint, blissfully inebriated.

The High School Correspondence Of School Committee and Commissioner

The correspondence sent to the City Council on Monday evening relative to the plans for the enlargement of the Quincy High school is given in full below. Some day this week the Daily Ledger will outline the plan approved, showing the additional accommodations which it will afford.

School Department, Oct. 23, 1905.

Mr. Thomas F. Burke, Commissioner of Public Works, Quincy:

Dear Sir: The School Committee has received from you six sets of plans for additions and alterations of the Quincy High school. All these plans are sufficiently complete for a comparative study, though they are all equally incomplete as regards heating plans, framing plans and detail drawings.

To expedite matters, believing that these details are not essential for us to pass upon, we have considered all these plans carefully and at length.

The School Committee at an adjourned meeting held Oct. 23, 1905, unanimously voted to approve the plans labeled "Additions to and alterations of the Quincy High School, Quincy, Mass., Aaron H. Gould, Architect, 17 Milk street, Boston," with the changes marked upon the plans and written in the specifications. Said approval to be subject to the approval of the State Board of District Police.

Respectfully yours,

Henry C. Hallowell,

Chairman of the School Committee.

Quincy, Mass., Oct. 23, 1905.

Mr. Walter F. Nichols, President of the City Council,

Dear Sir: In pursuance of an order passed in Council June 19, 1905, "ordered that the Commissioner of Public Works be requested to procure plans for an addition to the High school, subject to the approval of the School Committee and the State Board of Police, and to forward said plans and approvals with the estimated cost of construction to the City Council," I have the honor to forward herewith plans approved by the School Committee as per their communication.

Herewith also enclosed are builders' estimates to the architects. Said lowest estimate with architect's fees, cost of inspection, and grading of grounds I estimate approximately at one hundred and thirteen thousand dollars ($113,000).

The approval of the State Board of Police is conditional pending fuller details.

Yours respectfully,

Thos. F. Burke,

Commissioner of Public Works.

Municipal Plants Mean Public Debt

Says Former Tax Collector at Hearing on Gas And Electricity

Nearly two hundred citizens attended the hearing at City Hall Tuesday evening before the special committee of the City Council who are considering the matter of municipal gas.

Chairman Chamberlin presided and said that the committee was ready to hear anyone who desired to speak.

Levi H. Turner inquired if this was the hearing in response to the petition of himself and others. What they desired was a hearing before the Council. He was not ready at this time to go on as the petition was still in circulation.

Chairman Chamberlin said this was intended as an opening of the broad question. The idea was to first get the sentiment of the people.

John J. Byron felt sentiment of people was not expressed by the number present for the lack of notification. It was a broad subject. Quincy had granted the right to supply gas and electricity to corporations. Without any question we must pay an exhorbitant price for light.

The same conditions will prevail as at the purchase of the water plant. It was just as logical to give a grocery man the sole right to do business as it was a company to supply gas or electricity. In Braintree where the town owns it plant, $60 is charged for an arc light burning all night against $75 in Quincy.

Just as competent men can be secured by the city as by a private corporation. If run on business principles there is no reason why it would not be a success. If the people find that it is not run as it should be, they will find a means to stop it and the rope will dangle in the face of those unfaithful to their office.

It was a question upon which the people will have to be educated. It will take some time and more meetings of this kind. He always believed in public ownership of utilities.

Ex-Senator Eugene H. Sprague believed, after living in Quincy and paying bills for electricity, which are large and service good, and for gas, which are large and service poor, he was ready to talk anything.

He then presented some figures gathered by ex-Councilman DeNormandie. The returns of the Gas Company showed that in 1889 on June 30, the value of real estate was $9,500; machinery, $8,500: street main, $10,000; and meters, $500.

During the next ten years $1250 was expended in improvement and it had a few hundred feet less of mains, yet the returns showed real estate, $9,500; machinery, $16,126; street mains, $33,474; and meters, $3,778.91.

The gas service at Wollaston was not only a nuisance but was dangerous on account of change in pressure. The citizens ought to get together and do something.

Ex-Councilman Harry W. Read would like to see gas mains in Atlantic for cooking and lighting purposes. His service for electric lights was poor, and the price exhorbitant. If Atlantic people knew of this hearing the hall would have been full.

Former Tax Collector A. L. Baker thought it was a question whether Quincy was in condition to make any more plants pay expenses. It was said during the agitation of the purchase of the water plant that rates would be cheaper. Our receipts from water rates last year were $96,000. The fact is, however, that it cost the city $108,000 to get that amount.

When we took the plant, we were paying $25 for full water service. After ten years we are paying $23. If the Water Company had remained in control we should be using the same water, and at far less price, and the city would be better off than now. The trouble is there is too much politics in it.

Just as long as votes can be bought for a trifling position in the water department, just so long will this condition remain. Where the city spends so much to get so little, it is better to go slow. May we not expect that the more municipal plants we have the more we will be loaded with public debt?

It looks as though Quincy could not run a peanut plant with out going into debt.

The hearing then closed.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The movement to enlarge the Coddington school lot has the approval of all friends of the school. Those who have investigated the situation recently find it worse than they thought it was. The Faxon lot is just fifteen feet from the Coddington school building and within twenty-five feet there is an old-fashioned out-house and two sheds, one of which has the appearance of being used as a piggery. There is also a cabbage patch. The house is not at present occupied, but has recently had Italians for tenants.

It is Miss Underwood's room on the the street floor which seldom gets a ray of sunshine that has this unattractive outlook. It would show some appreciation of her long service to make this improvement.

With the school lot extended to Faxon avenue, many children would find the avenue much nearer in going to and from school, taking them away from Coddington street and Washington street now used by electric cars.

Should the present site of the Coddington school ever be abandoned, it would be in poor shape for investment, but with the addition of the Faxon lot it could be divided to advantage into several house lots.

There are many other reasons why the school lot should be enlarged at this time. At one time the town had a grand opportunity to purchase at a bargain the land now occupied by the Hayward and Arnold houses; it should not at this time allow the present opportunity to go by. The Faxon estate has been offered at its assessed valuation.

Drift of Opinion.

☞A woman may vote as a stockholder upon a railroad from one end of the country to the other. But if she sells her stock and buys a house with the money, she has no voice in the laying out of the road before her door, which her house is taxed to keep and pay for. Why, in the name of good sense, if a responsible human being may vote upon specific industrial projects, may she not vote upon the industrial regulation of the State?—George William Curtis.

Zoology Class.

Mr. Albert P. Morse, curator of the Zoological Museum of Wellesley college took his field class in zoology to West Quincy last Saturday afternoon.

A small pond, about twelve minutes walk from the station was the place of exploration; and when the borders were dragged by the collecting nets of the scientists the captured denizens must have felt sorry.

A great many pond inhabitants came to light when the nets were emptied; among them newts, tadpoles, waterbugs, caddis worms in their pretty cases, dragonfly larvae, a colonial protozoon, a small jelly-like mass whose life could be seen only by the aid of a powerful microscope.

A few members of the class soon learned that although all these things came from the same pond it was merciless to put them in the same bottle. The smaller bugs, back swimmers, waterboatmen, etc., began immediately to attack the salamanders and tadpoles. They tore the caddis worms from their nicely constructed homes and seemed intent on doing mischief. The result was all jars were emptied and the collecting began anew.

After the lesson all the contents of jars were returned to the pond with the exception of a few designed for schoolrooms, where the changes in the life of a frog are to be observed.

Perhaps it is not well known that the tail of a tadpole does not drop off when the tadpole becomes a frog or toad, as the case may be. Nature is too economical for that. The tail grows shorter and shorter as it is carried into the body. This is caused by wandering cells taking the tail up particle by particle so carefully that the skin is never injured but covers up the outside all the time.

The number of the class was soon greatly augmented by boys and girls, who silently came from nobody knew where. The topic of conversation in many West Quincy homes that evening may readily be imagined. They were earnest children; they drank from the fountain of knowledge with avidity. Even paper-boys were there, standing dangerously close to the water with their papers under their arms. They held them with a firm grip however, and no harm was done.

These children of West Quincy were also polite. It was amusing to hear their "Please excuse me," as they pressed forward to get nearer the objects. Mr. Morse was soon surrounded by an intensely interested class. They evidently grasped the gist of the explanations especially the story of the boy who likened frog's eggs to a jelly-fish with seeds in it.

The afternoon was cool and the wind keen, but when on knowledge bent no one cares for such trifles.

NEWS AT DOLLAR A LINE

Represented Testimony at Investigation as Favorable to the Company--President of Metropolitan Was Good to McCall

New York, Oct. 25.—At Tuesday's session of the legislative committee investigating the life insurance companies, the affairs of the Mutual Life Insurance company were under consideration and it was brought out that this company was paying for the dissemination throughout the country of reports of this investigation that were favorable to the company.

Charles J. Smith, a newspaper man, was a witness. He is employed by the Mutual Life to do a large number of things, but a month ago was given the task of sending out these reports. Smith had vised a number of vouchers for payments on account of this work. These aggregated $11,000, with more bills to come in. He thought the amount to date would reach $14,000.

Mr. Smith wrote the reports and submitted them to Allan Forman, who owns the Telegraphic News bureau, and to which concern $1 a line was paid by the Mutual Life for the service. Clippings from various papers throughout the country were shown to the witness and identified as the dispatches he wrote and sent to Forman. These were sent to about 100 papers, but Smith did not know whether the papers were paid for inserting them. In one dispatch Smith wrote that McCurdy's attitude on the stand made a distinctly favorable impression, and for this he had to pay $2 a line. This, he said, was worth it.

Walter Sullivan, who has charge of the magazine advertising department, next was called. He said the Mutual Life advertised in 12 magazines last year at a cost of $42,000. Advertising in insurance papers cost about $30,000 more, but he could not tell where the rest of the $329,797 charged up to advertising last year was spent.

Emory McClintock, the actuary of the Mutual Life, was also on the stand. The entire morning session was given over to his explanations of the technical points of insurance. McClintock advocated no laws practically for the insurance companies beyond a certain supervision to give the reports publicity. He thought the public could take care of themselves and that publicity was the best law. Asked how far this view was shared in official circles, he thought he was somewhat of a missionary along that line. McClintock will be called again.

John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, was examined, and when the adjournment was taken he was still on the stand with his testimony unfinished. While lacking the startling features of the testimony of some of the other life insurance presidents who have testified, Hegeman's remarks and explanations were none the less interesting, especially his statement that $876,000 was given to the industrial policyholders of his company last year without any obligation whatever. Hegeman further said that in eight years his company had voluntarily given to the policyholders $8,000,000. This was in extended insurance, mortuary dividends and liberalized policies during epidemics, floods and fires.

It was brought out that, while the company carried collateral loans throughout the year, none appeared in the annual report on Dec. 31. This was explained by the witness, who said that all collateral loans were transferred on the last day of the year to Vermilye & Co., bankers, under an agreement, and were bought back again in January. This was done, according to the witness, to avoid the horde of applications for call loans which would have come from the Wall street district had the Metropolitan appeared as a lending company. Hegeman did not encourage the call loan business from this section because it entailed keeping a ticker in his office and he would not have one there.

Large loans at such a low rate of interest as 1½ percent, especially one to President McCall of the New York Life Insurance company, were taken up, and Hegeman spoke strongly of his friendship for McCall, who, he said, was closer than any other man to him in insurance business, outside of his immediate associates. McCall had rendered him valuable service that was of benefit to the company and personally he thought the company could afford and would have been justified in paying McCall the few hundreds of dollars the interest on the loans amounted to. The same was true, he said, of Silas B. Dutcher, a director of the company, who also carried large loans with the company.

Rochester, Oct. 25.—John Kerrigan of Boston, aged 26, a printer, fell from a freight train near Bergen. Both legs were cut off and he received such other injuries that he died last night.

BIG STRIKE PROBABLE

Trend of Sentiment Among Fall River Operatives

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 25.—Although the Fall River Textile council, which held a special meeting last night to consider the refusal of the Manufacturers' association to grant a direct wage increase of slightly more than 14 percent, made no recommendations to the various unions, the indications strongly point to a general strike before the close of the month.

Special meetings of all the unions will be held tonight to vote on the question of leaving the mills. A majority sentiment in the unions in favor of stopping work does not necessarily mean a strike will occur, as under the union constitution a two-thirds vote of the members of each union is necessary before the organization can be counted as favoring a strike.

The sentiment among the rank and file of the operatives, union and non-union, appears to be strongly in favor of a strike. As many of the mills are more or less short-handed, it is thought that the Manufacturers' association have less than 25,000 hands on their payrolls. These are employed in 75 mills, owned by 34 corporations.

Opium-Crazed Chinaman's Acts

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 25.—Yee Wah, a Chinese laundryman, suddenly became insane from the effects of opium, and without provocation shot Annie Milhern, 10 years old, who was passing his laundry. A few moments later he dashed out of his shop and struck John J. Jessop with a cleaver. In attempting to evade arrest he shot at two policemen, but missed them, and was finally brought to terms by a bullet through the wrist. He was taken to a hospital, where he is under guard. The wounds of the Milhern girl and Jessop are not serious.

Deer's Curiosity Was Aroused

Swansea, Mass., Oct. 25.—An electric car, bound from Fall River to Providence, was held up here last night by a large deer. The animal was evidently attracted by the bright searchlight and was running at full speed towards the car. The motorman brought the car to a stop, but the animal kept on running until close to the searchlight, where it stopped and gazed at the dazzling rays. The deer stood thus until the motorman chased it away. Later the deer was again seen in about the same place by the crew of another car.

Murderer Says He Is Now Sane

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 25.—In the superior court Attorney Rowley of Boston, for Arad Taylor, an inmate of the insane department of the state farm at Bridgewater, filed a petition for discharge from custody. Taylor claims he is now sane and should be released from confinement. Taylor killed his wife with an axe at Berlin Sept. 11, 1895, and was adjudged insane and ordered committed.

Pleaded Her Own Case Well

Boston, Oct. 25.—Minnie H. S. Matthewson defended the libel brought against her by her husband, Arthur C. Matthewson of New York, alleging unfaithfulness. She now lives in New York and came here to defend the suit. Her lawyer failed to appear, and rather than be subjected to the trouble of coming again, she went ahead and tried the case so well that the court dismissed the libel.

$15,000 Verdict Against Railroad

Boston, Oct. 25.—A joint verdict for $15,000 was recorded in the superior court. Amelia Miller of Hudson had sued the Boston and Maine Railway company for damages arising out of a collision which occurred at Waltham, March 10, 1903, while her husband, John A. Miller, sued for loss of association and services. The former was given $12,000 and the latter $3000.

Indian Charged With Murder

Oldtown, Me., Oct. 25.—John P. Ranco, a Penobscot Indian, was arraigned here on the charge of murder, the crime being the alleged killing of Peter Loring, another Indian. Ranco pleaded not guilty. Loring was found dead in front of his house with a bullet hole through his body. Ranco was suspected and gave himself up after having been in hiding.

Sleepers Placed on Track

Reading, Mass., Oct. 25.—Officials of the Boston and Maine railroad made a search in this vicinity last evening for two men whom they suspect of placing sleepers on the tracks just before the 8:30 train from Boston arrived at Reading. The engineer of the train was able to stop before the engine reached it.

Baby's Death Crazed Mother

Meriden, Conn., Oct. 25.—While her mother was working in the next room, Florice Merriman, 7 months old, fell out of her high chair and strangled to death, her neck becoming entangled in some netting which was used to tie her in. The sight of her dead child rendered Mrs. Merriman insane.

Fine and Prison For Inventor

Boston, Oct. 25.—William J. Ross, an inventor, was sentenced to a term of two years in the house of correction, and to pay a fine of $300 on a charge of larceny. He was charged with defrauding James A. Bradbury of $1500 in selling him the right to a gas burner by misrepresenting the facts.

DEFIES SHERIFF'S POSSE

Man Wanted For Shooting Barricades Himself In Hotel

Alstead, N. H., Oct. 25.—George Ford came here from Marlow two weeks ago and was hired as a laborer, but he lived at the local hotel. Last night he met Fred Shortcleeve on the hotel piazza. The men had a few words, and then Shortcleeve turned to walk away. As he did so, Ford, it is alleged, shot Shortcleeve, the bullet taking effect in the back. Shortcleeve was removed to his home in Langdon, where it is stated that he is in a critical condition.

Following the alleged shooting Ford hastened to his room on the top floor of the hotel, where he locked himself in. Soon afterward Deputy Sheriff Perry, with a posse of 10 men, arrived at the hotel and proceeded to Ford's room. Upon Ford's refusal to surrender Perry kicked open the door. Ford, it is alleged, fired at the officer but missed him. He then closed the door again and barricaded it with the furniture in the room.

The sheriff and his posse retreated, but they expect to be able to starve Ford into submission. The posse was augmented by several more citizens and every avenue of escape from the hotel was closely guarded.

Shortcleeve, the victim of the shooting, is a young farmer. He had never had any trouble with Ford, and it is not known what led to the assault. It is believed that Ford is mentally deranged.

Dynamite Shakes Tenement House

New York, Oct. 25.—A seven-story tenement house was shaken last night by an explosion of dynamite which some unknown person had placed on the steps of a butcher shop on the ground floor. The explosion threw the hundreds of tenants in the building and in the houses adjoining into a panic. The butcher shop was wrecked by the explosion, but the rest of the house was uninjured save for the smashing of many windows. Dr. Vincenzo Sellaro, who had an office and apartments in the building, informed the police that the dynamite was probably meant for him. He said that he had received several threatening letters.

GEO. FRED WILLIAMS CHARGES HENRY M. WHITNEY WITH POLITICAL CORRUPTION

Democratic Leader Declares Democratic Candidate for Lieut.-Gov. Unworthy the Suffrage of Democratic Voters

MR. WILLIAMS QUOTES THE SUPREME COURT ON MR. WHITNEY'S PUBLIC RECORD.

THE LETTER IS AS FOLLOWS:

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have addressed you a letter protesting against the nomination of Henry M. Whitney for the office of Lieutenant Governor. Mr. Whitney has answered in a letter to me personally. I prefer still to address myself to my party and the public, to whom alone is my responsibility.

I have clung to my party amid many disappointments, and do not wish to see it commit suicide with justifiable cause.

Mr. Josiah Quincy declares that Mr. Whitney was nominated with the understanding that I would bolt the nomination. Inasmuch as I had not made my position in the matter known to any one, it is clear that Mr. Quincy and his associates deliberately made the issue I now raise.

If our party, under false leadership, proposes to meet the public sentiment against political corruption bynominating for public office the foremost representative of such corruption, it deserves to lose honest men's support. My desire is to save our party from such leadership. The case seems not yet hopeless.

I charged Mr. Whitney with procuring the passage of an Elevated Railway charter by employing an enormous lobby, by securing the silence or assistance of the leading politicians with legal retainers, by influencing the nominations and elections of members of the legislature, by attempting to influence the appointment of the Street Railway committee, by expending from $33,000 to $58,000 and by buying off competitors for a charter.

Mr. Whitney denies none of these charges, and they were amply proved in the West End investigation. The above charges constitute corruption of the legislature as defined by the Courts.

I desire now to add that when a man employs agents to influence legislation, who are known, as some of his employees were, to be unprincipled and wicked men, and places in their hands large sums of money, that man makes himself responsible for the bribery of legislators, which inevitably follows. The whole history of legislative corruption is covered by the employment of wicked tools by responsible men.

I maintain that our legislatures will be scandalized so long as such methods are permitted, and that to elect such men to public office is to place the public indorsement upon all the corruption which their employment of bad men and unlawful methods involves.

Mr. Whitney's answers to my charges are as follows: that.

First, my opposition to his measure was demagogical.

Second, I sought to give another party the right to build an elevated road.

Third, I tried to deprive the public of the blessings of his measure.

Fourth, he was justified in giving dinners to legislators and lobbying for their votes.

I fully realize that Mr. Whitney is attempting to turn public attention from his own misdeeds by questioning my motives in attacking him in the legislature.

I am not a candidate for office and my motives in 1890 are not important, but I choose none the less to have the truth known.

To take the answers seriatim, Mr. Whitney says,

First, he invited me to his office that he might explain his plans, and that "When I got your reply, I knew that I had to deal with a first-class demagogue."

The best answer to this statement is to publish the letter, and I ask the public judgment whether there is anything "demagogical" in it. Here it is:

"H. M. Whitney, Esq.,

"Dear Sir:—The fact that I have been unable until now to answer your courteous note of the 12th inst. is an answer to your question. I attend to legislative duties all day and crowd my law business into the short hours before and after the sessions, and in the evening.

"I cannot give any time to an inspection of the work of the West End Street Railway Company, neither would its perfect work touch the point which would affect my judgment in the granting of corporation charters."

This letter seems to me perfectly respectful and consistent with my duty as a legislator.

Two months before this time, the West End bill had been referred to the committee on Street Railways, "with instructions to hear the parties after such notice has been given as the committee shall direct." I thought then that Mr. Whitney's proper place was before the committee and not at his office privately soliciting legislators, but I refrained from this criticism.

Such methods had clearly been condemned by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, which after stating that the committee hearings give to adverse parties the opportunity "to meet face to face," uses these words "Common fairness requires that neither party shall be permitted to have secret consultations and exercise secret influences that are kept from the knowledge of the other party."

If I was a demagogue to refuse to meet Mr. Whitney in private, I have the excellent company of Mr. Justice Chapman, one of the foremost men who ever occupied our bench.

But indeed this cry of "demagogue" is the familiar resort of guilty men against their accusers. Tweed branded Mr. Tilden as a demagogue, the Standard Oil Company found the same fault in Henry D. Lloyd, when he published "Wealth vs. Commonwealth," and I doubt not Mr. McCall, of the New York Life, and Mr. McCurdy, of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, regard Mr. Hughes in the same light.

If to be a demagogue is to seek one's reward for popular service in the approbation of one's fellow-citizens, I must plead guilty.

Mr. Whitney acquits me of mercenary motives and thinks I was actuated by desire for notoriety. Yes, I was: namely, the notoriety of being the only man of several hundred who was willing to denounce Mr. Whitney's methods, to be followed by his spies, to pursue a righteous cause with no reward in sight, except the gratitude of a people, which stood defenceless against the unrighteous methods of Mr. Whitney in grabbing public rights for purposes of private gain.

Second, Mr. Whitney charges that I sought to give another party the right to build an elevated railway. His whole letter is filled with false statements indicating that I had other motives than the public good in my opposition to his bill. I was interested in no railway scheme whatever. The plain answer to this false statement is, that I voted against every elevated railroad bill which came up for consideration. I did this because I did not consider the public interests to be properly guarded, and this was my only objection to Mr. Whitney's bill.

Mr. Whitney's attempts to make me appear as the advocate of a competing scheme are absolutely baseless. How can I answer such unfounded charges except by denial and by reference to the records of the legislature?

It is also not true that I advocated competition among street railways. I merely opposed a monopoly without proper safeguards of the people's rights.

Third, Mr. Whitney complained that I tried to deprive the public of the blessings of his measure. Here Mr. Whitney is guilty of the most unpardonable misstatements.

He says first, that I tried to filch from the pockets of "the poor" an additional five cents every time they travelled over the road. This statement is absolutely false. On the contrary, I tried to clear up the dubious language of the West End Bill, in which free transfers were promised.

What makes this assertion of Mr. Whitney a monstrous piece of audacity is the fact that since that time year after year I have appeared before the legislative committee to compel the West End Street Railway Company to give free transfers to the people, and save "the poor" from the extortion of this five cents. Year after year, I have met Mr. Whitney's attorneys in triumphant opposition. I offered an order in the legislature to limit the issues of street railway stock to actual cash investments and not less than par value: this order failed. Mr. Whitney, in consolidating the street railways of Boston, loaded hundreds of thousands of dollars in watered stock upon the people of the State. "The pockets of the poor," which I have always defended against such exactions, have paid yearly enormous tribute upon such stock, which made him wealthy.

I exercised my best judgment in opposing Mr. Whitney's bill by legitimate amendments, and he cannot show a single amendment offered by me which was not in the public interest.

There were others who voted against this bill, such as William D. Sohier, Josiah Quincy, Willard Howland, Augustus Hemenway, Geo. Fox Tucker, J. Otis Wardwell, Michael J. McEttrick, Louis A. Cook, H. Torrey Cady, Frank W. Dallinger, William B. Durant, Judge John J. McDonough, Judge Edgar S. Taft, Edward W. Preslo, Geo. N. Swallow, Edward B. Glascow, and 63 others.

Fourth, I now come to Mr. Whitney's justification of his lobbying methods, the worst which blot the annals of our Commonwealth. He says, "I freely admit giving the dinners, of employing counsel, and making use of the lobby; but it was to prevent the accomplishment of an infamous purpose, which was championed by you in violation of your oath." I leave the public to judge whether this may be an honest error or must be wilful misstatement. Mr. Whitney employed his first lobbyist in July, before I was nominated or ever considered for the legislature; he paid this lobbyist $500 before I was sworn in as a member. Mr. Whitney bought out the Ames-Shepard opposition before I was elected to the legislature. His whole lobby was at its nefarious business before I knew there was a West End bill. He gave his dinners to the legislators before I had raised my voice in the legislature against his bill. How wanton is his attempt now to assert that all his sins were prompted by my opposition.

What I championed "in violation of my oath" I know not, unless it was my sworn duty to stand by voiceless while he corrupted my associates.

Mr. Whitney says that for 15 years he has waited and longed to bring before the public the real facts; this is indeed a long time to wait for the privilege of confessing his own guilt.

He justifies his employment of the lobby in express terms. He justifies his acts, as I have charged them. Let me quote what the Supreme Court of Massachusetts says of this: "The business of 'lobby members' is not to go fairly and openly before the committees — but to go secretly to the members and ply them with statements and arguments that the other side cannot openly meet, however erroneous they may be; and to bring illigitimate influences to bear upon them."

Mr. Whitney justifies his retainers to political leaders; the Supreme Court says: "If the 'lobby member' is selected because of his political or personal influence, it aggravates the wrong." Mr. Whitney justifies the buying out of competing petitioners. The Supreme Court says: "If his business is to unite various interests by means of projects that are called 'log-rolling,' it is still worse." Mr. Whitney justifies his private dining and wineing of legislators; the following language of our Supreme Court I commend not only to him, but to the Boston editor who asks, "Is hospitality a crime?"

The Supreme Court says "The practice of procuring members of the legislature to act under the influence of what they have eaten and drunk at houses of entertainment tends to render those of them who yield to such influences wholly unfit to act in such cases. They are disqualified from acting fairly towards interested parties or towards the public. The tendency and object of these influences are to obtain by corruption what it is supposed cannot be obtained fairly."

All these quotations from the Supreme Court may be found on page 159 of the sixth volume of Allen's reports.

In these matters I leave Mr. Whitney to reckon with our highest judicial tribunal and with the conscience of an honest people. If Mr. Whitney admitted his error and regretted it I should be the first to commend him, but it is commonly known that his pipe line bill was procured by the same unlawful methods. A vote for him, therefore, is a vote to confirm his repeated defiance of political honesty and legislative purity.

My exposure of legislative corruption is the proudest effort of my public life, and I am glad to have reviewed it here, even though I know Mr. Whitney's purpose to be to escape punishment at the bar of public opinion, by diverting attention from himself to the false charges which he desperately scatters through his letter.

I stand to-day as I stood then, to expose and denounce the methods of corruption, nor am I to be deterred because I shall soil my hands upon my opponent.

"PIRATE" AT LARGE

Jackson and His Craft Slip Through Police Net

ACCOMPLICE IN CUSTODY

Had Charge of Plunder Gathered All Along Long Island Sound and the Shores of Narragansett Bay

Newport, R. I., Oct. 25.—Although the net spread by the police of this city failed to entrap in its meshes Henry A. Jackson, who is alleged to be the captain of the "pirate" craft Dorado, there are several developments which will aid materially to clear up the mystery surrounding the Dorado's movements along the shores of Narragansett bay and Long Island sound.

The most important feature is the arrest in Providence of Otto Steiffel, who admitted to the police that he was associated with Jackson and his companions. Another feature of interest is the movements of a black sloop in the harbor. The suspicious craft put out to sea before the authorities sighted her, but it is believed that on board the sloop are persons who have played prominent parts on board the Dorado.

Steiffel was brought here from Providence last night. He was heavily manacled, and was handcuffed to Deputy Sheriffs King and Harvey. Steiffel admitted to the authorities that he had been associated with Jackson, but said that he personally had not taken any part in the stealing. Steiffel said that his work was to take care of the plunder and dispose of it. The other members of the band were concerned in the stealing.

The purpose in bringing Steiffel here was to have him identify the plunder found aboard the Dorado and the Bessie, and tell the authorities where it was stolen. Steiffel said that the thefts occurred all along Long Island sound and the shores of Narragansett bay, mentioning in particular Larchmont, Greenwich and New London.

The prisoner, according to his own statement, repented having cast his lot with the crew of the Dorado. He said that he had intended, even if he had not been arrested, to come to Newport and make a full confession to the authorities. He said that he knew that such a career as he and his associates had engaged in would end ultimately in arrest. He claims Brooklyn as his home.

Steiffel will be called upon to identify the plunder found on the pirate craft. He will be taken to Cranston, where he will be tried on the charge of stealing the sloop Bessie, the boat belonging to B. I. Burlingame. Burlingame arrived here from Cranston and identified the Bessie as his property.

One of the officials of the Edgewood Yacht club of Providence came here and identified a number of articles found on the Dorado and the Bessie as having been stolen from yachts of the Edgewood fleet.

A telegram was received from I. M. Amory of New York city, stating that a silver mounted mirror, engraved "E. H. A.," which was found on the Dorado, was stolen from him at Larchmont some time ago. A Greek fisherman of this city also identified a pair of marine glasses as property that was stolen from his boat in this harbor.

The maneuvers of a black sloop in the harbor aroused considerable suspicion. The sloop finally sailed out into the bay, where she was met by another strange craft, which exchanged small boats with her. Both sloops then stood down the bay, entered the harbor, sailed around for a while and finally put out to sea. It is the opinion of the police that those on board the strange craft knew that they were being watched and left port to escape minute observation.

Fred M. Butler, one of Mrs. Rogers' attorneys, makes an affidavit concerning the woman's financial condition, in which he says: "She is without money, property assets or resources, and is unable to pay the costs of her appeal." ADVICE TO BLACKS

Should Follow Farming or Mechanical Pursuits

PRESIDENT AT TUSKEGEE

Upon People of Both Races Living Up to Spirit and Letter of Laws Depends Future of the South--Protection of Negroes

Tuskegee, Ala., Oct. 25.—President Roosevelt was warmly received when he addressed the students at Tuskegee. After suggesting to the students the advantage at the present day, to apply themselves to farm work or mechanical pursuits rather than to the professions, he continued:

"It is not only the duty of the white man, but it is of his interest to see that the negro is protected in property, in life and in all his legal rights. Every time a law is broken every individual in the community has the moral tone of his life lowered. Lawlessness in the United States is not confined to any one section; lynching is not confined to any one section, and there is perhaps no body of American citizens who have deserved so well of the entire American people as the public men, the publicists, the clergymen, the countless thousands of high-minded citizens who have done such heroic work in the south in arousing public opinions against lawlessness in all its forms, and especially lynching.

"And right here, let me say that if in any community a misunderstanding between the races arises, over any matter, infinitely the best way out is to have a prompt, frank and full conference and consultation between representatives of the wise, decent, cool-headed men among the whites and the wise, decent, cool-headed colored men. Such a conference will always tend to bring about a better understanding, and will be a great help all around.

"The future of the south now depends upon the people of both races living up to the spirit and letter of the laws of their several states and working out the destinies of both races, not as races, but as law-abiding American citizens."

Amidst the booming of cannon and the cheering of many thousands of people, President Roosevelt arrived at Montgomery from Tuskegee and became the guest of the people of the first capital of the Confederacy.

The patriotic sentiment of the people was expressed everywhere by the floating of flags and tri-colored bunting, and thousands of cheers went up as the president's carriage moved off from the union station followed by the civic and military parade.

The route was through the principal streets to the capitol, where a platform had been erected in front of the historic old building and within a few feet of the spot where Jefferson Davis took the oath of office as the first president of the Confederacy.

The welcome to the president was more than satisfactory, in civility. It was cordial and enthusiastic.

Witte Will Be No Figurehead

St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—The announcement that Count Witte would shortly assume active direction of the government as premier and head of a responsible cabinet now seems to be fully confirmed. Witte is said to have informed the czar that he could accept the position only on the condition that he would be a real premier, with a working cabinet, and not the mere figurehead of an irresponsible body, to which the czar assented.

Chaffee Forgot His Key

New York, Oct. 25.—Ernest B. Chaffee, a relative of Lieutenant General Chaffee and a graduate of Harvard, was acquitted by a jury of the charge of burglariously entering the A. H. Cross apartment on the floor below his own rooms. Chaffee testified that he had forgotten his key one night and started to climb the fire escape to his apartment. He entered the Cross rooms by mistake, he said.

Strike Situation Grows Worse

St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—The government has resumed railroad service on a few roads, but under great difficulties. The decision of the railroad men at a meeting here last night to declare a general strike has immensely complicated the problem. The strike has taken a violent turn in a number of cities, from which reports come of encounters between the mobs and the police and troops.

Valuable Military Accessory

Quick Payment

upon its Bonds of Suretyship is the fixed rule of the American Surety Company.

Without quibble or technical objection, and with only such delay as careful examination of proof requires, losses are promptly paid, the check being often mailed the same day the claim is filed.

On Personal Security, recovery necessarily takes time; with the American Surety Company, recovery upon proof of loss is certain and immediate. Such quick action often saves a bank from closing its doors, or a firm from bankruptcy.

Persons, firms and corporations requiring bonds from their employees, should write to the

NOTES ABOUT TOWN.

Nominations for the Republican caucuses may be filed next Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall have moved into their new house on Atlantic street.

The little daughter of Fred F. Green has entirely recovered from her illness.

Work was begun this morning repairing the ceiling of the Council chamber at City Hall.

Nelson & Ericson are building a house on the corner of South and Howard streets.

Mrs. James Curtin of Atlantic street, and daughter Mrs. Frank Coe are visiting friends in Fritzwilliam, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger H. Wilde of Billings street returned Monday from a week end visit in Fitzwilliam, N. H.

William W. Thomas, the granite dealer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $6,155.00 and no assets.

Several Quincy "Shriners" attended the initiation of 75 candidates by Aleppo temple at Mechanics hall, Tuesday evening. A banquet followed.

Sand has been put between the rails at the Atlantic station which makes alighting from the train easier and safer because it shortens the distance from the step to the ground. Several accidents have happened previous to this improvement, caused by the uncertain level of the grading each side of the tracks.

Thanks.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Quincy High Invincible

Shut Out Dorchester High By Score Eleven Points

Quincy High played Dorchester at the Dorchester High field Tuesday and scored a decisive victory. At no period of the game was Quincy's goal in danger, the ball being in Dorchester's territory thirty out of thirty-five minutes of play.

The Dorchester team ran on the field with a squad of 46 players, out of which could be picked three elevens which would out-weigh Quincy. But they did not seem to be able to play football. They simply could not gain through Quincy's line, but did pull off three long end runs which netted about 50 yards.

The Quincy ends made up for this by tackling the runner for losses on other occasions.

Despite the fact that Quincy won and that they out-played their opponents the team work was very ragged. They mixed up the signals, fumbled the ball repeatedly and did not stay with the runner. If they had not done these things and had pulled the runner along the score would have been 30-0 in Quincy's favor instead of only 11-0.

Three or four times Quincy was within Dorchester's 25 yard line where three rushes would have carried it over, when some Quincy back would fumble or a lineman get off side and the ball was Dorchester's. In short if the Quincy High team will learn the signals, learn to hold onto the ball when it is given to them, and lastly learn to grab the runner somewhere and pull or shove him along they will be invincible to all of the teams that they play. If they don't their clean slate is liable to be badly soiled.

The game itself was not as interesting as the Abington game owing to a large amount of time taken out for injuries and other unnecessary delays. On the other hand, once in a while there was some brilliant playing. Moody and Comins again proved that they are the superiors in offensive and defensive play of any pair of Quincy High school tackles. On the offensive the Quincy backs did fine, because the line tore holes in Dorchester big enough for a team to pass through. Fallon did well on a fake kick and in his punting which was rendered very effective by Gourley's tackling.

Nichols ran the team well, using good judgment in selecting his plays, but must be surer in passing the ball to the runner. The secondary defense played well, backing up the line splendidly.

Bass at full showed much improvement. He was replaced later by Sprague who carried the ball over for the second touchdown. Sprague should develop into a fine player with more experience.

Much credit is due to the three center men for the effectiveness of the offense and defence and also to "Kite" Sanders and Arthur the Quincy half backs for carrying the ball well, although making some costly fumbles.

The one play that Dorchester was any good at was a special formation for an end run but which can be stopped by the defensive full-back moving over to that end.

The above mistakes can be remedied if the Quincy players will show sufficient loyalty to their school and captain to come out and do a little practicing before the game with Thayer Academy at Merrymount park on Friday afternoon.

The line up:

QUINCY HIGH.	DORCHESTER HIGH.
Fallon, l. e.	r. e., Taylor
Moody, l. t.	r. t., Colton (Jackson)

H. M. Whitney's Methods

"I Freely Admit Giving the Dinners, of employing counsel and making use of the lobby, but it was to prevent the accomplishment of an infamous purpose which was championed by you in violation of your oath."
—Henry M. Whitney in his reply to George Fred Williams.

EX-GOV. WILLIAM E. RUSSELL, DEMOCRAT,

Condemned the Whitney Methods

In his speech at Lynn, Oct. 31, 1890, Hon. William E. Russell said:

"In my opinion that measure has great merit. It meets the just demand of the community for quicker and better transit. It is a practical solution by able and responsible men of a difficult problem, and it will promote the convenience of the public; but if I had been Governor of this Commonwealth, I would, under the circumstances disclosed by the investigation, have vetoed that bill as quickly as I could have put pen to paper.

"FOR I HOLD THAT IT IS FAR MORE IMPORTANT TO GUARD SACREDLY THE PURITY OF LEGISLATION AND TO REBUKE THE LOBBY THAN THAT ANY MEASURE OF MERIT SHOULD BE HASTENED IN ITS PASSAGE. I HOLD THAT ONE OF THE HIGHEST DUTIES OF THE GOVERNOR OF THE COMMONWEALTH IS TO PROTECT ITS FAIR NAME FROM LEGISLATIVE SCANDAL AND TO PROTECT THE PEOPLE FROM THE IMPROPER CONTROL OF LEGISLATION BY SECRET INFLUENCES."

The Supreme Court OF MASS.

Condemned the Whitney Methods

In a ruling of the supreme court (6—Allen 193) the law was laid down that:

"THE PRACTICE OF PROCURING MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE TO ACT UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF WHAT THEY HAVE EATEN AND DRUNK AT HOUSES OF ENTERTAINMENT TENDS TO RENDER THOSE OF THEM WHO YIELD TO SUCH INFLUENCES WHOLLY UNFIT TO ACT IN SUCH CASES.

"They are disqualified from acting fairly toward interested parties, or toward the public.

"THE TENDENCY AND OBJECT OF THESE INFLUENCES ARE TO OBTAIN BY CORRUPTION WHAT IT IS SUPPOSED CANNOT BE OBTAINED FAIRLY."

Will Massachusetts now endorse the man who boldly admits that he employs these methods?

The Republican State Committee, Thomas Talbot, Chairman, William M. Flanders, Secretary.

Clerk Cash

Increases His Lead in Contest Tie for Fourth In Ladies' List

Miss Merritt made a good gain today in the Scholarship contest and is tied for fourth place with Miss Bates. The first three places remain unchanged but there are gains down the list.

In the men's list Clerk Cash has pulled away from his rivals, but Conductor Johnson and others make gains.

All requests to transfer votes must be refused, no transfers being allowed.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

Trolley Express

Would Quincy Be Benefitted If One Was Established?

The first steps toward the establishment of a trolley express line between Quincy and Brockton were taken by the Old Colony Street Railway Monday evening when the company sent to the City Council a petition for its approval of the company acting as a common carrier.

Similar petitions have been sent to the city government of Brockton and to the Selectmen of Braintree and other towns between the terminal points.

The company is authorized to act as a common carrier under the provision of Chapter 202 of the Acts of 1903, as amended by Chapter 441 of the Acts of 1904.

There are important provisos however, as will be seen by Chapter One of the Act of 1903 as amended in 1904 which is quoted in full:

Section 1. Street railway companies are hereby authorized to act as common carriers of baggage and freight in such cases, upon such parts of their railways, and to such extent, in any city or town as, after public notice and a hearing upon the petition of the company or any interested party, the board of aldermen or the selectmen, or those exercising the powers of such board of selectmen, in such city or town, shall by order approve:

Provided, however, that a company shall actually engage in the business of a common carrier under authority of this act only in such of the cases, upon such of the parts of its railway, and to so much of the extent, approved as aforesaid, as the board of railroad commissioners shall certify, after public notice and a hearing upon the petition of the company or any interested party, that public necessity and convenience require; and

Provided, further, that any company acting under authority hereof shall be subject to such regulations and restrictions as may from time to time be made by the local authorities aforesaid, with the approval of the board of railroad commissioners, and shall also be subject to the provisions of all laws now or hereafter in force relating to common carriers so far as they shall be consistent herewith and with said regulations and restrictions.

It is argued that such a line should interest everybody in these places. The trolley express service has been in operation in some parts of New England and has proved a great public benefit to those communities.

A trolley express can run many cars per day bringing into direct communication the several towns and cities along its lines. It enables the country merchant to send goods by express to his customers. It enables the country merchant to buy goods in the city and supply the wants of his customers to an extent which would not be possible without this express system.

The advocates say, the cars will run by the local store, which the railroad does not, and the merchant is not only able to telephone to the city for goods and have them sent out promptly, but they are delivered at his door and he is put to no expense for bringing them from the railroad station. He is also able to deliver goods to his own customers promptly in turn. This is especially true in the delivery of meats and other perishable goods where promptness of delivery is a matter of great importance.

The trolley express system has proved a great success in the central and western states, but there the conditions are different, the country being sparsely settled and the railroads not convenient. Undoubtedly large cities profit at the expense of the smaller ones and they in turn take the trade away from the small towns. Quincy merchants think now that it is rather too convenient for Quincy people to buy goods in Boston and have them delivered at their houses.

Hereafter it should be Mr. Maloney of the Weeks-Hill pharmacy, "Henry" having passed the State Board of Pharmacy on Wednesday. Mr. Maloney is probably the youngest registered pharmacist in the State, and his many friends are glad with him.

Rev. D. C. Stewart of Salem, N. Y., is visiting Rev. W. B. Barr and will address his midweek meeting tonight.

What is Your Stand On Temperance?

Henry H. Faxon continues to take an interest, as usual, in things political, and sends the following open letter to the press:

To Eugene C. Hultman and Edward J. Sandberg, Quincy, Mass.

The strongly No-License policy of this city entitles us to representation in the hall of legislation by men whose votes and influence may be counted on for the support of measures in the interests of temperance and good government, and in opposition to those of a contrary character. This has not been true of some of our legislators in the past.

As you are candidates for the next House of Representatives, in order that the voters may not be in doubt as to your position, it is advisable that you make a statement, over your signatures, in the columns of the Daily Ledger, clearly defining your attitude regarding the matters referred to above.

Very respectfully yours,
Henry H. Faxon.

Quincy, Oct. 25, 1905.

New Pastor.

Rev. W. B. Barr preached at Brockton Tuesday evening and was moderator at a meeting at the United Presbyterian church which resulted in the unanimous call of Rev. Thomas F. B. Smith of Oneonta, N. Y., who will begin work about the first of December. This church is in a flourishing condition.

Popular Day

All the Brides And Grooms Were Residents Of This City

Christ church, one of the prettiest in the city for a wedding, was the scene of a very pretty one on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock, the decoration of autumn leaves and chrysanthemums, combining most effectively with the light gowns of the guests, and bridal party.

The bride was Miss Mildred Rice, only daughter of the late George M. Rice of Hyde Park, and niece of William B. Rice of this city. The groom was Dr. Sydney C. Hardwick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Hardwick of 104 Revere road, this city.

The organist, Mr. Wheeler, was assisted by Mr. Whitney, a friend of the bride. The surpliced choir added to the beauty and solemnity as they entered the church, preceding Rev. S. B. Babcock, archdeacon of the diocese; Rev. William E. Gardner, rector of Christ church; the groom, and the best man, Charles H. Hardwick, brother of the groom.

The bridal party entered by the broad aisle, the ushers leading, followed by the bridesmaids, the flower girl and the bride and her brother.

At the altar the ceremony was most impressive. The ring made a circle of the group before encircling the finger of the bride. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Lincoln Rice. Her gown was a beautiful white silk crepe de chine, trimmed with lace and embroidered garniture. The lace veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a white prayer book.

Of the four bridesmaids, Miss Florence Jaquith of Boston and Miss Marjory Melcher of Quincy were in blue Liberty satin with large picture hats of black and blue with plumes; and Miss Gladys R. Perry of Wellesley Hills and Miss Minnie R. H. Hardwick, sister of the groom, were in white Liberty silk with pink sashes and pink and white hats. The flower girl, Miss Elizabeth Wharf of Dorchester was in white over blue with blue sash and hat. She carried white chrysanthemums and the bridesmaids carried prayer books.

The ushers were Lowell Baker and Nathan G. Nickerson, Jr., of Wollaston, Dr. E. V. Hardwick of Dorchester, William Hodges, Jr., of Stoughton, and Robert A. Hardwick of Quincy.

After the ceremony at the church a reception was held at the future home of the young people at the corner of Washington and Elm streets, which was attended by only the immediate family.

The groom, who is a doctor, has recently returned from Europe where he went for study and pleasure. Dr. and Mrs. Hardwick are popular in the younger set and have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Tufts college made Dr. Hardwick a very acceptable wedding gift, having appointed him this week as instructor in Physiology in both the medical and the dental schools, a well deserved appointment. His Quincy friends wish him happiness in married life, and success in his profession and as an instructor.

Gillis-Nicholson

Last evening, at 7.30 o'clock Mr. Malcolm Gillis was united in marriage to Miss Katie L. Nicholson by the Rev. W. B. Barr, at the home of the groom's father, Mr. Norman Gillis, at 350 Granite street.

The bride was dressed in white swiss muslin trimmed with white ribbon and lace. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary McPherson and the best man was Mr. Daniel McLeod. The bridesmaid was dressed in pink organdie trimmed with white lace. Both the bride and bridesmaid carried bouquets of white roses.

The ushers were Daniel Matthewson, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Korborrough and Mrs. John A. Beaton.

About sixty-five friends and relatives were present from Cambridge, Somerville, Boston and Quincy.

The bride and groom received many beautiful and useful presents. A wedding supper was served and a good social time enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillis will make their home for the present with the groom's father. Their many friends wish them a happy and successful life.

McLean-McKinnon

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Ross, 23 Gordon street, was the scene of a pretty wedding, Wednesday evening, at eight o'clock, when Mr. Hugh John McLean and Miss Sadie McKinnon, sister of Mrs. Ross, were united in marriage. Rev. W. B. Barr performed the ceremony.

Mr. Robert D. McLean, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Mattie Campbell was bridesmaid.

The bride was dressed in white point de esprit trimmed in lace. The bridesmaid wore white muslin trimmed with lace. Both the bride and bridesmaid carried white carnations.

There were many friends and relatives of the contracting parties present. After the ceremony an informal reception was held and refreshments were served. There were many beautiful and useful presents.

Mr. and Mrs. McLean will reside at 31 Albertina street. A host of friends wish them a happy and prosperous life.

At the matinee whist, held at the home of Mrs. Beatrice Porterfield on Granite street Wednesday afternoon, five tables were in play and the following received souvenirs: Mrs. A. Russell, Mrs. John Robertson, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. Phelan.

There will be a dance at the Squantum Yacht club on Saturday evening.

Brisk Blaze

$1,000 Fire in Johnson Building in City Square

An alarm was sounded at 9.02 last evening for a fire in the Johnson building in City Square and flames were bursting out of a second story window at the time. But in five minutes the fire department had a stream upon the building. The fire was fought with one stream outside in the alley way near the Savings Bank building and inside by two streams carried up the stairway and a good stop was made in a few minutes.

The building which is owned by Mrs. Edna Johnson was damaged to the extent of $500 which is fully covered by insurance.

The first floor of the building was occupied by Johnson Bros. No fire reached this floor but water came down through the ceiling. The firm carried a very large stock of goods, but the loss which is entirely by water is estimated at $60.

Miss Aline Jarvis, the dressmaker in whose room the fire started, says she had a large lot of dress goods on hand in addition to dresses that were in the process of being made. She estimates her loss to be not less than $500, upon which there was an insurance of $200.

The dental office of Dr. Clayton R. Marstin and the barber shop of Adolph Tetro were slightly damaged by smoke. Some little water also ran into these offices under the door. Ten dollars will more than cover the loss on both of these offices.

The room in the rear of the second floor was occupied by the Robert Emmet club and several labor unions. Things were somewhat smoked in this room but practically no fire reached it.

The hall on the third floor is occupied by several divisions of the Hibernians. Considerable smoke went into the hall but no fire.

Sunday School Reception

The reception which the superintendent and teachers of the First church Sunday school are to give tomorrow evening, Oct. 27, at 7.30 o'clock, promises to be a very enjoyable occasion. Besides the address by Mr. Maro S. Brooks, sub-master of the Brookline High school, an exceedingly entertaining speaker, there are to be solos by Mrs. N. S. Hunting and Mrs. R. K. Whiton who never fail to please.

At the conclusion of the program, every one is requested to remain to partake of the refreshments.

The pastor and Sunday school superintendent of both the Wollaston and Braintree churches and the president of the Sunday School Union of Boston have been invited to attend, as it is the purpose of this gathering to promote good fellowship not only between the parents and teachers of the Sunday school, but between the sister churches and our own church.

All those interested in the welfare of the school, whether they have children in attendance or not, are earnestly requested to be present.

Sent to State Farm.

Randolph officers put on their war paint this week, and have been getting after the town bums. These men are the kind that are always looking for work, and praying, they will never find it. They loaf about the street corners, and when possible to get anything to drink, never miss the opportunity. Several of these fellows were brought into the court at Quincy, on Wednesday, and sent to the State farm, and today two more went the same way. There is a similar class of bums who make their headquarters in City Square, and a similar treatment for these fellows would be a good thing.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ A Boston clergyman thinks that the church should set itself to amusing the people as a means of winning them to the Christian faith. Some manifestations of the churches do amuse them now; but do not seem effectual in making them Christians.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The superior court is to be called upon to decide whether the writer of love letters which have been received by the person to whom they were addressed has an ownership in them which can be assigned. It is to be hoped that the court will rule against it, or at least against the right to assign that ownership to the public, and thus shut off the suppy of love letters from unknowns with which white space in some of the papers is being spoiled. — Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The far-reaching question relative to the life insurance investigation is not whether there will be a change of management (which seems inevitable,) not whether there will be criminal prosecutions (which is possible—perhaps probable,) not whether the combination-investment kinds of politics will become obsolete and men will demand the old straight policies (as they are doing already,) not whether the insurance laws will be radically changed so as to compel frequent and full accountability and payment of dividends (this is sure to be done, if not by the State then by the Federal Government) —these are all important results of these revelations. But a far more important question is whether public opinion will face a higher code of morals on the high financial world? Will men who betray trusts and manipulate the stock market and enrich themselves and their friends by the misuse of trust money be tolerated as pillars of the Church and as ornaments of society? If the question were left for New York city alone to answer, it is doubtful if any higher level of morals could be expected: for the financial world is too strong a factor in determining morals here. But since the whole country must answer this question, there is hope that it will be answered with emphasis; else American character has sunk to a lower level than there has yet been evidence of. The test question is whether the whole hitherto dominant group of men in the financial life of New York shall be damned by public opinion as essentially dishonest, and their financial methods as robbery. In this sense, these revelations have put the character of the country to the test.—Walter H. Page in Boston Transcript.

DARK DAYS FOR RUSSIA

Large Cities Beleaguered by Railroad Strikes

St. Petersburg, Oct. 26.—Confronted by a situation more crucial than any since the beginning of the political and social upheaval of Russia and which shows no signs of amelioration, the czar's ministers, under the leadership of Count Witte, spent almost all of yesterday in conference in the hope of finding some way out of the crisis into which the revolutionists and socialists have cast the country.

The general strike on the railroads is complete except in a few border provinces, and St. Petersburg, Moscow and other large cities are almost as closely beleaguered as if they were invested by besieging armies. At the same time the industrial strike has assumed large dimensions, and the turbulent elements in several localities are offering open resistance to the troops.

The Finland railroad to Helsingfors and the steamers constitute St. Petersburg's only means of communication with the outer world. The postal authorities are now refusing to accept ordinary mail and commercial correspondence is at a standstill.

Large meetings, mainly of workmen, were held last night, at which the sentiment was unanimous for continuing the strike on the railroads to the bitter end. The proceedings at several of the meetings were of a strongly revolutionary character.

Troops and Strikers Clash

Ekaterinoslav, Oct. 26.—Fifteen persons were killed and 26 injured yesterday in a conflict between troops and strikers at the Briansk works, where the strikers had erected wire entanglements. The courts, banks and other public offices have been closed. It is reported that the strikers have taken possession of a train which was approaching Ekaterinoslav and have destroyed the station buildings all along the line.

Famine Feared at Warsaw

Warsaw, Oct. 26.—This city is now completely isolated. The strike has spread to all the railroads. A meat, milk and coal famine is feared.

Students Got Worst of It

Chicago, Oct. 26.—Twenty-five policemen and 200 students of the Chicago college of dental surgery fought, following a class "rush," and 15 students were arrested. When the police arrived the struggle between the students had been in progress half an hour. The students joined forces at the approach of patrol wagons, and the police were pelted with stones and vegetables, while water was poured on them by students from the upper floors of the college. The policemen felt that they were losing ground and fired several shots. This brought the students to a halt, and the police rushed on them with clubs. Several students were severely bruised.

Burglars Got Away With Safe

Orange, N. J., Oct. 26.—Burglars, who are believed to have used a wagon or an automobile, entered the residence of Edward H. Graves in South Orange during the absence of the family last night and carried off a safe containing about $10,000 worth of jewelry. The safe, which weighed more than 200 pounds, was lifted and dropped from a second story window, as shown by marks in the earth where it fell.

Lax State of Discipline

Mare Island, Cal., Oct. 26.—The trial by court martial of Commander Young of the Bennington on a charge of negligence in connection with a boiler explosion closed with the argument of Captain West for the prosecution, who pointed out that, inasmuch as Young knew the boilers were in a poor condition and Ensign Wade had no previous experience in the engineer department, there was a lax state of discipline.

President Roosevelt Reaches City of New Orleans

A VISIT TO LITTLE ROCK

Greeting to Those Who Wore Blue and Gray--Plea to Drive Out Lynch Law--Gets Presidential Salute at Memphis

New Orleans, Oct. 26.—President Roosevelt's train arrived this morning. The president was greeted warmly at Little Rock yesterday, his speech being delayed some minutes by the ovation given him. Governor Davis spoke at some length upon general lines. Judge Traiber then introduced the president, who said in part:

"I cannot sufficiently express my gratitude and appreciation for the magnificent greeting you have given me today, and in greeting all of you I wish to say especially words of greeting to those who wore the gray, and those who wore the blue in the Civil war, and I especially wish to emphasize this in behalf of my comrades of the National Guard, forming the guard of honor here today, with whom I myself went to war in 1898. There could be no better augury than that the escort of an American president should be those who were once enemies, walking shoulder to shoulder."

Referring to the race problem, to which Governor Davis had alluded, the president said:

"The worst enemy of the negro race is the negro criminal and above all the criminal of the hideous type so often hideously avenged. Every reputable colored man owes the duty to himself and to his race to hunt down that criminal. Now as to the white man's side:

"Governor, you and I and all others in authority owe it to our people to drive out the reproach and the menace of lynch law in the United States."

President Roosevelt and his party reached Memphis at 8:30 o'clock last night. A large crowd of citizens appeared at the depot and loudly cheered the president and called upon him for a speech. The president acknowledged these greetings and proceeded to a hastily improvised stand, from which he made a short address, dwelling upon what constitutes good citizenship.

Several members of the president's party left the train at Memphis and departed for Washington. An unexpected greeting to the president was the firing of a presidential salute by General Peter Tracey, who on the president's former visit to Memphis received him at the depot with a salute of 21 guns.

Miss Roosevelt Speeding East

Chicago, Oct. 26.—The special train of E. H. Harriman, on which Miss Alice Roosevelt is a passenger, arrived in Chicago last night at 8:05 o'clock, 50 hours and 44 minutes actual running time since starting from Oakland, Cal., having elapsed. The train made the distance in 18 hours less time than that required for the overland limited, which is the fast train on the Chicago and Northwestern and the Union Pacific railroads between Chicago and Oakland. At 9:07 the train started east.

Americans Call on the Pope

Rome, Oct. 26.—The pope yesterday received Lieutenant Ridgley, Paymaster Insley, Professor Eichelberger and Professor Litiell of the naval observatory at Washington and 48 Catholic sailors of the United States cruiser Minneapolis, now at Naples. The pope delivered a short address, thanking the Americans for coming to see him and expressing his pleasure at meeting so many representatives of the American navy. When the pope left the hall the sailors saluted him three hearty cheers.

New York's Latest Mystery

New York, Oct. 26.—Gottlieb Muller has identified a woman's headless body which was found in the Bronx river as that of his wife. Muller says that on April 7 last, after collecting her life's savings in a money sack, which she left at her daughter's house, his wife disappeared. Muller says he searched everywhere, but the well-filled handbag was the last trace he had of his wife. The coroner has not yet ascertained the cause of the woman's death.

Not a Presidential Candidate

Washington, Oct. 26.—The Post quotes Secretary of War Taft as announcing that he is not planning to enter a campaign for the presidency, has no intention of doing so, is content with his seat in the cabinet, and means to stay there as long as the president desires it. This will tend, says The Post, to put at rest, temporarily at least, the talk of Taft being a presidential candidate.

Good Football Player Barred

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—The faculty athletic committee of the University of Pennsylvania has declared D. W. Draper, one of the best linemen of the 'varsity football team, ineligible to play on the eleven, on the ground that Draper has not been a student at Pennsylvania a full year.

SPIRIT OF COMPROMISE

Chances of Strike at Fall River Appear to Be Remote

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 26.—At the very moment when a strike of more than 20,000 textile operatives employed in 75 mills in this city seemed a certainty the situation suddenly cleared through the action of the Manufacturers' association and the outlook is now brighter than at any time since the wage question has come to the front.

Meetings of the various unions of textile workers had been called for last night to take action on the question of calling a strike in all the cotton factories controlled by members of the Manufacturers' association. Late yesterday afternoon, however, the manufacturers requested that the unions take no action in the matter of calling a strike before next Monday night, in order that the manufacturers and the operatives might hold further conferences.

The Textile council acquiesced and the secretaries of the various unions were instructed to bring the request of the manufacturers before the various organizations. At last night's meeting of the unions it was unanimously voted to postpone strike action until next Monday night, when the unions will again meet.

A conference between the manufacturers and the operatives will be held next Monday afternoon. It is believed in union circles that there will be no strike. The manufacturers have shown a desire to effect a compromise, and it is believed that the wage question will be satisfactorily adjusted.

A Matrimonial Surprise

Brookline, Mass., Oct. 26.—Members of Harvard Congregational church received a surprise when Rev. Reuen Thomas, D. D., announced through letters to the members of the prudential committee that he had married Miss Lydia Cotton. Miss Cotton was a niece of his late wife. They little thought that an engagement existed between the divine and the woman who, since the death of his late wife, has acted as housekeeper in the clergyman's home. During his Harvard church pastorate, extending over 30 years, Thomas has received $10,000 in gold annually. Mrs. Thomas is 35 years of age. Thomas has passed his 65th birthday.

Church Floor Was Weak

Ayer, Mass., Oct. 26.—A panic that might have had disastrous results was narrowly averted when the floor of the Congregational church, in which over 300 delegates were attending the Middlesex Union conference of Congregational churches, settled several inches. The people were calmed by Rev. L. E. Perry, pastor of the church, and all filed out in safety. The accident was caused by the giving way of an iron rod support in the floor timbers.

Because of the late arrival of the Herald works of art for the Quincy schools, the proposed exhibition has been abandoned. The pieces will be sent directly to the different school buildings.

THE REAL TEST

Of Herpicide Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vigors may look nice and smell nice but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair?

No, they do not, but Herpicide does because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

FOOLED THE POSSE

George Ford Slips Away From Alstead Fortress

GUARD BECAME HUNGRY

Besieged Man Lowered Himself From Window and Took to Woods, Where a Man Hunt Is Now In Progress

Alstead, N. H., Oct. 26.—Fleeing through the forests in the southwestern corner of the Granite State to escape capture by an armed posse, George Ford, who on Tuesday night shot Fred J. Shortcleeve and then defied the sheriff who came to arrest him, managed to evade his pursuers throughout yesterday and when darkness fell the chase was abandoned until today. Ford was seen but a few times during the day, and was always so far in advance of the posse as to easily evade capture.

Nearly every available man in this village joined in the pursuit. A reward of $50 has been offered by the selectmen for the apprehension of the fugitive and the opinion is expressed that today's search will result in his arrest.

Despite the close watch that was kept on the besieged man throughout Tuesday night, when it was thought that every avenue of escape from the hotel, where he had barricaded himself in his room, was closed to him, Ford managed to take advantage of a momentary relaxation of vigilance and dash into the woods. He had evidently watched patiently for his opportunity, for the moment that one of the posse left his post for food, Ford lowered himself out of the window by a rope made of sheets and effected his escape.

It is the belief of the authorities that Ford has headed in the direction of Marlow, where he is known to have friends. A close watch has been placed on all the places he was known to frequent, and it is felt that if he leaves the woods he will surely be captured. Inasmuch as he is known to have been without food since Tuesday noon, it is thought he will be forced to leave the forest before long.

Fred J. Shortcleeve, the man shot by Ford, is not so seriously wounded as at first supposed. The bullet entered the back below the left shoulder, but did not penetrate any vital part. Shortcleeve will be taken from his home to the hospital at Keene, where an attempt will be made to remove the bullet.

Shortcleeve has given an account of the conversation immediately preceding the shooting. He says that he was leaving the hotel to go to his home in Langdon when Ford approached him. "Who are you coughing at?" asked Ford.

"I was not coughing at all," answered Shortcleeve.

Flourishing a revolver, Ford said: "Don't you dare cough at me."

Shortcleeve then told Ford that he was not afraid of the revolver and, as he turned to walk away, Ford fired at him.

Insanity is the only explanation that can be assigned for Ford's actions. A few days ago he announced that he had received a divine command to abstain from food for seven days. Other strange speeches and actions are now recalled and it is thought that he was mentally unbalanced when he shot Shortcleeve.

Must Enforce Divorce Overture

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 26.—The Baltimore synod of the Presbyterian church has adopted a resolution, that the overture on the marriage of divorced persons be rigidly enforced in the synod. This overture, in effect, provides that no Presbyterian minister can perform the marriage ceremony for divorced persons except in the case of the innocent party, and then only after one year has elapsed from the time of the divorce.

Worked Telephone Gag

Albany, Oct. 26.—By representing themselves to be employes of a telephone company who had come to repair a telephone instrument, two young men gained entrance to the house of Archibald J. McClure and stole a diamond crescent, valued at $1500, and a large diamond horseshoe of the same value. A watch and chain were also taken.

New York, Oct. 26.—For the 121st time the police made a raid on an alleged poolroom said to be conducted by "The" Allen in lower Sixth avenue. Voting List Greatly Padded

Philadelphia, Oct. 26.—Announcement is made by the police department that a recanvass of 22 of the 42 wards of the city shows that 15,861 names are illegally on the latest voting lists of these wards. Haight & Freese Receiver

New York, Oct. 26.—Justice Stover has appointed A. D. Truax receiver for the property of the Haight & Freese Co., brokers of this city, with branches at Boston, Norfolk and Pittsburg. The company's affairs have been involved in litigation since last May.

BY OWN TRUSTEES

Mutual Life and Its Methods Are to Be Probed

EQUITABLE STATISTICS

Recent Receipts Greatly Exceed Expenditures, Despite Heavy Falling Off of Receipts From Premiums on Policies

New York, Oct. 26.—More interesting than the testimony before the legislative committee investigating the methods of insurance companies was the announcement by President McCurdy of the Mutual Life Insurance company that a committee of the board of trustees of his company had been appointed to investigate the company and its methods.

The members of the committee are W. H. Truesdale, E. B. Morris and J. W. Auchincloss, all prominent in the financial and business world. This action was taken at a meeting of the board and was the result of the insurance investigation. The matter was brought before the board by McCurdy and the committee will begin its work at once.

Still another interesting development in insurance matters was the statement issued by President Morton of the Equitable Life, showing that the receipts of that company for the nine months of this year exceeded the expenditures by $16,723,197, an increase of over $500,000, compared with the same period last year. Receipts from premiums on policies for the third quarter this year were over $1,000,000 less than in 1904. The expenses of the third quarter of this year were $839,913 less than last year, but for the first six months there was an increase over last year of $424,943.

After an entire day given over to the examination of Emory McClintock, actuary of the Mutual Life, and to the reading of column after column of figures, the legislative committee adjourned until Nov 8, the day after the elections. This extended adjournment was taken to enable the members of the committee who are candidates for re-election to the assembly to meet their constituents and conduct their campaigns.

The testimony of Mr. McClintock was of a most technical nature. A number of McClintock's explanations brought out the fact that his ideas were in many respects at variance with the established methods of insurance companies and of his own company in particular. This was especially apparent when the subject of deferred dividend policies was being inquired into. He said the words deferred dividends were ambiguous and were misleading, as it implied that dividends were accumulating or were paid at the end of each year. The company, he said, reserved the right, when it wrote a policy, to say what amount should be apportioned at the end of each dividend period.

Mr. McClintock also said he was strongly in favor of limiting the amount of business a company should write. He said an attempt had been made to come to an agreement with the New York Life and the Equitable Life to limit the amount of business done by each company to $1,000,000,000. This was finally increased to $1,500,000,000, but James H. Hyde of the Equitable first declined to enter the agreement and then George W. Perkins of the New York Life objected. Hyde's reason was his ambition to make the Equitable the largest insurance company in the world. McClintock thought that a law limiting the amount of business would be a good thing and felt sure the Mutual Life would lend its support to such legislation.

These views are contrary to those expressed by President McCurdy of the Mutual when he was on the stand. McCurdy did not think that any company's business should be limited, even at the point when that business failed to be profitable to the company.

Mr. McClintock also thought that a law compelling the declaration of dividends at stated periods would be unwise. As to the method of computing the dividends which should be paid on a policy he said the apportionment was made upon his judgment. It was not a matter of accurate calculation, but was based on the experience of previous years. McClintock was still on the stand when adjournment was taken.

ADMITTED TO BAIL

Mrs Cooper Is Held on Charge of Murdering Northey

Augusta, Me., Oct. 26.—Judge Andrews, in the municipal court, found probable cause for holding Mrs. Alice F. Cooper for the January term of the grand jury of the Kennebec county superior court, when she will be heard on the charge of murder of Charles D. Northey, Jr., at her home in South Windsor, Oct. 11.

For the first time in the judiciary history of the state bail was allowed in a murder case. Attorney Heath of this city, counsel for Mrs. Cooper, Edwin J. Cooper, husband of the prisoner, and Jasper M. Gray, chairman of the board of selectmen of South Windsor, gave surety of $10,000 for Mrs. Cooper's release until Friday, when she will appear before the court and further bail be granted.

Battle For Vast Property

Cincinnati, Oct. 26.—Whether railroad corporation or great moneyed interest has gotten into the centre of the Virginia coal fields through the Little Kanawha syndicate is one of the questions pending before Judge Richards, the fight for that great railroad and coal mining property having begun. Over $8,000,000 is involved in the contest. The plaintiff is John S. Jones of Chicago, who subscribed $300,000 to the syndicate, who asks for the appointment of a receiver for the property.

Union Must Pay $7500 Damages

Toronto, Oct. 26.—A verdict of $7500 damages was awarded the Metallic Roofing company in its suit against the International Steel Metal Workers' union on charges of boycott and intimidation. The existence of the defendants as a corporation was argued through all the courts and it finally was decided that the local branch of the international union could be sued. The particular significance of the verdict lies in the fact that it was given by a jury and was not a judicial finding.

Strike Breakers Fare Badly

Lynn, Mass., Oct 26.—Harry Kiz and John Cnizh, strike breakers at Brophy Bros.' shoe factory, were seriously wounded while leaving the factory last night. The former was surrounded by several Italians on a side street and was stabbed by one of them in the back and neck. Cnizh was also attacked by Italians while he was crossing railroad tracks on his way home. He was hit with a bar of iron. In both cases the assailants escaped. The wounded men will probably recover.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Women's Club Enlarge Membership

Tuesday afternoon members of the Quincy Women's club assembled at the club house on Presidents hill for the the second meeting of the fall season. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, first vice president, presided.

A short business session was held when reports were read by the recording secretary, corresponding secretary, and treasurer; also the chairman of the various committees who reported on work accomplished in their departments.

Mrs. Wheeler has a charming personality which attracted all toward her. Injured in A Runaway

Miss Mary Nightingale of Granite street was thrown from a carriage at Dorchester on Wednesday afternoon, and was severely injured. Miss Nightingale was about to start to drive home. She had just got into a buggy when a dog and cat got into a fight beneath the horse's feet.

This frightened the animal who ran. Miss Nightingale held onto the reins, and would soon have had the animal under control, but suddenly in the street directly ahead a woman appeared with a baby carriage. The woman became confused, not knowing which way to turn. Miss Nightingale saw this new danger, and in order to save the woman from being run down, she turned her horse sharp into a side street. As she did so the buggy struck a pole, and was overturned throwing Miss Nightingale out. She was carried to the residence of Mrs. Stearns, and a physician summoned. It was thought at first that her injuries were of a very serious nature. Fortunately, they were not as bad as at first supposed.

The physician found that she had fractured one rib and was considerably bruised about the head and body, and while serious are not necessarily dangerous.

Clerk Cash was not caught napping today, even if there was a little fire at Johnson Bros. where he is a popular employee. All his rivals made good gains and Conductor Johnson did pass Drug Clerk Maloney, but Ealom M. Cash continues at the head of the list. Engineer Johnson with a gain of 200 is pushing Mr. Maloney hard. Fred S. Sheppard is making a good bid for fifth place and may go higher. Other gains will be noted in the men's list.

Miss Bates makes the largest gain in the ladies' list and has passed Miss Manning. Several others make smaller gains, but Miss Peterson continues number one and Miss Mahoney number two.

All requests to transfer votes must be refused, no transfers being allowed.

Watch for the bargain days. They will come every week.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. Rhode Island At Navy Yard

It was Capt. Evans of the tug boat Confidence of the Boston Tug Boat Co., that took the battleship Rhode Island through Quincy Bay Wednesday and not Capt. Cleverly as inadvertently stated. Capt. Cleverly, however, was one of the pilots aboard the battleship.

Owing to some mishap to the machinery, the Rhode Island did not complete her trip to Provincetown. She rode at anchor in the harbor Wednesday night and this morning proceeded to the navy yard, where she arrived at eight o'clock.

Plate Glass Machines.

By means of a French engineer's invention the manufacture of sheets of glass by machinery, ready for use within half an hour of the incandescent state of the material, is rendered possible. The Fourcault machine can turn out continuously sheets of glass thirty-nine and one-half inches wide, of any desired length and of a uniform thickness, varying from one-sixteenth of an inch to five-sixteenths of an ich. This glass can be obtained as rough glass for making extra thin glass, as horticultural glass and window glass.—Exchange.

To Cure Red Noses.

In treating red noses a Paris physician uses an instrument resembling a very large toothbrush, but having forty platinum wires instead of bristles. This instrument is as heavy as an ordinary household hammer. It is connected with an electrical machine and is then used in hammering the troublesome nose rather sharply for several minutes, or until bleeding is produced. It is claimed that two hammerings a week for some months will tone down the reddest nose to a delicate pink.

The Most Powerful Searchlight.

At night the greatest searchlight in the world now flashes from the summit of Pike's peak. Possessed of twice the power of the lights carried by great battleships and built upon a track twelve feet in circumference, with rotating contact, this marvelous light falls upon the Kansas-Colorado state line, the Royal Gorge, Denver and the Cripple Creek gold fields. Its white beacon carries 280 miles through the jagged hill country of the Rockies.

Snakes.

Snakes have their usefulness in the world. They are the scavengers of swamps and morasses where other animals of size are unable to penetrate or to exist. It is in the tropics of course that serpents chiefly abound. All snakes are of tropical origin, but some species have spread into cooler latitudes. In very cold countries there are no snakes. Contrary to the popular belief, there are some snakes in Ireland, but they are very rare. The smallest serpents in the world are the "worm snakes" of the tropics. They are about as big as fair sized earthworms. Some snakes lay eggs, while others bring forth their young alive. In the latter category are vipers, rattlesnakes and nearly all water snakes. Pythons incubate their eggs after laying them.

GOATS FOR THE POOR

Attempt to Build Up New Animal Industry.

MALTA SPECIES BEING TESTED

Agricultural Department's Object In Importing a Flock of Sixty-eight Is to Develop New Farm Animal For the Poor Just as In Europe—Good Milk and Flesh Producers.

Behind the announcement that the department of agriculture has imported from Malta a flock of sixty-eight goats for experimental purposes lies the determination to build up a new branch of animal industry in the United States, says the Washington correspondent of the New York Post. The Malta goat is a very different animal from the Angora goat, which has been raised in some parts of the United States for its fleece. The new strain is remarkable for its milk producing qualities as well as for its value as a meat product. These two reasons commended the breed to the department, and Secretary Wilson expects to develop it as a new farm animal for the poor, just as in Europe.

Questions of health are foremost in Secretary Wilson's advocacy of the Malta goat. He said recently: "A feature of domestic economy generally overlooked here is given first attention abroad. The desire in European cities to get pure milk, free from all contaminating germs on the one side and adulteration on the other, leads to the driving of goats through the streets and the milking before the purchaser's eyes. Foreigners are aware that the milk so drawn is healthier than that from the cow and so do not object to the somewhat primitive way of obtaining it. They know at least that it is not adulterated.

"Then on the point of freedom from disease germs. There is but 10 per cent of tuberculosis in cattle in this country as against 40 per cent abroad. There is a dispute among scientists as to whether the bacillus which causes tuberculosis in animals can spread the disease to human beings. Our investigations have convinced the department's scientists that children and people in an impaired state of health—and they are the ones most likely to require milk—are affected by using milk from tuberculous cows. This fact in itself is sufficient to give great popularity to the Malta goat when its record for purity of lacteal product becomes generally known. The goat's habits and food tend to make him a healthy farm animal under almost all conditions.

"The goat must be fed as generously as a cow if it is to milk well. It requires the seeds of leguminous plants, such as beans and peas, which have the largest amount of protein, and so allow the most liberal milking. Good results in the amount of milk produced come as a matter of usage, or, more properly speaking, heredity. For instance, in Malta the goat is uniformly milked, and the result is that its progeny are good milkers. This shows the difference between animals which merely get fat from careful feeding and those that give milk.

"Far more varied than that of a cow is the goat's appetite. He has a taste for a wider range of plants and, moreover, will devour weeds and the leaves of trees that the cow would reject. The goat can thus be a most useful animal in cleaning out fields and saving the farmer expense of labor while nurturing itself. Abroad there has been difficulty in keeping the goat from roaming and getting through hedges and walls with ease. He has a bad reputation for his constitutional objection to being confined anywhere. But with woven wire fences there is less trouble of that sort in this country, and this one bad trait is overbalanced by all the other good ones.

"A most important point about the Malta goat is that the flesh of the kid is a delicacy like venison, due to the unusual variety of its food. And it is a remarkable fact that the flesh of goats is sold for mutton uniformly. People not acquainted with its good qualities might find objection to buying it. But it is so much like sheep that when it is called mutton it seems all right to them. When the goat's head is removed the carcass resembles that of a sheep.

"As the goat can be kept on waste lands, eating what cattle would reject, it can be seen how the poor could greatly reduce the cost of living by keeping a goat for milking or a flock of them for milking and providing food as well. Each goat yields about three quarts of milk a day. Much mountain land in the various states could be profitably stocked with goats."

Regarding the plans of the department for disposing of the sixty-eight goats recently imported, the secretary said:

"These animals are now in quarantine at Athenia, N. J. Later some of them will be sent to the Connecticut experiment station, to be cared for, milked and propagated under exact conditions to be noted by the experts of the department. Fifteen of the flock will be dispatched direct to the Maryland station, to be cared for in like manner. From these stations the young will be distributed through the country as fast as they come. In Malta the goats are a source of milk supply for upward of 200,000 people. In this country there are 2,000,000 Angora goats, raised for their fleece and as food. In a comparatively short time we expect to have the Malta goat introduced as a farm animal on as good terms as enjoyed by the people of Malta."

Makaria Fraternity

Have As Guests At Banquet Mayor Thompson And Others

Mayor Thompson was the guest of the Makaria Fraternity at its first annual banquet at Bethany chapel on Thursday evening, and assured the young people that he was friendly to the public school and added that there was no question but an appropriation for the enlargement of the High school building would pass this year.

He was prompted to make the statement by recent criticism to the effect that the present city administration was against our schools. The Mayor he said had nothing to do with the appropriation of money for schools either for maintenance or building. The City Council makes the appropriations, and in the annual appropriation order it reduced the estimates of the Mayor for various departments as well as those of the School Committee.

The Mayor urged the young men present, who were soon to be voters, to make a study of things political. Many times he said they were too little thought off. He commended an association like the Makaria Fraternity which combined religion and sociability, and said it should be enjoyed to the very limit.

The Fraternity held a reception from 6 to 6.30 P. M. In the receiving line were: Benjamin B. Baltzer, president; George H. Newcomb, vice president; Hon. James Thompson, Mayor of Quincy; Ernest W. Branch, Superintendent of Bethany Sunday school; George D. Forsyth, secretary, and Charles W. Laing, treasurer.

The ushers were: Herbert M. Hodgkinson, John R. Hughes, Hutchen Mitchell, Matthew Nicoll, Russell Parker and Horace Southard.

It was a patriotic corner in which the receiving party stood, with a large American flag as a background, and bunting and smaller flags artistically arranged.

The smaller chapel where the banquet was served, was even more patriotic. On the tables at each plate was a small flag representing some country or college, and on the walls were American flags. The room was lighted wholly by large Japanese lanterns.

The banquet was served by the landlord of Hotel Greenleaf and a volunteer committee of ladies. The menu included: Bouillon, cold turkey and cranberry sauce, cold ham, pickles, potato salad, radishes, rolls, ice cream and cake.

An orchestra of three pieces furnished music during the reception and banquet.

Delcevare King, to whom credit is due for the inception, growth and prosperity of the Makaria Fraternity, presided at the post prandial exercises. At first he wanted each guest to tell what flag was at his plate, but only a few could answer.

The speakers besides Mayor Thompson were F. F. Bugbee, E. W. Branch, President Baltzer, Secretary Gay of the Y. M. C. A., President C. H. Snow of Barakia Fraternity of Dorchester, Matthew Nicoll, E. P. Gafney of Page school, Whitney Whelphy of Barakia Fraternity of Waltham and Theophilus King.

Each told stories, but emphaaised the importance of the study of the Bible, and of living upright manly lives.

To Move Large Block

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. has purchased land on the east side of the track at the Norfolk Downs station including the site of the large store and tenement block owned by John E. Poland. This block will be moved to Hancock street opposite the residence of Dr. Peirce, the purchase of the land having already been made by Mr. Poland from the estates of Mrs. Craig and Wood, Harmon & Co. The railroad contemplates a relocation of tracks, and is also planning for four tracks. There will probably be more of a demand for the stores in the block at its new location. It will cost over $1,000 to move the building.

Sudden Death Of John Hall

Quincy people were shocked this morning to learn that John Hall had passed away during the night. Mr. Hall was probably better known than any other man in Quincy. None knew him but as a kind friend, one to whom no appeal ever went unanswered.

Mr. Hall had not been feeling well for some days, but he had not been confined to his home and was at his office until 5 o'clock Thursday.

It was during the early morning hours that his ailment took an acute turn and he passed away.

Mr. Hall was born in Quincy and has always made this city his home. He succeeded his father as town sexton in 1856, and in 1871 he established the business of funeral director, which he has since conducted. He was 72 years of age and leaves a widow and one son.

The only public office Mr. Hall has ever held was on the board of Managers of Public Burial Places where he served a number of years both under the town and city form of government.

Unity Club Program.

Canada under the French will be the subject for the meeting of the Wollaston Unity club this evening, including papers as follows:

Champlain, by Mr. Avery Bennett.
Frontenac, by Mrs. Wilson Marsh.
Montcalm and Wolfe, (A struggle for a continent), by Miss Martha E. Jenkins.

Mrs. A. R. Moulton has charge of the music and has secured the services of Mr. A. L. Hayden of Quincy, the well known baritone. All interested are cordially invited.

The New Plans

For Enlargement Of the Quincy High School To Cost $113,000

The additions and alterations to the High school building called for by the plans of Aaron H. Gould approved by the School Committee provide for a wing on the northerly or Butler road side of the building. This addition will have a frontage on Hancock street of 72.8 feet, and a frontage on Butler road of 144.4 feet with a small L at the south of the new part in the rear of the present building which will be used as a coal pocket, and boiler room.

Under the new plan the building will have 23 class rooms with a seating capacity of 965 pupils. The present assembly hall will be divided into class rooms, and a new assembly hall will be located in the new part.

In the sub-basement there will be a gymnasium 42 x 70 feet in the new part, and two locker rooms 19 x 22 and 19 x 34 feet. In the basement proper there is a cook room, iron room, and four locker rooms, lavatories, fan room, wood and boiler rooms.

On the first or street floor there will be nine class rooms in the present or main building and four class rooms in the new part. Besides these there will be a master's room, teachers' and a reception room. The present corridor running parallel with Hancock street will not be changed.

The assembly hall is to be located on the second floor of the new addition and will be 53.6x70 with ante rooms on either side of the platform which is on the easterly side. The assembly hall takes in the second and third stories. There are also on the second floor 10 class rooms.

On the third floor outside of the assembly hall are the typewriter, stenographic, drawing, commercial, recitation, biological, chemical rooms and the physical laboratory.

There are two entrances to the building from the Hancock street front. One at the north and one at the south ends. There is also an entrance from the southerly side of the L above referred to. This stairway is on the outside of the building and will serve as a fire escape

The entrance at the south front leads into a vestibule from which there also leads a stairway to the upper floors. There is also a stairway to the upper floors in the new addition.

Bible Study Breakfast.

Tomorrow morning at 7.30 will occur the "Mystery Breakfast" at the Y. M. C. A. This will be the opening event of the Bible class work of the boys' department. There are planned four classes for Bible study and nearly forty boys have already applied for admission. Mr. H. W. Gibson, the State Boys' Secretary of Young Men's Christian Associations, will be present and will be the speaker.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

The President is one of the warmest defenders that Civil Service reform has ever had, yet when he saw an opportunity to improve the rules by an amendment he had the wisdom and courage to make the change. Under the new order a Cabinet Officer may dismiss an inefficient clerk without a hearing. This is as it should be. Responsibility and power should go together. If a Cabinet Officer is responsible for a Government department, he should have the right to dismiss a clerk whose presence in the Department is obstructive to the work.

The decidedly optimistic speech which the President made at Jacksonville in relation to the Panama canal is now referred to by the opposition paper as "the President's wail," the President's pessimistic remarks with reference to the Panama canal." There never was a great undertaking like that of laying the first Atlantic cable, the early attempts of steam travel both by land and sea but that met with discouragement and derision from the skeptical and fainthearted. There are many living who can remember how plainly it was proved by arithmatic, geography and especially rhetoric that it was impossible to build a railroad across the Great American Desert from St. Louis to San Fransisco, and others are projected. In a brief reference to the canal in his speech at Richmond, the President was interrupted by an enthusiastic boy, who shouted: "That canal will be built." His answer with a display of teeth was: "Sure."

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It should not be overlooked at this time that so far as the McCurdys are concerned they have been consistently leading the mutual life.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

☞ The genuine kind of charity is that which opens the purse and keeps the mouth shut about it. The kind heart which goes forth among the poor and lowly to see what their needs are and then without ostentation, provides for those needs. The gladsome spirit which not only relieves the bodily wants, but seeks to encourage those who are suffering for the necessities of life. To such, kind words and sympathy should be freely extended with the gifts of food and clothing. These oftentimes accomplish the most good as they enter the heart and soul, feeding them with the great panacea of love and human brotherhood, which is uplifting and gives renewed courage to fight the battle of life.—Gloucester Times.

☞ President Roosevelt is making speeches in the south that read well. There is meat in them. There is something he has to say, and he says it. He has vigor and style. He can talk and, before he talks, he can write good things to say. He is acquainted with the country, the world, the people and the times. He knows the trend of thought, the direction the wind is blowing over the fields of public life. He rather likes a fight; but he seems also to have the rare quality of liking to meet an enemy to convince him, and not necessarily with a club, that he is wrong. In other words, while he doesn't fear to make an enemy, he takes the pleasure of the true sportsmen in seeking to land a friend by transforming an enemy into one. Altogether it's might interesting to watch the career of the president over the country at any time. He is always interesting, always in a way at least instructive.—Brockton Enterprise.

Association Football.

There will be no league game at Ward Three playground to-morrow, as the Quincys play at Lawrence, on that date. But the Quincy Juniors, a team composed entirely of boys attending the John Hancock and Lincoln schools, are to play a game with the Boston Rover Juniors on these grounds. The game will commence at 3 o'clock. The Quincy boys have a good conception of all the elements of the game, and they feel sure of winning.

—That reformers are not usually favorably received in their efforts to correct evils is shown by the action of the Republicans of New York city, who have refused Jerome a place on their ticket, although it is conceded that he has done more to purify New York than any man since Roosevelt was police commissioner. — Old Colony Memorial.

HOMEWARD BOUND

President Roosevelt's Southern Trip Is Ended

TESTIMONIAL OF ESTEEM

Abandoned Attempt to Speak to Crowd of Fifty Thousand at New Orleans, as He Feared a Panic--Now Off American Soil

New Orleans, Oct. 27.—At the end of nine hours of varied entertainment in New Orleans, the close of a pleasant trip through the south, President Roosevelt at 6:30 o'clock last night boarded the lighthouse tender Magnolia and began his return journey to Washington.

No newspaper representatives accompanied the president on the boat and he was out of touch with the world throughout the night, but today brought news of his successful transfer to the cruiser West Virginia, which lay at anchor off the mouth of the Mississippi river, to receive him and carry him on towards the capital. For four days the president will be off American soil, but by wireless telegraph, it is promised, he will be in communication with the shore.

The president's stay in New Orleans was made a testimonial of popular esteem and of grateful recognition for the service which he rendered the city in its struggle against yellow fever.

The densely crowded streets, the elaborate decorations, the wild applause that greeted the president along the route of the parade, the enthusiasm with which his address to the multitude in Lafayette square was received, and the remarkable demonstration in his honor at an afternoon luncheon contributed toward making complete the cordial welcome to the nation's chief executive.

The president was compelled to abandon one public address before he had got well started on it. It was contemplated that the military and civic parade should pass in review before him at the city hall, but the crowd at this point was so tremendous that neither the police nor the troops were able to move it and the president, foreseeing a possible panic, finally gave up the attempt to speak and left the platform.

The crowd jammed St. Charles street all the way from Poydras street to Ninth street and it spread over Lafayette square almost from St. Charles street to Camp street. Probably 50,000 persons gathered in and around the stand from which Mr. Roosevelt was to have spoken.

When the president decided to abandon his effort, he shouted to the throng to go home and be good citizens and then disappeared into the mayor's parlors, well night exhausted. He said that the reception was the greatest since he started on his trip.

The demonstration at the luncheon was scarcely less exuberant. When the president entered the superbly decorated dining hall the 625 banqueters rose and gave way to frantic cheering. Every reference of Governor Blanchard, Mayor Behrman, and President Sanders of the Progressive union to the guest brought forth a perfect storm of cheers, and when the president rose he had great difficulty in speaking. Every thought he uttered was the signal for an extraordinary exhibition of enthusiasm, as his speech dealt almost entirely with local subjects and had special reference to the fight against yellow fever. The banquet developed into unceasing laudation of the president while he was on his feet.

An immense crowd packed Gravier and St. Charles streets as the dinner ended and the appearance of the president on the way to the river provoked thunderous applause. As the Magnolia left the landing a presidential salute was fired, while the din of hundreds of steam whistles mingled with the lusty cheers of acres of people who had collected on the wharf.

From the moment of his arrival early in the forenoon until he said farewell from the deck of the Magnolia at night the president was constantly in the limelight. The crowded program gave him no opportunity for rest, but he expressed keen enjoyment in his visit.

Nowhere did the president see the slightest evidence of the existence of yellow fever, but he saw on every hand immense gatherings of cordial and contented people.

A HEADLESS BODY

The Finding of It In Fire Ruins Starts an Investigatson

Buxton, Me., Oct. 27.—The murder and the robbery theory in connection with the death of John Veazie, 65, whose headless body was found in the debris of his home, is a popular one, although some of the officials still believe that the fire and death were due to accidental causes. No trace of the missing head has been found, except some teeth.

A watch and part of a revolver had been revealed when the search of the ruins was discontinued because of darkness last night, and there may be further finds. The watch was one of two which Veazie possessed. Neither watch was of much value. He usually kept a revolver in the house.

County Attorney Emery and Deputy Sheriff Andrews arrived at Groveville, the section of Buxton in which Veazie lived. The county attorney requested Coroner Hobson of this town to hold an inquest and ordered an autopsy held, for which a Portland surgeon and a local physician will be summoned to come here.

BIG ARMY RESERVE

Plan to Furnish 200,00 Trained Soldiers

COST THE ONLY BARRIER

Salaries of Troops Alone Would Total $1,000,000 Annually--Increase In Efficiency of Ordnance Department Needed

Washington, Oct. 27.—Legislation intended to advance the plans of officers and possibly increase the efficiency of our army will afford several interesting subjects for discussion in the coming congress. Just now the general staff of the war department has under consideration a plan for maintaining our army at its full strength of 100,000 men. A bill has been roughly drawn in which the plan is suggested for a national army reserve, composed of men who have served two years in the regular army, marine corps or in the National Guard.

This reserve would be organized on the basis of marksmanship, the members being divided into the three classes of sharpshooters, marksmen and soldiers of the first class, to receive $30, $28 and $26 a year respectively. This reserve force would be used independently of the militia of the different states, which under the Dick act may be called into service whenever required.

The establishment of such a national reserve would furnish the government with over 200,000 trained soldiers for emergency duty. Our regular army is now on a footing of 60,000. The National Guard musters about 120,000 men and 10,000 officers. The general scheme of this proposed legislation for a reserve provides that its members shall serve at least 10 days in annual drill or in practice on target ranges.

Considerable complaint has been made among militiamen of the lack of incentive to continuous membership in that service. About all the militiaman looks forward to is the annual tour of duty, which takes the place of his vacation. If these men saw the possibility of uniforms, some money, and a tour of duty ahead of them each year, provided they attained sufficient skill as marksmen to qualify them for the national reserve, army officers believe no difficulty would be experienced in keeping each militia company at its full standing.

The cost, however, will be a handicap in congress. Assuming that the average annual pay of the reservists would be $28 a year, the force of 40,000 men would cost the government approximately $1,000,000 annually. In addition there would be the cost of uniforms, expenses of the annual tours and the increased use of ammunition. The general staff minimizes the increased expense, however, stating that the national reserve would add only about 2 percent to the present appropriation for the war department.

The importance of legislation to increase the efficiency of the ordnance department of the army is appreciated only by those particularly interested. This department is charged with great responsibility in the expenditure of over $13,000,000 annually, and the direction of affairs in our great arsenals where our means of defense are manufactured.

Its officers, for example, direct the extensive works at Watertown and Springfield, Mass. Practically all of the rifles and other small arms used in the service are turned out at the latter place, which has a capacity of 1000 rifles a day. Over 7000 workmen are employed in the six great establishments in Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey and Illinois. The difficulty experienced in this department is lack of officers. Existing legislation does not provide enough commissioned men to give their time to special subjects requiring thorough investigaton.

The qualifications necessary for efficient work in this department have become more severe and varied in their scope with the development of intricate pieces of ordnance and the duties and increased efficiency demanded of our soldiers. Every nation has bent its energy steadily to the improvement of its army and strategic plans. Our progress is initiated in the ordnance department and its officers must be relied upon for our success in defensive warfare.

War is competition; there is no standard of excellence in any part of the service; it does not suffice to have good material, soldiers and officers if the enemy has better. The designer and constructor of ordnance must be a mechanical engineer, familiar with the constructive arts. He must understand chemistry, metallurgy and have a knowledge of electrical engineering. This technical information is constantly called into play and with it all the officer must possess quick discrimination and fair judgment.

Plot to Wreck Car Works

Riga, Oct. 27.—During the smelting of a quantity of scrap iron at the Russo-Baltic car works a bomb exploded in the blast furnace and led to the discovery of many others in the scrap iron ready for the furnace. The employes of the Riga-Orel railroad struck yesterday.

FORD DECLARED INSANE

Caught by Man Hunters and Will Be Sent to Asylum

Keene, N. H., Oct. 27.—George Ford, the insane man who shot Fred J. Shortcleeve at Alstead Thursday night and who was captured yesterday, will be placed in an asylum within a day of two. Ford was brought to this city by Constable Dodge of Alstead. Court Solicitor Cain and Police Justice Holmes examined Ford at the police station. They decided that the man was not sane and later two physicians signed an order committing him to the asylum.

The authorities are making an attempt to have Ford returned to Gardner, Mass., he having escaped from an asylum there, but they expect it will be almost impossible to get the man out of the state.

The Keene officials think that Ford may have been the man who held up the rural free delivery carrier, George W. Ruland, on the Walpole road a week ago and shot him. Rev. Mr. Ruland, who was formerly active in the ministry, has recovered from the wound. He was called to the police station to see Ford, but the carrier said that he was positive that he had never seen the man before.

Mr. Ruland is near-sighted, and as the hold-up occurred at dusk, the officials think that Ford may have been the man. The calibre of his revolver is the same as that of the bullet which injured Ruland. Ford admits that he has been roaming about the county.

Body Riddled With Shot

Alstead, N. H., Oct. 27.—Suffering severely from the pangs of hunger caused by a fast of 48 hours, and suffering also from severe bodily injuries caused by birdshot and bruises, George Ford, 38, who shot and seriously wounded Fred Shortcleeve at a hotel here Tuesday night, was captured in the woods half a mile from the scene of the shooting. Numerous birdshot from the rifles of the farmers who were on his trail are lodged in the side of his head, chest and arms, and there are hundreds of these shots in his back. In addition to these injuries, Ford was suffering from a dislocated hip, a broken rib and a broken wrist, the last named injuries being sustained in his leap from the window of the hotel, where he had been imprisoned throughout Tuesday night.

Miss Roosevelt Fatigued

New York, Oct. 27.—The E. H. Harriman special train, with Miss Alice Roosevelt on board, arrived in Jersey City last night at 7:45 o'clock from the Pacific coast. Harriman and the members of his family left the train at Arden, N. Y., where Harriman's country place is located. Miss Roosevelt was driven directly to the home of her aunt, where she spent the night. Members of the party say that Miss Roosevelt was somewhat fatigued from the long journey across the continent.

Verdict For Over $80,000

New York, Oct. 27.—A verdict for $80,241 against Joseph Leiter, J. H. Hoadley and C. F. Judson was returned by a jury in the suit brought against these three defendants by W. H. Franklin and G. I. Scott, who claimed that they lost $65,800 by carrying stock for a pool in International Power company's stock, which included Judson, Leiter and Hoadley. They sued for recovery of the full amount, with interest, which the jury granted.

Small Depositors Frightened

Trenton, Oct. 27.—A run on the Trenton Trust and Safe Deposit company, which began here Wednesday, continued yesterday. The officers of the institution kept it open until 6 p. m. and all demands were met promptly. President Hamill says the run evidently has been started by some wild or careless talk among the bank's small depositors.

Suez Canal Open to Navigation

Paris, Oct. 27.—The Suez Canal company announces that the clearing of the channel of the canal has been completed and that shipping is now able to pass. The wreck of the British steamer Chatham, blown up with her 90 tons of dynamite on Sept. 28, no longer obstructs navigation.

Hints of Cuban Conspiracy

Havana, Oct. 27.—The administration newspapers characterize the talk of annexation to the United States, which has cropped out in connection with the Anglo-Cuban commercial treaty as a conspiracy and even broadly hint that Mr. Squiers, the American minister, is a party to it.

Bank's Books Badly Muddled

Pittsburg, Oct. 27.—It is not probable that the Enterprise National bank will ever reopen its doors. The books of the institution are said to be in such a hopelessly muddled condition that it may take many weeks to arrive at anything like a lucid statement of the bank's affairs.

Russia Facing a Most Grave Internal Crisis

WITTE IS AT THE HELM

Trepoff Will Order Troops to Use Ball Cartridges In Case of Trouble at St Petersburg--Agitators Supplied With Funds

St. Petersburg, Oct. 27.—With M. Witte completely dominating the situation; with the czar and imperial entourage on the verge of collapse; with European Russia seething with spirit of revolution, barely repressed by hordes of cavalry in leading cities, and with tidings that disorders have begun in Siberia, Russia is facing the gravest internal crisis in her history. M. Witte has told the czar that not even a republic will save Russia from anarchy.

Alarming rumors are in circulation and the shopkeepers on all except a few of the principal streets have closed their stores and boarded up the doors and windows, while peaceful-minded inhabitants keep within doors. Anxiety is evidenced in the whole atmosphere of the city.

General Trepoff declares that he is amply able to maintain order and the police are allowing the strikers to vent their enthusiasm so as to avoid a conflict. Trepoff has instructed the police not to interfere with the parades so long as they are orderly, but he has given notice that he is prepared to cope firmly with any disorder. He had printed in all the papers a notification that the troops would be ordered to use ball cartridges without any preliminary firing of blank cartridges in case there should be any outbreak.

By the greatest exertions the government has succeeded in moving trains manned by military operatives on a few railroads. The first efforts were directed to the moving of cattle trains so as to meet the pinch of approaching famine in the two capitals, and one trainload of cattle arrived at St. Petersburg and another at Moscow. Peasants are also driving cattle on the hoof into Moscow. A scanty supply of milk, butter and eggs is arriving in St. Petersburg over the Finland railroad.

The situation, however, cannot be regarded as much improved. The strikers are as determined as ever to continue the strike and the full force of the government railroad battalions is almost helpless in the face of the general strike on the railroads.

Picturesque details have been received of the uprising at Kharkoff, where students and strikers took possession of the locality in the centre of the city containing the university, the cathedral and other buildings, threw up barricades, constructed a regular fortress and elected a provisional government, but cool heads on either side effected an arrangement which made it unnecessary for the troops to storm the revolutionary citadel, the defenders of which marched out with full honors of war.

The strike has proved most effective in forcing the government to speedy action on measures which have been slumbering in commission for many weeks. Wednesday night the ministers finished the final draft of a law creating a responsible council of ministers and yesterday completed the revision of the statute granting freedom of assembly, both of which will be taken to the czar today for signature.

It is reported that Count Witte, simultaneously with the promulgation of the cabinet statute, will issue a proclamation defining his policy and asking the nation to give a fair trial to the new governmental system and resist the efforts of the revolutionaries to throw the entire country into a state of anarchy.

The source of the funds which are apparently at command of the revolutionaries is a mystery. In Moscow the revolutionary committee is paying the strikers 15 cents daily and has invested large sums in arms and ammunition. The rifles and cartridges captured in Finland and Poland were part of those purchased by the committee. It is conjectured that financial aid is being received from Socialists and revolutionists abroad, and that some of it may come from America, in response to an appeal published recently in New York newspapers on behalf of the Jewish bund.

The tactics of the revolutionists in St. Petersburg are apparently to create a reign of terror. Warnings have been sent to merchants on fashionable thoroughfares to close in order to avoid pillage and the torch. The doctors are receiving notifications ordering them to discontinue visits to the sick on penalty of death. Word has been passed among servants mysteriously that a mob is preparing to sack the residences of the better class.

Apprehension apparently prevails in imperial circles. It is reported that the imperial yacht Polar Star is lying off Cronstadt, constantly under steam, and that the smaller yacht Strella is held in waiting at the wharf at Peterhof for emergency use.

Has Not Heard of Mutiny

St. Petersburg, Oct. 27.—The admiralty has no news of any mutiny on board ships of the Black sea fleet. No dispatches have been received here from Sebastopol or Odessa confirmatory of the reports in circulation in London.

STEIFFEL CONFESSES

Partner of "Pirate" Jackson Is Sentenced to a Year in Jail

Cranston, R. I., Oct. 27.—Otto Steiffel, who was arrested in Providence on Tuesday in connection with the movements of the so-called pirate sloop Dorado, and who was charged with stealing the catboat Bessie, was brought to this town from Newport and arraigned on the charge of stealing the catboat. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in jail.

Steiffel was subjected to a close examination by the Newport police. According to the officers, Steiffel made a full confession of his part in the robberies along Long Island sound and the shores of Narragansett bay, and implicated his companions on the Dorado, Henry A. Jackson, the captain of the pirate craft, and a man known as Riley. The police withheld the details of Steiffel's admissions. No trace of either Jackson or Riley has yet been found.

Would Disfranchise Negro

Ellicott City, Md., Oct. 27.—Before a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting, Senator Gorman discussed and defended the proposed disfranchisement amendment to the constitution of the state. He declared that the 15th amendment to the constitution of the United States, a wrong and an insult, he said, to every southern state, was carried against the protest of nearly one-half the Republican statesmen in congress, it having been adopted in caucus by a single vote.

Republicans For Jerome

New York, Oct. 27.—The executive committee of the Republican county committee has called a county convention for this evening to name a candidate for district attorney to replace Charles A. Flammer, who has resigned his candidacy. The committee also decided to advise that Mr. Jerome be named as the candidate. Every man on the committee voted for Jerome with one exception.

Southern Coast Storm-Swept

Norfolk, Oct. 27.—The first real gale of the season swept over the Virginia-Carolina coast last night from the northeast, and at Cape Henry, before the blow prostrated the government's telegraph system, a maximum wind velocity of 52 miles an hour was reported. Low streets along the waterfront were flooded. Hampton Roads is sheltering scores of storm-bound vessels.

Split on Rate Legislation

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Refusing to promise endorsement of President Roosevelt's policy for the regulation of railroad rates, about half of the 900 delegates to the interstate commerce law convention were barred from the convention, and thereupon held a separate meeting to give expression to their ideas of rate legislation. The conventions will continue in session today.

Seventeen Lives Lost With Vessel

Cleveland, Oct. 27.—Steamers Centurion and Frontenac, which have been searching for the missing steamer Kalyruga, covered the entire east and north shores of Lake Huron without obtaining any trace of the vessel. It is now practically certain that the boat, with 17 persons, went down in Lake Huron during the great storm of last week.

Probing Will Be Thorough

New York, Oct. 27.—William H. Truesdale, chairman of the committee of three appointed by the trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance company to investigate the affairs of that corporation, has put himself on record as being in favor of an investigation that will disclose all the weak spots in its management.

Yellow Fever Well In Hand

Washington, Oct. 27.—The yellow fever situation in the south is regarded at the treasury department as so well in hand that orders have just been dispatched for the withdrawal of the revenue cutter patrol at all gulf points except at Pensacola and the two vessels still there will soon be withdrawn.

Canada to Control Garrison

Halifax, Oct. 27.—The Canadian department of militia has been advised by the British war department that control of the Halifax garrison will be handed to the Canadian authorities on Nov. 15. There have been many delays in bringing this about, but the matter is now finally settled.

Transport Lena Released

Washington, Oct. 27.—The navy department has been informed that the Russian transport Lena, which has been interned at Mare Island since last spring, has sailed from that navy yard for San Francisco. She has been released and will return to a Russian port, sailing Sunday.

College President Burned In Effigy

Buckhannon, W. Va., Oct. 27.—John Weir, president of the Wesleyan university here, was last night burned in effigy on the campus by the students as the result of ill-feeling following the president's decision practically abolishing football from the college.

To Foreclose Traction Properties

Cincinnati, Oct. 27.—An early foreclosure of the Appleyard traction properties, five of which are now in the hands of receivers, is indicated by entries made in the United States court, calling for the early filing of all claims against those properties.

Speakership Contest

Five Very Able Men Already Mentioned As Candidates

The state loses in the retirement of Speaker Frothingham, but there is cause for rejoicing in the fact that the old Bay State has a number of worthy men to select from in finding a successor. Not one of the men mentioned thus far for the place would reflect anything but credit on the state—and this is something that cannot be said of every contest or of every set of candidates. They are all honest and able. They are all men of convictions and with the courage of their convictions. The views of most of them on the larger questions are known. The only way, therefore, to discuss them is alphabetically.

In the alphabetical order Representative John N. Cole of Andover comes first. He is a citizen of Andover. He is a newspaper publisher, with papers in Andover and Lawrence which exert a wide influence.

His service on Beacon hill has been distinguished. He has been on many important committees. Among these might be noted the committee which a year ago considered the relations between capital and labor. A well-balanced mind, and the friendly relations he himself enjoyed with representatives of the two great parties, employers and employes, made him a decidedly valuable member on this committee. During the recent session he headed the committee on public lighting, which had to do with the Boston gas situation. To Mr. Cole's efforts, as is freely admitted, belongs much of the credit for the eleventh-hour solution of what promised to be a knotty problem, a solution which pleased the representatives of the consumers, and was accepted by the gas interests. His conduct of the hearings on this gas matter was masterly and his entire fairness won high praise for him.

Rep. Robert Luce of Somerville, than whom few members of the legislature are better known throughout the state, is once more an aspirant for the speakership. He was a candidate in the memorable contest a few years ago when Speaker Frothingham won out as successor to Hon. James J. Myers of Cambridge.

Mr. Luce is perhaps best known on account of the various election measures which bear his name, as, for example, the Luce primary election law. He has ideals in public life and public service, and, as is common with such legislators, is prone at times to lose sight of the practical side of life. Such organizations as the Public Franchise league and other associations of professional good-governmental tendencies would undoubtedly select the Somerville man in such a contest. Mr. Luce's views on the various issues that touch the corporate interests of Massachusetts have been pronounced almost radical at times. Naturally he could expect no assistance from these interests in this controversy.

As was expected, Rep. W. Rodman Peabody of Cambridge is a candidate for the speakership, and within an hour after Rep. Frothingham's announcement his friends were in the field. Mr. Peabody is an excellent type of the young, earnest attorney. He is keen, clever and warm-hearted. Although he has served in the lower branch for two years, he has made an excellent impression on his colleagues. Unlike either Cole or Luce, Peabody is not of the rugged order. He is delicately constituted. His voice is pleasant rather than commanding. He is diffident and by nature rather retiring. Yet he has shown the legislature that he is capable of making a good fight. He has served on important committees and, like Mr. Cole, is at present a member of the important special committee that is considering railroad and street railway laws.

Following out the alphabetical order, Rep. Joseph Walker of Brookline comes next. He placed himself tentatively in a speakership contest at the recent session of the legislature, and at several social gatherings of friendly colleagues he was hailed as the next speaker. While his chances would have been better had things run in their natural course, and if Mr. Frothingham has remained at the helm for another year, it is still undoubtedly true that the Brookline man is a serious factor in the coming contest.

While a conscientious member in the last session, Mr. Walker did not acquire the reputation of a hard worker. He devoted himself assiduously to the work of the ways and means committee, but beyond that his colleagues heard comparatively little from him. He lacks something of the fire which made famous his distinguished father, ex-Cong. Walker, the gray eagle of Quinsigamond. But, on the whole, he is a good type of the Massachusetts legislator, thoughtful, honest and serious in the great work of legislation.

Rep. Charles H. Ward of Buckland the Franklin county miller and farmer, for such he is, combines within himself many of the qualities that go to make up the ideal presiding officer. That he lacks others, such as finesse, cannot be doubted. His candidacy would undoubtedly attract the support of the western members, with whom the locality argument is ever potent. It is many years since a farmer sat in the speakership chair,—but then it is many years since a railsplitter was president of the United States. Mr. Ward has become a leader in the lower branch, and he won his spurs by his own efforts and endeavors. No man is more closely in touch with the financial affairs of the big commonwealth than this representative who began so humbly. His candidacy is therefore worth watching.

YOUR HAT

May Be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of Dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Leaders Unchanged

Several Candidates Have Much Larger Vote

Clerk Cash and Conductor Johnson both gain today but did not change places. Fred Sheppard is closing up the gap, and there are additional votes for several in the men's list.

Miss Merritt makes the largest gain today in the ladies' list, and proposes to be one of the leaders. Miss Agnes Souter and others have moved up.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Hunt---Gay Wedding

A pretty fall wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert K. Gay, East Weymouth, when their daughter Bessie became the bride of Edward Pratt Hunt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hunt.

The ceremony took place at 8 o'clock, in the presence of many guests. Rev. Emery L. Bradford, pastor of the Congregational church, officiated. The bridal couple occupied a bower in the parlor and stood beneath a floral bell. The house was decorated with autumn foliage and cut flowers.

The Episcopal double ring service was used, and the bride was given in marriage by her father. The music was furnished by Miss Eliza Hunt, sister of the groom. B. H. Hunt, brother of the groom was best man, and Miss Abigail Waldron of Quincy the maid of honor. Miss Ruth Chubbuck of Pittsfield was flower girl.

The ushers were Dr. George P. Hunt of Pittsfield; George E. Burne, John P. Hunt and Ernest Gay of East Weymouth, and Harry E. Litchfield of Whitman.

The bride wore white net, elaborately trimmed with point lace and silk ribbon. Her tulle veil was caught with lilies of the valley and she carried a shower bouquet of the same flower. The maid of honor was gowned in white point d'esprit over pink silk, and carried pink roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held. At 9.30 a wedding lunch was enjoyed with the Sunday school class of the bride, consisting of twelve young women, as the servitors.

After an extended wedding tour, Mr. and Mrs. Hunt will reside at 718 Broad street, East Weymouth, where they will be at home after January 1.

The Social Realm.

Scorn not the homely virtues. We are prone
To search through all the world for something new,
And yet sometimes old fashioned things are best—
Old fashioned work, old fashioned rectitude,
Old fashioned honor and old fashioned prayer,
Old fashioned patience that can bide its time,
Old fashioned firesides sacred from the world,
Old fashioned satisfaction with enough,
Old fashioned candor and simplicity,
Old fashioned folks that practice what they preach.

This year's Hospital Collection Holds Record.

With the amounts acknowledged today, the Hospital Week collection exceeds the largest previous collection and also the largest amount received from a Hospital fair. There will still be some more to come.

Though so far only a single error in the acknowledgements has been pointed out, the Hospital Week Committee realizes that there must have been many errors and omissions, and wishes to offer its sincere apologies for them. It is again requested that any who have not been given a chance to contribute, forward such sums as they may wish direct to the treasurer, Mr. R. D. Chase, Savings Bank building.

Informal Reception

Given by Sunday School Of First Unitarian Church

There was a large gathering of parents and friends at the chapel of First church last evening, in response to an invitation to an informal reception from the superintendent and teachers of the Sunday school. The chapel was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and autumn flowers.

From half past seven until half past eight a reception was held, when all had an opportunity to meet the officers and teachers of the school.

In the receiving line were Superintendent Charles H. Johnson, Assistan Superintendent Houghton Schumacher, and three teachers, Miss Abbie Wood, Miss Georgiana C. Lane and Mrs. Clarence Burgin. Miss Wood wore green silk, Miss Lane white and black silk and Mrs. Burgin, white muslin, making a very pretty grouping.

The ushers were Brooks Keyes, Avard Sproul, Ralph Cross and Brewster Walker.

There was music throughout the reception by Misses Minnie Hardwick, Mable Lovejoy, Harriet Spooner, Margaret Davis, Miriam Marsh and Ruth Penniman at the piano.

At the close of the reception an informal entertainment was given, the superintendent welcoming the guests in a few words, and announced a solo by Mrs. Ross K. Whiton, which was sweetly sung receiving hearty encore to which she responded, followed by a piano solo by Master Jack Pfaffmann. Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of Wollaston, president of the Sunday School union, said a few words regarding the union and it objects. Mrs. Smith is a delightful speaker and received hearty applause. The speaker of the evening was Mr. Maro Brooks of Brookline, sub-master in the High school, superintendent of the Unitarian Sunday school in that town and president last year of the Sunday School union.

Mr. Brooks captivated his audience from the start. His witty way of presenting some home truths made his medicine pleasant to the taste. He is entirely at home in Sunday school work, having a natural love for it, and having studied carefully its many sides. Throughout his brief talk his hearers were attentive and smiling. We wish we could give a few of the good points made by Mr. Brooks on his ideas of a live Sunday school but space forbids.

Mrs. N. S. Hunting contributed a vocal solo which was so pleasing, she responded with another.

Mrs. Brooks was called upon for a few remarks and said she really had nothing to say as she and Mr. Brooks were so congenial that he had already said all there was to be said, for naturally he would not say anything she did not approve of.

In the parlor was spread an attractive table, decorated with pink chrysanthemums, and candelabra with pink shades. Here four pourers presided at the chocolate urns, assisted by a score of Sunday school girls. The pourers were: Carlina Walker, Ruth Penniman, Katherine Saville and Stella Barker.

Every one united in expressing the pleasure the evening had given them. After the collation Mr. Brooks gathered the young people about the piano for a social sing which was enjoyed until time for him to leave for Brookline.

Mystery Breakfast Followed by Hike

The "Mystery Breakfast" at the Y. M. C. A. this morning at 7.30 was a great success. It was the launching of the Boys' Bible Study club. Thirty-five sat down at the tables, to fruit, shredded wheat, cocoa, rolls, hot frankforts (the mystery), and doughnuts. Everybody had a good time and enough to eat.

Ralph Austin presided, being chairman of the Bible study committee. After a few preliminary remarks and pleasantries by the secretaries, Mr. H. W. Gibson, state secretary for boys, spoke for twenty minutes on Bible study, the need and advantage of it.

The Woman's Auxiliary committee on boys' work served the breakfast with the assistance of a group of older boys.

After breakfast the boys' work Director Mr. Noon led a party of thirty boys on an all-day hiking trip to the Blue Hills.

The Treasure of N. J. No. 10

By EVERETT HOLBROOK

Copyright, 1905, by Charles N. Lurie

MR. LOVERING'S house was only a long stone's throw from the liveliest thoroughfare in the town, where upon a pleasant evening there would be a gay parade of young folk, with no dearth of wayfarers upon soberer errands, but the gleam of the lights and the hum of the voices seemed to be shut out of the side street by an invisible barrier. He who turned from the avenue plunged at once into gloom and silence under the high arch of elms. The houses stood aloof behind trees and shrubbery and were never prodigal of gas.

A breath of east wind had chilled the May evening. Verandas were deserted, and between the bustling avenue and his own doorstep Mr. Lovering saw none of his neighbors and heard no sound of them. Highwaymen and housebreakers were the subjects of his thought, and in unconscious imitation of those unobtrusive people he made a very quiet entrance into his own home. Indeed, he was already in the parlor and in the act of depositing a great bundle upon the table when his presence became known. Then his sister, Margaret, who was sitting upon the piano stool, turned toward him with a little cry, and a tall young man standing beside her halted suddenly in the midst of a pretty speech and acknowledged Mr. Lovering's wordless greeting with momentary embarrassment.

"What's all that?" asked the girl, indicating the luggage on the table.

Lovering looked down upon the bundle with grim satisfaction, while he rubbed and flexed a weary arm, but he did not answer the question. He seemed to be unable to break from his own line of meditation, and it was altogether in the manner of one who is alone that he slowly drew a revolver from his pocket and laid it carefully down. Margaret took a step forward and viewed the weapon with disfavor.

"George," said she, "is it loaded?"

Her brother nodded solemnly three or four times, busying himself with the strings and wrappings of the big bundle meanwhile. There was presently disclosed a box of dark wood ostentatiously re-enforced by bands of iron, with a formidable lock and a chain linked to a staple at the back.

Woodbury, who was not a resident of that town, but only an occasional visitor at his uncle's house, adjoining Lovering's, could not conceal his curiosity at the sight of these objects.

"Perhaps you haven't heard that I've been elected treasurer of N. J. No. 10?" said Lovering, addressing the guest.

"The building loan association that my uncle belongs to? No, I hadn't heard of it."

"Such is the fact," said Lovering, "and that means that I must take care of quite a bit of money for a day or two every month. The members make their payments in the evening, as a rule. I expect some of them tonight. It's likely I may have four or five thousand dollars in hand before I go to bed. Now, a good safe costs a lot of money. I can't afford it, and No. 10 won't. So there you are. I've done the next best thing."

"A revolver never shoots the right person," said Margaret, "and it alarms only the innocent. If Aunt Martha hears that it's in the house she'll lock herself in her room and never come out. Please promise me, George, that you won't keep it loaded. And as for the money, you'd do much better to hide it than to put it in that box, where any burglar couldn't help finding it. I wouldn't trust our plated spoons to that contrivance."

Her brother made no reply. He was fitting a key into the lock of the box, and when it was open he drew forth two great gongs.

"For further security," he said, "I have purchased these, one for the back door and the other for the front door. If they work well I'll get some little ones for the windows. Just wind 'em up like a clock"—

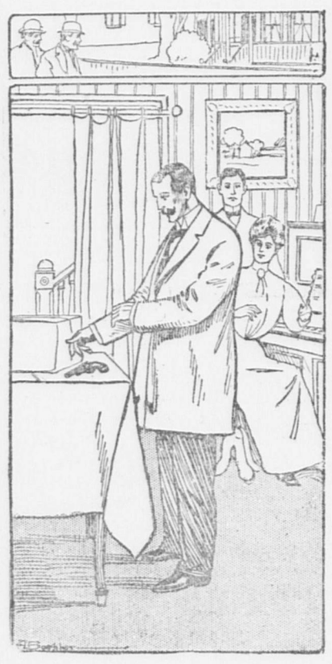
He was interrupted by the arrival of three members of N. J. No. 10, who had come to pay considerable sums into the treasury. When he had withdrawn with these brethren into another room Margaret turned to Woodbury.

"I think this is all nonsense, don't you?" said she, waving her hand toward the strong box and the revolver.

"Eh?" said he, starting. "I beg your pardon." And then, returning to the world of unromantic fact, he studied her face. "You're not a bit nervous, are you? Not easily frightened, I mean."

"You're thinking of revolvers? I'm not timid about them from ignorance. I could take that one to pieces and put it together again, but George couldn't. And he's so nervous and absentminded! I wish he wouldn't keep the thing loaded."

"Well, I don't know," said the young man doubtfully. And then, with decision: "The fact is, Margaret, that I saw two suspicious looking men hanging around here in the early part of the evening. They certainly looked as if they were examining this residence with a view to a visit."



HE DREW A REVOLVER FROM HIS POCKET AND LAID IT DOWN.

"I suppose we ought to tell my brother," said she. "Yet what's the use? He'll trust his money to that ridiculous box instead of hiding it, which is the only safe way. Burglars are always stupid about finding things, but when it comes to breaking locks—why, that's their trade, of course. If George would only give the money to me and let me put it away"—

"George will take care of the money," said her brother, entering hastily. "Your trinkets are your own, Peggy, and you may hide them under a sofa pillow if you think that's the safe way, but leave the funds of the N. J. No. 10 to me." And he hurried away with the strong box under his arm.

One of his visitors had volunteered to help him with the alarm gongs and with the mooring of the box, and as the man was a carpenter the chance was too good to be lost. The box gave no trouble. It was speedily stowed away in a cupboard in the dining room closet. But the gongs presented new problems to the carpenter and kept him busy till past 11 o'clock. A few minutes later young Woodbury made his exit by a window of the parlor, not daring to risk the gong at the front door, and by midnight the house was dark except for Lovering's room, where that gentleman was preparing for bed.

Lovering was a member of the fresh air cult. His windows stood wide open, and the curtains swung wildly in the draft. Two men—the same whom Woodbury had seen lurking about in the afternoon—observed the flying curtains, and one of them climbed into a tree that had a limb extending near to one of the windows. When he descended to the ground the light had been extinguished, and Lovering was abed.

"That guy has got a gun," the thief reported to his partner. "I seen where he put it."

"Can you win it?" said the other.

"Easy."

Half an hour later Lovering awoke from his first sleep in the grip of nameless terror. The noise of one of his curtains, snatched up with a rush by its spring, was still in his ears. He turned toward the window, and against the misty, phosphorescent brightness of the night outside he saw the black figure of a man whose arm was extended straight toward Lovering's face, and there was a dimly shining object in his hand.

"You keep quiet," said the intruder, "or you'll get a bullet! See?"

"You've got my gun!" gasped Lovering.

"Yes, I have," was the reply. "And much obliged, I'm sure."

Lovering clambered out of bed in a daze, wondering what he ought to say or do. He dared not cry out. There was no other man in the house (except the robber who had now entered by the window), and to bring Margaret or Aunt Martha or the maid upon the scene was to inaugurate a useless massacre. So he held his peace while putting on such raiment as the burglar advised.

"You don't need no coat; the keys are in your trousers."

He drove Lovering before him like a docile sheep out of the room, down the stairs and into the dining room, where he caused the master of the house to raise a window softly that the second thief might enter.

"Larry," said the first, addressing his partner, "the stuff's in that closet. Take the keys out of this feller's left hand trousers pocket."

The command was obeyed, and the closet and the cupboard were presently open, but no key upon the bunch would unlock the box, because the real key was upstairs in Margaret's room. She had found it on a table in the hall where her brother had put it down while he was busy with the gongs.

"We won't bother with this now," said the robber. "We'll kick the lid off it out in the lot. It's the same cast iron fake that we found in that house over in Springvale, ain't it, Larry?"

"Yes," responded Larry, with a grin. "Don't drop it, Joe. It'll bust. I'll get you a flatiron for the chain."

The iron was brought, and Joe with the first stroke shattered one of the big links almost to powder. Then he picked up the box under his left arm and, with the revolver in his free hand, waved Lovering toward the kitchen.

"You'll have to come with us for a little way," said he.

At that moment the whole house suddenly resounded with a most amazing clamor. Though the strong box and the chain were grossly fraudulent, the gongs (which could be tested by any purchaser) were in a measure honest, and it was the one that had been set above the back door that now fractured the whole fabric of the night.

To the thieves this was in reality the voice of a friend, but they could not know it. If the gong had not rung they would have gone out by the back way straight into the face of Douglass Woodbury (uncle to Margaret's suitor), a man of strength, courage and lifelong skill with weapons. He was standing guard with a revolver in each hand, a dead shot with right or left, and a man peculiarly merciless toward housebreakers. Listening at the door, he had put his shoulder against it, and the pressure had set off the gong. So the thieves were warned away from certain death and, fled through the house to the front door, where the younger Woodbury was posted with a double barreled shotgun which he had forgotten to cock.

Joe's hands were full, and it was Larry who unlocked and opened the door. Instantly the gong over their heads deafened and confounded them. They stood for an instant, cowed, and John Woodbury confronted them defenseless, for the gong had so startled him that he dropped his gun.

It was Joe who first recovered his wits. It was for him that moment of desperation which entraps the housebreaker to murder, the moment when life and liberty are all crowded into a single idea—a man blocking the path. Lovering, frozen as in some horrible nightmare, saw Joe whip up the revolver to within a foot of Young Woodbury's breast. The action was indescribably rapid, but Lovering had lost the sense of time. All acts for his eye were stretched out till they covered ages. He had time to think of innumerable things, of his unlucky purchase of that weapon, of the extraordinary fate by which it and the gongs also and all other features of his silly plan had turned directly against his wishes, of the love of his sister for this young man who would now be murdered before her eyes (for with the sixth sense he knew that she was standing at the head of the stairs) and of his own wretched inability to rush in and take the bullet in his own breast. Still the weapon was poised, and no flash came. How long could this agony endure?

He closed his eyes and when he opened them again Joe and Woodbury were rolling over and over upon the floor. The revolver had fallen, and the strong box too. He had now the strength to move forward, but Larry was too quick. The thief seized the weapon from the floor and pointed it straight at Woodbury's head. There was light now from the top of the stairs and Lovering saw the hammer of the revolver rise and fall, but no explosion followed. Larry flung it down, plucked up the iron bound box, leaped over the struggling men upon the threshold and fled.

Then Father Time, who had stood on one foot in order that Lovering might have leisure to appreciate these horrors, rushed nimbly on to overtake his schedule and dragged events along with him in a giddy whirl. The elder Woodbury appeared, his hands full of pistols. Joe, the burglar, was tied up as neat as an apothecary's package; the younger Woodbury and Margaret enchanted each other with congratulations far more warm than any previous expression of sentiment between them would have seemed to warrant. All this, for Lovering, passed in a flash. He heard a jumble of explanations, how the Woodburys had decided to keep an eye upon the house and had discovered that something was amiss within, though they had not seen the actual entrance of the burglars; how Margaret had not retired, but had been sitting by her window in the dark, and a hundred other details. Then, in a pause, he found himself holding the revolver in his hands and staring at the unexploded cartridges.

"A miracle—a miracle!" he murmured.

"Not the least in the world, George," said Margaret. "I took the firing pin out. I knew you weren't to be trusted with a weapon and I couldn't merely unload it because you'd notice that the cartridges weren't there. And now," she added, turning to the Woodburys, uncle and nephew, "let's go and see if the money is safe."

"The money!" cried her brother. "Why, that rascal ran away with it!"

"He ran away with the box," she replied. "Any thief would do that, of course. I knew it, and when I found the key I took the money and hid it. Come."

She led the way to the dining room closet, and there in a great earthen jar conspicuously labeled "Mince Meat," and out of use because of the season, they found the treasure of N. J. No. 10 reposing safely.

Newbro's Herpicide.

THE ORIGINAL REMEDY THAT "KILLS THE DANDRUFF GERM."

THE HUNTERS CAME TOO LATE!

Their Faithful Dog has pointed out the True Remedy to Prevent Baldness but the Hunters came too late—Chronic Baldness is incurable.

HERPICIDE A "HAIR-SAVER"

Newbro's Herpicide saves the hair by destroying the germ or microbe that is now known to be the cause of dandruff, falling hair and baldness. In chronic baldness the hair follicles are completely atrophied, causing the scalp to shrink and shine; little can be done in such cases except to save the remaining "fringe," and this is well worth saving, for it offers some protection against the cold.

The "Hair Grower" is a fallacy. It requires but a slight knowledge of Anatomy to know that the hair gets its life and strength from the hair-papilla at the bottom of the hair follicle, and the papilla in turn gets its nourishment direct from the blood; therefore nature is the only true hair grower. There are enemies of hair growth that cause hair loss and baldness. Invisible microbe growths enter the sebaceous glands, situated at the top of the hair follicles (Dr. Sabouraud, of Paris, says the microbe usually enters the scalp in youth,) where one colony after another is established, until finally, after months and sometimes years, there is dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

The Sebum also solidifies, causing dry, lustreless and brittle hair. Destroy this microbic growth with Newbro's Herpicide and protect the hair against reinfection, and it will grow as nature intended.

Newbro's Herpicide is a Twentieth Century Remedy. Its mission is to teach new rules for scalp cleanliness, new rules for hair preservation and to supply a germ-destroying solution that will enable careful persons to have beautiful and luxuriant hair. A most marvelous results follow the use of Herpicide, and if it does not do more than we claim for it, your dealer will refund your purchace price. As a hair dressing it is truly exquisite, on account of its dainty and refreshing color, which is characteristic. It contains no oil, grease or sedimentary substance, neither does it stain nor dye the hair.

Stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

VERY SATISFACTORY

I have used Newbro's Herpicide and found it very satisfactory. I wear a hat most of the time, and am troubled with the scalp itching a great deal, but the Herpiside has entirely relieved this. I have recommended it to others, who have received benefit from its use.

THREE-MILE LIMIT

Roosevelt Our First President to Go Beyond It

NO EFFECT ON OFFICE

Has Not Legally Departed From Country While on a National Ship, Which Is Regarded as American Territory

Washington, Oct. 28.—So far as the official records show, President Roosevelt, on leaving the south on the cruiser West Virginia, is the first of the chief executives of this country to go beyond territorial limits.

The attention of some of the legal authorities here having been called to the fact, they were unanimously of the opinion that in going beyond the three-mile limit the president has in no sense vacated his office, even temporarily. They point out that there is really nothing in the constitution prohibiting the president from leaving American territory, and in the present case, being on a national ship, the deck of which is as much a part of American territory as the District of Columbia, he has not legally departed from the country.

In fact, some able lawyers here express the opinion that even if the president should go to a foreign country the doctrine of extra territoriality would extend to that country with him. They say there is no question of a vacancy in the office of the president, in which case the vice president should act.

The constitutional provision is that the vice president shall act in case of the removal from office, death, resignation or inability of the president to act as president. But it does not say who shall say when the "inability" shall exist or who shall determine when it exists. Chester A. Arthur was very much perturbed during the illness of President Garfield when the question was raised as to whether the dying president was unable to perform the duties of his office.

Of course, during the few days President Roosevelt is on the high seas and beyond the jurisdiction of the United States no question of his inability to act would be raised by any official and consequently will not have to be settled. The interesting point is that the present case is novel in the history of the executives of the United States.

Naval officials are watching with considerable interest the effort of the commander of the West Virginia to maintain communication with the mainland by wireless telegraphy as she bears the president northward on his return from the south. It is the aim of naval authorities ultimately to so perfect the wireless system along the Atlantic seaboard that vessels sailing up and down the coast may be kept in the closest possible touch and that ships may be communicated with at the greatest possible distance from shore. Wireless stations have been installed at intervals all along the coast from Cape Cod to New Orleans, and plans already have been formulated to bring the Isthmus of Panama in direct wireless communication with the United States.

The wireless stations between the Gulf of Mexico and Hampton Roads with which the West Virginia may communicate are as follows: New Orleans, Pensacola, Key West, Dry Tortugas, Jupiter Inlet, St. Augustine, Savannah, Charleston (lightship), Diamond Shoals (lightship), and Cape Henry, Va.

These are not all government stations, nor have all those installed for the government been accepted as yet, but all are working and available for the reception of messages from the West Virginia.

President Was In Peril

New Orleans, Oct. 28.—After a narrow escape from losing his life in a collision, in which the lighthouse tender Magnolia, on which he was traveling, was so much damaged that he had to abandon her, President Roosevelt was taken on board the lighthouse tender Ivy to be carried down the Mississippi to the cruiser West Virginia.

The rail and port bow of the Magnolia were damaged by the colliding vessel, the fruit steamer Esparta, and two or three holes were made below the water line. She was beached, and afterward, no danger being anticipated, the president and party went to bed and slept until the Ivy came to their relief.

At the time of the accident the president, absolutely worn out by his strenuous experience in New Orleans, was fast asleep. The two vessels were near the west shore when they met, in an effort to avoid running into each other. The prow of the Esparta struck the Magnolia on the port bow. There was great haste in pushing the Magnolia ashore. The president showed no excitement, though he was somewhat annoyed by the probability of a delay.

SITUATION VERY GLOOMY

Trepoff Practically Concedes to Agitators the Right of Assembly--Complete Confidence of the Success of Movement For Universal Strike

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—That the present situation cannot end without bloodshed is the conviction prevailing in the higher government circles, which from moment to moment are expecting a conflict between the troops and the revolutionists in St. Petersburg and news of trouble in the provinces especially at Kharkoff, which has been declared in a state of war. The governor of Kieff has been instructed to take all necessary measures to restore order which the local government and the commander of the troops are unable to maintain.

Realizing that any attempt to interfere with the monster meeting at the university would inevitably lead to a bloody outbreak, General Trepoff, who announced that he intended to prevent the assembly, instructed the police to close their eyes to the fact and the meeting, which was attended by nearly 20,000 persons, passed off without a conflict. The troops stationed around the building were withdrawn, but in the court, the city bourse and other nearby buildings half a dozen companies of Cossacks and strong forces of infantry and dragoons were in readiness to sally forth if necessary.

Big meetings were also held in the Technology and Art institutes and in two engineering schools. The students at neither of these meetings took a prominent part in the deliberations, yielding the hospitality of the college buildings without attempting to cloak the meetings with the guise of student assemblies. With the hope of avoiding further meetings at the university, Trepoff later placed halls in three different parts of the city at the disposition of the people for meetings, thereby practically conceding the demands of the agitators for the right of assembly.

The scene inside the university beggars description. In the great open-air court, with no light except a few flickering candles on a hastily constructed tribune, thousands of workmen, students and professional men stood wedged together in the cold and a wet snowfall, listening to revolutionary harangues. Another great meeting was held in the central hall of the university, and scores of smaller meetings of the separate trades and professions were held in the other rooms of the building.

In all the sections a strong minority urged conservatism, but these were carried from their feet by the general enthusiasm, and resolutions for a general strike in every branch of social activity were adopted with a hurrah. Even the chinovniks in the government service, whose meeting was largely attended, were possessed of the same spirit and passed resolutions to stop all work in the government departments today.

This probably will include the government telegraph agency and may put telegraph and cable service out of commission. Another resolution which was generally adopted notified the authorities that the assize court buildings must be opened for a universal meeting of all classes at noon today, at which measures will be adopted against any person who is reported as not adhering to the general strike.

A remarkable feature of all the speeches was the spirit of complete confidence that the success of the movement was at hand and the manifest intention to force an armed conflict upon the government. The meetings continued far into the night.

In the city, in spite of the absence of disorders, there is a condition of actual panic. Half of the population was compelled to rely on candles or kerosene lamps for light last night, while the street lamps in a large part of the city were extinguished. The streets practically were deserted except for the squads of infantry and cavalry, which are everywhere.

The shops began to close in the afternoon in even the central streets. Many of the inhabitants shut themselves in their houses, scarcely venturing out to make necessary purchases of food, which has mounted to famine prices.

The last link of the railroads binding the capital with the outer world was broken late last night, when the Finland railroad suspended service between St. Petersburg and the Finnish border. Telegraphic communication is still open, but there is a possibility that the cable operators may be compelled to join a general strike of telegraphers today.

Everything Closed at Moscow

Moscow, Oct. 28.—The general strike has become effective here. All the stores, the banks and other business institutions are closed, and the communal activity of Moscow is at a standstill. Great meetings are being held in several quarters of the city.

State of War at Kharkoff

Kharkoff, Oct. 28.—A state of war has been declared here. The patrols have been doubled on all the streets. Great crowds are assembled in the thoroughfares and the situation is most threatening.

CHILDREN [illegible]

Three Dead and Many Others In a Serious Condition

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 28.—Seventeen girls, whose ages range from 2 to 6 years, at the St. Joseph's orphan asylum in this city, were taken suddenly ill, supposedly from poison, and three of them died within three hours. The exact cause of the illness is not known, but at an autopsy held under the auspices of the state board of health it was determined that the death of the three girls was due to poisoning.

The girls who were taken ill all remained at the asylum while the remainder of the 250 children cared for at the asylum were taken to an entertainment. It is supposed that in the absence of some of the nurses the children obtained something of a poisonous nature, which they all tasted. Physicians summoned when the illness was discovered were unable to save three of the little ones. They express the opinion that the others will recover, although some of them are still in a serious condition.

The organs of the dead children were taken to the state laboratory for further examination. While theories are freely advanced as to how the several children were made ill, ptomaine poisoning is thought probable, and no suspicions of foul play are entertained.

Insane Man Disposed Of

Shortcleeve at the hotel in Alstead and later defied a sheriff's posse for more than a day, was taken to the Massachusetts state colony for the insane at Gardner yesterday afternoon. Ford escaped from the Gardner colony last spring. Ford is still sore and lame as a result of his wounds and the exposure to which he had been subjected during his pursuit by the authorities.

Loss of Life Below the Average

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 28.—With the fishing season practically closed and only a few vessels yet to report, the tribute exacted by the Atlantic of the Gloucester fishermen during the past year has been computed at 16 lives, and 11 vessels. The valuation of the vessels is estimated at $79,350. Not since 1865 has the loss of life been so small as in the year just ending. The average loss of life during the past 25 years has been 85 a year.

Accidentally Killed Brother

Princeton, Mass., Oct. 28.—Harry Hayton, aged 12, was instantly killed by the discharge of a shotgun in the hands of his brother William, aged 14. William had been hunting and on returning he met his brother. They sat down side by side in a woodshed and in some way the gun was discharged, the shot striking Harry in the face, blowing away the left side of his head.

Children Played With Rifle

Medway, Me., Oct. 28.—Celia Vance, the 6-year-old granddaughter of J. A. Thompson, was accidentally shot and killed at Thompson's home. Baby Died In Washtub

Leominster, Mass., Oct. 28.—The 21-months-old daughter of Mrs. Eugene Giroux was left in the kitchen while the mother was in the yard hanging out clothes. During the mother's absence the child fell into a washtub and when Mrs. Giroux entered the house she found the baby drowned.

Disappeared In Woods

Albany, Oct. 28.—The court of appeals denied the motion for a reargument of the appeal of Albert T. Patrick from conviction of murder in the first degree and sentence of death for the killing in 1900 of W. M. Rice. David B. Eighty Years Old

Dr. Dearing Of Braintree Celebrates In Quiet Way

On Wednesday evening the 25th inst. Dr. and Mrs. T. Haven Dearing invited a few friends with his children and grandchildren to celebrate the close of the Doctors' four score years of life. It would have pleased the doctor if circumstances had permitted them to open wide their doors to all his friends in and out of town, many hundreds. As it was, many of his old friends, ladies and gentlemen, called in the afternoon.

In the evening the house was brilliantly lighted and at seven and one half o'clock refreshments were served. Wholly unexpected, many pretty, unique and valuable mementos and letters were sent and brought We will mention but one, a bouquet of eighty Jack roses with an engraved testimonial from the Norfolk South District Medical Society, which reads as follows:

"To Dr. Thomas Haven Dearing Greeting. The members of the Norfolk South District Medical Society, noting the arrival of the 80th anniversary of your birthday deem it a privilege to express to you their hearty congratulations on this happy event.

They call to mind that you were one of the founders of this Society, that you have been one of its Presidents, that you have always taken a zealous interest in its welfare; that you have brought to its meetings a wide and thoughtful experience gained in peace and war; that you have seen and appreciated the marvelous advances in medical science; that you have striven to keep up with the best methods and latest truths; and that in this strenuous profession you have reached this age with health and vigor. In all this they congratulate you. It is their hope that the kind Providence which has guided you so well and so far may continue to lead you on through many happy years.

In token of their high esteem they wish to present you, on this memorable occasion, a bouquet of eighty roses as a slight but fitting testimonial of their regard and affection.

The roses will fade in time but the pleasant memories of your association with the Society will ever remain fresh and beautiful.

Their good wishes are embodied in the words of our immortal doctor poet,—

'Love bless thee, Joy crown thee, God speed thy career."

Braintree, Mass. October 25, 1905.

After lunch at which Rev. Mr. Burrows invoked a blessing, Mrs. Dearing, Mistress of ceremonies, invited Rev. Mr. Burrows, Rev. Mr. Crathern and the Hon. J. T. Stevens to make speeches. The first represented the churches; the second the schools, literature and society; the last town and state affairs in which matters the ex-Senator and the Doctor had served together in various ways for more than forty years. The very complimentary remarks of these gentlemen as to the satisfactory manner in which the Doctor had filled the many offices to which he had been called in his profession, in music, in school matters, in town, state and church affairs must have been very pleasing to his friends and family.

The Doctor replied, indulging in some reminiscences and giving some reasons for his longevity. The company then repaired to the organ room and joined in singing familiar hymns and songs; Mrs. M. Josie Belcher and Mrs. Dearing presiding at the organ. The evening was very much enjoyed and the Doctor seemed "Just as young as he used to be" and sang his solos in as flute like and clarion a voice as when leader of that fine chorus choir of the Storrs church.

The genial doctor was born in Kittery, Maine, son of Capt. and Mrs. Roger Dearing. Capt. Dearing, after many years as sea captain carried on commercial persuits at Kittery and Portsmouth.

Dr. Dearing received his early education in the common schools of Kittery, in different New England academies, and continued it under special tutors in special college courses. He began the study of medicine and subsequently studied at the best colleges of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, and visited the principal hospitals of Europe. During the civil war he was assistant surgeon of Boston regiment, A. S., U. S. A.

He first settled in Boston, was professor of surgery and dermatology in the college of physicans and surgeons, and for nearly six years was deacon of the college.

Dr. Dearing came to Braintree in May 1863 and has had continuously a large practice which he still controls. He is an ex-president of the South Norfolk Medical society, is a member of the Massachusetts Medical society, the American Medical association, ex-vice president of the Massachusetts Medical society and a member of the Harvard Medical Alumnni association.

He is also a member of the First Congregational church, the Pine Tree club and the board of water commissmissioner. For several years he was an active member of the Braintree school committee.

The doctor has always been associated with the republican party, and is still a member of the Norfolk republican club of Boston. In 1889 he was elected representative in the general court and there did good work.

For many years he served the First church as chorister. He is a member of the Old Stoughton Musical society and has been president of many musical societies.

Opening Night Merrymount Club

It was "Opening Night" at the Merrymount Club last night, and the friends of the club were warmly welcomed by the members. A very social evening was spent by the guests. Pool, billiards, and bowling were enjoyed, and refreshments consisting of sandwiches and coffee, crackers, cheese and pickles were served.

An excellent entertainment had been planned by President, Bert Kent, and his efficient executive committee.

Smith and Riley, the well known pair of black-faced comedians and funmakers who have entertained Boston audiences many times with their repertoire, sang all the late coon songs, and gave a fine exhibition of clog dancing. Roy Whitehouse of East Boston gave several delightful cornet solos and with R. C. Baker, the club's able baseball manager, at the piano, the entertainment was complete.

On the whole a very pleasant evening was spent and friends of the club wish it success for the coming season.

A good number of Unity club members met in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church last evening for the second meeting of the season.

After a short intermission the last paper was given by Miss Martha Jenkins, of Atlantic. Her subject was "Montcalm and Wolf," and she gave a bright entertaining paper.

The music of the evening was in charge of Mrs. Moulton and consisted of solos by the popular baritone Mr. A. F. Hayden of Quincy.

Mr. Plummer of Quincy, who had charge of the evening, was unavoidably absent and his place was taken by the president of the club Mrs. G. W. Bennett.

Harvest Window.

One of the most attractive show window displays seen in Quincy for some time is that shown today at the store of the Consolidated Co. in the Adams building. A harvest window would name it rightly. Vegetables are the only thing used in the decorations, but everything in that line is shown. They are arranged in a tasteful and attractive manner and as one looks at them it makes his mouth water. The universal exclamation is "I wish they were in my cellar."

AMONG THE WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Tuesday afternoon members of the Quincy Women's club assembled at the club house on Presidents hill for the the second meeting of the fall season. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, first vice president, presided.

A short business session was held when reports were read by the recording secretary, corresponding secretary, and treasurer; also the chairman of the various committees who reported on work accomplished in their departments.

The club voted almost unanimously to increase the membership of the club fifty; from three hundred to three hundred fifty.

The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. James H. Wheeler, Jr., of Brookline, who spoke on "William Morris and his Legacy to Posterity," a most appropriate subject, as it was the Arts and Crafts afternoon. Mrs. Wheeler has a charming personality which attracted all toward her. She prepared her listeners for a lengthy paper, which it proved to be, but so interesting that its length did not detract from the pleasure it gave.

At the close, Mrs. Wheeler was presented with a bouquet of chrysanthemums, and an informal reception was given her.

The subject was William Ellery Channing, in continuance of the study of Unitarianism which the Alliance has taken for its winter's work. Mrs. Sturtevant sang most beautifully "Rest in the Lord," Mrs. Otho A. Hayward accompanying at the piano. At the close chocolate and light refreshments were served. It being Mrs. Butler's brithday she was presented with a large bunch of chrysanthemums and two birthday cakes both of which were cut and enjoyed by thoss present.

BRAINTREE.

John F. Kelly of this town is enjoying a visit to his old home in Dalton.

Work is progressing rapidly on the double track which is being laid between South Braintree and Whitman.

The addition which Mr. C. H. Bangs has been building on his house on Town street is completed, and Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Bangs have moved in.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Sylvester of Hancock street are making preparations to occupy their new house on Central avenue, recently purchased of Mr. O. M. Rogers.

Alden French of Quincy, now 84 years old, formerly a resident on King Hill road, has been spending a few days in South Braintree.

Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Kirk are soon to occupy the house on South Braintree heights owned by O. A. Brown.

Charles Daley shot a pair of geese while gunning at Rosedale lake this week.

Miss Dora Welch of Saco, Me., is stopping with Mrs. H. W. Doane of West street.

The Sons of Veterans Auxiliary, No. 16, are the proud possessors of a valuable souvenir of the Battle of Gettysburg. It is a gavel made from the wood of a tree on Seminary Ridge. Deeply imbeded in the wood is a large bullet a grim reminder of the terrific struggle.

Those who attended the illustrated lecture given by D. W. Howard of Boston in the South Congregational church last Sunday evening, learned many things about the battle of Gettysburg not published in every day histories. Mr. Howard was certainly familiar with every detail of the great battle, and the fine stereopticon views were greatly appreciated.

Ellis F. Dyer of Hancock street has resumed his occupation at the Fore River Ship and Engine Co.'s works, having enjoyed his annual vacation, which was spent in New York, Old Point Comfort and Newport News, Virginia, as well as at other interesting resorts in the South.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hill of Tremont street recently entertained Mrs. H. M. Sumner and Capt. and Mrs. Wallace W. Cook of Provincetown. Mr. Cook is captain of the Peaked Hill Bars Life Saving station at Provincetown.

Mrs. John Dennehy of Thayer place recently met with a painful accident, dropping a heavy flatiron on her left foot and crushing one of the toes quite badly. It is hoped she will soon be able to be about again.

Rev. F. B. McAllister of Cohasset preached at Union church in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Robert H. Cochrane. The sermon on the Prodigal Son was a treatise in an original discourse on "The coming to oneself." Let us all awake and come to our better selves which are our real, true selves.

CHARITIES.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
INCORPORATED 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000, but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Secretary, TIMOTHY REED, Adams St., Quincy, or the Treasurer, RICHARD D. CHASE, Savings Bank Building, Quincy, will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE Young Men's Christian Association OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title - Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an Endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST S. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

Judge Hanna

Pays Tribute To Mrs. Eddy And Outlines Christian Science

An audience which filled every seat in Quincy Music hall, assembled last evening for the Christian Science lecture under the auspices of the Braintree church. It was also a prosperous people. The platform was attractive with its stage setting, plants and flowers.

Lewis C. Strang of Boston in introducing Judge Hanna, said:

There is no such thing as new truth. Since the beginning of time, man has been constantly making fresh discoveries regarding truth. But man has never invented—has never created out of his own consciousness nor out of anything else—a single atom of truth.

This experience has established two great facts—first, that there is such a thing as truth, and second, that truth exists apart from man, does not derive its being from man and cannot be changed by man.

We find intelligent thought, whether materialistic or idealistic, in general accord on the fundamental proposition that man lives in a universe of law, and that the phenomena which he cognizes are the manifestations of law.

With inevitable logic, intelligent thought draws the conclusion that when man comes reasonably to comprehend the operations of fundamental law, he will be able to forestall disaster to a considerable extent. Fear will be thereby diminished, and the sum total of health and happiness greatly increased. This reasoning is sound. It points the way to the attainment of the race's crying need—a present and a practical salvation.

Unfortunately, mankind in general has relied upon material sense to indicate the way of salvation. Men have been right in agreeing that the understanding of truth is of primary importance, but they have persisted in looking to matter for truth. They have been right in agreeing that man must comprehend the laws of the universe in order to be healthy and happy, but they have declared that these laws are material.

True there have been in all times valiant protesters against this conclusion. Moses was one. Jesus of Nazareth was another, and he proved the falsity of matter and material law by healing disease through spiritual means only. Yet the validity of matter and material law stands today the belief—more than that, the firm conviction—of nearly the whole of mankind. It permeates science, philosophy, and religion. It is the great idol of the human race, the chief obstacle to its advancement, the mist which clouds its comprehension of the God of the Bible, the God who is Spirit and Love.

Christian Science is the modern protest against this slavery of the ages. Christian Science brings to hamanity today the same message which Moses proclaimed from Sinai, "Hear, oh Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord;" the same message which Jesus preached on the shores of Galilee, "God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship him in spirit and in truth."

To some of you it may seem strange, mysterious, and unaccountable that the sick can be healed today, as in Jesus' time, without material means—not by blind faith, but in strict accord with divine law. In one sense it is strange, mysterious, and unaccountable. None of us claims to have fathomed infinity. But it is no more strange, mysterious, and unaccountable than that a seed planted in the spring should bloom a beautiful flower in the summer. Christian healing seems more mysterious because it is more unusual.

It gives me great pleasure to introduce to you Judge Hanna, the speaker of the evening.

We give below Judge Hanna's lecture in full.

"Ladies and Gentlemen:—I assume that there are some here who are unfamiliar with Christian Science,—some who have come for the first time to hear of it. I will address myself in part to these. I therefore say that Christian Science has a text-book entitled 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures,' and its author is the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy. It was first published in 1875.

It is a treatise on healing through the power of God, or the divine Mind. Or, as we claim, it is a thorough exegesis, of the Scriptural method of healing all manner of diseases, and of curing all manner of sin through the understanding of God as all-present, all-powerful, all-wise, and universal Mind. In short, it is a spiritual interpretation of the Bible; hence its title: 'Key to the Scriptures.'

THE AUTHOR.

The author of a book of note and of value is a person of whom people desire to know, therefore I shall refer briefly to the life and character of Mrs. Eddy.

It may not be amiss for me to say that for nearly ten years, as former First Reader in the Mother Church in Boston and editor of the officials periodicals, I have had opportunities which enable me to speak intelligently of her life and character as well as of her labors and literary attainments.

Speaking from this vantage ground, I can truthfully say that, intellectually, she is one of the most alert persons I have ever known; that she labors incessantly and unselfishly for the cause to which she has devoted her life and that notwithstanding her years, she performs an amount of labor each day which, if known, would seem incredible, even if done by one yet in the adolescence of life. As to her religious character, I speak my profoundest conviction when I say I believe it to be in accord with the highest standard of Christian living.

Yet, notwithstanding her highly spiritual nature, she is withal an intensely practical person. She keeps close watch of current affairs and acquaints herself with the world's doings.

She is, moreover, a patriotic citizen of her native State and of her adopted city, contributing generously of her means toward their material welfare and upbuilding.

THE TENETS.

I shall next speak of the Church Tenets. There is in Boston a Mother Church, organized a number of years since, having a membership of nearly forty thousand, composed of persons residing in almost every part of this country and of other countries. This membership is increasing at the rate of about 3,000 annually. The Mother Church has branch churches and societies to the number of nearly one thousand, also situated in nearly every part of this country and of other countries. Some years since the Mother Church adopted a set of Church Tenets. These become also the tenets of all of her branches, and must be subscribed to and adopted by every person becoming a member either of the Mother Church or of any of her branches. These tenets furnish a fair index to the religious faith or belief of this movement, hence I shall refer to them in substance. They acknowledge the Scripture to be the inspired word of God. They acknowlege the Supremacy and infinity of God. They acknowledge Christ and his divinity, and declare there is but one Christ. They inculcate the omnipotence, omnipresence and omniscience of God; that God is Spirit; that man—the real, spiritual man—is made in the image and likeness of God according to the teaching of Genesis, and that this real man must, by the necessity of his relationship to God, reflect, or image forth, the divine character. The real and immortal man, therefore, does reflect God. The mortal man, or the unspiritual man, does not reflect God, and is not therefore His image and likeness.

The last of these tenets enjoins upon all who subscribe to them the necessity of striving, watching and praying to have in themselves the same Mind that is also in Christ Jesus, to love one another and to be meek, merciful, just and pure.

Surely there can be no higher standard of Christianity. If there be a person on this earth today who can truly be said to have in himself the same Mind that was also in Christ Jesus, that person is a christian. If there are persons who sincerely striving, watching and praying to have that Mind, they are, in that sense, leading the Christian life. Those Christian Scientists who are thus earnestly striving are true to the church tenets and to their teaching. If there are those who are not so striving, they, like all others, have yet to attain to a higher standard of living.

THE SCRIPTURAL BASIS.

The foregoing indicates, in general terms, the Christianity of our faith.

No unbiased mind will say that, in statement and theory, it does not embrace all the essentials of Bible teaching; but let us be more specific. All who believe in God at all agree that He is all-powerful, all-present, all-wise.

All who believe in the Bible accept the statement of the first chapter of Genesis that God made man in His own image and likeness. We should endeavor to give these Bible truths their full weight, their deep significance.

If we do so, we must believe that with God all things are possible. We must believe that if God is whole, His image and likeness reflects wholeness. We must believe that if God is pure, His image and likeness reflects purity. We must believe if God is good, His image and likeness reflects goodness. We must believe that if God is Love, His image and likeness reflects love. We must believe that if God is Life, His image and likeness reflects life. We must believe that if God, in His wholeness, is free from sin, sickness and death, His image and likeness is likewise free.

Otherwise the words 'Image and likeness' were false and meaningless—a misnomer. A full belief in the first chapter of Genesis, which is the record of the true, spiritual creation, puts upon us the necessity of recognizing God as the only creator of man, and man as the image and likeness of his creator forever and forever.

Paul expressed a clear discernment of the distinction between the real man and the false when, as recorded in Col. 3, he said: 'But now ye also put off all these; anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy communication out of your mouth. Lie not to one another, seeing ye have put off the old man with his deeds; and have put on the new man which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him. Put on therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness and humbleness of mind, meekness, longsuffering, and above all these things put on charity which is the bond of perfectness.'

Here is distinctly shown the difference between the true man and the false, the immortal and the mortal, the perfect and the imperfect. Jesus refered to this difference when he said 'Ye must be born again, or ye must be born anew,' as it is in the revised version. He also referred to the true man when he said: Be ye perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.' That is, ye must be born out of sin and imperfection into sinlessness and perfection, for this is the necessity of your birthright as the image and likeness of God.

If this Scripture is to be taken at its plain meaning, we have laid the foundation for furher Scripture which shows God's power and purpose to transform the false into the true, by the destruction of the false. This is the only real transformation.

Hear the 'sweet singer of Israel' in the 103 Psalm:

"Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with loving kindness and tender mercies; who satisfieth thy mouth with good things, so that thy youth is renewed like the eagle's." And listen to the prophet Jeremiah (33): "Call unto me, and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thow knowest not; Behold I will bring it health and cure, and I will cure them, and will reveal unto them the abundance of peace and truth."

Of old, as now, those who trusted to human aid, instead of the Divine, suffered the consequences of their lack of faith and understanding. In 16 Chron. we read: "And Asa in the thirty and ninth year of his reign was diseased in his feet until his disease was exceeding great; and yet in his disease he sought not the Lord, but to the physicians." What was the result? The record laconically tells us: "And Asa slept with his fathers, and died in the one and fortieth year of his reign." We note that Asa slept with his fathers, not his father. How many since Asa's time slept prematurely with their fathers for a like reason!

JESUS' TEACHING.

The Old Testament teachings, as indicated by the few citations made, furnish an abundant foundation for the New Testament doctrine of healing through the divine law, and especially the teaching and works of Jesus. I might quote extensively from the New Testament did

LIGHT ON MYSTERY

The Suit Case Crime May Yet Be Unraveled

ARMS AND LEGS FOUND

Correspond to Description of Victim as Computed From Measurements of Winthrop Torso--Rings on Fingers May Lead to Identification of the Body

Boston, Oct. 28.—The famous suit case mystery of Sept. 21, when the dismembered torso of a woman was found in a suit case floating in the harbor near the Winthrop shore, has been brought into prominence again by the finding of a second suit case floating in the Charles river, near the Charlestown bridge. The case just found contained the arms and legs, said by medical experts to be those of a woman, and the police say there is no doubt that they are the missing members of the torso found at Winthrop more than a month ago.

With the finding of the limbs there is now a chance that the victim of the tragedy may be identified, as on one of the hands there were three rings, which, it is hoped, will give a clue to the identity of the wearer.

Yesterday's discovery is closely linked with the Winthrop find of a month ago. The torso was wrapped in oil cloth and the limbs found were encased in a wrapping identical to that wound about the torso.

While investigating the Winthrop mystery the police located two pawnbrokers who had sold suit cases to a man answering the same description, and one of the pawnbrokers identified the Winthrop case as one he had sold the man. That case was fastened by a strap taken from a newer case. The suit case found yesterday was identified by another pawnbroker as one sold by him. Although when sold it had two straps attached to it, one of the straps had been removed, but the strap remaining was of the same size and shape and similar in the pattern of the buckle to the strap fastened about the case found at Winthrop.

The limbs found yesterday had been severed from the body with the greatest care, and the manner in which the separation was done resembled the work of a skilled surgeon. There were no marks of instruments on the joints, and everything indicated that the person who severed the limbs was no novice at dissection.

According to Professor Whitney of the Harvard Medical school, who was called in consultation with the police last night, the severed limbs correspond to the description of the victim as computed from the measurements of the torso, and the expert was also of the opinion that the limbs would coincide with the torso at the points of disunion.

Yesterday's ghastly discovery was made about 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon by Edward Frazer, a member of the crew of the lighter S. A. Pike, which was tied up at a wharf near the Charlestown bridge. An unusually low tide prevailed at the time. Frazer saw the case floating down stream, and pulled it to the deck of the lighter with a boat hook. When he opened it and unrolled the oil cloth wrapping he was horrified to find a pair of arms and a pair of legs. The legs had been separated at the knees, making six pieces in all, the thighs, the lower legs, and the arms.

The limbs were badly decomposed, but the decomposition was internal, the skin being well preserved. On the right hand were found three rings, two of them on the ring finger and one on the little finger. It is by means of these rings that the police hope to establish the identity of the victim.

The ring on the little finger was an old-fashioned gold band. It had evidently been worn a long time, as it was thin on the edges. The band was not plain, but was chased, the design being a small pointed raised cross within a larger cross that was depressed. The rings on the ring finger contained gems. One of them was an opal, which had originally been surrounded by a circular cluster of smaller stones, but all except the opal had disappeared. This ring was very narrow and thin and had evidently, like the band ring, been worn for a long time. The setting on the third ring held an oval gem, which is thought to be an imitation garnet. On the inner side of the band of the opal ring the initials "H. B." were stamped with a die, and these initials, the police believe, are the trade mark of the jeweler who manufactured it. The imitation garnet ring had three dots stamped on the inner side of the band. There were no engraved initials on any one of the rings.

All of the rings were of solid gold, but were inexpensive affairs. This, according to the police, disposes of the theory that the victim was a woman of wealth.

The authorities believe that the limbs were thrown into the river at about the same time the torso was put into the harbor. Whether both cases were thrown over at the same point the officers are not prepared to venture an opinion. It is the theory of Chief Inspector Watts of the Boston police that the case has rested in the mud at the harbor bottom for at least a month. This is borne out, in part, by the fact that decomposition was advanced and that the case was covered with mud and harbor slime. It is believed that the gases caused by the decomposition, together with the lessening of the water pressure by reason of the unusually low tide, caused the case to rise to the surface.

Although the rings found on the right hand are not of the kind that would be worn by a person of wealth, the condition of the hands and feet indicated that the victim was not a person who was forced to do manual labor. The hands and feet were well cared for and there were no indications of callouses such as would be expected in a factory worker or servant.

H. M. Whitney's Methods

"I Freely Admit Giving the Dinners, of employing counsel and making use of the lobby, but it was to prevent the accomplishment of an infamous purpose which was championed by you in violation of your oath."
—Henry M. Whitney in his reply to George Fred Williams.

EX-GOV. WILLIAM E. RUSSELL, DEMOCRAT,

Condemned the Whitney Methods

In his speech at Lynn, Oct. 31, 1890, Hon. William E. Russell said:

"In my opinion that measure has great merit. It meets the just demand of the community for quicker and better transit. It is a practical solution by able and responsible men of a difficult problem, and it will promote the convenience of the public; but if I had been Governor of this Commonwealth, I would, under the circumstances disclosed by the investigation, have vetoed that bill as quickly as I could have put pen to paper.

"FOR I HOLD THAT IT IS FAR MORE IMPORTANT TO GUARD SACREDLY THE PURITY OF LEGISLATION AND TO REBUKE THE LOBBY THAN THAT ANY MEASURE OF MERIT SHOULD BE HASTENED IN ITS PASSAGE. I HOLD THAT ONE OF THE HIGHEST DUTIES OF THE GOVERNOR OF THE COMMONWEALTH IS TO PROTECT ITS FAIR NAME FROM LEGISLATIVE SCANDAL AND TO PROTECT THE PEOPLE FROM THE IMPROPER CONTROL OF LEGISLATION BY SECRET INFLUENCES."

The Supreme Court OF MASS.

Condemned the Whitney Methods

In a ruling of the supreme court (6—Allen 193) the law was laid down that:

"THE PRACTICE OF PROCURING MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE TO ACT UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF WHAT THEY HAVE EATEN AND DRUNK AT HOUSES OF ENTERTAINMENT TENDS TO RENDER THOSE OF THEM WHO YIELD TO SUCH INFLUENCES WHOLLY UNFIT TO ACT IN SUCH CASES.

"They are disqualified from acting fairly toward interested parties, or toward the public.

"THE TENDENCY AND OBJECT OF THESE INFLUENCES ARE TO OBTAIN BY CORRUPTION WHAT IT IS SUPPOSED CANNOT BE OBTAINED FAIRLY."

Will Massachusetts now endorse the man who boldly admits that he employs these methods?

The Republican State Committee, Thomas Talbot, Chairman, William M. Flanders, Secretary.

One Ring Came From Buffalo

Buffalo, Oct. 28.—One of the rings found on the finger of the dismembered body at Boston was made by Heintz Bros., manufacturing jewelers of this city. The ring, according to a telegram to the Buffalo police, bears Heintz Bros.' monogram, "H. B." Louis Meintz, a member of the firm, said: "Our goods go in large consignments to a good many cities. We might be able to tell from a close study of our books to what retail jeweler the consignment containing this particular ring was sent."

Submarine Crew's Close Call

Portsmouth, Eng., Oct. 28.—The recent accident to submarine boat A No. 4, whose crew of 16 had a narrow escape from drowning, was due to a ventilator not being closed when the boat was being trimmed for diving. A large volume of water entered the vessel, flooded her forepart and extinguished her lights. The submarine dived 90 feet and remained below 3½ minutes before rising. A court martial has assembled here for the trial of Lieutenant Smyth, who commanded the A. No. 4 at the time of the accident.

Would Not Tolerate Uniform

Washington, Oct. 28.—Secretary Bonaparte has directed the dismissal of an employe of the Norfolk navy yard as a result of a complaint which came to the department that the employe, after having agreed to leave two rooms of his house to a machinist's mate, refused to carry out the agreement because it would be necessary for the mate to come to his residence dressed in the uniform of a petty officer of the United States navy.

Train and Bridge Wrecked

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 28.—Twelve persons were injured last night when a train was hurled from a bridge near here into a creek 40 feet below. The tender, the mail and baggage coaches and the smoking car were splintered and thrown into the creek. The bridge was destroyed. The accident was caused by the tender of the locomotive jumping the track. All the wounded persons will recover, it is thought.

Good Commercial Progress

New York, Oct. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that almost without exception reports are favorable regarding the nation's commercial progress. A needed decline in temperature has stimulated distribution of wearing apparel and other seasonable merchandise, relieving anxiety that heavy stocks would be carried over at the end of the season.

Miss Roosevelt Reaches Home

Washington, Oct. 28.—Miss Alice Roosevelt arrived in Washington last evening, thus completing her long journey from the Orient. Major McCawley of the marine corps and Miss Hagner, secretary to Mrs. Roosevelt, met the president's daughter at the railway station and accompanied her to the White House. Miss Roosevelt returned in excellent health.

Government Buildings Burned

Halifax, Oct. 28.—A spectacular fire which destroyed British government property valued at $100,000 on George's island threatened to obliterate numerous masked batteries and magazines which constitute one of the most important group of fortifications at this port. The fire broke out in one of the machine shops and spread to numerous other wooden buildings.

Oscar's New Title and Motto

Stockholm, Oct. 28.—At a meeting of the council of state King Oscar announced that he would in future use the following style and title: "We, Oscar, by the grace of God, King of Sweden and of Goths-Wends." He further announced that his motto would be "The welfare of Sweden," instead of "The welfare of the sister nations."

Anxiety Cost Him His Life

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The death of Edward Herron, a traveling salesman of Boston, is said to have been the direct result of anxiety on his part to reach Chicago to prosecute Elmer Anderson, an alleged pickpocket, on the charge of larceny. Herron died in a railroad station soon after reaching Chicago.

To Look Over Canal Matters

Washington, Oct. 28.—Secretary Taft and his party started on their Panama trip last night, leaving here by boat for Norfolk. He will transfer to the cruiser Columbia at Old Point. Taft was overwhelmed with work up to the time of his departure.

Lion Tamer Badly Hurt

Paris, Oct. 28.—Frank C. Bostock, the lion tamer, was attacked and badly lacerated by a lion during his performance here last night. Bostock is still unconscious.

O'Brien Knocks Out Kaufman

San Francisco, Oct. 28.—Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia last night knocked out Al Kaufman of San Francisco in the 17th round of a middleweight fight here.

Fall River Textile Officers Will Try to Overcome It

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 28.—The Fall River Textile council met last night and took action on the request of the Manufacturers' association for a conference with the manufacturers next Monday. A committee of eight was appointed to meet the manufacturers.

According to Secretary Taylor of the Textile council, no proposition has yet been submitted by the Manufacturers' association, and the members of the council have no intimation regarding the nature of the proposition the manufacturers will put forward.

The committee was not given any instructions by the council, and is advisory rather than executive. Inasmuch as there are only 15 members of the Textile council, a majority of whom are on the committee, the sentiment of the committee will be the sentiment of the council. Whatever agreement the committee reaches it will necessarily be accepted by the Textile council.

The sentiment of the mill operatives in general is in favor of a strike, but the members of the Textile council express the opinion that a strike will be averted, and say that they will exert every effort to prevent one.

Continuing War on Canteen

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 28.—The feature of the first day's session of the convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was the annual address of President Stevens of Maine, who was positive in her argument against the re-establishment of the army canteen. She read letters from Secretary of War Taft and others, showing that army officers as a rule say there is more drunkenness among enlisted men since the canteen has been abolished than before, but she insisted that no statistics have been compiled to support their position.

Smallpox May Be Spread

New York, Oct. 28.—A well developed case of smallpox was discovered on Ellis Island among 1300 steerage passengers from the steamer Nord Amerika, from Naples and Genoa. After all but 60 of the immigrants had been passed out with a clean bill of health, a woman was found to have the disease. Over 1200 passengers from the Nord Amerika are now scattered throughout the city and are en route to different parts of the country.

Predictions of Great Weight

New York, Oct. 28.—President Harriman of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads predicts that an era of competitive railroad building is at hand similar in magnitude to the era of competitive buying already experienced. He predicts also that Japanese shipping will soon appear on the Pacific ocean to such an extent that the United States will have to choose between co-operating or competing with it.

Weakened For Strained Ligament

Baltimore, Oct. 28.—Just after the bell that closed the eighth round of what was to have been a 15-round bout between Young Corbett and Joe Tipman last night, Tipman almost fell from his chair. After his glove had been removed and he had been almost carried to his dressing room, it was announced that Tipman had strained a ligament of the thumb. Referee O'Hara gave the fight to Corbett.

Packers' Defender Subpoenaed

Chicago, Oct. 28.—A subpoena to appear as a witness in the beef trust trial Nov. 20 has been served on Charles G. Dawes, former comptroller of the currency. Dawes has opposed in speeches the course of the government in prosecuting the packers. His public expressions are said to have led to the issuance of a subpoena so that what he knows concerning the packers may be stated under oath.

Gomez Not Buying Arms

New York, Oct. 28.—Former Governor Gomez of Santa Clara province, Cuba, says regarding the report circulating in Havana that he had come to New York to buy arms for a revolutionary movement: "My sole object in visiting the United States is to secure a much needed rest. The rumor that I am here to buy arms for revolutionists is utter nonsense."

Conventions Could Not Agree

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Both the "regular" and the "anti" sessions of the interstate commerce law convention adjourned sine die after passing resolutions and without making any efforts at reconciliation. As a consequence there will be two regularly organized bodies working in the interests of railroad rate legislation.

Jerome Named by Republicans

New York, Oct. 28.—W. T. Jerome, who is making an independent canvass for re-election as district attorney, last night was unanimously named as the Republican nominee for the same office at a reconvened sitting of the Republican county convention.

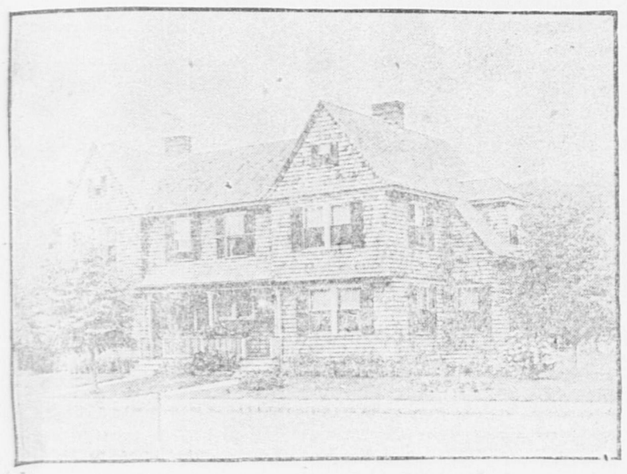
MODEL MILL TOWN

That Honor Given to Hopedale In This State

HOME OF THE DRAPERS

Labor There Is Well Employed and Cared For by the Great Corporation Founding It--Every Comfort Afforded Them in Their Living Conditions

In a political campaign the minds of the people are apt to be diverted by many issues. Candidates are certain to pose before the people as their special friends, but there is certainly to be noted a disparity between the theories and preaching of one set of candidates and the practice of another.



A Corporation House Occupied by Employes

Eben S. Draper, who is the candidate for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket this fall, probably has never performed anything along the line of welfare work for his employes for the sake of the political capital he could make out of it, and so it may fairly be claimed that whatever he may have done in this direction was prompted by his regard for the comfort and convenience of the people who were in his employ.

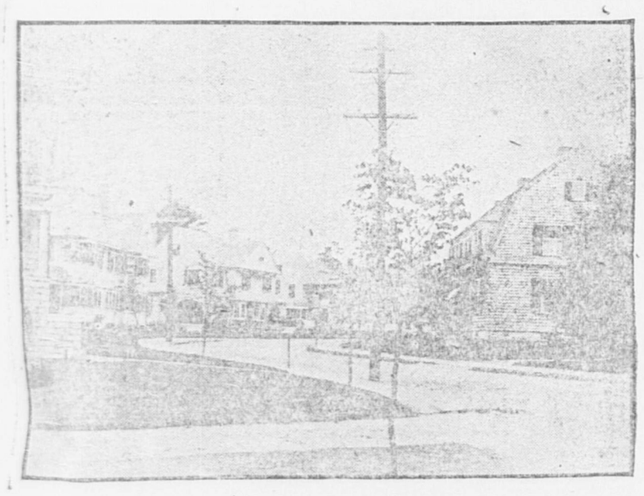
Hopedale, the mill town so long the seat of the extensive mill interests of the Draper family, has been termed the model mill community of the world, and so intelligence regarding it becomes of interest outside any political bearing it may have at this time.

lish writer they are described as "America's best."

As the general welfare of any town is due to its industries, allusion is made here to the fact that the sole industrial enterprise in Hopedale is the Draper company, which manufactures textile machinery. This concern has developed rapidly during the forty years of its existence and the town has grown up with it. General William F. Draper is its president and George A. Draper is treasurer; the agent is Eben S. Draper, the present candidate for the nomination for Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts.

What might be termed the "Draper influence," which frequently is emphasized by substantial moves for social uplift, is reflected in every section of the town. The whole town is an example of prosperity in which honest plainness knows how to live. Here is a manufacturing town in which the head of the family bows to none of those humiliating necessities that in other places send so many wives and children out of their homes to aid a handicapped struggle for honor and independence. With his own hand he provides for what the household needs.

As a noteworthy factor in his earning capacity must be mentioned first of all the auspicious circumstances that he is as well paid as any man in the country doing the same kind of work, and always is on good terms with his employer. Perhaps the most striking evidence of this is the freedom from industrial controversies, there having been no strikes at the Draper company works in the forty years of their operation. There never is occasion for prolonged misunderstandings, as the men are perfectly free to call upon the management whenever they have questions of mutual concern to bring up, knowing that their claims will receive due consideration. But wages and factory conditions, predominating as may be their influence, are only contributing



Front View of the Draper Company Houses on Bancroft Park Occupied by Employes

The impression that one gets of the people of Hopedale, Mass., is that they are a prosperous, homeloving and virtuous class, so far removed from the unassuming and commonplace of ordinary factory-town populations as almost to conceal their true social and economical standing. They have had better opportunities than most people in the trade and have used them to full advantage; one looks in vain among them for the signs of want and misery usually found in large manufacturing communities, and the observing mind soon comes to the logical conclusions.

factors in the life of this exceptional manufacturing community. The same consideration that is displayed in the construction of the factory buildings to obtain wholesome conditions for the employes is shown in the provisions for their care outside the factory. They have been provided for at the least possible cost to themselves.

A moderately elevated slope which has numerous swells and hollows constitutes the residential centre of the town. Nature provided much of the picturesqueness which lends charm to the place, and adjacent territory is

Rear View of Houses on Bancroft Park Occupied by Employes

In presenting the social conditions prevailing among the working people of Hopedale the use of the superlative would be justified, in fact, is almost necessary for a conscientious adherence to the unbiased truth, because the little town has gained national reputation for its exemplary shop and housing conditions. By an accomplished Engagreeably diversified by dwarf woodland, cultivated fields, level uplands and elegant estates. But what strikes the eye with special force is the uniform excellence of the houses and the high tone of their surroundings. These houses are owned by the Draper company and occupied by its employes; yet, as may be seen from accompanying illustrations, their architecture and dimensions place them well within the conventional class of residences for business men or persons of professional pursuits. The company erects anywhere from five to fifty of this style of houses every year and rents them to its employes for from $2.50 to $3.62 per week, inclusive of water and maintenance. Some of the houses built a few years ago are a little less imposing and rent as low as $1.75 per week. Moreover the company gives cash prizes aggregating $375 per year for the best kept lawns and gardens, which proves a most excellent incentive to conscientious care-taking, and the results clearly justify the efforts.

Every home presents an attractive appearance. Corporation houses and private houses alike reveal a quickened spirit of domestic pride seldom observed to that degree in any community of laboring people. All the new houses are two and one-half stories high, have broad piazzas, lawns and back yards. The double houses, which are in the majority, are divided vertically, giving each family the use of the several floors. No less than 15 styles of architecture are exemplified in the corporation houses, each showing due regard for taste and comfort. Young trees and flower beds are planted in measured distances on the low graded lawns; wide streets, always neat and clean, and lighted by electricity, wind in among the houses in serpentine fashion. All conditions combine to raise the town above the gloom and monotony which usually greet the eye in manufacturing towns.

As alluded to earlier in this article, all it costs the shop help (and few others are admitted) to rent these corporation houses is from $1.75 to $3.62 per week. Hardly less comfortably housed are some of the employes who live in Milford, the adjoining town. Probably 800 of the 2500 Draper employes live there. When they began to settle down in that township rents went up; to protect them against this advance, the Draper company bought a tract of land and erected a large number of brick tenement houses in which the rent is from $1.75 to $2.25 per week.

Though it is a town of less than 3000 inhabitants, Hopedale has all the modern public improvements. It has a complete sewer system which was built and is maintained by the Draper company; it has one of the finest systems of park roads in the State, water works, electric lights, public baths, parks, play grounds and public buildings. What the town is today it was made by the Draper interests. Both George Draper and his sons have shown the deepest interest in its development. The late George Draper gave the Town Hall, a magnificent granite structure; his sons, Eben S. Draper (the candidate for Lieutenant governor) and George A. Draper, gave the beautiful Memorial church. General and Mrs. W. F. Draper gave the beautiful marble fountain. The high school building was donated to the town by the companies. The company also gave land worth $5000 and about $5000 in cash to the Union church. J. B. Bancroft, Vice President of the Draper company, gave the town its library. One of the latest gifts is the Milford hospital, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Eben S. Draper unconditionally to the town of Milford. In construction and appointment this is as fine a hospital as any in the United States, the pride of the beneficiaries as well as the benefactors. This hospital stands immediately over the line from Hopedale, in a most beautiful locality with expansive prospects in all directions, and is easily reached from the population centres. With an innate love for the town, all the members of the Draper family have maintained their homes in Hopedale; they were born and brought up there, they laid there the foundation for their success, they reside there most of the year, beside their employes.

The people of Hopedale are prosperous because they have good wages, no industrial strife and ideal home relations at the lowest cost. They are laboring under most propitious conditions, which is conducive of contentment. To the Draper interests must be given credit for the growth and wholesome development of the town, and one of the men to whose hands the management of these large industrial affairs is entrusted is the Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts, Eben S. Draper.

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Color.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair, it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair, and prevents baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

time permit, but I shall confine the quotations to the sayings and precepts of the founder of the Christian religion.

This should be sufficient authority for every professing Christian.

Jesus sent forth his twelve disciples to preach and to heal the sick. He gave them a commandment, called by some Bible commentators his Great Commission. In Matthew 10th, this commandment is thus recorded:—

"Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not; but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

"And as ye go preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand.

"Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give.

"Provide neither gold, nor silver, nor brass in your purses, "Nor yet scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves; for the workman is worthy of his meat."

This commandment is a unit. It is not two commandments. There is in this language no warrant for any attemt to separate the commandment by declaring that the part relating to preaching was to be perpetuated, but the part relating to healing the sick was to be put aside, as having reference only to the time in which, and those to whom, it was given. Even if, for the sake of argument, the kind of preaching mentioned in the commandment had been practiced, and a present kingdom of heaven had been preached, we yet maintain that the part relating to healing sickness is as plain and imperative as that pertaining to preaching. We should thus maintain if we rested the question alone upon the words I have quoted; but we are not compelled to do this. After his resurrection and just before his ascension Jesus gave to the same disciples to whom he gave his first great commandment (excepting Judas Iscariot who had betrayed him) a final commandment.

This constitutes the two last verses of the Book of Matthew:—

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptising them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.

"Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

This language is broad and unqualified. It comprehends all the commandments previously given to his disciples, and this of course, includes his first great commandment. It is a plain and unmistakable direction or instruction. Let me plainly ask: When was it ever repealed, countermanded, qualified, or changed in any manner, by Jesus or any one else of those having biblical authority to teach or preach? Where is the record thereof? We declare, therefore, on the most explicit biblical authority, that the part of the great commandment relating to healing the sick was as imperative as that pertaining to preaching. Healing sickness is, then, an essential and indispensable part of Christ's gospel. No right exists for the effort to put aside Jesus' commandment to heal the sick and to heal according to his teachings and his methods of healing. The same divine power that healed in Jesus' time heals today, so far as it is understood and practiced.

There is but one Truth, and that Truth is eternal, unchangeable. The healing Christ never withdrew himself from the world. Jesus declared as the solemn conclusion of his final commandment: "And, lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world."

We might well rest our contention here. But I feel impelled to call your attention to an utterance of Jesus yet more remarkable than any to which I have referred. In the 14th of John we read:—

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto the Father."

Marvellous words! When we think of the mighty works he performed we are almost overwhelmed by the deep solemnity of such an utterance. Jesus destroyed all forms of sin; healed all manner of sickness; walked the waves; raised the dead; and did many other wonderful works. Yet in words startling in their plainness he declares that those who believe on him shall do, not only the great works that he had done, but greater. Can this be? Is it possible that the believers in the great Nazarine are destined to do the mighty works he did and even mightier? What shall be our answer? If he meant what he said and was a true prophet, our answer must be, Yes.

The Christian Scientist endeavors to awaken his patient spiritually and point out to him his true relationship to God.

This is prayer in the highest sense of the word. Not alone the prayer of sincere desire and supplication, but more, the realization of God's all-presence, all-power and all-Life.

This God is your Physician, as well as mine. We can go to him daily, hourly, momentarily, in sweet and silent prayer and if we pray aright, He will heal us of our diseases and remove from us our infirmities. We can know, in the very depths of our being, that He is our Physician, our Comforter, our Life, our Health, our All-in-all, and in the fullest and most absolute sense, a very present help in trouble; and that in Him indeed we live and move and have our being.

Clerk Lyons Gains Nearly 600 Clerk Maloney To the Front

It became evident today that some have large reserve votes in the scholarship contest. Possibly some not entered in the list have votes enough to place them with the leaders. Clerk Lyons of West Quincy who has not been heard from for a couple of weeks sends in today nearly 600 votes and evidently proposes to hold his position.

Drug Clerk Maloney sent in a handsome bunch also which again pushes him to the front. Gains were also made by Theodore Hermanson, Arthur Young, William T. Saing, Frank Melville and several others.

In the ladies' list the first five retain their positions, but Miss Mildred Rogers has passed Miss Pitts. Miss Merritt, Miss Mountain and others gain.

The closing date of the contest is announced today.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

The fourth week of "As Ye Sow" at the Majestic theatre begins Monday, Oct. 30th, with a record of crowded houses which has not been duplicated by any attraction in Boston for several seasons. Nearly every night the past weeks it has been necessary to put the orchestra under the stage in order to secure extra seating accomodations and all the standing room was filled as well. The out of town patronage is contributing to this success quite as much as the city patronage. Those living at a distance from Boston must bear in mind that there are matinees on Wednesday and Saturday during this engagement. The great interest that is felt in this play by a clergyman is shown by the editorials which have appeared in the New England papers. The good book says 'As Ye sow, so shall ye reap.' The critic has this in mind through the three acts of Brady and Grismer's magnificent production. The plot is wholesome—the scenes elaborate, and the mechanical effects the finest ever. The Majestic theatre is just the place to stage it. The play calls for many principals and each one plays his or her part like the finished actor. Your attention is riveted from start to finish. It is religious and patriotic, abounding in climaxes and full of go. We congratulate author Rev. John K. Snyder on his exemplification of muscular Christinnity in its noblest form.

EMPIRE THEATRE.

The popularity of Captain Robert Marshall's plays with the Boston public gives especial interest to the announcement of his comedy "The Unforseen" as the Empire Theatre attraction for next week. This play has had earlier productions in this city, but, at popular prices, it has never had such a cast as that arranged for its coming performances at the Empire. As the Rev. Walter Maxwell, the blind clergyman, Howell Hansel will be afforded a splended opportunity for effective work, and Mary Hall will without doubt quite realize the character of Margaret. Some very artistic stage settings will be shown in this production and the ladies of the cast will display some choice toilettes.

☞The display of beautiful electric and gas table lamps, by McKenney & Waterbury Co., No. 181 Franklin, corner Congress street, is one all should see. It includes most beautiful effect, to meet all decorations, especially the art shade effects. It is without doubt the largest display in the United States.

School Census

Shows an Increase of 227 Children Over Year Ago

Charles H. Johnson has just completed the school census of the city upon which he was at work during the month of September. He finds that there are in Quincy, between the ages of 5 and 15, 6,286 children, an increase of 227 over a year ago.

Singularly the ward with the largest number of children made no gain; West Quincy falls behind 17, while the other five wards gained 244. The Atlantic ward made the largest increase, with Ward One second, the other three wards being very close together.

Mr. Johnson's figures by wards and ages are as follows :

	Ward 1	Ward 2	Ward 3	Ward 4	Ward 5	Ward 6
Age 5	102	103	157	152	80	79
Age 6	95	95	140	130	72	83
Age 7	92	92	159	141	79	85
Age 8	80	87	141	167	81	89
Age 9	91	83	130	138	84	91
Age 10	64	76	130	125	86	93
Age 11	89	94	131	135	87	76
Age 12	83	81	123	144	71	74
Age 13	94	62	123	151	74	82
Age 14	125	80	186	200	55	94
The City,	915	853	1420	1483	769	846

The increase in one year was 227 and in eight years 1566, an average of nearly 200 per year. The totals by ages are compared below:

	Year 1897	Year 1904	Year 1905
Age 5,	507	626	673
Age 6,	524	641	615
Age 7,	522	659	648
Age 8,	536	610	645
Age 9,	510	543	617
Age 10,	479	583	574
Age 11,	407	559	612
Age 12,	390	586	576
Age 13,	389	548	586
Age 14,	456	704	740
	4720	6059	6286

The totals by wards are compared below showing the gains for one year and eight years.

	Year 1897	Year 1904	Year 1905
Ward One	550	862	915
Ward Two	586	811	853

33d Semi-annual Dividend.

The Quincy Co-operative Bank continues its successful career and has just declared its thirty-third semi-annual dividend of two and five-eighths per cent. The institution has assets of nearly $300,000 which represents the result of systematic, persevering saving combined with conservative and economical management. Many have had reason to rejoice in the extinguishment of their mortgages or the growth of their monthly investments.

Three Alarms.

There were three alarms for fires on Saturday afternoon and evening. The first was from Box 62 and sounded at 4.16. This was for a chimney fire in a house off Hancock street occupied by an Italian family. Damage slight. The second alarm was from Box 136 and sounded at 6.02. This was for a fire in an out building in the rear of Prout Bros.'s granite sheds on Water street. The third alarm was also from Box 136 at 10.15 and was a false alarm.

Sudden Death.

Morrill Williams, 301 Union street, Braintree, died on Saturday at five o'clock in his eighty-sixth year. He was a member of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer post 89, G. A. R. of Braintree, and up to the time of illness (the past year) has been an active member. Each year previous to 1905, he has attended the Old Folks' annual gathering in the South Congregational church.

He leaves a widow and a daughter, the latter Mrs. Wellington Record of Wollaston. Mr. Williams was the oldest member of the post.

A New Coddington

Graduate Of School Ashamed Of Old Buildings

Editors of the Ledger:

Being a resident of the Coddington school district and a graduate of the school I am much interested in anything pertaining to the welfare of the school. For several years I have been ashamed of the present buildings and felt that it was a disgrace to the city to have its poorest school buildings in Ward One, the centre of the city. It must necessarily give out-of-town visitors a poor opinion of the ideas of the city regarding education.

A new building as soon as possible, should be the cry of Ward One residents. The councilmen to be elected in December should be so pledged. The ward pays one-third of the taxes and should come in for at least sanitary, comfortable buildings for its school children.

As to location there may be some question. The present one does not seem to be the best suited and probably the lot could be sold for enough to buy a larger and better lot somewhere else. A school needs a good light sunny exposure which it is impossible to get on the present location, with houses so near.

With this in view I have made a study of various possible sites and think Woodward avenue has a very suitable location. Just around the corner from Coddington street are several lots of land which are high and gravelly, now used for pasturage purposes. This land comes at the end of Faxon and Saville avenues which leading from Hancock street makes it especially desirable and suitable.

This is a growing section with scholars coming from Greenleaf street and beyond, Whitney road, Russell park and Barker's woods which is being built over; is available for Houghs Neck, Germantown, the Brackett street section, Washington street and the centre. Those not so well accommodated would be those coming from below Elm street, but it is only a question of a few years before another school will be needed between the centre and the Point school, so these children should not be considered in the present Coddington building, as they probably have no farther to walk than do the children who come from Blacks creek and beyond.

The present school yard could be made into a street as a continuance to Spear street opening into Faxon avenue, leaving a good house lot where the old building now stands, or could be sold at a good price for house lots. To my mind the Woodward street lot appeals for several reasons; first, because it could be built upon without interfering with the present building or break in school attendance; secondly, it would give a larger school yard and consequently a better shaped and more suitable building; thirdly, because the school rooms could have a light sunny western exposure; fourthly, because the land at present would not be expensive; and lastly, owing to the number of streets leading to the proposed location would better accommodate an ever increasing number of pupils.

I think it would be wise for the residents of Ward One to consider this matter very carefully for the good of the present as well as the coming generations. Public expression of ideas might be of help and cause prompt action by the city.

Who else has an idea to advance?

A Coddington Graduate.

Academy Games

Interesting Series of Sport In Celebration Of Founder's Day

The annual founder's day sports of the Adams Academy Athletic Association were held this morning on the school grounds. They commenced at 9 o'clock, but owing to the unusual number of events it was after 1 o'clock before they were completed.

The weather was ideal for field sports but there were few spectators outside of the students.

The boys entered into the several events with spirit but no records were broken.

One of the most interesting events was the tug of war especially between the third and fourth classes. The fourth class had the best of the pull up to within ten seconds of the time limit.

It looked as though they were sure winners. The third then took a spurt and won by over two feet.

Another interesting event was the football game. One twenty minute half was played.

Both teams were evenly matched, and it looked like a tie game. Blake, however, forced the ball over for a touchdown, winning the game for the second team.

The result of the several sports was as follows:

70-yds. dash in four heats,—first heat won by Poland; second heat won by Keohane; third heat won by W. Nolan; fourth heat won by L. Moran; final heat won by L. Moran; time, 8 4-5 seconds.

Running broad jump,— won by Thomas; distance, 14 feet 9 1-2 inches.

220-yds. dash,—won by Thayer, time, 32 2-5 seconds.

Football kick,—won by McKenzie, distance 103 feet 5 inches.

Quarter-mile run for challenge cup now held by A. M. Hoxie,—won by Thayer; time, 1 minute, 10 3-5 seconds.

Obstacle race,—won by W. Nolan.

One mile race,—won by Thayer; time, 7 minutes, 21 2-5 seconds.

Sack race,—won by Arthur; time, 21 2-5 seconds.

Potato race,—won by McLaughlin; time, 46 3-5 seconds.

Three-legged race in four heats,—First heat won by Austin and Picard; time, 12 3-5 seconds. Second heat won by Blake and Thayer; time, 11 1-5 seconds. Third heat won by Coleman and Hamilton; time, 11 2-5 seconds. Fourth heat by Thomas and Meyers, time, 11 2-5 seconds. Final heat won by Coleman and Hamilton; time, 10 3-5 secouds.

Relay race for the class championship between teams of five from each class won by first class; time 3 minutes 30 3-5 seconds.

Bicycle race over the following course —From schoolhouse by the way of Adams street to Newport avenue, to Beale street, to Adams street and back to schoolhouse,—won by Blake; time, 13 minutes, 39 seconds.

Tug of war for class championship between teams from each of the four classes;—First pull, between first and second, won by first class; distance, 7 inches. Second pull, between third and fourth, won by third class; distance, 2 feet, 10 inches. Final pull, between first and third, won by first class; distance, 4 feet, 7 inches.

Football between two picked teams, one with Mr. Moran as captain and one with Mr. Kay. But one 20-minute half played,—won by second team, score 5 to 0. Touchdown made by Blake.

IDENTIFIED AS SUSAN GEARY

Young Actress the Victim In Suit Case Mystery

RINGS FURNISHED A CLUE

Mother Positively Affirms That They Belongd to Her Daughter, Who Mysteriously Disappeared Ten Days Previous to Finding of Torso at Winthrop --Man to Whom Girl Was Engaged Arrested at Pittsburg, Charged With Murder

Boston, Oct. 30.—The suit case mystery and the disappearance on Sept. 10 last of Miss Susan Geary of Cambridge, a member of "The Shepherd King" Theatrical company, where she was known as Ethel Durrell, has been partially cleared by identification of the victim's rings. The police are thoroughly satisfied that it was Miss Geary's body which was dismembered and placed in two suit cases and thrown into the harbor.

The identification was made by the mother of the girl, Mrs. Catherine Geary of Cambridge, while the confirmation of Miss Geary's disappearance from the "Shepherd King" company on Sept. 10 came from Morris Nathan, secretary to the manager of the company, and to whom Miss Geary was engaged. Nathan is in Pittsburg. Miss Geary parted from him on the best of terms on Sept. 10, the day after the company closed its engagement in this city, and he supposed that he should see her at the performance in Lowell on the following day. Instead, however, a message was received from "P. A. Smith, Boston," who signed himself as a physician, and who stated that Miss Durrell was suffering from bowel trouble and would be unable to work for several days.

Miss Geary dropped out of sight after that, and the police have been unable to discover any one who either saw or communicated with the girl. Ten days later, on Sept. 21, a suit case, in which was the torso of a young woman, was found floating in the harbor near the Winthrop Yacht club, about three miles below the city, and on Friday last another suit case containing the arms and legs of the victim was discovered in the water off the city docks. On the fingers of the right hand were three rings, which gave the police the first tangible clue in the case.

It remained, however, for a persevering newspaper man to outstrip the police, and find in Mrs. Geary a person who had a missing daughter. Mrs. Geary described the ring, communication with Nathan was established, and one of the most baffling cases of identification with which the Massachusetts authorities have had to deal for many years was overcome when Mrs. Geary and her two daughters described the rings and afterwards positively recognized them as belonging to Miss Geary.

Having established to their own satisfaction the identity of the victim, the police turned their attention to hunting down the person responsible for the dismemberment of the body, but very little progress in that direction has been made.

Mrs. Geary declares that when she last saw her daughter, which was on Sept. 9, she complained of pains in the side, and she thought she might have been operated upon for appendicitis, and the doctor, being unsuccessful in the operation, cut her up. Mrs. Geary also says that she knows that it was no illegal case.

As soon as Mrs. Geary's suspicions were confirmed by the description of the ring which was given her, a message was sent to Nathan at Pittsburg, asking him to come to Boston and bring the doctor's certificate. In an interview at Pittsburg, Nathan stated that when Miss Durrell did not join the company in Lowell an investigation was started in order to locate Dr. P. H. Smith, but no trace of him could be found. Since then, he said, he had been in daily communication with Mrs. Geary and urged her to notify the police of the disappearance of the daughter. Mrs. Geary objected, however, on account of the notoriety.

Beatrice Price, an actress, and for a long time a close friend of Miss Geary, says she last saw the chorus girl in Boston on the night the latter left "The Shepherd King" company. Miss Price was formerly connected with the company, but is now with another organization. Miss Price knew Miss Geary by her stage name. She says:

"I am positive that poor Ethel is the victim of that awful tragedy. I am sure, for I myself have worn the little chased gold ring which the swollen finger of the dismembered corpse bore, and I know the man whom I believe responsible for Ethel's illness, and I know that he knows the terrible truth and that knowledge is driving him mad.

"In Worcester I saw the young man Thursday, and he said to me, 'Oh, it is terrible! Why did not Ethel write, if she was ill? I can't sleep nights. I'm in an awful state. I don't know how it will end.' For a long time I have been keeping my secret, and now I am glad that it is known, and hope that I may be of some little aid in making matters more clear."

MURDER IS CHARGED

Pittsburg Police Hunt Up Nathan and Arrest Him

Pittsburg, Oct. 30.—After a long and searching examination at police headquarters, lasting until after 1 o'clock this morning, Morris Nathan, secretary to the manager of the "Shepherd King" company, was held on a charge of murdering his sweetheart, Miss Susan Geary, the victim of the suit case mystery, which has been puzzling the Boston authorities for more than a month.

Superintendent of Detectives McQualde and Superintendent of Police Wallace last night received instructions from Superintendent of Police Pierce of Boston to apprehend Nathan and find out what he knew about the disappearance of the girl.

Nathan, accompanied by Manager B. A. Reinold, State Director Samuel Forrest and Kimeo, a Japanese employed by Mr. Lorimer as a dresser, was arrested after a search of several hours, in the Hotel Henry and taken to police headquarters.

Nathan holds to his story that he has not seen the girl since he escorted her to a subway station on the night of Sept. 9. Acting Manager Reinold and State Manager Forrest were taken to detective headquarters early in the evening by Detective Cole from the Lincoln hotel. They denied any knowledge of Nathan's whereabouts and, after a long session with Chief McQualde, were allowed to go. Reinold and Forrest went to the Hotel Henry, "shadowed" by Cole. They went up stairs and Cole secured the number of the room and followed. He found Nathan, Kimeo, Reinold and Forrest coming out of a room on the fifth floor and placed Nathan under arrest.

Nathan was unable to stand when he learned that Cole was from detective headquarters. He had been crying for the past week and was so unnerved that Kimeo and Forrest had to almost carry him to police headquarters. McQuaide immediately called up Superintendent Pierce of Boston and talked with him over the long distance telephone a long time before returning to his office where detectives and Reinold, Forrest, Nathan and Kimeo were in session. Nathan was much overcome and it was with difficulty that he repeated his story of his connection with the Boston murder mystery.

Manager Reinold has the doctor's certificate which had been received at Lowell, Mass., explaining that Miss Geary was ill and would be unable to join the company for some days yet. An expert penman declared yesterday that the handwriting was that of a man who had endeavored to disguise it. The certificate was signed by "Dr. P. A. Smith." His address was not given, however, and the paper was part of a letterhead, the printed matter on the top having been torn off. "Dr. Smith" is believed to be a fictitious name. Nathan declared that he had known her for over a year and that she was a good, virtuous girl.

Miss Geary, or Ethel Durrell, as she was known on the stage, was a good-looking girl, but not of the strikingly handsome type. She had light brown hair and brown eyes. She was about 5 feet 4 inches tall and inclined to be plump. Her engagement to Nathan was known to the other members of the company.

THRONE IS SHAKY

End of Romanoff Dynasty May Be Near at Hand

ALL RUSSIA IS AROUSED

Government Appears Powerless to Break Political Strike--"Holy City" of the Orthodox Church Declares Independence

St. Petersburg, Oct. 30.—While Sunday passed quietly without bloodshed in the Russian capital, and while the city is outwardly calm, developments all indicate that a crisis is imminent.

Although the streets are filled with troops and reinforcements are now pouring in from Finland, the government seems utterly powerless to cope with the situation, and many calm observers seem seriously to believe that the present regime is tottering to its fall.

Differences have developed between Count Witte and General Trepoff, and while the precious moments pass the czar, surrounded by the imperial family, remains shut up at Peterhof, seemingly still hesitating as to what course to pursue.

Grave doubts are expressed as to whether even the imperial guard can now be relied upon. Discontent is rife. The 14th equipage of sailors of the guard, who have been shut up like prisoners in barracks on the Moska canal, demolished the windows and furniture, and a detachment consisting of four officers of the guard went to the lawyers' assembly and told the barristers that many officers and a large part of the troops were disgusted with the government and were ready to enlist in the movement for freedom.

Even the Cossack patrols in keeping idlers moving in the streets seemed careful not to use their whips and simply drove the crowds along before their advancing horses.

The people are extremely nervous and bordering on panic, and are easy victims of every sensational rumor. With the strike in the government postoffice, communication with the interior has practically ceased. Government troops were placed in the telegraph office, but only a few lines are working. Many lines, including the land lines to the continent and to Libau, where they connect with the cable, have been cut.

Such news as comes from the interior shows no improvement in the situation. The government everywhere seems powerless to break the great political strike.

The government is no longer in communication with the forces in the Far East except by cable by way of China.

The situation cannot well be exaggerated. With the present indecision of the czar the government has neither a head nor a policy to meet the crisis, and things seem to be drifting toward anarchy.

The revolutionists openly declare that the government has ceased to exist and that nothing remains to the czar except to abdicate. With a firm hand at the helm and a rational policy, however, all might be quickly changed.

Moscow Secedes From Russia

Moscow, Oct. 30.—The "holy city" of the orthodox church, the ancient capital of all Russia, the city of Moscow, has declared its independence, has ignored the czar and imperial authorities, and a provisional government has been set up. She has seceded from Russia and is cut off from all communication with the outside world.

Delegates from all political parties have met and organized for the future government of the city. The council will act independently of all other authority.

Two Men Scalded to Death

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 30.—Two men were terribly scalded by the blowing out of a plug in the boiler of the Canadian government steamer Tyrian while that vessel was steaming off Cape North. Such medical assistance as was to be had on board was given them. It took seven hours to complete temporary repairs to the boiler, at the end of which the steamer went full speed for this port. Both men died as the steamer was nearing land.

A Talk With Departed Spirits

Tokio, Oct. 30.—The great Shinto rites, in memory of the naval officers and men who were killed during the war, were held at Aoyama cemetery. Admiral Togo addressed the departed spirits, eulogizing their noble deeds in battle and their gallant co-operation which resulted in the sacrifice of their lives. He humbly asked repose for the spirits whose exemplary deeds in life had contributed to the victory over a powerful enemy.

Movement Against Corruption

New York, Oct. 30.—With the object of preventing corrupt practices at elections in this state, an association has been formed with headquarters in this city and at the next session of the legislature a bill governing the matter will be presented and an organized effort will be made to obtain its passage.

MISTAKEN VIEWS

Our People Do Not Appreciate Value of Army

EXCESSIVE DESERTIONS

Encouraged by Public Sentiment That Military Institution Is More or Less Unnecessary--Professional Soldiers Essential

Washington, Oct. 30.—Major General Ainsworth, the military secretary, in his annual report, devotes considerable attention to desertions from the army and says: "Many remedies have been proposed, but none seems to be worthy of very serious consideration."

Those who know how the canteen came to be abolished, he states, are not hopeful of its restoration; there is no likelihood of any such increase in the soldiers' pay as will offset the greater inducements offered in civil pursuits; the comforts and even luxuries that are furnished to enlisted men in our service are even now criticised by some as being not only extravagant but injurious in their effect on men whose real business it is to march and fight, encumbered with few comforts and no luxuries, and the discipline and instruction to which the soldier is now subjected are not likely to be relaxed in future.

"Our people," the report says, "have little real interest in the army in time of peace, and from the earliest days of the republic have been accustomed to look upon it as a more or less unnecessary institution that may be pared down with safety whenever a demand for retrenchment of public expenses arises.

"Enlistment in the army in time of peace is not uncommonly regarded as evidence of worthlessness on the part of the recruit, and desertion in such a time is generally looked upon as nothing more culpable than the breach of a civil contract for service. The deserter suffers little or no loss of caste by his offense, and is seldom without friends and sympathizers to shield him from arrest and to intercede in his behalf in the comparatively rare event of his falling into the hands of the military authorities.

"It is safe to predict that desertion from the army will continue to be excessive until there shall have been a radical change of public sentiment toward the army and until the deserter shall come to be regarded as the criminal that he is, to be ostracized and hunted down as relentlessly as any other transgressor of the laws. There is no reason to look for such a change of sentiment in the near future, and there are some who believe that the change will never come until our people shall have learned through national disaster and humiliation that the effective maintenance of an army of professional soldiers is absolutely essential to the preservation of the national honor and life, and that the trained and disciplined troops of a modern enemy cannot be withstood by hastily organized armies of untrained or half-trained civilians."

General Ainsworth says the actual strength of the entire military establishment June 30 last was 3934 officers and 63,022 enlisted men.

The losses in the regular army during the fiscal year were: Officers killed in action or died of wounds, disease, etc., 24; resigned or discharged, 20; dismissed, 13; deserted, 3; retired, 59; total, 119.

Enlisted men killed in action or died of wounds, disease, etc., 377; discharged upon expiration of term of service, 22,254; discharged for disability, by sentence of court martial and by order, 9460; deserted, 6533; retired, 189; total, 38,813.

Flood Cost Three Lives

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Three lives were lost, property valued at $150,000 was destroyed and scores of families were made homeless on account of the breaking of a water main here. Water from the burst water pipe flooded several blocks. Mrs. Lottie Hamlin, an invalid, 70 years of age, died of shock.

Shy on Panama Canal Money

Washington, Oct. 30.—The Panama canal appropriation of $10,000,000 is so far exhausted that payments on vouchers are being deferred. Treasury officials say that the balance at present is $1,000,000, and that an urgent deficiency appropriation will be needed from congress before adjournment for the holidays. The $1,000,000 on hand is needed to pay salaries and wages till congress provides more money.

Locomotive Boiler Exploded

ATE LOCUST BARK

Theory of Doctors In the Case of Poisoned Orphans

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 30.—Two more girls of the St. Joseph's orphan asylum were taken ill Sunday from the effects of the mysterious poisoning which caused the death of three children and the illness of 17 others on Friday. Yesterday's victims were taken with violent convulsions. All the sick children at the orphanage are now resting comfortably, with no apparent danger of more serious illness.

While not positive that their theory is correct, several physicians agreed that the children's illness was due to eating the bark and leaves of locust trees in the asylum yard. A definite solution of the mystery, however, awaits the completion of the analysis now in progress at the state laboratory on the digestive organs of the three children who died.

Compulsory Extermination of Moths

Boston, Oct. 30.—Superintendent Kirkland of the state work for suppressing the gypsy and browntail moths has taken decisive action under the law by ordering the cities of Medford and Salem to appropriate and expend each the sum of $5000 in work against the moths, beginning Nov. 1 and continuing through the rest of the year. This action was taken after the two cities had failed, in the words of the official communication, "to expend a sufficient amount for the abatement of the moth pests."

Young Roosevelt "Makes Good"

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 30.—Harvard men are praising the work of Teddy Roosevelt in the freshman-Worcester game Saturday. Roosevelt played end and gave a splendid account of himself. Although he is the lightest man on the team, weighing little more than 130, the president's son is chock full of sand and the hardest player on the team. He is first choice for the position of end on the 1909 team. Roosevelt was badly bruised and used up in the game Saturday, but beyond this fact he suffered no real injury.

Fears For Missing Schooner

Boston, Oct. 30.—Many anxious inquiries are being made about the three-masted schooner Sadie C. Sumner, now 33 days out from Apalachicola, Fla., with a cargo of lumber for this port. She left the former city Sept. 26 and was spoken Oct. 11 off Alligator reef, but there has been no tidings of her since. It is possible that she was overtaken by the fearful storm which swept the Atlantic between Oct. 10 and 13, inclusive.

Politics and Religion Cut Out

Boston, Oct. 30.—After a secret investigation carried on by the board of police a general order was issued giving strict orders that no member of the police department shall engage in a political or religious argument, whether on duty or not, or take part in politics at all. It is claimed that a number of men have been at work on their beats soliciting votes for a certain candidate for mayor.

New Haven, Oct. 30.—After one production of Bernard Shaw's new play, "Mrs. Warren's Profession," at the Hyperion theatre, Mayor Studley has ordered the license revoked and Anthony Comstock has stated that all of the members of the theatrical troupe should be arrested. The local dramatic critics have branded the play as "shockingly indecent" and "nasty."

Found Drowned In Creek

Rutland, Vt., Oct. 30.—The body of Mrs. William C. Smith, who disappeared from her home last Friday, was found yesterday afternoon in Otter creek. It is supposed that she committed sulcide, although no reason for such an act is known. Mrs. Smith was 26 years old. Previous to her marriage she taught in a school at New Haven.

A Remarkable Old Lady

Wife Suspects Foul Play

South Hampton, N. H., Oct. 30.—The body of John W. Orr, constable and farmer, was found on the bank of the Upper Powow river near his home here. Close to Serious Accident

IN AMERICAN LEGATION

Americans In St Petersburg Will Be Safe From Harm

Washington, Oct. 30.—The condition of affairs in Russia formed the basis of a dispatch received at the state department from Spencer Eddy, the American charge at St. Petersburg, who said the situation was very alarming. The dispatch was the subject of a long conference between Secretary Root, who returned to the city from New York last evening, and First Assistant Secretary Bacon, who has been acting as the head of the state department during Root's absence.

Mr. Eddy asked the department for instructions to meet any eventualities which might arise out of the condition of affairs as they now exist in St. Petersburg, and late last night these were cabled to him. One feature of these covers the question of protection to Americans residing in St. Petersburg in case of a general uprising which might endanger their lives. In the event of an outbreak they will be accorded the protection of the American embassy until further arrangements can be made for their accommodation, if such be found necessary.

It is not believed by the state department officials that there is any great number of Americans now in St. Petersburg, as most of the tourists have left the country in anticipation of the winter season. Such as may be in the interior, it is thought, are not in any danger.

Over Six Millions In Graft

Philadelphia, Oct. 30.—The report of the board of investigating engineers appointed by Mayor Weaver to examine the filtration system of the city and the northeast and southeast boulevards, now under construction, is made public. It is signed by Cassius E. Gillette of the United States engineer corps, who investigated the Savannah harbor frauds, and John D. MacLennon of Washington The report shows that up to date the city has lost through excessive cost, collusive bids, illegal advertising and in other ways, the sum of $6,330,000.

Money Hidden In Baby Carriage

Pittsburg, Oct. 30.—The persistent belief of detectives that the wife of Edward G. Cunliffe, the Adams Express robber, had in her possession $5000 of the $101,000 stolen by her husband on Oct. 9, led to a search of the Cunliffe home in this city, and in the lining of a baby carriage was found a package containing $5000. The authorities say there now remains about $6000 which has not been accounted for. Cunliffe, who has pleaded guilty to two charges of larceny, will be sentenced next Saturday.

Heavy Duty on Art Treasures

Boston, Oct. 30.—Henry W. Swift, personal counsel for Mrs. John L. Gardner, is authority for the statement that Mrs. Gardner has at last been compelled to abandon her idea of getting works of art into the country free because of the establishment of her museum in the Back Bay, to which a limited number of people were admitted each year, and has settled with the treasury department the last claim it held upon her, a check for between $194,000 and $195,000 being required.

A Record-Breaking Trip

Flagship West Virginia, off Savannah, Ga., Oct. 30.—A strong breeze from the northeast has kicked up a heavy sea, but notwithstanding these unfavorable circumstances the squadron maintained an average speed of 20 knots from Jupiter light to the present point, thus breaking all records of any squadron in our navy. President Roosevelt spent most of Sunday on the forward bridge with Admiral Brownson.

King Lays Great Conerstone

Genoa, Oct. 30.—King Victor Emmanuel laid the cornerstone of the new harbor works Sunday. As the king, by the aid of an electrical device, lowered the stone, which weighed 11 tons, into the sea, there was a scene of great enthusiasm. In the harbor were 43 warships, including the United States cruiser Minneapolis, as well as over 3000 other craft. The new works will cost $15,000,000.

Spanish Cruiser Lost

Did Business In Year 1904 Amounting to $2,625,868

Chief Pidgin of the Massachusetts Census bureau gave out a new and interesting summary this week. The law required statistics of trade to be supplied by individuals, firms, and corporations engaged in mercantile business, in connection with the State census of 1905, and the aggregate of this business in the State was $1,384,850,431; Boston alone had nearly three-fourths of this as will be seen in the summary below.

The other 32 cities of the State had $309,021,466, while 321 towns did a store business of but $107,857,231.

The value of goods sold in each of the Massachusetts cities were:

Beverly	$2,101,091
Boston	967,980,734
Brockton	14,086,173
Cambridge	16,353,308
Chelsea	4,311,946
Chicopee	2,949,541
Everett	1,745,655
Fall River	22,842.203
Fitchburg	9,205,418
Gloucester	10,044,039
Haverhill	10,369,209
Holyoke	11,529,259
Lawrence	15,283,428
Lowell	21,017,160
Lynn	17,984,053
Malden	4,009,076
Marlboro	2,327,440
Medford	1,555,310
Melrose	1,482,230
New Bedford	16,209,764
Newburyport	3,771,114
Newton	2,484,053
North Adams	5,774,928
Northampton	3,718,693
Pittsfield	7,160,246
Quincy	2,625,838
Salem	8,546,141
Somerville	6,702,944
Springfield	31,329,128
Taunton	6,155,884
Waltham	4,332,616
Woburn	1,920,218
Worcester	39,092,230
Total	$1,277,001,200

The sales per capita for Boston were $1,631; for 32 other cities, $217; and for 321 town, $110. The per capita for the State was $462.

Reduced to percentages, the trade of Boston represented 69.90 per cent; that of the 32 other cities, 22.31 per cent. and of the 321 towns, 7.79 per cent.

The sales per capita in Quincy were, but a little over $93 which is lower than the average for the towns.

These cities which have a smaller population than Quincy did a larger mercantile business, viz: Chicopee, Gloucester, Newburyport, North Adams, Northampton, Pittsfield and Waltham.

At the same time Quincy business was ahead of Newton and Everett which lead in population.

When it comes to manufacturing, Quincy will make a better showing with its granite, its warships, tubular rivets, etc.

Quincy would make a better showing in mercantile business if residents of the city traded more in Quincy.

WASHING WITHOUT WATER

Is Like Trying to Get Rid of Dandruff Without Herpicide.

Did you ever see any one trying to wash themselves without soap or water?

If you did what would you say of him?

It is every bit as foolish to try to get rid of Dandruff and to prevent Baldness by feeding the germs which cause it, with Canthrarides, Vaseline, Glycerine and similar substances which form the principal ingredients of most so-called Hair Vigors.

Newbro's Herpicide is successful because it attacks and kills the parasitic germ which feeds on the hair roots.

It is the original and only genuine scalp germicide manufactured.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Quincys Defeat Lawrence Fore Rivers Win At Methuen

Quincy won from Lawrence, at Lawrence, on Saturday by a score of of three goals to one. Quincy did not have a full team and several substitutes were put in and Lawrence protests the game on that account.

At Lawrence on Saturday the Methuens were shut out by the Fore River team, the leaders in the Merrimac Valley league, who won 3 to 0. The playing of McGregor, McAllister and Lewis of the visiting team was especially conspicuous, while Briggs, the left back of the Methuens did good work. The goals were made by McEwen, McGregor and Lewis. The referee was William Connors of Andover. The linesmen were Campbell for Fore River and Hart for Methuen. Forty minute periods were played.

Other games in the league resulted as follows: Lynn, 3; Merrimac 10. Boston Rovers, 3; Andovers 3.

The game at Ward Three play ground between the Boston Juniors and Quincy Juniors was won by the Quincy boys, the score being three goals to two. The boys on both teams put up a grand game and it was by superior team play that the Quincys won.

The Quincy Juniors included Bouchard as goal, McDonnell as R. B., Main as L.B., McKenzie as R.H., Murr as C. H., Albonetti as L.H., John Raleigh as R.O. and captain, Kane as R.I., Dackers as C.F., Sheriff as L.I., Mitchell as L.O. The referee was Tom Robertson.

Adams Shut Out.

Thayer Academy won from Adams Academy on Satuday at Merrymount park in a close game. All the scoring was done in the first half when two touchdowns were made, from one of which a goal was kicked, the score being 11 to 0 in favor of Thayer.

It Would Take Time.

Lady—May I photograph your farm servant at work?

Farmer—With pleasure, miss, if you can spare the time.

Lady—Oh, it won't take half a second!

Farmer—But you may have to wait two or three hours to catch him working.

Such Is Love.

Maiden Aunt—Good gracious, Gladys! I shouldn't think anybody would ever ask for a hand that couldn't write better than you do.

Gladys—Well, you see, since I gave it away I've lost all control over it.

BRAINTREE.

Miss Eva Slack has accepted a position in Quincy and will make her home with her sister, Mrs. John Piercy of Soper House lane.

The fine colonial house on Commercial street, long known as the White estate, is looking most attractive in its new dress, yellowish cream with white trimmings. Within the fresh paper, dainty in color, and the enamel paint present a fine interior divided into spacious and lofty rooms. Walter Thompson who has restored the house will remove his family from Weymouth and expects soon to be settled in his new domicile. Braintree is glad to welcome a new citizen.

Mrs. Carter, wife of the well known manufacturer of Highlandville and Miss Wray, an English teacher, were the guests last week of F. A. Galvin, the popular principal of the Noah Torrey school.

The family of the late Dr. Noah Torrey have had the glowing yet well merited eulogy prepared by Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern and delived by him at the dedication of the Noah Torrey school daintily prepared as souvenirs of the occasion. These souvenirs will be sacredly cherished by all fortunate in obtaining them.

The clearing away of the fallen leaves from the street and the burning of the same has been accomplished by the men employed under the direction of our selectmen. The air has been redolent of smoke and burning leaves. It is a neccessary precaution preventing the clogging of street gutters and the filling up of water ways. Should all this be neglected much damage to the highway would be occasioned when the autumn rains and winter snows deluge the ways and must find free and untrammelled outlets or, wreck ruin and desolation in their path.

More Arrests.

Two more boys were summoned into court by Inspector Bradley this morning for breaking into the store of Richard J. Barry at Atlanlic. These were Daniel Golden and Louis Gerstel, who with James Gillan were charged with the break last June.

The three boys arrested on Saturday for the break at the same store Oct. 25 were given a hearing. There was no evidence to connect Southerberg and Bevis with the break and they were discharged.

The court found probable cause to believe Gillan guilty, and he was held for the grand jury.

The cases of the boys arrested for the June break will be heard on Tuesday.

Ward Three Meeting.

The Republican committee of Ward 3 have called a meeting of the Republicans of that ward for tomorrow evening at Malnati hall at 8 o'clock, to choose candidates for the Council and one Councilmen at large to be voted for at the caucus Nov. 14, and to endorse the candidacy of the present Mayor, James Thompson. Everybody is invited. Similar meetings have been held in this ward for several years and have served to unite the different factions and promote harmony in the party.

Handsome Presents.

Faxon Billings, the popular driver of the combination wagon at Atlantic, who recently became a benedict, was surprised on Saturday evening at his home at 61 Glover avenue by about forty members of the Quincy fire department, who were accompanied by representatives of the Boston department and a few Atlantic friends. They came well laden, for they presented Mr. Billings a beautiful quartered oak Morris chair, a parlor table and a parlor lamp. Refreshments were served, and a good time enjoyed until nearly midnight.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Conductor Johnson Makes a Big Gain

Evidently Conductor Johnson does not intend to fool longer with his rivals in the Scholarship contest. Today he makes a gain of 463 votes and jumps over Messrs Cash and Maloney and leaves them away behind. Gains were also made by Thomas McDonnell, Harold Newcomb, J. C. McGowan and others.

Miss Bates gains in the ladies' list but is still number three. Miss Peterson holds first place and Miss Mahoney second positon. Miss May Gunn, Miss McIntosh and others gain today.

The coupon will appear in only 22 more issues of the Daily Ledger, the last date being Nov. 25.

A correspondent makes this contribution on "The Scholarship:"

To cast adrift on the sea of life,
With a chart or a compass scorned,
To float away on the fairest day,
Though fully by wisdom warned;

Foretels disaster or luckless fate,
While vessels sail swiftly by,
With a tow line offered if not too late,
To aid in the trailer's ply.

With knowledge, master and purpose right,
And helm in the firmest grip,
There are pearls of promise redeemed at sight
If embarked in a scholarship.

—A. E. Olean.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

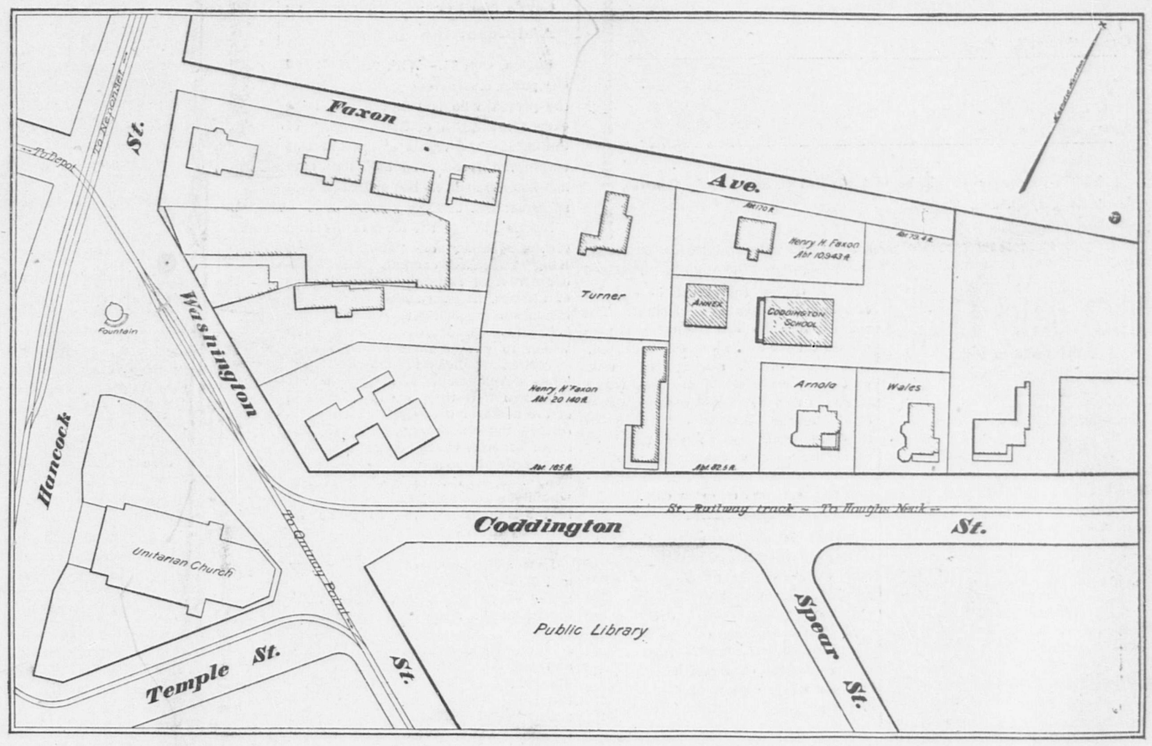
Coddington School Lot Too Confined and Too Small.



There is danger now that the condition of the Coddington school accommodations become known, that efforts will be made to accomplish too much all at once. However, whether a new building is erected or not, it seems desirable to purchase now the Faxon lot on Faxon avenue for an addition to the schoolyard. If the use of the present building is to be continued even for a few years, the lot should certainly be taken. If the present school lot is to be abandoned soon, a greater part of it will need the Faxon avenue frontage to make it marketable.

With the additional frontage of 170 feet, five or more good houselots could be sold on Faxon avenue at upwards of $1,000 each, or the old buildings themselves would be salable at a good price, and the Coddington street front could be sold for a house-lot.

The Daily Ledger maintains that there is no better location for the new Coddington schoolhouse than the present site enlarged both on Faxon avenue and Coddington street. It is opposite the Thomas Crane Public Library and the group of public buildings in this vicinity is pleasing. There is the old First church, the new Young Men's Christian Association, and in a few years a post office building will be erected on the government lot already purchased.

The new Coddington building would be erected nearer Coddington street, partly on the present lot but largely on the Faxon lot, which the city could make as large or as small as it wishes. This would give the southern exposure for all the schoolrooms which is desired.

The present buildings should then be removed and the location together with the Faxon avenue lot could be used as the playground. The front of the new schoolhouse would then be a lawn, and could be made attractive with flowers.

The accompanying plan shows how the present Coddington schoolhouse built in 1855 is huddled in. There is private land on each side, only fifteen feet distant from the building. There appears to be quite a lot in the rear of the school but it is not level and is used largely as a dump. The annex is so close to the fence that there is no passage around it.

Weymouth Man Held for Bigamy

Theodore T. Eustace of Weymouth was arraigned before Judge Avery this morning upon a warrant charging him with bigamy. The complaint alleges that on March 1, 1897, he married May L. Muzzy at Dalton, and on April 3, 1901, he married Nellie Lively at Weymouth, not having been legally separated from his first wife.

His first wife, who made the complaint, says that they lived together after marriage for one year, when she left him on account of his abusive treatment. She has not heard much from him since that time, until lately, when rumors reached her that he had taken another wife and was living in Weymouth.

Some days ago she wrote to the Weymouth police, making inquiries about her husband. Inspector Butler, who made an investigation was not long in locating Eustace, who had been living in Weymouth for five years, being employed in one of the shoe shops and that he was living with a woman whom he had married shortly after he came to Weymouth.

Monday night Mrs. Eustace number one went to Weymouth and swore out a warrant against Eustace, who was arrested at his home. Eustace has a boy 7 years old by his first wife.

He was arraigned in the Quincy court and held in $1000 for the grand jury.

Make It 25 This Year

At 24 annual elections Quincy has voted emphatically against the licensing of the sale of intoxicating liquors, and last year the majority was much larger than ever. The No vote was 2,938, the largest ever cast, and the Yes vote was 1094, the smallest for nine years. The total vote of the city is rapidly increasing and the No majority keeps pace.

Quincy's enviable record since the local-option law went into effect follows :

Last year nine of the eleven precincts of the city gave an increased majority against license, the exceptions being precinct two of Ward Two, and Ward Five. The Yes vote was larger only in the two precincts of Ward Two, and in precinct two of Ward Three, and in precinct one of Ward Four, a total increase however of only 23, which was more than offset in other precincts.

All Saints Day.

All Saints day will be observed at Christ church tomorrow by a celebration of the holy communion at 10 A. M. At this service, Rev. William E. Gardner will make an address appropriate to the day. All persons who wish to commemorate the lives of the departed are cordially invited to attend and join in this service.

Entertainment Course.

The Young Men's Christian Association entertainment course will open Wednesday night with Albert Armstrong's great picture play, "Sky Pilot."

The other attractions are: Nov. 29,—"The Pierces," Society Entertainers. Dec. 20,—John Seamen Garnes, baritone and monologuist, with piano soloist. Jan. 17,—University Male Quartette and reader. Feb. 21,—Edward P. Elliott in modern comedy.

Mr. Armstrong stands for that which is best in lyceum courses. His aim is to present a program in which there is a happy combination of instruction and entertainment. The picture play is a pictorial presentation of a story. The pictures following one another in rapid succession, so that it "seems as though it were acted out before the eyes." Wherever Mr. Armstrong has been he has received many flattering comments from press, church, club and association.

Conspiracy Case Heard

In Supreme court at Montpelier, Vermont, Oct. 26, says the Barre Times, the case of State vs. James Duncan et als, known as the Hardwick conspiracy case, was started and the arguments were not completed so that the case went over until Friday.

The case has never been tried in lower court but was carried at once to the Supreme court on a plea in abatement and on a demurrer to the indictment. State's Attorney Thompson of Caledonia county argued for the state and Taylor & Dutton for the respondents. James Duncan is secretary of the national granite cutter's union with offices at Quincy, Mass.

The State alleges conspiracy on the part of eleven men to unlawfully interfere with the business of certain granite manufacturers. It is alleged that Duncan and the others used threats in their efforts to have the firms employ union men. When the case was brought before the grand jury the men named refused to testify on the ground that they would be incriminating themselves. State's Attorney Thompson entered a demurrer and the demurrer was sustained.

The men named are Messrs. Duncan, McCormick, Stevenson, Kelley, Humphrey, Story, Hendry, McNaughton, Briggs, Merrill and Hunneford. Of these Duncan is the only one who has not appeared in the case in person.

Wollaston School.

The alterations which have been going on at the Wollaston schoolhouse are now practically completed and the eighth grade pupils are rejoicing over their new and pleasant quarters into which they moved on Monday. The old eighth grade room is now occupied by Miss Bates, who has pupils taken from the first three grades, thus relieving the over crowded condition of those rooms. Among other improvements is an office appropriately fitted up for the use of the principal.

The St. Marys and St. Marys, Jr., open their fourth basket ball season Saturday evening at St. Mary's hall West Quincy with games with teams from Battery H.

GOOD AFTERNOON.

If the President succeeds in keeping Cabinet news from leaking, the Senate will try to learn how it is done and apply the method to its executive sessions.

Mr. Rockefeller has been elected a member by the American Humorists Association. This was just to show that the association could be humorous when it tried.

The old deported, semi-savage queen of Madagascar has petitioned the French Government for a larger allowance, declaring that she has nothing to wear. Girls will be girls.

Nobody seems to enthuse any over an express trolley line; that is one for carrying packages and freight. The route where its establishment is proposed, between Quincy and Brockton, is a single track railway, and that part between City Square and Water street is now overtaxed with passenger cars. If the freight cars were to stop in front of any store, en route for even a couple of minutes the delay would cause great dissatisfaction to passengers on other cars.

A bill is coming up at the next session of the Massachusetts Legislature which vitally affects this community and all others in the State. The proposed "merger bill" reverses the transportation policy of the Commonwealth by allowing steam railroads to acquire control of street railways. It is by no means certain that the passage of the proposed bill will retard the needed development of our electric railways in this State, but before it is finally passed upon, that possibility should by all means receive most careful consideration in every community likely to be affected.

As the date of the Municipal election approaches it becomes apparent that Mayor Thompson will be his own successor. Much depends on the support given him this evening in his own ward, when a reception will be given. If there is unanimity and enthusiasm success seems assured.

It cannot be expected that a Mayor will please everybody. Certainly not in the appointment of department officials. Some of the appointments of Mayor Thompson were regarded as weak when made, but, after a trial of several months, little is heard of incompetency. Undoubtedly improvements could be made, but have the taxpayers any assurance that there would be an improvement with a new Mayor?

Never before has Quincy had so large a representation of Quincy born men in city offices as this year. In the past there has been considerable complaint because "new comers" have been selected for office, and in some cases because we have gone outside for commissioners of public works.

As much progress has not been made in securing additional accommodations at the High school as the majority demand, but Mayor Thompson is not wholly responsible for this. Some will say not at all. Undoubtedly he could have pushed it along, but the ways of the City Council are almost unfathomable, and it is for them to legislate.

Mayor Thompson's experience in city affairs has been long and conscientious. He has never assumed to be a "boss" and it is not his policy to rule or ruin. He always acts for the good of the city as he sees it, and none of his acts are open to much criticism. Quincy will undoubtedly profit by giving him a reelection.

TANGIBLE FACTS

Police Sure of Footing In Suit Case Investigation

POINTERS FROM NATHAN

Name of Doctor Who Performed Operation Which Caused Miss Geary's Death Is Known--The Girl's Mother and Sister Give Additional Information

Boston, Oct. 31.—With the state and city police making every effort to locate the person who is believed to have caused the death of Susan Geary of Cambridge, the victim of the suit case tragedy, it is believed that the case has entered upon its last stage and that an arrest will be made soon.

Morris Nathan, the lover of the dead girl, a member of "The Shepherd King" Theatrical company, who is under arrest at Pittsburg on the charge of murder, has furnished valuable information regarding the case, and the police now have tangible facts upon which to pursue their investigation.

While the police refuse to discuss the latest developments of the mystery, it is known that they are in possession of the name of the physician who performed the operation that caused the death of Miss Geary, or Ethel Durell, as she was known by the members of "The Shepherd King" company, to which she belonged, and it is believed that this physician will soon be located by the officers.

Last night Mrs. Catherine Geary and Miss Evelyn Geary, mother and sister of the dead girl, were summoned to the office of Superintendent of Police Pierce for an extended conference. Earlier in the day Mrs. Geary and her daughter had been closely questioned by Cambridge police detectives and it was upon the representations of the police of Cambridge that Pierce summoned the two women to appear before him. While nothing was given out at police headquarters regarding the nature of last night's conference, it was learned from other sources that Mrs. Geary and her daughter, under rigid questioning, had given the authorities additional information regarding the circumstances immediately preceding Susan Geary's disappearance.

Acting under information elicited from Morris Nathan by the Pittsburg police, Boston detectives searched the Tremont street office of a woman physician who has advertised extensively in the newspapers. The proprietress of the establishment was not present and one of her assistants whom the police are particularly desirous of locating was also absent. The records and accounts were carefully scrutinized by the officers, but it is understood that nothing of an incriminating nature was found.

Although Nathan's attorney in Pittsburg is reported to have declared emphatically that his youthful client would resist all attempt at extradition, the prisoner's brother states that he is sure Nathan will return to Massachusetts to clear himself of the grave charge that is hanging over him.

It is generally believed here that Nathan was not directly implicated in the operation that resulted in Miss Geary's death, but it is thought that he is in possession of facts that would lead to the conviction of the guilty parties.

Two officers, one representing the Boston police department, and one detailed by the Massachusetts district police, are in Pittsburg to bring Nathan back to this city.

IMPLICATES A WOMAN

Nathan Says He Was Not Aware of Miss Geary's Condition

Pittsburg, Oct. 31.—It is the firm conviction of everyone who is in touch with the case that, while a charge of murder has been lodged against Morris Nathan, secretary to the manager of "The Shepherd King" company, in connection with the suit case mystery, he is not the principal in the affair and is held because it is believed he can throw more light on the crime than any one else.

That the police have a complete story from Nathan, telling all he knows and suspects, is not denied, but the authorities refuse to disclose the information obtained until after the arrival of the Boston officers. The police say that the publication sooner of Nathan's story might interfere with the purposes of the Boston authorities.

It is known that Nathan admitted that he was intimate with Miss Geary and in his statement he implicated a woman who, he says, conducted a maternity home in Tremont street, Boston. Nathan stated to the police officials that he was not aware of the girl's condition. He declares that they were to have been married. He said he overheard a conversation between Miss Geary and two girls in which one of the girls advised Miss Geary to go to the Tremont street house for treatment. Nathan said he was not responsible for Miss Geary's going to the hospital.

Nathan is in a very bad condition physically. For weeks he has been suffering mental anguish. He is on the verge of collapse and, as he has done his part toward clearing up the mystery, is being shown every consideration.

STABBED IN ABDOMEN

Playful Act of Cotton Picker Results In His Death

Biddeford, Me., Oct. 31.—A stabbing affray in the Pepperell mills developed into a murder when the victim, Anastasis Costa, aged about 30, died at the hospital. Anastasious Stefanu, aged 35, who was captured six miles outside the city, will be charged with the crime. Coroner Dennett will also hold an inquest.

The assault was committed while the two men, with eight other men, were picking cotton. According to their fellow-workmen, Costa, in passing, hit Stefanu on the head with a basket, purely in fun, and the latter, who was seated, became greatly angered. They allege that he leaped to his feet, pulled out a knife, and before anyone realized what he was doing, had stabbed Costa. Costa was taken to a hospital with an abdominal wound four inches in length.

During the confusion Stefanu ran from the mill and, as the police were not notified for an hour, he obtained a good start, but within three hours he was arrested six miles outside the city on the road leading to Alfred and Sanford. He made no attempt to resist the officers, although he still carried the knife alleged to have been used. A search of his clothing also revealed $110 in new bills, evidently his savings. He was locked up.

Reprieved at Eleventh Hour

Hartford, Oct. 31.—As the result of a conference between Governor Roberts, Nicholas De Lodygensky, the Russian consul general of New York, and two Russian clergymen, Governor Roberts has granted a reprieve until Jan. 9, 1906, to Frank Sherrie, who was sentenced to be hanged at the state prison this morning for the murder of Mrs. Ludwika Kulas at Somersville. Sherrie's case will be argued before the board of pardons. The reprieve was not granted, it is understood, on the basis of new evidence, but simply as a matter of courtesy toward the Russian officials.

Unseemly Actions in Prison

Bellows Falls, Vt., Oct. 31.—At a sitting of the legislature probing the affairs of the state prison Miss Gertrude Kimball, former assistant matron of the prison, told of improper conduct with a former guard extending over a period of about one year. She said she had made a confidant of Mrs. Mary Rogers, and alleged that the convicted murderess had exercised a wicked influence over her. Miss Kimball was 16 years of age at the time.

Manslaughter Is Charged

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 31.—The trial of N. P. Smith, car starter, and E. H. Leete, motorman, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Grace Nelson of Springfield in a trolley wreck at Charlton, has begun in the superior criminal court. Evidence for the government was put in that the curve is a sharp one, that the morning was foggy, and that the car was going very fast.

Hunter Accidentally Killed

Needham, Mass., Oct. 31.—Joseph M. Nickerson of this town, aged 60, was accidentally killed while hunting. Nickerson was alone at the time of the accident, but it is believed that, in crawling through a barbed wire fence, one of the barrels of his gun was discharged. The top of the man's head was blown off.

Girl Accidentally Poisoned

Fort Fairfield, Me., Oct. 31.— Coroner Dinsmore of this town has gone to Sprague's Mills to hold an autopsy upon the body of Pearl Barnes, 14 years old, who died, it is believed, from accidental poisoning. The girl was feeling ill and is said to have taken medicine from the wrong bottle.

Another Subway Accident

Boston, Oct. 31.—The third accident in the subway within three days occurred in the Boylston street section last evening. An inward bound trolley car struck a stalled car and derailed it, delaying traffic an hour during the rush period. No one was injured.

Liberal-Minded Bay Staters

Boston, Oct. 31.—The Massachusetts council of the Federation of Churches, at a meeting held here, expressed its lack of sympathy with the action of the executive committee of the inter-church conference, which is to be held in New York, in excluding Unitarians and Universalists from the proposed congress. The word "liberal" in the secretary's report, as applied to certain churches, was eliminated, and the words "Unitarian" and "Universalist" were substituted.

Costs Something For Elections

New York, Oct. 31.—New York city will pay $100,000 more this fall than ever before for election expenses, which will reach a total of about $800,000, according to an announcement made by President Voorhis of the board of elections. The increased expense is for supplying and running additional polling booths.

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE

Biology has Proved that Dandruff is Caused by a Germ.

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam lived, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality; causing itching scalp, falling hair, and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. It is the only destroyer of dandruff. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

H. M. Whitney's Methods

"I Freely Admit Giving the Dinners, of employing counsel and making use of the lobby, but it was to prevent the accomplishment of an infamous purpose which was championed by you in violation of your oath."

—Henry M. Whitney in his reply to George Fred Williams.

EX-GOV. WILLIAM E. RUSSELL, DEMOCRAT,

Condemned the Whitney Methods

In his speech at Lynn, Oct. 31, 1890, Hon. William E. Russell said:

"In my opinion that measure has great merit. It meets the just demand of the community for quicker and better transit. It is a practical solution by able and responsible men of a difficult problem, and it will promote the convenience of the public; but if I had been Governor of this Commonwealth, I would, under the circumstances disclosed by the investigation, have vetoed that bill as quickly as I could have put pen to paper.

"FOR I HOLD THAT IT IS FAR MORE IMPORTANT TO GUARD SACREDLY THE PURITY OF LEGISLATION AND TO REBUKE THE LOBBY THAN THAT ANY MEASURE OF MERIT SHOULD BE HASTENED IN ITS PASSAGE. I HOLD THAT ONE OF THE HIGHEST DUTIES OF THE GOVERNOR OF THE COMMONWEALTH IS TO PROTECT ITS FAIR NAME FROM LEGISLATIVE SCANDAL AND TO PROTECT THE PEOPLE FROM THE IMPROPER CONTROL OF LEGISLATION BY SECRET INFLUENCES."

The Supreme Court OF MASS.

Condemned the Whitney Methods

In a ruling of the supreme court (6—Allen 193) the law was laid down that:

"THE PRACTICE OF PROCURING MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE TO ACT UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF WHAT THEY HAVE EATEN AND DRUNK AT HOUSES OF ENTERTAINMENT TENDS TO RENDER THOSE OF THEM WHO YIELD TO SUCH INFLUENCES WHOLLY UNFIT TO ACT IN SUCH CASES.

"They are disqualified from acting fairly toward interested parties, or toward the public.

"THE TENDENCY AND OBJECT OF THESE INFLUENCES ARE TO OBTAIN BY CORRUPTION WHAT IT IS SUPPOSED CANNOT BE OBTAINED FAIRLY."

Will Massachusetts now endorse the man who boldly admits that he employs these methods?

The Republican State Committee, Thomas Talbot, Chairman, William M. Flanders, Secretary.

Crash Between Jagged Rock Walls Causes Thirteen Deaths

Kansas City, Oct. 31.—Thirteen persons were killed and 30 were injured in the wreck of a west-bound Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe passenger train known as the 'California express, which, while running 36 miles an hour, struck a loose rail, ditching five cars near the eastern limits of Kansas City.

The wreck occurred on a curve, where jagged rock walls on each side of the track form a bluff almost 100 feet high. The locomotive was going so rapidly that it passed the loose rail in safety. The mail car, immediately behind, jumped the track and struck the side of the bluff and the four cars following ploughed through the wreckage and shot against the high stone wall. The sides of the coaches were crushed against the rough stone, killing and wounding passengers and trainmen. None of the killed or injured came from New England.

Professor Mitchell Vindicated

Washington, Oct. 31.—After a heated and protracted session, the college of bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church reached a conclusion in the case of Professor Hinkley G. Mitchell of Boston university, who, despite the fact that the bishops six months ago refused to confirm his appointment to the chair of Hebrew in that institution, because of his interest in the "higher criticism" of the Bible, was again reappointed to the position.

Chinese Troops Trained by Japs

Pekin, Oct. 31.—The army maneuvers, which have just been completed, greatly impressed foreigners, especially those acquainted with the condition of Chinese troops five years ago. The opinion expressed on all sides is that China has accomplished a marvelous feat in raising an army of 40,000 men to its present efficiency. The troops gave many evidences of Japanese training.

Seamen Think Steamer Unsafe

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 31.—All the firemen and trimmers on the Canadian government steamer Tyrian, on board of which a fatal explosion occurred on Saturday, have refused to go to sea in the steamer unless the damaged boiler is proved safe by a competent inspector. Several of the men have left the steamer. The captain has wired the marine department for instructions.

Compulsory Return to Germany

New York, Oct. 31.—"Mrs. Warren's Profession," the play by George B. Shaw, over the propriety of which there has been much controversy, was performed at the Garrick theatre last night for the first time in New York. The house was crowded. As it was presented last night the play might easily be a disappointment to those who attended in the expectation of being shocked.

No Shock to New Yorkers

Boston, Oct. 31.—Hugo Heinbron, the alleged fugitive from Germany, ordered to be extradited through the state department at Washington, left jail here last night with a federal officer for New York, whence Heinbron will sail. Heinbron is charged with having forged seven drafts of acceptances for 19,000 marks on business men in Essen, Germany.

THE CZAR YIELDS

Manifesto Granting Civil Liberty to His People

WITTE PLACED AT HELM

New Assembly to Have Actual Legislative Power and to Be Elected on Broad Suffrage--Practical Abdication of Czar

St. Petersburg, Oct. 31.—Practical abdication of his autocratic powers, the conferring of the rights of civil liberty, inviolability of person, liberty of conscience, speech and assembly upon his whole people, has been made by Emperor Nicholas, Czar of Russia, in an imperial manifesto issued yesterday afternoon and which has been received by the municipal council with "Hurrah for the emperor of a free people."

After referring to the present turmoil in Russia and the necessity for a peaceful settlement, the manifesto says:

"We, therefore, direct our government to carry out our inflexible will in the following manner:

"First, to extend to the population the immutable foundations of civic liberty, based on the real inviolability of person, freedom of conscience, speech, union and association.

"Second, without suspending the already ordered elections to the state douma, to invite to participation in the douma, so far as the limited time before the convocation of the douma will permit, those classes of the population now completely deprived of electoral rights, leaving the ultimate development of the principle of the electoral rights in general to the newly established legislative order of things.

"Third, to establish as an unchangeable rule that no law shall be enforceable without the approval of the state douma and that it shall be possible for the elected of the people to exercise real participation in the supervision of the legality of the acts of the authorities appointed by us.

"We appeal to all faithful sons of Russia to remember their duty towards the fatherland, to aid in terminating these unprecedented troubles and to apply all their forces in co-operation with us, to the restoration of calm and peace upon our natal soil."

A simple perusal of the manifesto shows how complete is the czar's abdication of his autocratic power. The very style of the document is clear and direct and devoid of the verbose, vague and bombastic phraseology which heretofore has characterized the czar's manifestoes.

It not only betrays real authorship, but shows that the czar at last has irrevocably bowed to the inevitable. He does not even conceal the fact that the discontent and agitation of his subjects has driven him to take the step, and practically yields everything—civil liberty, the inviolability of person and liberty of conscience, speech and assembly.

He not only converts the farcical imperial douma, with only consultative power, into a true legislative assembly, without the assent of which no measure shall become law and before which all governmental authorities must answer, but promises, eventually, universal suffrage.

The news spread like wildfire throughout the city. The revolutionists and active agitators generally declared loudly that the government's promises would no longer suffice and that the strike must be continued.

M. Witte, the Russian minister, last night issued an appeal to the American people to co-operate in the peaceful introduction of civil liberties. M. Witte is appointed minister and has begun organizing his cabinet.

Count Witte comes into power as minister president with an imperial mandate which will enable him to convert the farcical national assembly into a real legislative body elected by greatly extended suffrage, and to confer upon the people fundamental civil liberties.

Uncovering Naturalization Frauds

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Joseph Kennedy, who figured in fraudulent naturalization operations here, was sentenced to an indeterminate term in the penitentiary on a confession of perjury. Before the sentence Kennedy gave information which has resulted in a search for four other men said to have aided in illegal introduction to citizenship of several hundred Italians.

Politicians Were Poor Shots

Paris, Oct. 31.—Deputy Pugliesi and Celestine Bosc, an unsuccessful candidate for election to the chamber of deputies, had an encounter in the streets, during which Bosc fired thrice and Pugliesi fired twice, no shot taking effect. They were arrested. The encounter followed an electoral feud.

SHOT CHINESE WOMAN

Admiral Train is in Serious Difficulty in Consequence

Washington, Oct. 31.—The state department has cabled to the United States consul at Nanking, China, asking particulars about the case of Admiral Train, who, according to a cablegram from Shanghai, got into serious trouble in Nanking. In view of the present strained relations between the United States and China, and particularly on account of the fact that Nanking is the center of the boycott movement of American goods, the incident is regarded as serious.

It is the custom of the naval officers on the China station to go fowling whenever opportunity offers among the Chinese rice fields, which at certain seasons abound with ducks and smaller birds feeding on the rice. Shooting in the tall rice is certain to be followed by some accidents, but the naval officers say these are easily adjusted as a rule by the payment of a small sum of money to the victim or his friends. One officer recalls shooting a Chinese babe on its mother's back, which was settled amicably by the payment of 50 Mexican dollars, with the result that many Chinamen were tempted to put themselves in the way of shotguns.

The Shanghai cablegram said that Rear Admiral Train, commander-in-chief of the American Asiatic squadron, and his son, Lieutenant Train, were pheasant shooting when the admiral accidentally shot a Chinese woman, slightly injuring her. Hundreds of villagers thereupon surrounded the officers, took away their guns, knocked the admiral down in the mud and held Lieutenant Train as hostage. Forty American marines who landed as a rescue party were attacked by a mob of Chinamen who tried to pitchfork the officers. The marines were obliged to fire twice. The Chinese officials refused to restore the officers' guns and supported the villagers.

Shanghai, Oct. 31.—The outrage on Rear Admiral Train and his son, Lieutenant Train, has been referred to the governor of Nanking. Americans are demanding the punishment of the leaders of the mob and the restoration of the guns taken from the officers.

Deroulede Returns to France

Paris, Oct. 31.—The chamber of deputies, by an almost unanimous vote, adopted the amnesty bill, the passage of which has been awaited by Paul Deroulede (former member of the chamber, in exile for participation in a revolutionary plot in 1899,) before consenting to return to France, he having refused the presidential pardon.

Vienna, Oct. 31.—Paul Deroulede left for Paris last night. He said he was glad of the opportunity to return, as his country, owing to the attitude of the German emperor towards it, must collect all Frenchmen under the French flag.

Flammer Neglected Formality

New York, Oct. 31.—A tie vote of two Republicans against two Democrats composing the board of elections of this city rejected the Republican party's request to place W. T. Jerome's name in the Republican column of the official ballot as a nominee for the office of district attorney in the coming city and county election. Chairman Voorhis said that Mr. Flammer had not notified the board in writing of his declination of the Republican nomination and that therefore the board had no official knowledge of this declination.

No Appeal in Shepard Case

Paris, Oct. 31.—Influential New York friends of Elliott F. Shepard of New York, who was sentenced here to three months' imprisonment and $120 fine and to pay $4000 damages to the parents of a girl who was killed by Shepard's automobile, will try to secure the intervention in his behalf of the American officials here. Shepard's attorney will not appeal, as the fine and imprisonment were the minimum, leaving no grounds for appeal.

Patrick's Sister to Aid Him

St. Louis, Oct. 31.—In response to a telegram, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Milliken departed for New York last night, to aid, it is said, Albert T. Patrick, who was convicted of the murder of William M. Rice. Mrs. Milliken is Patrick's sister. The nature of the telegram was not made public, but it is said that it came from David B. Hill, Patrick's attorney.

Thousand Miles by Wireless

Washington, Oct. 31.—A report received at the navy department from Colon states that the wireless station there read a wireless communication passing between the station at Key West and a vessel about 200 miles distant from Key West. The distance at which the Colon station read the communication is estimated at about 1000 nautical miles.

May Be Graft Prosecutions

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.—It is intimated by J. G. Gordon, special counsel for Mayor Weaver, that the report of Messrs. Gillette and MacLennan, the expert engineers employed by the mayor to investigate the filtration plant contracts, will be followed by prosecutions. Weaver declines to discuss the experts' report.

President Reaches Washington

Washington, Oct. 31.—President Roosevelt transferred to the United States dispatch boat Dolphin and aboard that vessel left Wolftrap light on the last leg of his journey to Washington at 12:40 o'clock this morning, reaching Washington before noon.

Penrose Denies a Statement

Philadelphia, Oct. 31.—Senator Penrose says that the statement that a note for $75,000, signed or endorsed by him, is, or at any time was, in the Enterprise National bank or was ever protested, is an absolute and malicious falsehood.

Charge Eddy's Report

Washington, Oct. 31.—The state department has received a cablegram from Spencer Eddy, the American charge at St. Petersburg, conveying the information that the situation there is unchanged.

Cash Does The Trick

And is Again At Top of List Miss Merritt Also Near Top

Clerk Cash does not propose to be left behind by Conductor Johnson or anybody else he says, and his big gain today, which pushes him into first place, emphasizes the fact. There are other gains down the list.

Miss Ethel Merritt's friends gave the leaders a little surprise today. Two lots of votes came in for her, and she has passed three in the list, taking second place. Miss Winneberger moves up and there are gains for others.

Today there is a three-vote coupon and an extra large edition of the Daily Ledger has been printed to meet the demands.

Second prizes were announced by advertisement Saturday and were valuable enough in themselves to awaken a new interest. A good suit or an overcoat for the second one in the Men's list, and a stylish suit or cloak for the second one in the Ladies' list. Other prizes are also to be announced. Old papers with coupons may be obtained at the Daily Ledger office and of the news agents.

Winners in the contest who do not care to select a $100 scholarship may select two studies where the cost is $50. A postal to Mr. U. C. Benoit, 26 Foster street, will bring information relative to the courses offered by the International Correspondence school at Scranton, Penn., which are adapted to all needs, including foreign languages by the aid of the phonograph, civil, mechanical, electrical, steam or mining engineering, drafting, architecture, bookkeeping, stenography, civil service examinations, commercial law, illustrating, designing, building inspecting, chemistry, assaying, etc., etc.

Votes should reach the office at 9 A. M., to be counted that day, and it may soon be necessary to put this hour earlier, as the vote increases.

The standing to date is:

Scholarship Contest.

A THREE-VOTE COUPON.

TODAY'S COURT.

John O'Meara was sent to the State farm for drunkenness at Weymouth.

The continued cases of Daniel Golden and Louis Geistel, for breaking and entering the store of R. J. Barry at Atlantic last June, was called. Geistel was discharge and Golden was held in $300 for the grand jury.

Theodore T. Eustace of Weymouth was arraigned for bigamy at Weymouth and was held in $1000 for the grand jury.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

At regular intervals through the season the Castle Square Theatre, the Boston Stage Society will produce an important series of Shakespearian plays and one of the old English comedies. So great is the expense of proper production that Shakespeare's plays are rarely acted nowadays, except by most famous stars, and they are seldom, if ever, given by stock companies both on that account and because of the high quality of acting demanded. The patrons of the Castle Square will therefore be offered a decided novelty in these productions of famous plays that are seldom presented to the public with adequate scenery and acting. The series as now planned, is as follows: Beginning this week, October 30, Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing;" week beginning December 18th Goldsmith's "She Stoops To Conquer" (or Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew"); and later "The Merchant of Venice"; "Macbeth" or "Julius Cæsar"; and "Romeo and Juliet."

The three-vote coupons in the Scholarship contest today come unannounced. Who will get them!

Was No Foul Play

Waterbury, Conn., Oct. 31.—William Norton, a hack driver, while returning from a trip to a Waterville resort at 3:30 o'clock in the morning, toppled off the hack unconscious. He had two men passengers, and while one guarded his body in the vehicle the other drove homeward. Foul play was at first suspected, but Medical Examiner Crane decided that death was due to apoplexy.

Inquest Probable In Orr Case

South Hampton, N. H., Oct. 31.—An autopsy was performed upon the body of John W. Orr, whose body was found on the riverbank near his home, but pending further investigation no announcement of the result of the examination has yet been made. The medical referee has made his report to County Solicitor Kelley and it is probable that he will order an inquest.

Millowners Win Against Strikers

Montville, Conn., Oct. 31.—The strike which has been on in the Pequot cotton mills in this town since Sept. 18 is settled and nearly all of the 240 looms in the mill are running today. The mill management won by employing outside help to fill the places of the striking weavers. The strike was brought on by a slight reduction in wages.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

A DIRECT ADVANCE

About Four Percent Offered Fall River Operatives

ALSO RECEIVE DIVIDEND

A Compromise Agreement Between the Textile Council and Manufacturers Gives Total Advance of Nearly Nine Percent

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 31.—Amicable relations were re-established between the cotton manufacturers and their operatives at a protracted conference between the organization of the mill owners and the Textile council. A compromise agreement on the wage issue was reached and it is the general opinion that not only will a strike be averted, but that the troublesome wage question has been adjusted for at least a year.

Before the new agreement goes into actual effect, the compromise will have to be passed upon by the individual unions tomorrow night, but there is every reason to believe that the various organizations will endorse the action of the Textile council, which last night voted to recommend that the compromise stand be accepted. The Manufacturers' association has already endorsed the proposed agreement.

The manufacturers, with the exception of M. C. D. Borden of New York, owner of the Fall River Iron works, declined on Oct 16 to restore the wage schedule which prevailed before the reduction of 12½ percent on July 25, 1904, directly, but offered a straight advance of 5 percent and introduced a profit-sharing plan, based on the margin between the price of eight pounds of Middling Uplands cotton in New York, and the selling value of 45 yards of 28-inch 64x64 standard print cloth. The arrangement provided that when the margin between the price of the two commodities reached 75 cents, the manufacturers would pay a dividend of 1 percent and a similar dividend for every cent above the minimum margin until the margin reached 85 cents. For each cent above 85 the dividend was to be ½ of 1 percent.

The operatives were dissatisfied with this arrangement, claiming that they would seldom receive wages as high as those paid prior to the cut of 1904. A general strike was threatened, the Textile council maintaining that the millowners should restore the 1904 reduction and then take up the profit-sharing proposition. The position of the council was strengthened by the action of Mr. Borden, who voluntarily restored the old wage scale, without the dividend plan.

To avert a strike if possible, Mayor Coughlin and others induced both sides to again consider the wage issue before taking final action. Yesterday afternoon the Manufacturers' association and Textile council met and went over the whole situation. Last night both sides announced that a compromise had been agreed upon, the manufacturers consenting to lower the minimum margin upon which dividends shall be declared to the operatives from 75 cents to 72½ cents. The previous plan of making a direct advance in wages of 5 percent was also changed, the Textile council receding and agreeing to an increase which will bring the price for weaving up to 18 cents per cut of 45 yards. Under the new plan the direct advance will amount to about 4 percent.

According to the price of Mid-Upland cotton today, 10.75 a pound, and the price of standard print cloth, 3 5-8 cents a yard, the margin is 77 1-8 cents, between the price of the amounts taken as a standard, and the total wage advance is slightly less than 9 percent.

It is thought that the compromise agreement, if ratified by the various unions, will be adopted by mills elsewhere which follow the Fall River schedule.
